thereof shall be transmitted by the clerk of the superior court in which such sentence is pronounced to the warden of the state penitentiary at Raleigh, North Carolina, not more than twenty nor less than ten days before the time fixed in the judgment of the court for the execution of the sentence; and in all cases where there is no appeal from the sentence of death and in all cases where the sentence is pronounced against a prisoner convicted of the crime of rape it shall be the duty of the sheriff, together with at least one deputy, to convey to the penitentiary at Raleigh such condemned felon or convict forthwith upon the adjournment of the court in which the felon was tried, and deliver the convict or felon to the warden of the penitentiary: Provided, that in all cases where an appeal is taken from the death sentence by any person convicted of a crime punishable by death, except the crime of rape, such convicted felon or convict shall not be taken or conveyed to the penitentiary unless, in the judgment of the sheriff of the county in which the felon was tried and the solicitor prosecuting the felon, it shall be deemed necessary for the safety and safekeeping of the convicted person or felon during the pendency of the appeal. (1909, c. 443, s. 3; C. S. 4659.)

Judgment Must Be Written and Signed by Trial Judge.—The entry of judgment of the court on the verdict of guilty of a capital felony by the clerk of the court on its minutes and signed by the judge is not a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this section, its mandatory provisions requiring the judgment to be written and signed by the judge, and where it appears of record that he has failed so to do the case will be remanded. State v. Jackson, 199 N. C. 321, 322, 154 S. E. 402.

Death Sentence without Reference to Crime.—A judgment sentencing defendant to death for the commission of a capital felony, though making no reference to the trial or the crime of which the defendant was convicted, while not commended is held sufficient. State v. Taylor, 194 N. C. 738, 140 S. E. 728.

Where in a prosecution for murder the jury returns a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, the judgment of the court, which alone is certified to the warden of the State prison, under this section and §§ 15-188, 15-190, must recite that the defendant had been convicted of murder in the first degree, and where it recites that the prisoner had been convicted of murder, and sentences the prisoner to death by electrocution, the case will be remanded. State v. Langley, 204 N. C. 687, 169 S. E. 705.

When No Reference to Trial or Crime Is Made.—A judgment, while somewhat informal, because it made no reference to the trial or the crime of which the prisoner was convicted, is, nevertheless, sufficient to meet the requirements of this section. State v. Edney, 202 N. C. 706, 707, 164 S. E. 23.

§ 15-190. A guard or guards or other person to be named and designated by the warden to execute sentence.—Some guard or guards or other reliable person or persons to be named and designated by the warden from time to time shall cause the person, convict or felon against whom the death sentence has been so pronounced to be asphyxiated as provided by this article and all amendments thereto. The asphyxiation shall be under the general supervision and control of the warden of the penitentiary, who shall from time to time, in writing, name and designate the guard or guards or other reliable person or persons who shall cause the person, convict or felon against whom the death sentence has been pronounced to be asphyxiated as provided by this article and all amendments thereto. At such execution there shall be present the warden or deputy warden or some person designated by the warden in his stead; the surgeon or physician of the penitentiary and six respectable citizens, the counsel and any relatives of such person, convict or felon and a minister or ministers of the gospel may be present if they so desire, and the board of directors of the penitentiary may provide for and pay the fee for each execution not to exceed thirty-five dollars ($35.00). (1909, c. 443, s. 4; 1925, c. 123; 1935, c. 294, s. 3; C. S. 4660.)

§ 15-191. Pending sentences unaffected.—Nothing in §§ 15-187, 15-188, and 15-190 shall be construed to alter in any manner the execution of the sentence of death imposed on account of any crime or crimes committed before July 1, 1935. (1935, c. 294, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The act from which this section was codified changed the mode of executing a death sentence from electrocution to the administration of lethal gas.

§ 15-194. Judgment sustained on appeal, reprieve, time for execution.—In case of an appeal, should the Supreme Court find no error in the trial, or should the stay of execution granted by any competent judicial tribunal or proceeding, or reprieve by the Governor, have expired or terminated, such condemned person, convict or felon shall be executed, in the manner heretofore provided in this article, upon the third Friday after the filing of the opinion or order of the Supreme Court or other competent judicial tribunal as aforesaid, or, in case of a reprieve by the Governor, such condemned person, convict or felon shall be executed in the manner heretofore provided in this article upon the third Friday after the expiration or termination of such reprieve; and it shall be the duty of the clerk of the Supreme Court, and of any other competent tribunal, as aforesaid, or the clerk thereof, to notify the warden of the penitentiary of the date of the filing of the opinion or order of such court or other judicial tribunal, and in case of a reprieve by the Governor, it shall be the duty of the Governor to give notice to the warden of the State Penitentiary of the date of the expiration of such reprieve. (1909, c. 443, s. 6; 1925, c. 55; C. S. 4663.)

place of trial.—Should a new trial be granted the condemned person, convict or felon against whom sentence of death has been pronounced, after he has been conveyed to the penitentiary, he shall be conveyed back to the place of trial by such guard or guards as the warden of the penitentiary shall direct, their expenses to be paid as is now provided by law for the conveyance of convicts to the penitentiary. (1909, c. 443, s. 7; C. S. 4664.)

§ 15-196. Disposition of body.—Upon application, written or verbal, of any relative as near as the degree of fourth cousin of the person executed, made at any time prior to the execution or on the morning thereof, the body, after execution, shall be prepared for burial under the supervision of the warden or deputy warden and shall be returned to the nearest railroad station of the relative or relatives asking for such body. In the event that no relative asks for the body of such executed person, convict or felon, the same shall be disposed of as other bodies of convicts dying in the penitentiary. (1909, c. 443, s. 9; 1925, c. 275, s. 6; C. S. 4665.)

Cross Reference.—As to disposition of other bodies of convicts, see § 90-212.

ART. 20. Suspension of Sentence and Probation.

§ 15-197. Suspension of sentence and probation.—After conviction or plea of guilty or nolo contendere for any offense, except a crime punishable by death or life imprisonment, the judge of any court of record with criminal jurisdiction may suspend the imposition or the execution of a sentence and place the defendant on probation or may impose a fine and also place the defendant on probation. (1937, c. 132, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to suspension of sentence in hasty proceedings, see § 49-8. As to probation in cases of prostitution, see § 14-208. As to restoration of citizenship in case of pardon or suspension of judgment, see § 13-6.

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of the act from which this article was codified, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. p. 345.

For comment on 1939 amendatory act, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 350.

For article on punishment for crime in North Carolina, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 205.

History.—For nearly half a century prior to 1937, the trial judges in North Carolina operated a system of probation on their own initiative, permitted convicted criminals to go at large on specified conditions, and arrested them upon bench warrants if the terms of probation were violated. Either the sentence of imprisonment would be formally entered and execution suspended on conditions, or prayer for judgment would be continued in like manner. Since 1937 this power has been expressly continued by this article as a part of the state's probation system. Pelley v. Colpoys, 122 F. (2d) 12, 13.

Probation Must Be Consistent with Right of Appeal.—Where the privilege of probation, granted by this article, is so conditioned as to be inconsistent with a defendant's right of appeal, the judgment is erroneous. State v. Calcutt, 219 N. C. 545, 548, 15 S. E. (2d) 9.

Cited in State v. Ward, 222 N. C. 316, 22 S. E. (2d) 922.

§ 15-198. Investigation by probation officer.—When directed by the court the probation officer shall fully investigate and report to the court in writing the circumstances of the offense and the criminal record, social history, and present condition of the defendant, including, whenever practicable, the findings of a physical and mental examination of the defendant. When the services of a probation officer are available to the court, no defendant charged with a felony, and, unless the court shall direct otherwise in individual cases, no other defendant shall be placed on probation or released under suspension of sentence until the report of such investigation shall have been presented to and considered by the court. (1937, c. 132, s. 2.)

§ 15-199. Conditions of probation.—The court shall determine and may impose, by order duly entered, and may at any time modify the conditions of probation and may include among them the following, or any other: That the probationer shall:

- (a) Avoid injurious or vicious habits;
- (b) Avoid persons or places of disreputable or harmful character;
- (c) Report to the probation officer as directed;
- (d) Permit the probation officer to visit at his home or elsewhere;
- (e) Work faithfully at suitable employment as far as possible;
- (f) Remain within a specified area;
- (g) Pay a fine in one or several sums as directed by the court;
- (h) Make reparation or restitution to the aggrieved party for the damage or loss caused by his offense, in an amount to be determined by the court;
- (i) Support his dependents. (1937, c. 132, s. 3.)

To Remain Law-Abiding.—Upon conviction of a misdemeanor, judgment was entered that defendant be imprisoned in the county jail for a term of eight months, with further provision that execution of the judgment should be suspended upon the payment of a fine and upon further condition that defendant remain law-abiding for a period of five years. Held: The condition upon which execution was suspended was twofold; first, the payment of the fine and, second, that defendant remain law-abiding for a term of five years; and upon conviction of defendant of a subsequent violation of the criminal law within the period of five years, the order of the court putting into effect the suspended execution is proper, notwithstanding defendant had paid the fine, defendant's contention that judgment suspending execution did not contemplate imprisonment if the fine should be paid, being untenable. State v. Wilson, 216 N. C. 130, 4 S. E. (2d) 440.

§ 15-200. Termination of probation, arrest, subsequent disposition.—The period of probation or suspension of sentence shall not exceed a period of five years and shall be determined by the judge of the court and may be continued or extended, terminated or suspended by the court at any time, within the above limit. Upon the satisfactory fulfillment of the conditions of probation or suspension of sentence the court shall by order duly entered discharge the defendant. At any time during the period of probation or suspension of sentence, the court may issue a warrant and cause the defendant to be arrested for violating any of the conditions of probation or suspension of sentence. Any police officer, or other officer with power of arrest, upon the request of the probation officer, may arrest a probationer without a warrant. In case of an arrest without a warrant the arresting officer shall have a written statement signed by said probation officer setting forth that the probationer has, in his judgment, violated the conditions of probation; and said statement shall be sufficient warrant for the detention of said probationer in the county jail, or other appropriate place of detention, until said probationer shall be brought before the judge of the court. Such probation officer shall forthwith report such arrest and detention to the judge of the court, or in superior court cases to the judge holding the courts of the district, or the resident judge, or any judge commissioned at the time to hold court in said district, and submit in writing a report showing in what manner the probationer has violated probation. Upon such arrest, with or without warrant, the court shall cause the defendant to be brought before it in or out of term and may revoke the probation or suspension of sentence, and shall proceed to deal with the case as if there had been no probation or suspension of sentence. (1937, c. 132, s. 4; 1939, c. 373.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment inserted in the first sentence the words "terminated or suspended by the court at any time". It also inserted in the sixth sentence the provision as to superior court cases, and in the last sentence the words "in or out of term".

Common-Law System.—Under the North Carolina law the trial court had authority to issue its capias for petitioner's arrest on the suspended sentence either under the common-law system which prevailed in 1935 or under the provisions of this article. Pelley v. Colpoys, 122 F. (2d) 12, 13.

Suspension May Be for Five Years Although Maximum Imprisonment Is Two Years.—The superior court has the power to suspend execution of a sentence in a criminal prosecution for a period of five years, notwithstanding that the maximum imprisonment authorized for the offense of which defendant is convicted is two years. State v. Wilson, 216 N. C. 130, 4 S. E. (2d) 440.

Absence from State after Service of Capias.—Defendant was convicted upon an indictment containing two counts. Execution of sentence on one count was suspended upon specified conditions for a period of five years and prayer for judgment was continued on the other count for a like period. Thereafter, upon alleged violation of conditions of probation, capias was issued under this section, and alias capias subsequently served upon defendant out of the state before the expiration of the period of probation. Defendant refused to appear, and by habeas corpus and numerous appeals in his fight against extradition, delayed his appearance in court for hearing upon the alleged violation of conditions of probation beyond the period of probation. It was held that upon issuance of notice or service of capias the defendant was under duty to respond and appear and time ceased to run against the period of probation during the period defendant absented himself from the state and was a fugitive from justice. State v. Pelley, 221 N. C. 487, 20 S. E. (2d) 850.

§ 15-201. Establishment and organization of a state probation commission.—There is hereby established a state probation commission to be composed of five members, who shall be appointed by the governor and shall serve without a salary as members of such commission, but shall receive their actual traveling expenses while in the performance of their official duties. The first appointments shall be made within thirty days after March 13, 1937, and shall be made in such manner that the term of one member of the state probation commission shall expire each year. Their successors shall be appointed by the governor within thirty days thereafter for terms of five years each. All vacancies occurring among the members shall be filled as soon as practicable thereafter by the governor for the unexpired terms. This commission shall be deemed a "commission for special purpose" within the meaning of the language of section seven of Article XIV of the Constitution, and the membership thereof may be composed of persons holding other official positions in the state, if the governor shall so elect.

The state probation commission shall organize immediately after the appointment of the first members thereof, and elect a chairman from its members. Thereafter a chairman shall be elected annually between January fifteenth and January thirtieth of each year. (1937, c. 132, s. 5.)

§ 15-202. Duties and powers of the commission; meetings; appointment of director of probation; qualifications.—With respect to the administration of probation in the state, except cases within the jurisdiction of the juvenile courts, the state probation commission shall exercise general supervision; formulate policies; adopt general rules, not inconsistent with law, to regulate methods of procedure; and set standards for personnel. It shall meet at stated times to be fixed by it not less often than once every three months, and on call of its chairman, to consider any matters relating to probation in the state.

The state probation commission, with the approval of the governor, shall appoint a director of probation, who shall serve as its executive secretary, and shall receive a salary to be fixed by the governor and the council of state and who shall give his entire time to the work. When the necessity of the service requires, it shall appoint one or more assistants and fix their salaries.

The person appointed as director of probation shall be qualified by education, training, experience and temperament for the duties of the office. (1937, c. 132, s. 6; 1943, c. 638.)

Cross Reference.—As to administration of probation with respect to cases within the jurisdiction of juvenile courts, see § 110-31 et seq.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1943 amendment this section provided a minimum salary of $3,600 and a maximum salary of $4,500 for the director.

§ 15-203. Duties of the director of probation; appointment of probation officers; reports.—The director of probation shall appoint, subject to the approval of the state probation commission, such probation officers as are required for service in the state and such clerical assistance as may be necessary: Provided, that before any persons other than the director of probation shall be appointed, the state probation commission shall make up and submit to the governor a budget covering its proposed organization and expenditures, and no fund shall be available to carry out the purpose of this article except to the extent that said budget is approved first by the state highway and public works commission, and then by the director of the budget.

The director of probation shall direct the work of the probation officers appointed under this article. He shall consult and cooperate with the courts and institutions in the development of methods and procedure in the administration of probation, and shall arrange conferences of probation officers and judges. He shall make an annual written report with statistical and other information to the probation commission and the governor. (1937, c. 132, s. 7.)

§ 15-204. Assignment and compensation and oath of probation officers.—Probation officers appointed under this article shall be assigned to serve in such courts or districts or otherwise as the director of probation may determine. They shall be paid annual salaries to be fixed by the probation commission, and shall also be paid traveling and other necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their official duties as probation officers when such expense accounts have been authorized and approved by the director of probation.

Each person appointed as a probation officer shall take an oath of office before the judge of the court or courts in which he is to serve, which oath shall be as follows:

"I,, do solemnly and sincerely swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to the State of North Carolina, and to the constitutional powers and authorities which are or may be established for the government thereof; and that I will endeavor to support, maintain, and defend the Constitution of said State, not inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States, to the best of my knowledge and ability; so help me God."

and shall be noted of record by the clerk of the court. (1937, c. 132, s. 8.)

Cited in State v. Calcutt, 219 N. C. 545, 15 S. E. (2d) 9 (dis. op.).

§ 15-205. Duties and powers of the probation officers.—A probation officer shall investigate all cases referred to him for investigation by the judges of the courts or by the director of probation, and shall report in writing thereon. He shall furnish to each person released on probation under his supervision a written statement of the conditions of probation and shall instruct him regarding the same. Such officer shall keep informed concerning the conduct and condition of each person on probation under his supervision by visiting, requiring reports, and in other ways, and shall report thereon in writing as often as the court or the director of probation may require. Such officer shall use all practicable and suitable methods, not inconsistent with the conditions imposed by the court, or the director of probation, to aid and encourage persons on probation to bring about improvement in their conduct and condition. Such officer shall keep detailed records of his work; shall make such reports in writing to the director of probation as he may require; and shall perform such other duties as the director of probation may require. A probation officer shall have, in the execution of his duties, the powers of arrest and, to the extent necessary for the performance of his duties, the same right to execute process as is now given, or that may hereafter be given by law, to the sheriffs of this state. (1937, c. 132, s. 9.)

§ 15-206. Co-operation with commissioner of parole and officials of local units.—It shall be the duty of the director of probation and the commissioner of parole to co-operate with each other to the end that the purposes of probation and parole may be more effectively carried out. When requested, each shall make available to the other case records in his possession, and in cases of emergency, where time and expense can be saved, shall provide investigation service.

It is hereby made the duty of every city, county, or state official or department to render all assistance and co-operation within his or its fundamental power which may further the objects of this article. The state probation commission, the director of probation, and the probation officers are authorized to seek the co-operation of such officials and departments, and especially of the county superintendents of public welfare and of the state board of charities and public welfare. (1937, c. 132, s. 10.)

§ 15-207. Records treated as privileged information.—All information and data obtained in the discharge of official duty by any probation officer shall be privileged information, shall not be receivable as evidence in any court, and shall not be disclosed directly or indirectly to any other than the judge or to others entitled under this article to receive reports, unless and until otherwise ordered by a judge of the court or the director of probation. (1937, c. 132, s. 11.)

§ 15-208. Payment of salaries and expenses.—All salaries and expenses necessary for carrying out the provisions of this article shall be fixed in accordance with the Executive Budget Act and the Personnel Act, and shall be paid by the state highway and public works commission out of the state highway funds, under direction of the director of the budget. (1937, c. 132, s. 12.)

§ 15-209. Accommodations for probation officers.—The county commissioners in each county in which a probation officer serves shall provide, in or near the courthouse, suitable office space for such officer. (1937, c. 132, s. 13.)

Art. 1. Gaming Contracts.

§ 16-1. Gaming and betting contracts void.—All wagers, bets or stakes made to depend upon any race, or upon any gaming by lot or chance, or upon any lot, chance, casualty or unknown or contingent event whatever, shall be unlawful; and all contracts, judgments, conveyances and assurances for and on account of any money or property, or thing in action, so wagered, bet or staked, or to repay, or to secure any money, or property, or thing in action, lent or advanced for the purpose of such wagering, betting, or staking as aforesaid, shall be void. (Rev., s. 1687; Code, ss. 2841, 2842; R. C., c. 51, ss. 1, 2; 1810, c. 796; C. S. 2142.)

Cross Reference.—As to criminal laws regarding gambling, see § 14-289 et seq.

In General.—A gaming contract or wager is a contract by which two parties or more agree that a certain sum of money or other thing shall be paid or delivered to one of them on the happening or not happening of an uncertain event. Bouv. Law Dict.

At common law all gambling contracts were void. And generally in this country, all wagering contracts are held to be illegal and void as against public policy. Irwin v. Williar, 110 U. S. 499, 510, 4 S. Ct. 160, 28 L. Ed. 225.

Liberal Construction.—This section is construed liberally. Turner v. Peacock, 13 N. C. 303.

Gambling contracts are void, because they are so declared by this section. Morehead Banking Co. v. Tate, 122 N. C. 313, 317, 30 S. E. 341.

Judgments in Invitum Not Included.—This section does not include judgments taken in invitum, but only such as are confessed or taken by consent. Teague v. Perry, 64 N. C. 39.

No Recovery Where Game Fair.—It is settled that money, or a horse, or a judgment, won at cards and actually paid and delivered, can not be recovered back, the game being fairly played. Teague v. Perry, 64 N. C. 39, 41; Hudspeth v. Wilson, 13 N. C. 372; Warden v. Plummer, 49 N. C. 524; Hodges v. Pitman, 4 N. C. 276.

Unfair Gaming Always Illegal.—Unfair gaming was not only illegal by force of the statute against gaming, but was unlawful at common law, so that the money, or thing won, if it had been paid, might be recovered back in an action at law. Warden v. Plummer, 49 N. C. 524, 526; Webb v. Fulchire, 25 N. C. 485.

Same—Recovery.—Where a man is cheated out of his money, though it is in playing at a game forbidden by law, he may recover back what he has paid from the person who practiced the fraud upon him. Webb v. Fulchire, 25 N. C. 485, cited in note in 5 L. R. A., N. S., 907.

No Recovery on Bond Unfairly Won.—Where A., at a game of cards unfairly played, won a justice's judgment from B., and took from the defendants in the judgment a bond payable to himself for the amount, on which he brought suit, to which the statute against gaming was pleaded, it was held that he could not recover. Warden v. Plummer, 49 N. C. 524.

Subsequent Note Valid.—A note given subsequently, in purchase of a magistrate's judgment which had been won at cards by the payee from the maker, is not void under this section against gaming. Teague v. Perry, 64 N. C. 39.

Rights of Innocent Holder of Gambling Note.—This section applicable to a note originally given for a gambling debt, renders this and all notes and contracts in like cases void, this being true, no action thereon can be sustained. The position as stated is undoubtedly the law in this jurisdiction, and is in accord with well considered authorities elsewhere. This principle, however, is allowed to prevail only where the action is on the note to enforce its obligations, and does not affect or extend to suits by an innocent endorsee for value, and holder in due course, against the endorser on his contract of endorsement. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Crafton, 181 N. C. 404, 405, 107 S. E. 316.

Intent of Parties.—Where the transaction is legitimate on its face, one party cannot avoid it by claiming that it was a gambling contract where the proof shows that the other party did not so understand it, but believed it to be a valid agreement. Bibb v. Allen, 149 U. S. 481, 492, 13 S. Ct. 950, 37 L. Ed. 817.

Money Loaned for Gaming.—Money lent to play with at gaming, or to play at the time of loss, is not recoverable. Mooring v. Stanton, 1 N. C. 70.

When Stakeholder Liable.—Where money is deposited with a stakeholder, to be delivered to the winner, and the stakeholder pays over the money, after notice from the loser not to do so, the loser may recover the money from the stakeholder. Wood v. Wood, 7 N. C. 172; Forrest v. Hart, 7 N. C. 458.

Note Given in Foreign State Unenforceable.—A note given in consideration of a bet won on a horse race cannot be enforced in this State although given in a state where wagering contracts are not invalid. Gooch v. Faucett, 122 N. C. 270, 29 S. E. 362. See Burrus v. Witcover, 158 N. C. 384, 74 S. E. 11.

Cards a Game of Chance.—It is a matter of common knowledge that a game of cards is a game of chance. State v. Taylor, 111 N. C. 680, 16 S. E. 168.

Betting on Horse Race.—It was the intention of this section to make betting on horse races a criminal offense, since such wagering contracts had already been outlawed and the denouncement of the wager as unlawful came in by amendment at a later time. State v. Brown, 221 N. C. 301, 304, 20 S. E. (2d) 286.

The game of tenpins is not a "game of chance." State v. Gupton, 30 N. C. 271; State v. King, 113 N. C. 631, 18 S. E. 169.

"Shuffleboard."—The keeping of a gaming table called "a shuffleboard" is not indictable, as the game is not one of chance, but of skill. State v. Bishop, 30 N. C. 266.

"Shooting for Beef" and other similar trials of skill, for which the participants pay for the "chance" or privilege of shooting, is not a game of chance there being no "chance" in the sense of the acts against gambling. State v. De-Boy, 117 N. C. 702, 23 S. E. 167.

§ 16-2. Players and betters competent witnesses. — No person shall be excused or incapacitated from confessing or testifying touching any money or property, or thing in action, so wagered, bet or staked, or lent for such purpose, by reason of his having won, played, bet or staked upon any game, lot or chance, casualty, or unknown or contingent event aforesaid; but the confession or testimony of such person shall not be used against him, in any criminal prosecution, on account of such betting, wagering or staking. (Rev., s. 1638; Code, s. 2843; R. C., c. 51, s. 3; C. S. 2143.)

Cross References.—As to rule of evidence generally that defendant is not compellable to testify, see § 8-54. As to exception with reference to testimony as to gambling, etc., see also, § 8-55.

Art. 2. Contracts for "Futures."

§ 16-3. Certain contracts as to "futures" void. —Every contract, whether in writing or not, whereby any person shall agree to sell and deliver any cotton, indian corn, wheat, rye, oats, tobacco, meal, lard, bacon, salt pork, salt fish, beef, cattle, sugar, coffee, stocks, bonds, and choses in action, at a place and at a time specified and agreed upon therein, to any other person, whether the person to whom such article is so agreed to be sold and delivered shall be a party to such contract or not, when, in fact, and notwithstanding the terms expressed of such contract, it is not intended by the parties thereto that the articles or things so agreed to be sold and delivered shall be actually delivered, or the value thereof paid, but it is intended and understood by them that money or other thing of value shall be paid to the one party by the other, or to a third party, the party to whom such payment of money or other thing of value shall be made to depend, and the amount of such money or other thing of value so to be paid to depend upon whether the market price or value of the article so agreed to be sold and delivered is greater or less at the time and place so specified than the price stipulated to be paid and received for the articles so to be sold and delivered, and every contract commonly called "futures" as to the several articles and things hereinbefore specified, or any of them, by whatever other name called, and every contract as to the said several articles and things, or any of them, whereby the parties thereto contemplate and intend no real transaction as to the article or thing agreed to be delivered, but only the payment of a sum of money or other thing of value, such payment and the amount thereof and the person to whom the same is to be paid to depend on whether or not the market price or value is greater or less than the price so agreed to be paid for the said article or thing at the time and place specified in such contract, shall be utterly null and void; and no action shall be maintained in any court to enforce any such contract, whether the same was made in or out of the state, or partly in and partly out of this state, and whether made by the parties thereto by themselves or by or through their agents, immediately or mediately; nor shall any party to any such contract, or any agent of any such party, directly or remotely connected with any such contract in any way whatever, have or maintain any action or cause of action on account of any money or other thing of value paid or advanced or hypothecated by him or them in connection with or on account of such contract and agency; nor shall the courts of this state have any jurisdiction to entertain any suit or action brought upon a judgment based upon any such contract. This section shall not be construed so as to apply to any person, firm or corporation, or his or their agents, engaged in the business of manufacturing or wholesale merchandising in the purchase and/or sale of the necessary commodities required in the ordinary course of their business; nor shall this section be construed so as to apply to any contract with respect to the purchase and/or sale for future delivery of any of the articles or things mentioned and referred to in this section, where such purchase and/or sale is made on any exchange on which any such article or things are regularly bought and sold, or contracts therefor regularly entered into, and the rules and regulations of such exchange are such that either party to such contract may require delivery thereof: Provided, such contract is made in accordance with such rules and regulations. (Rev., s. 1689; 1889, c. 221, s. 1; 1905, c. 538, s. 7; 1909, c. 853, s. 1; 1931, c. 236, s. 1; C. S. 2144.)

Editor's Note.—On examination of the original statute, it appears that the Act, defining and declaring contracts in "futures" unlawful, was passed in 1889, chapter 221. In 1905, chapter 538, the Legislature enacted a law to suppress what is known, in popular phrase, as "bucket shops," and, having provided for this in sections 1 and 2, the statute contains several additional sections relating to the statute of 1889 and all of them having reference to the mode or quantum of proof which should be required in enforcement of that act. The Law of 1905 then, in its closing section, provided: "That this act shall not be construed so as to apply to any person, firm, or corporation, etc." This is the first time these words appear in our legislation on this subject, and, so far as they had reference to the law of 1889, it is clear that the Legislature, in the original statutes, only intended that they should affect questions of proof. See Rodgers, etc., Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 384, 72 S. E. 817.

From these considerations, it seems clear that the last sentence of this section was inserted "unnecessarily and out of abundance of caution"—and it does not confer any exclusive right or privilege upon manufacturers or wholesale merchants; nor does it authorize them to engage in any business prohibited by the section. It simply provides that the courts shall not construe the section to have the effect of preventing them from buying and selling for future delivery the necessary commodities required in their ordinary business. See State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50; State v. Clayton, 138 N. C. 732, 50 S. E. 866; Rodgers, etc., Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 385, 72 S. E. 817.

The 1931 act amended the "Bucket Shop Act" of 1889, now this section, so as to exempt contracts with respect to purchase or sale where they are made in accordance with the regulations of any exchange, and where the rules of the exchange permit either party to require delivery. It was intended to remove the ban of illegality from transactions on legitimate exchanges, as distinguished from "an establishment nominally for the transaction of a stock exchange business, or business of a similar character, but really for the registration of lots or wagers, usually for small amounts, on the rise or fall of stock, grain, etc., there being no transfer or delivery of the stocks or things dealt with." Gatewood v. North Carolina, 203 U. S. 431, 27 S. Ct. 167, 51 L. Ed. 305. See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 358, 359.

Section Constitutional.—This section is in furtherance of our declared public policy, and is constitutional and valid. Randolph v. Heath, 171 N. C. 383, 88 S. E. 731; S. v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50; S. v. Clayton, 138 N. C. 732, 50 S. E. 866; Garseed v. Sternberger, 135 N. C. 501, 47 S. E. 603; Rankin v. Mitchem, 141 N. C. 277, 53 S. E. 854.

The Legislature can, in the exercise of the police power, prescribe when and under what circumstances and as to what offenses a certain act shall be prima facie evidence. Therefore, a provision that the purchase of commodities upon margin under certain circumstances shall raise a prima facie case that such purchases were void, and other circumstances shall not constitute such prima facie evidence, is not a discrimination forbidden by the Fourteenth Amendment. State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2145 of the Consolidated Statutes, which section was repealed by P. L. 1931, c. 236.

Within Police Power.—This section forbidding the business of running a "bucket shop," is clearly within the police power of the State. State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50.

Defines Illegal Contract.—This section clearly defines what is an illegal contract where there is no real sale, but merely an agreement for an adjustment upon the basis of the differences in the prices of the commodity at the time fixed. Ovis Bros. & Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 231, 233, 91 S. E. 948.

Not Contrary to Federal Constitution.—When, in an action pending in the courts of this State to recover on a judgment in a sister state, the Legislature amended this section by adding thereto: "Nor shall the courts of this State have any jurisdiction to entertain any suit or action brought upon a judgment based upon any such contract," there can be no valid objection to such legislation on the ground that it impairs the obligation of contracts, and it would seem that no such objection can be made under Art. IV, secs. 1 and 2 of the Federal Constitution, "the full faith and credit clause," if it is admitted or clearly appears that the judgment sued on was rendered on a transaction expressly forbidden by our statute on gaming, and that the question was not raised, investigated or determined in the courts of the State in which the judgment was originally rendered. Mottu v. Davis, 151 N. C. 237, 65 S. E. 969.

The North Carolina statutes prohibiting gambling in futures and denying jurisdiction of the courts to suits on judgments based upon such contracts have been upheld as constituting an exception to the application of the full faith and credit clause of the constitution, on the ground that the state had not provided a court with jurisdiction to entertain suit on such a judgment though properly rendered in another state. Lockman v. Lockman, 220 N. C. 95, 105, 16 S. E. (2d) 670.

In an action on a judgment of the state of New York, defendant moved for leave to amend his answer to allege that the judgment was based on a gaming contract, and that therefore our court was without jurisdiction of the action. The trial court, in its discretion, denied the motion to amend, and, there being no valid defense set up in the answer as constituted, entered judgment on the pleadings. It was held that the denial of the motion to amend was affirmed, but the cause was remanded in order that the court find facts determinative of whether the question of the invalidity of the contract was concluded by the New York judgment, and if not, whether the contract constituting the basis of the judgment was one condemned by this section, since the court cannot render final judgment until it has determined the jurisdictional question. Cody v. Hovey, 219 N. C. 369, 14 S. E. (2d) 30.

Example of "Margin."—A payment made on account by a customer to a stockbroker, under an agreement between the customer and the stockbroker in which the stockbroker agreed either to sell or to buy from the customer a certain number of shares of stock, but under which, in fact, no delivery or transfer of shares was contemplated, is known in stockbroker's parlance as a "margin." McClain v. Fleshman, 106 Fed. 880, 882. Welles & Co. v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 94, 129 S. E. 177. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2145 of the Consolidated Statutes which section was repealed by P. L. 1931, c. 236.

Contract Made in Foreign State.—An action upon a wagering or "future contract" in cotton cannot be maintained in this State, though entered into in another State where it is lawful. Burrus v. Witcover, 158 N. C. 384, 74 S. E. 11.

Action upon judgment obtained in foreign state. See Cody v. Hovey, 217 N. C. 407, 8 S. E. (2d) 479. For note on this case, see 18 N. C. Law Rev. 224.

Bucket Shop.—A "bucket shop" has been defined as "an establishment nominally for the transaction of a stock exchange business, or business of a similar character, but really for the registration of lots or wagers, usually for small amounts, on the rise or fall of stock, grain, etc., there being no transfer or delivery of the stocks or things dealt with." Gatewood v. North Carolina, 203 U. S. 531, 27 S. Ct. 167, 51 L. Ed. 305. For other definitions, see State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50.

Contracts for Future Delivery.—It is well settled that contracts for the future delivery of merchandise or tangible property are not void, whether such property is in existence in the hands of the seller, or to be subsequently acquired. Bibb v. Allen, 149 U. S. 481, 493, 13 S. Ct. 950, 37 L. Ed. 817.

And the fact that it is the practice of persons making sales for future delivery to settle the same by setting off one sale against another, will not render it invalid. Board v. Christie Grain, etc., Co., 198 U. S. 236, 247, 25 S. Ct. 637, 49 L. Ed. 1031.

Test of Validity under Section.—The test of the validity of a contract for "future" which this section requires is the "intention not to actually deliver" the articles bought or sold for future delivery. No matter how explicit the words in any contract which may require a delivery, if in fact there is no intention to deliver, but the real understanding is that on the stipulated date the losing party shall pay to the other the difference between the market price and the contract price, this is a gambling contract. Rodgers, etc., & Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 383, 72 S. E. 817. State v. Clayton, 138 N. C. 732, 50 S. E. 866.

When there is no real transaction, no real contract for purchase or sale, but only a wager upon the rise or fall of the price of stock, or an article of merchandise in the exchange or market, one party agreeing to pay, if there is a rise, and the other party agreeing to pay if there is a fall in price, the agreement is a pure wager. No business is done—nothing is bought or sold or contracted for, there is only a bet. Ovis Bros. & Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 231, 233, 91 S. E. 948.

This section does not render void a contract for the purchase and sale of stocks on margin when actual delivery of the stocks is made to the purchaser or to his agent, and the stocks are paid for in whole or in part. Cody v. Hovey, 216 N. C. 391, 5 S. E. (2d) 165.

Same—Intention of Parties.—The true test of validity of a contract for future delivery is whether it can be settled only in money and in no other way, or whether the party selling can tender and compel acceptance of the particular commodity sold or the party buying can compel the delivery of the commodity purchased. The essential inquiry in every case is as to the necessary effect of the contract and the real intention of the parties. Williams v. Carr, 80 N. C. 295; State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50; State v. Clayton, 138 N. C. 732, 50 S. E. 866; Welles & Co. v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 95, 129 S. E. 177.

The contract, by its terms, not disclosing any gambling element, the matter is to be settled by ascertaining the true underlying purpose of the parties. Was it in the intention of both parties that the cotton should not be delivered, and did they conceal in the deceptive terms of a fair and lawful contract, a gambling agreement, by which they contemplated no real transaction as to the article contracted to be delivered? Edgerton & Son v. Edgerton & Bro., 153 N. C. 167, 69 S. E. 53; Harvey & Son v. Pettaway, 156 N. C. 375, 72 S. E. 364; Rodgers, etc., Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 72 S. E. 817; Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 645, 61 S. E. 614; Rankin v. Mitchem, 141 N. C. 277, 53 S. E. 854; Hold v. Wellons, 163 N. C. 124, 129, 79 S. E. 450.

The intent of the parties that the merchandise contracted for should not be actually delivered is the cardinal element of a "futures" contract made illegal by this section and the courts will disregard the form and ascertain whether the intent of the parties was to speculate in the rise and fall of the price of the commodity. Fenner v. Tucker, 213 N. C. 419, 196 S. E. 357.

Same—Same—Parol Evidence.—This section rendering void and unenforceable in our courts a contract for the sale of futures upon margin covered by the purchaser, that does not contemplate the delivery of the thing bargained for, but only a payment to be made for the loss incurred or a profit to be received in accordance with the fall or rise of the market, looks to the substance of the contract and not to its form, and parol evidence is competent to show the intention of the parties entering therein. Welles & Co. v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 129 S. E. 177.

Contracts to Which This Section Applies.—Where the defendant has induced the plaintiff to purchase certain shares of stock, through himself, from his own broker, upon margin, the broker to carry the stock upon its hypothecation with him as collateral, and thereafter the defendant has his broker, unknown to the plaintiff, to sell the stock and place the proceeds to his own account, and uses the same and other moneys upon margin advanced from time to time by the plaintiff upon his representation that the price of this stock had decreased, it was held, that the plaintiff may recover of the defendant in his action the moneys the defendant had thus converted to his own use; and this section, relating to gambling, etc., is not available to the defendant as a defense. Gladstone v. Swain, 187 N. C. 712, 122 S. E. 755.

A note given for margins upon an illegal contract for cotton futures, without intention of delivery of the cotton, cannot be collected by suit in our courts, and the promisor's repeated promise to pay it cannot impart any validity to it. Orvis Bros. & Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 231, 91 S. E. 948. Cobb Bros. & Co. v. Guthrie, 160 N. C. 313, 76 S. E. 81; Garseed v. Sternberger, 135 N. C. 501, 47 S. E. 603; Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 645, 61 S. E. 614; Burrus v. Witcover, 158 N. C. 384, 74 S. E. 11; 39 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1005.

Where there is evidence that contracts set up by certain defendants in an action by the receiver of a brokerage business were founded upon speculation and based upon "margins," and that no actual delivery of the stock was intended by the parties, the evidence is sufficient to support a finding that the contracts were void under this section and the finding is as conclusive as the verdict of a jury, and the judgment that such contracts were absolutely void will be sustained. Martin v. Bush, 199 N. C. 93, 154 S. E. 43.

A contract for "cotton futures" in which no actual delivery is intended or contemplated is void and no action may be maintained thereon. Bodie v. Horn, 211 N. C. 397, 190 S. E. 236.

Both Parties Must Have Intent.—It was never held that when an innocent party had made a contract valid in its terms, his rights acquired thereunder should be denied him by reason of an undisclosed purpose or intent of the other. To avoid the contract the vitiating purpose or understanding must be shared in by both. Rodgers, etc., Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 383, 72 S. E. 817.

Parties Included.—The owner of a draft which he knows to have been given in the unlawful purchase of cotton futures, or in maintaining or purchasing margins in contracts of that character, is a party to the prohibited contract, the consideration is illegal and he cannot recover from the payee in his action on the draft. Burrus v. Witcover, 158 N. C. 384, 74 S. E. 11.

Subsequent Promise Void.—A subsequent promise made by one of the contracting parties to the other to repay him for loss arising from a contract for "futures" is void. Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 645, 61 S. E. 614.

Unauthorized Act of Agent.—A bona fide wholesale dealer who sues upon a contract for the future delivery of cotton, which is resisted on the ground that the contract was a wagering one and void under the provisions of this section, is bound by the acts and statements of his agents in negotiating and closing the trade, to the effect that actual delivery was not contemplated or required; and the plaintiff may not recover on the contract merely because he was a bona fide wholesale dealer in cotton and only authorized his agent to make a contract for actual delivery, if the agent at the time entered into a contract with the vendor which was condemned by the statute as being a wagering one. Alex., etc., & Sons v. May, 156 N. C. 388, 72 S. E. 821.

Agents Right to Recover.—An agent for a principal to a contract made in violation of this section, as to "futures," cannot recover for any loss he may have sustained on account thereof, as such act of agency would be in violation of section 16-4, making it a misdemeanor. Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 645, 61 S. E. 614.

If agents have no knowledge that it was the intention of their principals to enter into a wagering or gambling contract, they are entitled to recover, not only their commissions, but any sums of money which they have advanced to carry out purposes for their principals. Embrey v. Jemison, 131 U. S. 336, 346, 9 S. Ct. 776, 33 L. Ed. 172.

Burden of Proof.—Where in an action by an assignee and trustees under §§ 23-1, et seq., it is alleged that one of the defendants was a partner in the business of the assignor and liable for the debts of the firm, and the other defendants admit this allegation and set up and seek to recover of the plaintiff and the alleged partner on contract with the assignor, the alleged partner is a defendant in the action on the contracts and her answer setting up the defense that the contracts were void under this section, as gambling contracts, places the burden on the other defendants to prove that the contracts were lawful. Martin v. Bush, 199 N. C. 93, 154 S. E. 43.

When the defendant pleads in a verified answer that a contract, the subject of suit, for buying and selling cotton was void for being one for "futures," the burden of proof is upon the plaintiff to show that it was a lawful one, i. e., that actual delivery was intended by the parties, and not merely that either had the privilege of calling therefor. Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 645, 61 S. E. 614. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2146 of the Consolidated Statutes, which section was repealed by P. L. 1931, c. 236.

Burden Not upon Administrator.—Where an administrator paid certain notes and it was later alleged by the legatees that the notes were given for a gambling contract which should not have been paid, it was held that former § 2146 did not apply so as to put the burden of proving that the notes were given for a valid contract upon the administrator. Overman v. Lanier, 157 N. C. 544, 73 S. E. 192. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2146 of the Consolidated Statutes, which section was repealed by P. L. 1931, c. 236.

Evidence Sufficient.—The purchaser makes out a prima facie case upon evidence that the contract was founded upon a gambling or wagering consideration in violation of this section. Welles & Co. v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 129 S. E. 177. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2145 of the Consolidated Statutes, which section was repealed by P. L. 1931, c. 236.

Where the plaintiff himself testified that he did not buy certain cotton in the ordinary course of his business as a cotton manufacturer for use in his mill, this was prima facie a "future contract." Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 634, 636, 61 S. E. 615. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2145 of the Consolidated Statutes, which section was repealed by P. L. 1931, c. 236.

When Question for Jury.—Where the contract is not a gambling one on its face the underlying purpose and intent of the parties should be left to the jury. Harvey v. Pettaway, 156 N. C. 375, 377, 72 S. E. 364.

Upon conflicting evidence as to whether or not the contract is a gambling contract, it becomes a question for the jury under proper instructions from the court. Welles & Co. v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 129 S. E. 177. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2146 of the Consolidated Statutes, which section was repealed by P. L. 1931, c. 236.

Same—Example.—Where there was evidence offered by the plaintiffs tending to show that they were wholesale dealers in cotton as a commodity, and that they purchased certain cotton as a commodity and sold it to manufacturers and exporters, and dealt in actual spot cotton and were in no wise dealers in futures, they were entitled to have this issue submitted to a jury. Eure v. Sabiston, 195 Fed. 721, 724.

Judgment by Default Void.—A judgment rendered by default of an answer upon notes regular and valid upon their face, but growing out of transactions in cotton futures made void by our statute, which also declares that actions thereon may not be maintained in the courts of our State, will be set aside as utterly void, irrespective of whether it was obtained through excusable neglect, etc. Randolph v. Heath, 171 N. C. 383, 88 S. E. 731.

Cited in Meyer v. Fenner, 196 N. C. 476, 146 S. E. 82.

§ 16-4. Entering into or aiding contract for "futures" misdemeanor.—If any person shall become a party to any contract declared void in this article; or if any person shall be the agent, directly or indirectly, of any party in making or furthering or effectuating the same; or if any agent or officer of a corporation shall in any manner knowingly aid in making or furthering any such contract to which the corporation is a party, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, and may be imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

If any person shall, while in this state, consent to become a party to any such contract made in another state, and if any person shall, as agent of any person or corporation, become a party to any such contract made in another state, or in this state do any act or in any way aid in the making or furthering of any such contract so made in another state, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars, and may be imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (Rev., ss. 3823, 3824; 1889, c. 221, ss. 3, 4; C. S. 2147.)

This Section Is Constitutional.—State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50; State v. Clayton, 138 N. C. 732, 50 S. E. 866; Garseed v. Sternberger, 135 N. C. 501, 47 S. E. 603; Rankin v. Mitchem, 141 N. C. 277, 53 S. E. 854; Randolph v. Heath, 171 N. C. 383, 88 S. E. 731.

§ 16-5. Opening office for sales of "futures" misdemeanor.—If any person, corporation or other association of persons, either as principal or agent, shall establish or open an office or place of business in this state for the purpose of carrying on or engaging in making such contracts as are forbidden in this article, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall on conviction be fined and imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3825; 1905, c. 538, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 2148.)

§ 16-6. Evidence in prosecutions under this article.—No person shall be excused on any prosecution under the provisions of this article from testifying touching anything done by himself or others contrary to the provisions thereof, but no discovery made by the witness upon such examination shall be used against him in any penal or criminal prosecution, and he shall be altogether pardoned of the offense so done or participated in by him. In all such prosecutions proof that the defendant was a party to a contract, as agent or principal, to sell and deliver any article, thing or property specified or named in this article, or that he was the agent, directly or indirectly, of any party in making, furthering or effectuating the same, or that he was the agent or officer of any corporation or association or person in making, furthering or effectuating the same, and that the article, thing or property agreed to be sold and delivered was not actually delivered, and that settlement was made or agreed to be made upon the difference in value of said article, thing or property, shall constitute against such defendant prima facie evidence of guilt. Proof that any person, corporation or other association of persons, either as principal or agent, has established an office or place where are posted or published from information received the fluctuating prices of grain, cotton, provisions, stocks, bonds and other commodities, or of any one or more of the same, shall constitute prima facie evidence of being guilty of violating the provisions of this article. (Rev., s. 3826; 1905, ss. 3, 4, 5; C. S. 2149.)

Art. 1. Constitutional Provisions.

§ 17-1. Remedy without delay for restraint of liberty.—Every person restrained of his liberty is entitled to a remedy to inquire into the lawfulness thereof, and to remove the same, if unlawful; and such remedy ought not to be denied or delayed. (Rev., s. 1819; Const., Art. I, s. 18; C. S. 2203.)

Cross Reference.—As to costs in habeas corpus, see § 6-21, subsec. 3.

Editor's Note.—"By the Habeas Corpus Act passed in 1679 the liberty of every Englishman was made as certain as law could make it; it being guaranteed to him that if accused of crime, he, instead of languishing in prison, as had often been the case, should be brought to a fair and speedy trial." Buckle, History of Civilization In England, Vol. I, p. 385.

Macaulay in speaking of the prorogation of the Parliament of 1679 says: "The day of that prorogation, the twenty-six of May, 1679, is a great era in our history. For on that day the Habeas Corpus Act received the royal assent. From the time of the Great Charter, the substantive law respecting the personal liberty of Englishmen had been nearly the same as at present; but it had been inefficacious for want of a stringent system of procedure. What was needed was not a new right but a prompt and searching remedy; and such a remedy the Habeas Corpus Act supplied." See Macaulay's History of England, Vol. I, Popular Edition, p. 122.

Definition.—The writ of habeas corpus is the remedy which the law gives for the enforcement of the civil right of personal liberty. In pursuance to its command, the body of the petitioner is brought before the court, that it may inquire into the legality of his detention. United States v. Ju Toy, 198 U. S. 253, 272, 49 L. Ed. 1040, 25 S. Ct. 644.

Nature.—The writ of habeas corpus is a high prerogative writ, known to the common law, similar in nature to the writs of quo warranto, mandamus, certiorari and prohibition, and the proceedings thereunder are regarded as appellate in character, but it cannot be made to perform the office of a writ of error on appeal. Ex Parte Virginia, 100 U. S. 339, 350, 25 L. Ed. 676.

The proceeding is, in its nature, civil rather than criminal, legal rather than equitable, appellate rather than original, collateral rather than direct, and summary rather than cumbersome. Perrine v. Slack, 164 U. S. 452, 41 L. Ed. 510, 17 S. Ct. 79.

Object.—The object of the proceeding by a writ of habeas corpus is to inquire into the legality of the detention of the petitioner. United States v. McBratney, 104 U. S. 621, 624, 26 L. Ed. 869.

§ 17-2. Habeas corpus not to be suspended.—The privileges of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended. (Rev., s. 1820; Const., Art. I, s. 21; C. S. 2204.)

Cross Reference.—As to constitutional provision, see the North Carolina Constitution, Art. I, § 21.

Can Not Be Abrogated.—This section is an express provision, and there is no rule of construction or principle of constitutional law by which an express provision can be abrogated and made of no force by an implication from any other provision of the instrument. The clauses should be construed so as to give effect to each, and prevent conflict. This is done by giving to Art. XII, sec. 3, the effect of allowing military possession of a county to be taken, and the arrest of all suspected persons to be made by military authority, but requiring, by force of Art. I, sec. 21, the persons arrested to be surrendered for trial to the civil authorities, on habeas corpus, should they not be delivered over without the writ. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 808.

Art. 2. Application.

§ 17-3. Who may prosecute writ.—Every person imprisoned or restrained of his liberty within this state, for any criminal or supposed criminal

Sec.

17-46. Prisoner to be remanded.

matter, or on any pretense whatsoever, except in cases specified in § 17-4, may prosecute a writ of habeas corpus, according to the provisions of this chapter, to inquire into the cause of such imprisonment or restraint, and, if illegal, to be delivered therefrom. (Rev., s. 1821; Code, s. 1623; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 1; C. S. 2205.)

Prisoner under Illegal Sentence.—Where a defendant, charged with the crime of burglary with intent to commit murder, consented to a mistrial and pleaded "guilty of larceny," and was sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary, a writ of habeas corpus will issue, in order that he may be taken from the penitentiary and held to answer the charge in the court below. State v. Queen, 91 N. C. 659.

Denial of Due Process of Law.—A person convicted without due process of law may be discharged on habeas corpus. In re Frederick, 149 U. S. 70, 37 L. Ed. 653, 13 S. Ct. 793.

Voluntary Custody.—If the prisoner is in custody by his own voluntary act, the writ will not issue for his release. McElvaine v. Brush, 142 U. S. 155, 35 L. Ed. 971, 12 S. Ct. 156.

Where one is actually confined in the State prison for a longer term of imprisonment than is legal, a writ of habeas corpus will issue to the end that a proper sentence may be imposed. State v. Green, 85 N. C. 600, 601.

There must be actual confinement, or the present means of enforcing it, in order to justify the issuance of the writ of habeas corpus and granting a release therefrom. Wales v. Whitney, 114 U. S. 564, 572, 29 L. Ed. 277, 5 S. Ct. 1050.

One Imprisoned for Contempt.—Where a defendant punished for direct contempt contends that a legal right has been denied him, and it is made to appear that the court was without jurisdiction of the cause or power to impose the sentence, his remedy is by habeas corpus proceedings, taken to the Supreme Court, if necessary, by writ of certiorari. State v. Little, 175 N. C. 743, 744, 94 S. E. 680.

Relief of Soldier in Army.—A soldier actually and rightfully in the army can have no relief by the writ of habeas corpus against any abuse of military authority, and if he be wrongfully held as a soldier he is not entitled to a habeas corpus while he is undergoing punishment or awaiting trial for a military offense. Cox v. Gee, 60 N. C. Appx., 516.

§ 17-4. When application denied.—Application to prosecute the writ shall be denied in the following cases:

1. Where the persons are committed or detained by virtue of process issued by a court of the United States, or a judge thereof, in cases where state courts or judges have exclusive jurisdiction under the laws of the United States, or have acquired exclusive jurisdiction by the commencement of suits in such courts.

2. Where persons are committed or detained by virtue of the final order, judgment or decree of a competent tribunal of civil or criminal jurisdiction, or by virtue of an execution issued upon such final order, judgment or decree.

3. Where any person has willfully neglected, for the space of two whole terms after his imprisonment, to apply for the writ to the superior court of the county in which he may be imprisoned, such person shall not have a habeas corpus in vacation time for his enlargement.

4. Where no probable ground for relief is shown in the application. (Rev., s. 1822; Code, s. 1624; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 2; C. S. 2206.)

In General.—In construing this term, "final judgment or decree of a competent tribunal," it has come to be well understood that the exception refers only to judgments warranted by the law applicable to the case in hand, and where it appears from an inspection of the record proper and the judgment itself that the court had no jurisdiction of the cause and was manifestly without power to enter the judgment or impose the sentence in question, in such case there would be no final sentence of a competent tribunal, and the exception established by the statute does not obtain. State v. Queen, 91 N. C. 659; In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 167, 69 S. E. 872.

Presumption of Validity.—Proceedings before a court of competent jurisdiction will be presumed to be regular and valid, unless upon their face they plainly appear to be void; and when they do not so appear, they are not subject to review in habeas corpus proceedings. State v. Burnette, 173 N. C. 734, 91 S. E. 364.

Meaning of "Competent Jurisdiction."—The term, "competent jurisdiction," used by this section in making an exception to the power of this court to review a judgment in habeas corpus proceedings, means that where a committed criminal is detained under a sentence not authorized by law, he is entitled to be heard, and where, though authorized in kind, it extends beyond what the law expressly permits, he may be relieved from further punishment after serving the lawful portion of the sentence; and a different construction would render the statute unconstitutional. In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872.

Cannot Be Used as Writ of Error.—The writ of habeas corpus cannot be used in the nature of a writ of error. State v. Dunn, 159 N. C. 470, 74 S. E. 1014.

Habeas corpus is in the nature of a writ of error to the extent of examining into the legality of a person's detention, but it is not available as a means of reviewing and correcting mere errors as distinguished from defects of jurisdiction. State v. Edwards, 192 N. C. 321, 135 S. E. 37; In re Chase, 193 N. C. 450, 452, 137 S. E. 305.

The writ of habeas corpus may not be used as a substitute for appeal. In re Smith, 218 N. C. 462, 11 S. E. (2d) 317.

Process by United States Judge.—The petitioner in habeas corpus proceedings adjudged in contempt of court shall, under the provisions of this section, be remanded when upon the hearing it is made to appear that he is held in custody by virtue of a process issued by a court or judge of the United States where such judge or court has exclusive jurisdiction. State v. Hooker, 183 N. C. 763, 111 S. E. 351.

Remedy Denied to One Imprisoned by Final Judgment.—Where one is imprisoned under the final process of a court of competent jurisdiction the writ of habeas corpus may not successfully be sued out since this section expressly forbids it. Howie v. Spittle, 156 N. C. 180, 182, 72 S. E. 207; Ledford v. Emerson, 143 N. C. 527, 536, 55 S. E. 969; In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872.

Same—Where Sentence Erroneous.—The application must be refused, even where it appears that the applicant is imprisoned in the State's prison, and the sentence of the court is erroneous, and the applicant, in default of appeal, must be left to his remedy by writ of certiorari when he is detained by virtue of a final judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction. In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607.

Same—Reasons for Rule.—Without reference to the positive prohibition of this section, it is otherwise clear that the power cannot extend to cases where the person is confined on final process. For if so, this unseemly and discordant result would follow, that one superior court judge might try and sentence a person to death or the penitentiary, and another might issue the writ of habeas corpus and discharge the prisoner. Results so disgraceful and destructive to the orderly and harmonious administration of justice were never contemplated by the framers of our judicial system; on the contrary, they were carefully guarded against, both by the Constitution and legislation. In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607, 610.

Examples.—Where the petitioner in habeas corpus proceedings directed to a superior court judge has previously been convicted in that court of an offense of which it had jurisdiction, and accordingly sentenced to imprisonment under a final order, the judgment imports verity, and evidence to collaterally impeach it is incompetent, and the application to prosecute the writ will be denied. In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 95 S. E. 903.

An indictment and judgment against the prisoner for an illegal sale of spirituous liquors alleged to have been based upon illegal evidence authorized by an unconstitutional statute, may not be passed upon in habeas corpus proceedings, for such would be to permit one superior court judge to examine into the proceedings before another judge, upon parol evidence, and review his action. State v. Dunn, 159 N. C. 470, 74 S. E. 1014.

§ 17-5. By whom application is made.—Application for the writ may be made either by the party for whose relief it is intended or by any person in his behalf. (Rev., s. 1823; Code, s. 1625; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 3; C. S. 2207.)

Application May Be Withdrawn.—One who has petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus may withdraw his application whenever he chooses. State v. Wiley, 64 N. C. appx., 821, 823.

§ 17-6. To judge of supreme or superior court; in writing.—Application for the writ shall be made in writing, signed by the applicant—

1. To any one of the justices of the supreme court.

2. To any one of the superior court judges, either at term time or in vacation. (Rev., s. 1824; Code, s. 1626; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 4; C. S. 2208.)

Cross Reference.—As to jurisdiction of special or emergency judges of the superior court, see §§ 7-52, 7-58.

In General.—The Constitution required the Legislature to furnish an adequate remedy, and when it was declared that all such persons should have the right to "prosecute a writ of habeas corpus", it followed ex vi termini, that they were entitled to demand this remedy before any judge of any court of general jurisdiction in this country. The power of all judges to grant it was conceded before the Magna Charta, and was only reaffirmed, like many other cardinal principles, in that instrument and those that followed reaffirming it. Harkins v. Cathey, 119 N. C. 649, 663, 26 S. E. 136.

Concurrent Jurisdiction in State and Federal Courts.—On habeas corpus, the state courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the federal courts of all cases of imprisonment within their territorial jurisdiction, except in the case where the petitioner is in custody under the authority, or claim of authority, of the United States. Robb v. Connolly, 111 U. S. 624, 633, 28 L. Ed. 542, 4 S. Ct. 544.

The federal and state courts have concurrent jurisdiction to inquire into the legality of detention under a governor's warrant in interstate extradition cases. United States v. Jung Ah Lung, 124 U. S. 621, 626, 31 L. Ed. 591, 8 S. Ct. 663.

Source from Which Authority of State Judges Emanates.—It is to be observed that the authority of the state judges in cases of habeas corpus emanates from the several states, and not from the United States. In order to destroy their jurisdiction, therefore, it is necessary to show, not that the United States has given them jurisdiction, but that Congress possesses and has exercised the power of taking away that jurisdiction which the states have vested in their own judges. In the matter of Bryon, 60 N. C. 1.

Jurisdiction of Courts.—The courts of this State, as well as the individual judges, have jurisdiction to issue writs of habeas corpus, returnable to them in term time, and as a court. In the matter of Bryon, 60 N. C. 1.

Judges Mentioned Have Equal Powers.—A single judge of the Supreme Court has the same and no other jurisdiction to issue the writ than a judge of the superior court, and the same limitation of power to issue the writ in certain cases extends equally to the two classes of judges. In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607, 608.

Extent of Jurisdiction.—The habeas corpus jurisdiction of every court, and of every judge, extends to every possible case of privation of liberty to the National Constitution, treaties and laws. In re Burrus, 136 U. S. 586, 592, 34 L. Ed. 500, 10 S. Ct. 850.

Obtaining Jurisdiction.—Presenting a petition to a judge for a writ of habeas corpus gives him jurisdiction of the subject. State v. Edney, 60 N. C. appx., 453.

Section 1-76 et seq. concerning venue all refer to "actions" and have no application to habeas corpus proceedings. McEachern v. McEachern, 210 N. C. 98, 185 S. E. 684.

Discretionary Power of Judge as to Place Writ Is Returnable Not Reviewed in Absence of Abuse.—Since any judge of the Superior Court or Justice of the Supreme Court has the power to issue a writ of habeas corpus at any time or any place, he has the discretionary power to make the writ returnable at such place as he may determine, which discretion will not be reviewed in the absence of a showing of abuse or failure to afford full opportunity to be heard, and therefore an exception to the refusal of a motion for change of venue of habeas corpus proceedings cannot be sustained. McEachern v. McEachern, 210 N. C. 98, 185 S. E. 684.

§ 17-7. Contents of application.—The application must state, in substance, as follows:

1. That the party, in whose behalf the writ is applied for, is imprisoned or restrained of his liberty, the place where, and the officer or person by whom he is imprisoned or restrained, naming both parties, if their names are known, or describing them if they are not known.

2. The cause or pretense of such imprisonment or restraint, according to the knowledge or belief of the applicant.

3. If the imprisonment is by virtue of any warrant or other process, a copy thereof shall be annexed, or it shall be made to appear that a copy thereof has been demanded and refused, or that for some sufficient reason a demand for such copy could not be made.

4. If the imprisonment or restraint is alleged to be illegal, the application must state in what the alleged illegality consists; and that the legality of the imprisonment or restraint has not been already adjudged, upon a prior writ of habeas corpus, to the knowledge or belief of the applicant.

5. The facts set forth in the application must be verified by the oath of the applicant, or by that of some other credible witness, which oath may be administered by any person authorized by law to take affidavits. (Rev., s. 1825; Code, s. 1627; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 5; C. S. 2209.)

Waiver of Errors.—The parties may waive all errors and dispense with all forms in the proceedings on the petition. State v. Edney, 60 N. C. appx., 463.

Necessary Allegation.—A petition for habeas corpus must allege that the imprisonment has not been already adjudged upon a prior writ of habeas corpus. In the matter of Brittain, 93 N. C. 587.

Where Other Remedies Exist.—The writ of habeas corpus will be refused where the prisoner can be otherwise discharged. In re Belt, 159 U. S. 95, 100, 40 L. Ed. 88, 15 S. Ct. 987.

Prior Writ of Habeas Corpus.—See In re Adams, 218 N. C. 379, 11 S. E. (2d) 163.

§ 17-8. Issuance of writ without application.—When the supreme or superior court, or any judge of either, has evidence from any judicial proceeding before such court or judge that any person within this state is illegally imprisoned or restrained of his liberty, it is the duty of said court or judge to issue a writ of habeas corpus for his relief, although no application be made for such writ. (Rev., s. 1826; Code, s. 1632; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 10; C. S. 2210.)

When Illegal Imprisonment Appears.—If a case comes before the Supreme Court by appeal, or by certiorari, and upon the trial it appears that the prisoner was suffering an illegal confinement in the penitentiary, it would be the duty of that court, by virtue of its supervisory power, and of this section, enacted to carry into effect this constitutional power of the Supreme Court, to issue the writ of habeas corpus, even of its own motion, and discharge the prisoner. In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607, 610.

Art. 3. Writ.

§ 17-9. Writ granted without delay.—Any court or judge empowered to grant the writ, to whom such applications may be presented, shall grant the writ without delay, unless it appear from the application itself or from the documents annexed that the person applying or for whose benefit it is intended is, by this chapter, prohibited from prosecuting the writ. (Rev., s. 1827; Code, s. 1628; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 6; C. S. 2211.)

Cross Reference.—As to when application shall be denied, see § 17-4.

Duty of Court to Issue.—There can be no doubt of the duty and power of the court to issue the writ of habeas corpus when applied for in accordance with statutory provisions. In re Boyett, 136 N. C. 415, 424, 48 S. E. 789.

§ 17-10. Penalty for refusal to grant.—If any judge authorized by this chapter to grant writs of habeas corpus refuses to grant such writ when legally applied for, every such judge shall forfeit to the party aggrieved two thousand five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1828; Code, s. 1631; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 9; C. S. 2212.)

Writ Always Issues.—The writ of habeas corpus always issues when legally applied for, because this section subjects a judge who refuses to entertain the petition to a penalty of $2,500. In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 456, 95 S. E. 903.

Cited in McEachern v. McEachern, 210 N. C. 98, 185 S. E. 684.

§ 17-11. Sufficiency of writ; defects of form immaterial.—No writ of habeas corpus shall be disobeyed on account of any defect of form. It shall be sufficient—

1. If the person having the custody of the party imprisoned or restrained be designated either by his name of office, if he have any, or by his own name, or, if both such names be unknown or uncertain, he may be described by an assumed appellation, and any one who may be served with the writ shall be deemed the person to whom it is directed, although it may be directed to him by a wrong name, or description, or to another person.

2. If the person who is directed to be produced be designated by name, or if his name be uncertain or unknown, he may be described by an assumed appellation or in any other way, so as to designate the person intended. (Rev., s. 1829; Code, ss. 1629, 1630; 1868-9, c. 116, ss. 7, 8; C. S. 2213.)

§ 17-12. Service of writ.—The writ of habeas corpus may be served by any qualified elector of this state thereto authorized by the court or judge allowing the same. It may be served by delivering the writ, or a copy thereof, to the person to whom it is directed; or, if such person cannot be found, by leaving it, or a copy, at the jail, or other place in which the party for whose relief it is intended is confined, with some under officer or other person of proper age; or, if none such can be found, or if the person attempting to serve the writ be refused admittance, by affixing a copy thereof in some conspicuous place on the outside, either of the dwelling-house of the party to whom the writ is directed or of the place where the party is confined for whose relief it is sued out. (Rev., s. 1833; Code, s. 1657; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 32; C. S. 2214.)

To Whom Issued.—The writ should be issued to the person who has the immediate custody of the petitioner with the power to produce the body of such party before the court or judge. Wales v. Whitney, 114 U. S. 564, 574, 29 L. Ed. 277, 5 S. Ct. 1050.

Art. 4. Return.

§ 17-13. When writ returnable.—Writs of habeas corpus may be made returnable at a certain time, or forthwith, as the case may require. If the writ be returnable at a certain time, such return shall be made and the party shall be produced at the time and place specified therein. (Rev., s. 1830; Code, s. 1656; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 31; C. S. 2215.)

§ 17-14. Contents of return; verification.—The person or officer on whom the writ is served must make a return thereto in writing, and, except where such person is a sworn public officer and makes his return in his official capacity, it must be verified by his oath. The return must state plainly and unequivocally—

1. Whether he has or has not the party in his custody or under his power or restraint.

2. If he has the party in his custody or power, or under his restraint, the authority and the cause of such imprisonment or restraint, setting forth the same at large.

3. If the party is detained by virtue of any writ, warrant, or other written authority, a copy thereof shall be annexed to the return; and the original shall be produced and exhibited on the return of the writ to the court or judge before whom the same is returnable.

4. If the person or officer upon whom such writ is served has had the party in his power or custody, or under his restraint, at any time prior or subsequent to the date of the writ, but has transferred such custody or restraint to another, the return shall state particularly to whom, at what time, for what cause and by what authority such transfer took place. (Rev., s. 1831; Code, s. 1633; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 11; C. S. 2216.)

§ 17-15. Production of body if required.—If the writ requires it, the officer or person on whom the same has been served shall also produce the body of the party in his custody or power, according to the command of the writ, except in the case of the sickness of such party, as hereinafter provided. (Rev., s. 1832; Code, s. 1636; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 14; C. S. 2217.)

Art. 5. Enforcement of Writ.

§ 17-16. Attachment for failure to obey.—If the person or officer on whom any writ of habeas corpus has been duly served refuses or neglects to obey the same, by producing the body of the party named or described therein, and by making a full and explicit return thereto, within the time required, and no sufficient excuse is shown for such refusal or neglect, it is the duty of the court or judge before whom the writ has been made returnable, upon due proof of the service thereof, forthwith to issue an attachment against such person or officer, directed to the sheriff of any county within this state, and commanding him forthwith to apprehend such person or officer and bring him immediately before such court or judge. On being so brought such person or officer shall be committed to close custody in the jail of the county where such court or judge may be, without being allowed the liberties thereof, until such person or officer make return to such writ and comply with any order that may be made by such court or judge in relation to the party for whose relief the writ has been issued. (Rev., s. 1834; Code, s. 1637; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 15; C. S. 2218.)

In General.—The attachment warranted by this section does not rest on the idea of punishing for a contempt of the judge, or court, but of compelling a return to the writ and a production of a body. It is a substitute for the provision in the old habeas corpus act, which punished the officer or person refusing or neglecting to make due return, "upon conviction by indictment," with a fine of $500 for the first offense, and of $1,000, and incapacity to hold office, for the second. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 809. See also, Ex parte Kerr, 64 N. C. appx., 816.

No Power to Arrest Governor.—Under the habeas corpus act, a judge has no power to order the arrest of the Governor of the State. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 815.

Excuse for Refusal to Make Return.—Where a military officer detaining persons arrested in counties declared by the Governor to be in a state of insurrection, answered to a writ of habeas corpus, that he held them under the orders of the Governor, who had also ordered him not to obey the writ: it was held, that such return was a sufficient excuse, under this section, and, therefore, that such officer was not liable to be attached. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 815.

§ 17-17. Liability of judge refusing attachment.

—If any judge willfully refuses to grant the writ of attachment, as provided for in § 17-16, he shall be liable to impeachment, and moreover shall forfeit to the party aggrieved twenty-five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1835; Code, s. 1638; 1870-1, c. 221, s. 2; C. S. 2219.)

§ 17-18. Attachment against sheriff to be directed to coroner; procedure.—If a sheriff has neglected to return the writ agreeably to the command thereof, the attachment against him may be directed to the coroner or to any other person to be designated therein, who shall have power to execute the same, and such sheriff, upon being brought up, may be committed to the jail of any county other than his own. (Rev., s. 1836; Code, s. 1639; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 16; C. S. 2220.)

Cross Reference.—As to requirement of coroner to act for sheriff in certain cases, see § 152-8.

§ 17-19. Precept to bring up party detained.

The court or judge by whom any such attachment may be issued may also at the same time, or afterwards, direct a precept to any sheriff, coroner, or other person to be designated therein, commanding him to bring forthwith before such court or judge the party, wherever to be found, for whose benefit the writ of habeas corpus has been granted. (Rev., s. 1837; Code, s. 1640; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 17; C. S. 2221.)

§ 17-20. Liability of judge refusing precept.

—If any judge refuses to grant the precept provided for in § 17-19, he shall be liable to impeachment, and moreover shall forfeit to the party aggrieved twenty-five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1838; Code s. 1641; 1870-1, c. 221, s. 3; C. S. 2222.)

§ 17-21. Liability of judge conniving at insufficient return.

—If any judge grants the attachment, or the precept, and gives the officer or other person charged with the execution of the same verbal or written instructions not to execute the same, or to make any evasive or insufficient return, or any return other than that provided by law; or shall connive at the failing to make any return or any evasive or insufficient return, or any return other than that provided by law, he shall be liable to impeachment, and moreover shall forfeit to the party aggrieved twenty-five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1839; Code, s. 1642; 1870-1, c. 221, s. 4; C. S. 2223.)

§ 17-22. Power of county to aid service.—In the execution of any such attachment, precept or writ, the sheriff, coroner, or other person to whom it may be directed, may call to his aid the power of the county, as in other cases. (Rev., s. 1840; Code, s. 1643; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 18; C. S. 2224.)

Editor's Note.—The posse comitatus is discussed in Worth v. Craven County Com'rs, 118 N. C. 112, 24 S. E. 778.

In the dissenting opinion to that case by Judge Clark, this section is mentioned on page 125.

Means "Men of the County."—The power of the county, or "posse comitatus," means the men of the county in which the writ is to be executed. Ex Parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 812.

§ 17-23. Obedience to order of discharge compelled.—Obedience to a judgment or order for the discharge of a prisoner or person restrained of his liberty, pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, may be enforced by the court or judge by attachment in the same manner and with the same effect as for a neglect to make return to a writ of habeas corpus; and the person found guilty of such disobedience shall forfeit to the party aggrieved two thousand five hundred dollars, besides any special damages which such party may have sustained. (Rev., s. 1841; Code, s. 1649; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 24; C. S. 2225.)

§ 17-25. Recommittal after discharge; penalty.—If any person shall knowingly again imprison or detain one who has been set at large upon any writ of habeas corpus, for the same cause, other than by the legal process or order of the court wherein he is bound by recognizance to appear, or of any other court having jurisdiction in the case, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3581; Code, s. 1651; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 26; C. S. 2227.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 17-38 and notes.

When Rearrest Valid.—A party, set at large by writ of habeas corpus, upon the ground that the judgment of imprisonment was void for want of jurisdiction in the court, may be again arrested for the same cause upon legal process of a court having jurisdiction. State v. Weatherspoon, 88 N. C. 19.

§ 17-26. Disobedience to writ or refusing copy of process; penalty.—If any person to whom a writ of habeas corpus is directed shall neglect or refuse to make due return thereto, or to bring the body of the party detained according to the command of the writ without delay, or shall not, within six hours after demand made therefor, deliver a copy of the commitment or cause of detainer, such person shall, upon conviction on indictment, be fined one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding twelve months, and if such person be an officer, shall moreover be removed from office. (Rev., s. 3597; Code, s. 1652; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 27; C. S. 2228.)

§ 17-27. Penalty for false return.—If any person shall make a false return to a writ of habeas corpus, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3582; Code, s. 1653; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 28; C. S. 2229.)

§ 17-28. Penalty for concealing party entitled to writ.—If any one having in his custody, or under his power, any party who, by law, would be entitled to a writ of habeas corpus, or for whose relief such writ shall have been issued, shall, with intent to elude the service of such writ, or to avoid the effect thereof, transfer the party to the custody, or put him under the power or control, of another, or shall conceal or change the place of his confinement, or shall knowingly aid or abet another in so doing, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3583; Code, ss. 1654, 1655; 1868-9, c. 116, ss. 29, 30; C. S. 2230.)

Art. 6. Proceedings and Judgment.

§ 17-29. Notice to interested parties.—When it appears from the return to the writ that the party named therein is in custody on any process, or by reason of any claim of right, under which any other person has an interest in continuing his imprisonment or restraint, no order shall be made for his discharge until it appears that the person so interested, or his attorney, if he have one, has had reasonable notice of the time and place at which such writ is returnable. (Rev., s. 1843; Code, s. 1634; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 12; 1870-1, c. 221, s. 1; C. S. 2231.)

§ 17-30. Notice to solicitor.—When it appears from the return that such party is detained upon any criminal accusation, the court or judge may, if he thinks proper, make no order for the discharge of such party until sufficient notice of the time and place at which the writ has been returned, or is made returnable, is given to the solicitor of the district in which the person prosecuting the writ is detained. (Rev., s. 1844; Code, s. 1635; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 13; C. S. 2232.)

Hearing May Be Continued.—If it appear from the return on a writ of habeas corpus that the petitioner is detained on a criminal charge, the court may continue the hearing for a reasonable time to give the solicitor an opportunity to examine into the case. State v. Jones, 113 N. C. 669, 18 S. E. 249.

§ 17-31. Subpœnas to witnesses.—Any party to a proceeding on a writ of habeas corpus may procure the attendance of witnesses at the hearing, by subpœna, to be issued by the clerk of any superior court, under the same rules, regulations and penalties prescribed by law in other cases. (Rev., s. 1845; Code, s. 1659; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 34; C. S. 2233.)

Cross Reference.—As to issuance of subpoenas, see §§ 2-16, 8-59.

§ 17-32. Proceedings on return; facts examined; summary hearing of issues.—The court or judge before whom the party is brought on a writ of habeas corpus shall, immediately after the return thereof, examine into the facts contained in such return, and into the cause of the confinement or restraint of such party, whether the same has been upon commitment for any criminal or supposed criminal matter or not; and if issue be taken upon the material facts in the return, or other facts are alleged to show that the imprisonment or detention is illegal, or that the party imprisoned is entitled to his discharge, the court or judge shall proceed, in a summary way, to hear the allegations and proofs on both sides, and to do what to justice appertains in delivering, bailing or remanding such party. (Rev., s. 1846; Code, s. 1644; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 19; C. S. 2234.)

Proceedings Must Be Summary.—Proceedings under the writ of habeas corpus, which have for their principal object a release of a party from illegal restraint, must necessarily be summary and prompt to be useful, and if an action could be arrested by an appeal, they would lose many of their most beneficial results. State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 454, 1 S. E. 776.

Hearing Not Perfunctory.—The words "if issue be taken upon the material facts . . . the judge shall proceed in a summary way to hear the allegations and proofs of both sides," preclude the idea that such hearing shall be perfunctory and merely formal. In re Bailey, 203 N. C. 362, 365, 166 S. E. 165.

Hearing Confined to Record.—The hearing is confined to the record and judgment, and relief may be afforded only when on the record itself the judgment is one clearly and manifestly beyond the power of the court, a statement of the doctrine supported in numerous and authoritative decisions here and elsewhere. Ex parte McCown, 139 N. C. 95, 51 S. E. 957; In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607; In re Swan, 150 U. S. 637, 37 L. Ed. 1207, 14 S. Ct. 225; In re Coy, 127 U. S. 731, 32 L. Ed. 274, 8 S. Ct. 1263; In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 457, 95 S. E. 903.

Same—Questions Open to Inquiry.—Where the petitioner in habeas corpus proceedings is held under a final sentence of a court, a commitment of contempt or order, the only questions open to inquiry at the hearing are whether on the record the court had jurisdiction of the matter and whether on the facts disclosed in the record and under the law applicable to the case in hand, the court has exceeded its powers in imposing the sentence whereof the petitioner complains. State v. Hooker, 183 N. C. 763, 111 S. E. 351.

Evidence Not Reviewable.—As was held in State v. Dunn, 159 N. C. 470, 74 S. E. 1014, the Supreme Court cannot review the evidence or other matters in a criminal case in habeas corpus proceedings, but only the jurisdiction of the court and the validity of the judgment which is attacked. State v. Burnette, 173 N. C. 734, 91 S. E. 364.

Question of Insanity Determined.—When the petitioner in habeas corpus has been adjudged insane and her detention is ordered by a court of lunacy of another state, the judge of the superior court in this State by whom the proceedings of habeas corpus are heard should determine the validity of the order of the adjudication of insanity when the same is properly presented to him, and this is the determinative question involved, and upon failure to have done so the case will be remanded. In re Chase, 193 N. C. 450, 137 S. E. 305.

Discretion of Judge.—The quantum of evidence and the number of witnesses to be examined must necessarily be left also to the sound discretion of the judge who hears the writ, and his action in that regard cannot be reviewed. State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 935, 12 S. E. 268. See also In re Bailey, 203 N. C. 362, 367, 166 S. E. 165.

Presumption of Innocence and Burden of Proof.—The presumption of innocence applies only on a trial, and does not avail to furnish a presumption that the detention of a party on regular process, when the committing officer has jurisdiction, is illegal; therefore, where, upon the return of a sheriff to a writ of habeas corpus, it appeared that the petitioners were in custody on a mittimus, regular in every way, from a justice of the peace, for failure to give bond for their appearances at the next term of the superior court to answer a criminal charge of which the court had jurisdiction, the detention, nothing else appearing, was clearly legal, and the burden was upon the petitioner to show wherein it was illegal, and not upon the State to show that they were lawfully in custody. State v. Jones, 113 N. C. 669, 18 S. E. 249.

No Appeal Lies.—Appeal to the Supreme Court will not lie from the refusal of a superior court judge to discharge the defendant from custody in proceedings in habeas corpus, the remedy being by a petition for a writ of certiorari which is addressed to the sound discretion of the Supreme Court. In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 95 S. E. 903; State v. Burnette, 173 N. C. 734, 91 S. E. 364.

Constitutional Provision.—In habeas corpus proceedings wherein upon the hearing are involved questions of law or legal inference, and judgment is a denial of a legal right, it may be reviewed by the Supreme Court by virtue of the Constitution, Art. IV, sec. 8, under the power given to the court "to issue any remedial writs necessary to give it general supervision and control over the proceedings of inferior courts." In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872.

Writ of Certiorari Proper Remedy.—Where it appears that, upon the return of the writ, the judge declined to hear evidence or investigate the charge, the writ of certiorari should issue. Walton v. Gatlin, 60 N. C. 318; Ex parte Biggs, 64 N. C. 202; State v. Jefferson, 66 N. C. 309; State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 935, 12 S. E. 268.

The remedy given under the constitutional power conferred upon the Supreme Court to review a judgment in habeas corpus proceedings in matters not involving the care and custody of children, Constitution, Art. IV, sec. 8, shall only be exercised by certiorari. In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872.

Same—When Denied.—A petition for certiorari in the Supreme Court will be denied in habeas corpus proceedings when it appears therefrom that the prisoner is not entitled to his discharge. In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 95 S. E. 903.

If the judge, upon the investigation of the evidence on a petition for habeas corpus, adjudges that there is or is not probable cause, and admits or refuses to admit to bail, no appeal or certiorari lies, either in favor of the State or the petitioner. Walton v. Gatlin, 60 N. C. 310, 318; State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 1 S. E. 776; Stat. v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 935, 12 S. E. 268.

In habeas corpus proceedings, where it appears from the application for certiorari in the Supreme Court, or the documents annexed thereto, that the petition is determined under a final judgment of a competent tribunal, the writ will be denied in the Supreme Court. In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872.

Proceeding Where Judgment Reversed.—If, upon certiorari, the court reverses and sets aside the judgment of the court below, and the proceedings are remanded, no procedendo issues to any particular judge, but the petitioner can exercise his statutory right to apply, de novo, to any judge authorized to grant the writ of habeas corpus. State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 12 S. E. 268.

Judicial Review of Questions of Law.—In deciding questions which arise under writs of habeas corpus the judiciary may review and control the action of the Governor in regard to points of law; but cannot interfere with such action in regard to any matter within the discretion of the Governor.

In the matter of Hughes, 61 N. C. 57.

§ 17-33. When party discharged.—If no legal cause is shown for such imprisonment or restraint, or for the continuance thereof, the court or judge shall discharge the party from the custody or restraint under which he is held. But if it appears on the return to the writ that the party is in custody by virtue of civil process from any court legally constituted, or issued by any officer in the course of judicial proceedings before him, authorized by law, such party can be discharged only in one of the following cases:

1. Where the jurisdiction of such court or officer has been exceeded, either as to matter, place, sum or person.
2. Where, though the original imprisonment was lawful, yet by some act, omission or event, which has taken place afterwards, the party has become entitled to be discharged.
3. Where the process is defective in some matter of substance required by law, rendering such process void.
4. Where the process, though in proper form, has been issued in a case not allowed by law.
5. Where the person, having the custody of the party under such process, is not the person empowered by law to detain him.
6. Where the process is not authorized by any judgment, order or decree of any court, nor by any provision of law. (Rev., s. 1847; Code, s. 1645; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 20; C. S. 2235.)

Cross Reference.—See also, notes under § 17-32.

Where Imprisonment for Contempt.—It was held in Ex parte Summers, 27 N. C. 149, that in a case of imprisonment for contempt, where the court states the facts upon which it proceeds, a reviewing tribunal may, on a habeas corpus, discharge the party if it appears plainly that the facts do not amount to a contempt. State v. Queen, 91 N. C. 659, 662.

Sentence Partly Valid and Partly Void.—Where a prisoner is detained by virtue of a sentence in part valid and part otherwise, he may not be liberated on habeas corpus until he shall have served the valid portion of his sentence, and he shall be remanded when it appears that the time during which he may legally be detained has not expired. State v. Hooker, 183 N. C. 763, 111 S. E. 351.

State Cannot Appeal.—The State cannot appeal from an order in habeas corpus proceedings discharging from imprisonment one convicted of crime. Proceedings in habeas corpus, the object of which is to release a person from illegal restraint, must necessarily be summary to be useful, and if action could be arrested by an appeal upon the part of the State, the great writ of liberty would be deprived of its most beneficial results. In the matter of Williams, 149 N. C. 436, 437, 63 S. E. 108; State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 1 S. E. 776.

§ 17-34. When party remanded.—It is the duty of the court or judge forthwith to remand the party, if it appears that he is detained in custody, either—

1. By virtue of process issued by any court or judge of the United States, in a case where such court or judge has exclusive jurisdiction.

2. By virtue of the final judgment or decree of any competent court of civil or criminal jurisdiction, or of any execution issued upon such judgment or decree.

3. For any contempt specially and plainly charged in the commitment by some court, officer or body having authority to commit for the contempt so charged.

4. That the time during which such party may be legally detained has not expired. (Rev., s. 1848; Code, s. 1646; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 21; C. S. 2236.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 17-4, when application for writ shall be denied.

Judgment Imports Verity.—A judgment in habeas corpus imports verity, and it can not be collaterally impeached. In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 95 S. E. 903.

§ 17-35. When the party bailed or remanded.—If it appears that the party has been legally committed for any criminal offense, or if it appears by the testimony offered with the return of the writ, or upon the hearing thereof, that the party is guilty of such an offense, although the commitment is irregular, the court or judge shall proceed to let such party to bail, if the case is bailable and good bail is offered; if not, the court or judge shall forthwith remand such party to the custody or place him under the restraint from which he was taken, if the person or officer, under whose custody or restraint he was, is legally entitled thereto; if not so entitled, the court or judge shall commit such party to the custody of the officer or person legally entitled thereto. (Rev., s. 1849; Code, s. 1647; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 22; C. S. 2237.)

Judge May Admit to Bail.—Any person charged (but not convicted) of any crime whatever may be admitted to bail if the judge, upon hearing the testimony upon a writ of habeas corpus, adjudges that, upon the facts developed, the petitioner is entitled to be released on bail. State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 937, 12 S. E. 268. And although a sentence is not valid the defendant may not be unconditionally released, as the court may hold him to bail. State v. Burnette, 173 N. C. 734, 91 S. E. 364.

No Discharge After Indictment.—Of course, after indictment found, the judge cannot absolutely discharge the prisoner in any case, however clear a case of innocence may be made out, but must require his appearance at the next term of court. State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 938, 12 S. E. 268.

§ 17-36. Party held in execution not to be discharged.—When a writ of habeas corpus cum causa issues and the sheriff or other officer to whom it is directed returns upon the same that the prisoner is condemned, by judgment given against him, and held in custody by virtue of an execution issued against him, the prisoner shall not be let to bail but shall be presently remanded, where he shall remain until discharged in due course of law. (Rev., s. 1850; Code, s. 937; R. C., c. 31, s. 111; 2 Hen. V, c. 2; C. S. 2238.)

§ 17-37. When party ill, cause determined in his absence.—When, from the illness or infirmity of the person directed to be produced by a writ of habeas corpus, such person cannot, without danger, be brought before the court or judge where the writ is made returnable, the party in whose custody he is may state the fact in his return to the writ; and if the court or judge is satisfied of the truth of the allegation, and the return is otherwise sufficient, the court or judge shall proceed to decide on such return and to dispose of the matter in the same manner as if the body had been produced. (Rev., s. 1851; Code, s. 1648; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 23; C. S. 2239.)

§ 17-38. No second committal after discharged; penalty.—No person who has been set at large upon any writ of habeas corpus shall be again imprisoned or detained for the same cause by any person whatsoever other than by the legal order or process of the court wherein he shall be bound by recognizance to appear or of any other court having jurisdiction in the case, under the penalty of two thousand five hundred dollars to the party aggrieved thereby. (Rev., s. 1852; Code, s. 1651; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 26; C. S. 2240.)

Cross Reference.—As to recommittal after discharge, see § 17-25.

Surrender by Sureties.—Where the defendant was not originally liable to arrest and had been discharged upon habeas corpus, he cannot be held upon a surrender by his sureties. Ledford v. Emerson, 143 N. C. 527, 55 S. E. 969.

When Rearrest Permissible.—According to the express terms of this section, a party once discharged may be again arrested and imprisoned for the same cause, provided it be done by the legal order or process of a court of competent jurisdiction. State v. Weatherspoon, 88 N. C. 19, 21.

Art. 7. Habeas Corpus for Custody of Children in Certain Cases.

§ 17-39. Custody as between parents in certain cases; modification of order.—When a contest shall arise on a writ of habeas corpus between any husband and wife, who are living in a state of separation, without being divorced, in respect to the custody of their children, the court or judge, on the return of such writ, may award the charge or custody of the child or children so brought before it either to the husband or to the wife, for such time, under such regulations and restrictions, and with such provisions and directions as will, in the opinion of such court or judge, best promote the interest and welfare of the children. At any time after the making of such orders the court or judge may, on good cause shown, annul, vary or modify the same; provided, that where the father is a non-resident of North Carolina and the custody of the child has been awarded, by an order of a court of this State, to the mother who is a resident of North Carolina, no motion on the part of such non-resident father may be heard or entertained by the court for a modification of the order of the court, unless such father has first shown under oath that, since the making of the original order, he has regularly contributed to the support of said child according to his means and according to the needs of the child, and, if said motion is heard and at said hearing such fact is not established to the satisfaction of the court, the motion for a modification of the order shall be denied, unless the court shall find that, at the time of said hearing the mother is not a fit and proper person to have the custody of said child. Provided, that the last two provisos shall only apply after the case has been reopened on time. (Rev., s. 1853; Code, s. 1661; 1858-9, c. 53; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 36; 1929, c. 270, s. 1; C. S. 2241.)

Cross References.—As to custody of children in divorce, see § 50-13 and notes thereto. As to persons entitled to custody of children in general, see § 33-2.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the two provisos to this section.

Broad Powers Conferred.—This section confers upon the court very large powers to "promote the interest and welfare of the children." Holley v. Holley, 96 N. C. 229, 1 S. E. 553; Knott v. Taylor, 96 N. C. 553, 2 S. E. 680; Jones v. Cotten, 108 N. C. 457, 458, 13 S. E. 161.

When Section Applies.—When, without being divorced, parents are living apart, the question concerning the disposition of their offspring must be decided under the provisions of this section. In re Habeas Corpus of Jones, 153 N. C. 312, 69 S. E. 217.

It is essential that the parents must be living in a state of separation "without being divorced" before the court has power in a habeas corpus proceeding to determine the custody of the children. In the matter of Blake, 184 N. C. 278, 280, 114 S. E. 294; McEachern v. McEachern, 210 N. C. 98, 185 S. E. 684.

Habeas corpus may be used to decide a contest "between any husband and wife, who are living in a state of separation, without being divorced, in respect to the custody of their children." It is not available as between other parties, nor as between divorced parents. In re Young, 222 N. C. 708, 709, 24 S. E. (2d) 539.

Except as between parents, the right of custody of a child can not be determined by writ of habeas corpus. In re Parker, 144 N. C. 170, 56 S. E. 878.

When Parents Divorced Section 50-13 Applies.—When this section is considered in connection with section 50-13, it becomes apparent that the Legislature intended that the custody of children shall be determined by the court in which the divorce was granted, and, where there is no divorce, by proceedings in habeas corpus. Jurisdiction of the court in which a divorce is granted to award the custody of a child is exclusive and continuing. In the matter of Blake, 184 N. C. 278, 281, 114 S. E. 294. See McEachern v. McEachern, 210 N. C. 98, 185 S. E. 684.

But where the parties have been divorced and the decree does not award the custody of the children, the procedure to determine the right to their custody, is by motion in the cause, and habeas corpus will not lie, and where in habeas corpus proceedings a decree for absolute divorce between the parties is introduced in the record without objection, but the court makes no finding as to whether the parties had been divorced, but awards the custody of the child to its mother, on appeal the case will be remanded for a finding as to whether the parties had been divorced. In re Albertson, 205 N. C. 742, 172 S. E. 411.

Jurisdiction of Juvenile Court.—In Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 824, it was held that the jurisdiction of the superior court or judge thereof in habeas corpus proceedings between husband and wife, living apart without divorce, where the custody of the minor children of their marriage is claimed by each of them, is not ousted or interfered with by the jurisdiction given by statute to the juvenile court. See also, In the matter of Blake, 184 N. C. 278, 114 S. E. 294.

Where Foreign Decree Invalid.—When, under an invalid decree of divorce rendered in favor of the wife in another state, in which the custody of a child was awarded to the wife, it is sought by habeas corpus proceeding in this State to obtain the custody of the child domiciled with its father in this State, the proceeding will be regarded as one between husband and wife living in separation without being divorced. And the custody of the child rests in the sound discretion of the judge, subject to review, on appeal, upon the facts found. Harris v. Harris, 115 N. C. 587, 20 S. E. 187.

Parents Have Prima Facie Right to Custody.—In habeas corpus proceedings for the possession of a nine-year old child, the parents of the child, who are living together as lawful man and wife, have prima facie the right to its control and custody. In re Habeas Corpus of Jones, 153 N. C. 312, 69 S. E. 217.

Where the father of an infant upon the death of its mother told the grandparents of the child that the latter should always remain with them, but subsequently desired the custody of the child and upon refusal brought habeas corpus proceedings, and it appeared that the father was of good moral character, industrious and kind and in every way fitted to care for and educate the child, the custody was properly awarded to him. Latham v. Ellis, 116 N. C. 30, 20 S. E. 1012.

Same—Welfare of Child First Consideration.—In habeas corpus for the custody of a child the welfare of the child is the first consideration but the father has a natural right of such custody. To lose this right it must be shown that he is not fit to exercise it. In re Fain, 172 N. C. 790, 90 S. E. 928.

The right of the parent is not absolute and yields to the welfare of the child when so required. In re Hamilton, 182 N. C. 44, 108 S. E. 385.

Same—Same—Custody Awarded to Mother.—The mother, in habeas corpus proceedings against her husband, may be allowed the superior claim when both are equally worthy and it is shown that the welfare of their children requires it. Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 824. In the opinion of this case, written by Justice Clarkson, there is a comprehensive and able discussion and review of the authorities relating to the custody of children.

But the court will not award the custody of a child to a nonresident mother if it does not appear that the child desires to go to her or that the husband is not a proper person to have it, or that the child will be benefitted by the change. Harris v. Harris, 115 N. C. 587, 20 S. E. 187.

Same—Illegitimates.—In the care of illegitimate children, the same prima facie right of the parent to the custody of the offspring exists as in case of legitimacy, perhaps to a lesser degree, in the mother, where she evinces a capacity and disposition to properly care for her children. In re Habeas Corpus of Jones, 153 N. C. 312, 69 S. E. 217.

Action by Father against Grandmother.—Where the father of a child brings a writ of habeas corpus against the grandmother for the custody of the child but the contest is to all intents and purposes between the husband and wife for the custody of the child the writ comes within the spirit and letter of this section. In re Ten Hoopen, 202 N. C. 223, 162 S. E. 619.

Award Not Necessarily Final with Changed Conditions.—An award in habeas corpus proceedings does not finally determine the rights of the parties to the custody of the child sought in habeas corpus proceedings; and where, in our courts, the award has been in favor of a nonresident mother against the father of the child, the courts, properly established and having jurisdiction at the domicile of the mother, may further hear and determine the matter touching the care and control of the child on such changed conditions, properly established, as would require it. In re Means, 176 N. C. 307, 97 S. E. 39.

Habeas Corpus Not Available Where Divorce Is Granted in Another State Where Parents Resided.—Habeas corpus is not available to determine the custody of a child as between its divorced parents and where the divorce is granted in another state of which the parents were residents, the writ is not available to enforce the provisions of the divorce decree relating to the custody of the child as against the mother moving to this State and bringing the child with her. In re Ogden, 211 N. C. 100, 189 S. E. 119.

Findings of Fact Are Conclusive When Based on Evidence.—The findings of fact by the court in proceedings in habeas corpus, to determine the custody of minor children of the parties, are conclusive when based on evidence. McEachern v. McEachern, 210 N. C. 98, 185 S. E. 684.

Cited in re Gibson, 222 N. C. 350, 23 S. E. (2d) 50.

§ 17-40. Appeal to supreme court.—In all cases of habeas corpus, where a contest arises in respect to the custody of minor children, either party may appeal to the supreme court from the final judgment. (Rev., s. 1854; Code, s. 1662; 1858-9, c. 53, s. 2; C. S. 2242.)

No Appeal Except under This Section.—There is no provision for appeal from a judgment in habeas corpus proceedings, except in cases concerning the care and custody of children under this section. In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 166, 69 S. E. 872.

It is a significant indication of the legislative intent in giving an appeal in this case only, not to recognize it in other cases. State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 454, 1 S. E. 776.

Death of Party Pending Appeal.—Where in a habeas corpus proceeding brought to secure the custody of infant children, the respondent (in whose favor judgment had been rendered below) died pending appeal, it was held, that the proceeding abated, and could not be revived against the personal representative. Brown v. Rainor, 108 N. C. 204, 12 S. E. 1028.

Judgment of Superior Court Stayed Pending Appeal.—Upon appeal to the Supreme Court from an order of the judge of the superior court in habeas corpus proceedings between husband and wife for the custody of the minor children of the marriage upon petition of the wife, living by mutual consent separated from her husband, without divorce, it is within the power of the Supreme Court, upon notification to the adverse party to appear before one of the Justices, and after a regular hearing, for the Justice to allow a supersedeas bond in a fixed amount, to stay the judgment of the lower court pending appeal, and by consent to set the hearing after the call of a certain district in the Supreme Court in term. Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 824.

Discretion in Supreme Court.—When the superior court judge has entered judgment in habeas corpus proceedings between husband and wife, and has found the facts upon which his judgment was based, and both parties appeal, the Supreme Court, in its sound legal discretion, may review the judgment and affirm, reverse, or modify it. Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 824; Atkinson v. Downing, 175 N. C. 244, 95 S. E. 487.

What Reviewed.—Upon an appeal from a judgment upon a writ of habeas corpus awarding the custody of a minor child, the court will only review errors of "law or legal inference," Constitution, Art. IV, Section 8, and not the findings of fact made by the lower court upon competent evidence; and this section allowing an appeal in such cases, does not affect the matter. Stokes v. Cogdell, 153 N. C. 181, 69 S. E. 65.

Decree as between Divorced Parents Is Not Appealable.—A decree in habeas corpus proceedings to determine the custody of a child as between its divorced parents is not appealable, since the proceeding does not come within the provisions of this and § 17-39, nor will the provisions made for the child be considered when the judge below finds that the child is in school and is being properly cared for by the parent having its custody, and awards its custody to such parent during the school term, the sole remedy being by certiorari to invoke the constitutional power of the Supreme Court to supervise and control proceedings of inferior courts. In re Ogden, 211 N. C. 100, 189 S. E. 119.

Applied in In re Albertson, 205 N. C. 742, 172 S. E. 411.

Art. 8. Habeas Corpus Ad Testificandum.

§ 17-41. Authority to issue the writ.—Every court of record has power, upon the application of any party to any suit or proceeding, civil or criminal, pending in such court, to issue a writ of habeas corpus, for the purpose of bringing before the said court any prisoner who may be detained in any jail or prison within the state, for any cause, except a prisoner under sentence for a capital felony, to be examined as a witness in such suit or proceeding in behalf of the party making the application.

Such writ of habeas corpus may be issued by any justice of the peace or clerk of the superior court, upon application as provided in this section, to bring any person confined in the jail or prison of the same county where such justice or clerk may reside, to be examined as a witness before such justice or clerk.

In cases where the testimony of any prisoner is needed in a proceeding before a justice of the peace, or a clerk, and such person is confined in a county in which such justice or clerk does not reside, application for habeas corpus to testify may be made to any judge of the supreme or superior court. (Rev., ss. 1855, 1856; Code, ss. 1663, 1664; 1868-9, c. 116, ss. 37, 38; C. S. 2243.)

An Inherent Power.—The right to bring a person, whose presence is necessary, before a court for the exercise of its powers is inherent in every court of general jurisdiction, and its exercise is essential to the preservation of its power and dignity. State v. Haskins, 77 N. C. 530; Haskins v. Cathey, 119 N. C. 649, 664, 26 S. E. 136.

No Application to State.—This section applies only to parties strictly so called, and not to the State. Ex parte Harris, 73 N. C. 65, citing State v. Adair, 68 N. C. 68.

Murderer Is Competent Witness.—One who has been convicted of murder, and is under sentence of death, is a competent witness; and the solicitor for the State is entitled to a habeas corpus to bring such condemned prisoner into court for the purpose of testifying before the grand jury. Ex parte Harris, 73 N. C. 65.

Same—Objection Untenable.—When the State has procured the attendance of a witness under sentence of death, the objection by the defendant that he could not be procured by writ of habeas corpus ad testificandum under this section, is untenable, this not applying to the State; nor will objection avail that the time set for the execution had passed, and the witness, being dead, in the eye of the law, could not testify, the witness having been present and having testified. State v. Jones, 176 N. C. 702, 97 S. E. 32.

§ 17-42. Contents of application.—The application for the writ shall be made by the party to the suit or proceeding in which the writ is required, or by his agent or attorney. It must be verified by the applicant, and shall state—

1. The title and nature of the suit or proceeding in regard to which the testimony of such prisoner is desired.

2. That the testimony of such prisoner is material and necessary to such party on the trial or hearing of such suit or proceeding, as he is advised by counsel and verily believes. (Rev., s. 1857; Code, s. 1665; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 39; C. S. 2244.)

§ 17-43. Service of writ.—The writ of habeas corpus to testify shall be served by the same person, and in like manner in all respects, and enforced by the court or officer issuing the same as prescribed in this chapter for the service and enforcement of the writ of habeas corpus cum causa. (Rev., s. 1858; Code, s. 1666; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 40; C. S. 2245.)

Cross Reference.—As to service of writ in habeas corpus proceedings, see § 17-12.

§ 17-44. Applicant to pay expenses and give bond to return.—The service of the writ shall not be complete, however, unless the applicant for the same tenders to the person in whose custody the prisoner may be, if such person is a sheriff, coroner, constable or marshal, the fees and expenses allowed by law for bringing such prisoner, nor unless he also gives bond, with sufficient security, to such sheriff, coroner, constable or marshal, as the case may be, conditioned that such applicant will pay the charges of carrying back such prisoner. (Rev., s. 1859; Code, s. 1667; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 41; C. S. 2246.)

§ 17-45. Duty of officer to whom writ delivered or on whom served.—It is the duty of the officer to whom the writ is delivered or upon whom it is served, whether such writ is directed to him or not, upon payment or tender of the charges allowed by law, and the delivery or tender of the bond herein prescribed, to obey and return such writ according to the exigency thereof upon pain, on refusal or neglect, to forfeit to the party on whose application the same has been issued the sum of five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1860; Code, s. 1668; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 42; C. S. 2247.)

§ 17-46. Prisoner to be remanded.—After having testified, the prisoner shall be remanded to the prison from which he was taken. (Rev., s. 1861; Code, s. 1669; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 43; C. S. 2248.)

R. 7294," an act of Congress approved November twenty-third, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one.

(1923, c. 1; s. 1; C. S. 3411(a).)

Editor's Note.—For a summary review of this statute, see 1 N. C. L. Rev. 303.

This article is popularly known as the Turlington Act and is often referred to in cases as such. The act was intended to make the state law conform in a substantial manner to the federal Volstead Act. See State v. Davis, 214 N. C. 787, 1 S. E. (2d) 104; State v. Carpenter, 215 N. C. 635, 3 S. E. (2d) 34.

Similarity to Volstead Act.—This and the following section are, in many respects, the same as "The Volstead Act," although more stringent. State v. Sigmon, 190 N. C. 684, 690, 130 S. E. 854.

An act by our Legislature to make the State law conform to the "Volstead Act" passed by Congress, is valid, and in some respects more stringent than the Congressional act. State v. Hickey, 198 N. C. 45, 46, 150 S. E. 615.

Same—Power of State to Pass Stricter Regulation.—The State has the power through legislation to further regulate and control the manufacture, sale, etc., of intoxicating liquor beyond the restrictions contained in a Federal statute upon the subject, the latter prevailing in interstate regulations in case of conflict; and the State statute may consistently give further effect or efficiency to the Federal statute upon the subject as it relates to State regulation. State v. Hammond, 188 N. C. 602, 125 S. E. 402.

Effect upon Existing Legislation.—This act, with certain reservations as to existing State laws, establishes the rule now prevailing on the subject of prohibition and it applies to the extent that it is inconsistent with former legislation and is in conformity with valid Federal statutes on the subject where interstate regulation is concerned. State v. Hammond, 188 N. C. 602, 125 S. E. 402.

Beverages Not Enumerated.—It may be shown in evidence as a fact that other beverages than those defined by this section as intoxicating and prohibited are intoxicating in fact and come within the intent and meaning of the statute. State v. Fields, 201 N. C. 110, 159 S. E. 11.

"Spirituuous Liquors."—See State v. Giersch, 98 N. C. 720, 4 S. E. 193.

§ 18-2. Manufacture, sale, etc., forbidden; construction of law; nonbeverage liquor.—No person shall manufacture, sell, barter, transport, import, export, deliver, furnish, purchase, or possess any intoxicating liquor except as authorized in this article; and all the provisions of this article shall be liberally construed to the end that the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage may be prevented. Liquor for nonbeverage purposes and wine for sacramental purposes may be manufactured, purchased, sold, bartered, transported, imported, exported, delivered, furnished, and possessed, but only as provided by Title II of "The Volstead Act," act of congress enacted October twenty-eighth, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, an act supplemental to the National Prohibition Act, "H. R. 7294," an act of congress approved November twenty-third, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one. (1923, c. 1, s. 2; C. S. 3411(b).)

Cross References.—As to law allowing sale, the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act of 1937, see §§ 18-36 to 18-62, and the Beverage Control Act of 1939, see §§ 18-63 to 18-93.

Constitutionality.—The State in its inherent and reserved power preserved to it by the Tenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution may enact valid laws relating to prohibition when not in conflict with the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, or congressional legislation, and this section, making the purchase of intoxicating liquor a criminal offense, is valid and enforceable. State v. Lassiter, 198 N. C. 352, 151 S. E. 721.

Effect of Acquiring Possession Prior to Act.—Evidence tending to show that the defendant had intoxicating liquor in his possession before the efficacy of this act, is not a defense under the provisions of this act for the defendant's possession a year thereafter, upon the trial for violating the prohibition law. State v. Knight, 188 N. C. 630, 125 S. E. 406.

Effect on Recovery under Compensation Act.—The mere fact that an applicant for compensation under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act had in his possession whiskey contrary to this section does not alone prevent the recovery of compensation. Jackson v. Dairy-men's Creamery, 202 N. C. 196, 162 S. E. 359.

When Receipt Prohibited.—There is no provision in this act which in express terms prohibits one from receiving intoxicating liquors. Except as embraced and included by the acts which are prohibited in the statute, the mere receiving of intoxicating liquors is not forbidden. State v. Hammond, 188 N. C. 602, 608, 125 S. E. 402.

It is bad pleading to make the mere receipt of liquor the subject of a separate and independent count; and the charge that the mere receipt of same, though only in the home of the recipient, and kept there only for a lawful purpose, is forbidden, is not warranted by any proper construction of the statute that has been suggested to us. State v. Hammond, 188 N. C. 602, 608, 125 S. E. 402.

Section Liberally Construed—What Amounts to Possession.—This section was expressly made to be liberally construed to prevent intoxication, and makes it unlawful for one to possess intoxicating liquor, with restricted qualifications; and a conviction will be sustained under a verdict of guilty upon evidence tending to show that the defendant received a bottle of intoxicating liquor from another, took a drink therefrom, and handed the bottle back to the one from whom he had received it, neither of them being upon his own premises. State v. McAllister, 187 N. C. 400, 121 S. E. 739.

Character of Possession Necessary.—The possession may, within this statute, be either actual, or constructive. State v. Meyers, 190 N. C. 239, 243, 129 S. E. 600. See also State v. Norris, 206 N. C. 191, 173 S. E. 14.

A prima facie case of the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors may be established by circumstances sufficient to show that the defendant had in his constructive possession large quantities of whiskey not on his premises, in the possession of others who held it for him. State v. Pierce, 192 N. C. 766, 136 S. E. 121.

If a man procures another to obtain liquor for him and put it in a given place, and the other performs this agreement and places the liquor, then the possession is complete. A person may be in the possession of the article which he has not at the moment about his person. The constructive possession, as well as the actual possession, is in the contemplation of the statute. State v. Pierce, 192 N. C. 766, 769, 136 S. E. 121; State v. Meyers, 190 N. C. 239, 129 S. E. 600.

Transportation as Including Possession.—Where the evidence is sufficient to convict the defendant of transporting whiskey under this and the following section, the transportation of spirituuous liquor includes the possession. State v. Sigmon, 190 N. C. 684, 130 S. E. 854.

Where an indictment for violating our prohibition law contains a count as to the unlawful possession and also unlawfully transporting spirituuous liquor, an acquittal upon the first is not inconsistent with a conviction on the second issue. They are two distinct offenses under the statute. State v. Sigmon, 190 N. C. 684, 130 S. E. 854.

Purpose of Possession.—Upon the trial for transporting intoxicating liquors in violation of our statute, the purpose of the possession of the intoxicants, or that they were for the purpose of profit, are immaterial, and the fact that the person accused is carrying them from one place to another is sufficient. State v. Sigmon, 190 N. C. 684, 130 S. E. 854.

Possession—Admissibility of Evidence.—Where on a trial for unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor there is evidence tending to show that on the premises of the defendant's gasoline station two barrels partly containing whiskey were found concealed, buried in the ground and encased in concrete of the same character and material as the filling station, etc., testimony of the officer that the barrels, from the indication, had thus been there since the building of the station is competent as tending to show that the possession of the whiskey was for an unlawful purpose. State v. Hege, 194 N. C. 526, 140 S. E. 80.

Evidence tending to show that defendant was apprehended while driving a car owned by him, that he fled the scene with his companion in the car when it bogged down in the mud, and that three and a half gallons of untaxed liquor was found in the car, is held sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale and on the charge of unlawfully transporting intoxicating liquor, as charged in the bill of indictment. State v. Epps, 213 N. C. 709, 197 S. E. 580.

Same—Evidence Sufficient to Go to Jury.—On a trial for the unlawful possession of intoxicating liquors, evidence of the State tending to show that the defendant had several gallons of whiskey concealed on the premises of his gasoline station held, sufficient to take the case to the jury on defendant's motion to dismiss upon the State's evidence. State v. Hege, 194 N. C. 526, 140 S. E. 80.

Same—Defense.—Where the defendant is indicted for the unlawful possession of whiskey under this section, evidence of its possession before the enactment of the statute is no defense. State v. Hege, 194 N. C. 526, 140 S. E. 80.

Purchase and Transportation for Use in Home.—It is unlawful to purchase and transport intoxicating liquor under this section even though it is intended for use in the home under section 18-11. State v. Winston, 194 N. C. 243, 139 S. E. 240.

Separate Offenses Charged in Same Warrant.—The offenses of delivering, and of keeping for sale, are separate offenses under this act and although charged in the same warrant, they will be treated as separate counts. State v. Jarrett, 189 N. C. 516, 127 S. E. 590.

Sufficiency of Evidence—To Convict of Transporting.—Where a car, parked with the rear to the road and with the tail light concealed by a cap but with the front lights on, and the rear of the car smelled of liquor, and empty jugs, and a funnel which smelled of liquor, were found on the ground near, and someone ran through the field as the officers approached the car, and the officers arrested the defendant who came up after their arrival, carried him to jail, and upon return to the place found the jug and funnel gone, and a car which passed ran up the road a piece turned around and came back, it was held that the facts were sufficient to justify a finding "beyond a reasonable doubt that not only defendant was transporting liquors, but he had confederates and had been getting the liquor and had sold out and gone back to them to get another load. He had all the implements of a blind-tiger transporting liquor. The officers caught him before he had gotten his new supply." State v. Sigmon, 190 N. C. 684, 130 S. E. 854.

Same—To Deny Nonsuit.—Evidence in this case tending to show that the defendant lived in a part of his filling station used as a residence, where was found a quantity of empty bottles smelling of whisky, and that in the vicinity was a used roadway leading to several places where cartons with bottles of whiskey were concealed, etc., was sufficient to deny defendant's motion as of nonsuit. State v. Pierce, 192 N. C. 766, 136 S. E. 121.

A motion for nonsuit upon the evidence on the trial for a violation of the prohibition law, will be denied when, though circumstantial, the evidence is sufficient upon the question of possession and unlawful transportation of intoxicating liquor. State v. Meyers, 190 N. C. 239, 129 S. E. 600.

Where the man went to feed his hogs, the wife ran out of the house with liquor and hid it; the boy took some and ran and spilled it as he ran; the daughter covered up an old 30-gallon drum, the evidence as to violation of this section and section 18-4 was sufficient to refuse a nonsuit. State v. Norris, 206 N. C. 191, 197, 173 S. E. 14.

Harmless Error.—When a defendant is charged in two counts in the bill of indictment with separate offenses of the same grade, and the jury returns a verdict of guilty as to both counts, error in the trial of one count is harmless and does not entitle defendant to a new trial when such error does not affect the verdict on the other count. State v. Epps, 213 N. C. 709, 197 S. E. 580.

General Verdict Sufficient for Conviction.—A general verdict of guilty, under evidence tending to show that the defendant unlawfully had in his possession, when not in his private dwelling, intoxicating liquor, under an indictment therefor, as well as for the unlawful receiving and transportation, is sufficient to sustain a conviction upon the count of possession prohibited. State v. McAllister, 187 N. C. 400, 121 S. E. 739.

Same—Erroneous Charge as to Separate Count Harmless.—Where a general verdict of guilty has been rendered against the defendant, upon competent evidence, tending to show that he unlawfully had spirituous liquor in his possession, an erroneous charge as to receiving and transporting it, is harmless error. State v. McAllister, 187 N. C. 400, 121 S. E. 739.

Sentence of Two Years Constitutional.—A sentence of two years for violating this Act will not be held as inhibited by our State Constitution as cruel and unusual, by reason of the fact that the judge after the trial and before sentence made inquiry into the character of the defendant, the sentence imposed being in conformity with the provisions of the statute. State v. Beavers, 188 N. C. 595, 125 S. E. 258.

Distinct Charges Supporting Separate Sentences.—A charge of unlawful possession of intoxicating liquors for the purpose of sale and a charge of unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors, are distinct charges of separate offenses, and support separate sentences by the court on a general plea of guilty. State v. Moschoure, 214 N. C. 321, 199 S. E. 92.

Cited in State v. Dowell, 195 N. C. 523, 525, 143 S. E. 133; State v. Scoggins, 199 N. C. 821, 155 S. E. 927; State v. Calcutt, 219 N. C. 545, 15 S. E. (2d) 9 (dis. op.).

§ 18-3. Advertisements, signs, and billboards.—It shall be unlawful to advertise, anywhere or by any means or method, liquor, or the manufacture, sale, keeping for sale or furnishing of the means, or where, how, from whom, or at what price the same may be obtained. No one shall permit any sign or billboard containing such advertisement to remain upon one's premises: Provided, the foregoing provision shall not prohibit newspaper, radio, billboard or other forms of advertising for sale of beer, lager beer, ale, porter, fruit juices and/or other light wines containing not more than 3.2 per cent of alcohol by weight. (1923, c. 1, s. 3; 1933, cc. 216, 229; C. S. 3411(c).)

Cross References.—As to unlawful posting of advertisements without consent of owner, see § 14-145. As to advertising under the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, see §§ 18-53, 18-54, and 18-55.

§ 18-4. Advertising, etc., of utensils, etc., for use in manufacturing liquor.—It shall be unlawful to advertise, manufacture, sell, or possess for sale any utensil, contrivance, machine, preparation, compound, tablet, substance, formula, direction, or receipt advertised, designed, or intended for use in the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor. It shall be unlawful to have or possess any liquor or property designed for the manufacture of liquor intended for use in violating this article, or which has been so used, and no property rights shall exist in any such liquor or property. (1923, c. 1, s. 4; C. S. 3411(d).)

Possession of Property Designed for Manufacture.—An indictment charging the defendant with a violation of this section, in that he had in his possession property designed for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor is not identical with a charge of an attempt to commit a crime. State v. Jaynes, 198 N. C. 728, 153 S. E. 410.

"Designated."—In the interpretation of this section making it unlawful to possess any property "designated" for use in manufacturing intoxicating liquor, the word "designated" is construed to mean "designed," and so used it is held in this case that evidence of the defendant's guilt of possessing parts of a still designed and intended for the purpose of manufacturing intoxicating liquor was sufficient to be submitted to the jury and to sustain their verdict of guilty, and the fact that the parts had not been assembled into a distillery is immaterial under the language of the statute. State v. Jaynes, 198 N. C. 728, 153 S. E. 410.

§ 18-5. Soliciting orders for liquor.—No person shall solicit or receive, nor knowingly permit his employee to solicit or receive, from any person any order for liquor or give any information of how liquor may be obtained in violation of this article. (1923, c. 1, s. 5; C. S. 3411(e).)

§ 18-6. Seizure of liquor or conveyance; arrests; sale of property.—When any officer of the law shall discover any person in the act of transporting, in violation of the law, intoxicating liquor in any wagon, buggy, automobile, water or air craft, or other vehicle, it shall be his duty to seize any and all intoxicating liquor found therein being transported contrary to law. Whenever intoxicating liquor transported or possessed illegally shall be seized by an officer he shall take possession of the vehicle and team or automobile, boat, air or water craft, or any other conveyance, and shall arrest any person in charge thereof. Such officer shall at once proceed against the person arrested under the provisions of this article in any court having competent jurisdiction; but the said vehicle or conveyance shall be returned to the owner upon execution by him of a good and valid bond, with sufficient sureties, in a sum double the value of the property, which said bond shall be approved by said officer and shall be conditioned to return said property to the custody of said officer on the day of trial to abide the judgment of the court. The court, upon the conviction of the person so arrested, shall order the liquor destroyed, and, unless the claimant can show that the property seized is his property, and that the same was used in transporting liquor without his knowledge and consent, with the right on the part of the claimant to have a jury pass upon his claim, shall order a sale by public auction of the property seized, and the officer making the sale, after deducting the expenses of keeping the property, the fee for the seizure, and the cost of the sale, shall pay all liens, according to their priorities, which are established, by intervention or otherwise at said hearing or in other proceeding brought for said purpose, as being bona fide and as having been created without the lienor having any notice that the carrying vehicle was being used for illegal transportation of liquor, and shall pay the balance of the proceeds to the treasurer or the proper officer in the county who receives fines and forfeitures, to be used for the school fund of the county. All liens against property sold under the provisions of this section shall be transferred from the property to the proceeds of the sale of the property. If, however, no one shall be found claiming the team, vehicle, water or air craft, or automobile, the taking of the same, with a description thereof, shall be advertised in some newspaper published in the city or county where taken, or, if there be no newspaper published in such city or county, in a newspaper having circulation in the county, once a week for two weeks and by handbills posted in three public places near the place of seizure, and if no claimant shall appear within ten days after the last publication of the advertisement, the property shall be sold, and the proceeds, after deducting the expenses and costs, shall be paid to the treasurer or proper officer in the county who receives fines and forfeitures, to be used for the school fund of the county: Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize any officer to search any automobile or other vehicle or baggage of any person without a search warrant duly issued, except where the officer sees or has absolute personal knowledge that there is intoxicating liquor in such vehicle or baggage. (1923, c. 1, s. 6; C. S. 3411(f).)

Cross References.—As to disposal of tax-paid liquor that has been seized, see § 18-13. As to fines to be paid into treasurer's office for school fund, see § 153-58, § 115-177 et seq.; N. C. Const., Art. IX, § 5. As to search warrants, see § 18-13.

Editor's Note.—For article discussing limits to search and seizure, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 229. See also, 15 N. C. Law Rev. 101.

Meaning of "Absolute Personal Knowledge."—Under this section an officer "discovers any person in the act" and has "absolute personal knowledge" (1) when he sees the liquor; (2) when he has absolute personal knowledge . . . acquired through the senses of seeing, hearing, smelling, tasting or touching. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 131, citing State v. Godette, 188 N. C. 497, 125 S. E. 24.

Constitutionality.—The provisions of this section do not contravene the provisions of the State Constitution, Art. I, secs. 11 and 15. State v. Godette, 188 N. C. 497, 125 S. E. 24.

Arrest without Warrant.—An arrest may not be lawfully made by the properly authorized officers of the law for the violation of our prohibition law, for the transportation of intoxicating liquors upon mere unfounded suspicion arising from information received that the supposed offenders would thus transgress the law on a future occasion, and an arrest so made, not upon an offense committed in the officers' presence or to their personal knowledge as to the particular offense, and without a search warrant, is unlawful and entitles the plaintiff in his action therefor, to recover damages. State v. DeHerrodora, 192 N. C. 749, 136 S. E. 6.

It follows that for an officer to fire upon a passing automobile with only an erroneous suspicion that the occupants thereof were thus unlawfully engaged, is without warrant of law, and the unintentional killing of one of those suspected as a result, is manslaughter at least, and a verdict thereof under conflicting evidence will be sustained on appeal. State v. Simmons, 192 N. C. 692, 135 S. E. 866.

But where there is evidence that acting upon information previously received that intoxicating liquors are being unlawfully transported, the proper officers of the law lie in wait for and follow automobile, and can see containers and smell the liquor, they have a right to arrest without warrant and seize the vehicle. State v. Godette, 188 N. C. 497, 125 S. E. 24.

Same—Evidence Not Excluded.—The arrest by the officer of the law without a warrant, being valid under the provisions of our statute, it may not successfully be maintained that evidence thereof should have been excluded. State v. Godette, 188 N. C. 497, 125 S. E. 24.

A search warrant is not necessary to search a suitcase for intoxicating liquor when carried by the defendant after arrest, when under the circumstances the officer had reasonable grounds for belief that it contained intoxicating liquor, and these conditions do not fall within the intent of this section. State v. Jenkins, 195 N. C. 747, 143 S. E. 538.

The "baggage" of the proviso of this section, refers to baggage accompanying or in the vehicle transporting the intoxicating liquor. State v. Jenkins, 195 N. C. 747, 750, 143 S. E. 538.

By "baggage" is understood such articles of personal convenience or necessity as are usually carried by passengers for their personal use, and not merchandise or other valuables, though carried in the trunk of a passenger, but which are not, however, designed for such use, but for other purposes, such as sale and the like. State v. Jenkins, 195 N. C. 747, 751, 143 S. E. 538.

A suitcase or traveling bag with four one-half gallon cans of contraband liquor in it is not baggage, under the definition in this section. State v. Jenkins, 195 N. C. 747, 751, 143 S. E. 538.

"Other Vehicle"—Suit Case.—A suitcase carried in one's hand along a public highway would not be an "other vehicle" within the meaning of this section. State v. Jenkins, 195 N. C. 747, 750, 143 S. E. 538.

Search without Warrant.—Officers have no authority to search a car without a warrant, under this section where they do not see or have "absolute personal knowledge" that there is intoxicating liquor in his car. State v. Simmons, 192 N. C. 692, 135 S. E. 866; State v. Godette, 188 N. C. 497, 125 S. E. 24; State v. DeHerrodora, 192 N. C. 749, 753, 136 S. E. 6.

Forfeiture of Property Used.—See article in 2 N. C. Law Rev. 126 for a review of the cases and statutes.

Use of Vehicle without Knowledge of Owner.—An instruction that if the jury should find by the greater weight of the evidence that petitioner, the owner of a car seized while being used in the unlawful transportation of intoxicating liquor, aided her husband in attempting flight to avoid arrest, to answer in the affirmative the issue of petitioner's knowledge that the car was being used for the transportation of liquor, is error when petitioner testifies that she did not know her husband was transporting liquor and that she thought the sheriff was pursuing them to serve a capias on her husband for a past offense, there being no evidence inconsistent with such belief on the part of petitioner, and the credibility of petitioner's testimony being for the jury. State v. Ayres, 220 N. C. 161, 16 S. E. (2d) 689.

Rights of License on Automobile Forfeited and Sold.—This section expressly transfers the lien upon an automobile seized and sold for the unlawful transportation of liquor to the proceeds of the sale, and does not deprive the lienor of his property in conflict with Const., Art. 1, § 17, or with the Due Process Clause of the Federal Constitution, the statute prescribing notice by publication, and the mode of giving notice being peculiarly a legislative function. C. I. T. Corporation v. Burgess, 199 N. C. 23, 153 S. E. 634.

One claiming a lien under an unregistered mortgage on an automobile seized and sold under the provisions of this section, after notice by publication required by the statute, may not successfully maintain his action for possession of the car against the purchaser at the sale had in conformity with law, though he may not have been aware of the proceedings and had no knowledge of the unlawful use of the automobile at the time of its seizure. C. I. T. Corporation v. Burgess, 199 N. C. 23, 153 S. E. 634.

Liability of Sheriff for Destruction of Vehicle.—In a case arising prior to this section it was held that where the sheriff took an automobile in custody under a corresponding statute and while he was holding it in a storage garage according to law, it was destroyed by fire through no fault of his, he was not liable on his forthcoming bond. There were two dissenting opinions filed. Motor Co. v. Sands, 186 N. C. 732, 120 S. E. 459.

§ 18-7. Use of seized property forbidden.—It shall be unlawful for any State, county, township or municipal officer to use or cause to be used for any purpose whatsoever any automobile or other article of personal property seized by said officer for the reason that the owner of said property or one in possession thereof at time of seizure has violated the terms of the State or Federal prohibition laws, or any other laws, until the respective rights of the owner, or person in possession at time of seizure, or mortgagee if one should intervene, are passed upon by the proper court, and final order is made as to proper disposition of said personal property so seized.

It shall be the duty of the officer seizing said automobile or other personal property to store same in a safe and suitable place, until final disposition is ordered.

Any officer or officers violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not to exceed fifty dollars or imprisoned not to exceed thirty days. (1927, c. 18.)

§ 18-8. Witnesses; self crimination; immunity.

—No person shall be excused, on the ground that it may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture, from attending and testifying, or producing books, papers, documents, and other evidence in obedience to a subpoena of any court in any suit or proceeding based upon or growing out of any alleged violation of this article, but no natural person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing as to which, in obedience to a subpoena and under oath, he may so testify or produce evidence; but no person shall be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying. (1923, c. 1, s. 7; C. S. 3411(g).)

Cross References.—As to general rule of evidence that defendant in criminal action is competent but not compellable to testify, see § 8-54. As to perjury, see § 14-209 et seq.

Validity.—Former statute held valid. State v. Randall, 170 N. C. 757, 87 S. E. 227.

Immunity Must Be Claimed Under Section.—The immunity from punishment of an offender against our prohibition law when testifying against others charged with the same offense, must be claimed by him under the provisions of this section which superseded C. S. sec. 3406, so as to make our statute conform to the Federal Act, whereunder no discovery made by such person shall be used against him and he shall be altogether pardoned for the offense done or participated in by him. State v. Luquire, 191 N. C. 479, 132 S. E. 162.

Voluntary Testimony of Offender.—The evidence in criminal prosecutions that may not be received from the offender, is such as is compulsory, and does not apply to one volunteering his testimony and willingly giving it. State v. Luquire, 191 N. C. 479, 132 S. E. 162.

Same—Waiver.—An offender against the criminal law relating to prohibition may waive his constitutional right not to give evidence that would tend to incriminate himself by his voluntary act in so doing. State v. Luquire, 191 N. C. 479, 132 S. E. 162.

Testimony at Former Trial.—Where a witness on a former trial for violating the prohibition law against the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor has voluntarily testified as to matters which may tend to incriminate him, claiming no exemption or immunity when called upon to testify, it is competent for witnesses to testify thereto at the second trial, who were present and heard the testimony at the former one, the testimony not coming within the terms of this section. State v. Burnett, 184 N. C. 785, 115 S. E. 57.

§ 18-9. Place of sale and delivery; place of prosecution.—In case of a sale of liquor where the delivery thereof was made by a common or other carrier, the sale and delivery shall be deemed to be made in the county wherein the delivery was made by such carrier or the consignee, his agent or employee, or in the county wherein the sale was made, or from which the shipment was made, and prosecution for such sale or delivery may be had in either county. (1923, c. 1, s. 8; C. S. 3411(h).)

§ 18-10. Uniting separate offenses in indictment, etc.; bill of particulars; trial.—In any affidavit, information, warrant, or indictment for the violation of this article, separate offenses may be united in separate counts, and the defendant may be tried on all at one trial, and the penalty for all offenses may be imposed. It shall not be necessary in any affidavit, information, warrant, or indictment to give the name of the purchaser or to include any defensive negative averments, but it shall be sufficient to state that the act complained of was then and there prohibited and unlawful; but this provision shall not be construed to preclude the trial court from directing the furnishing the defendant a bill of particulars when it deems it proper to do so. (1923, c. 1, s. 9; C. S. 3411(i).)

§ 18-11. Possession prima facie evidence of keeping for sale.—The possession of liquor by any person not legally permitted under this article to possess liquor shall be prima facie evidence that such liquor is kept for the purpose of being sold, bartered, exchanged, given away, furnished, or otherwise disposed of in violation of the provisions of this article. But it shall not be unlawful to possess liquor in one's private dwelling while the same is occupied and used by him as his dwelling only, provided such liquor is for use only for the personal consumption of the owner thereof, and his family residing in such dwelling, and of his bona fide guests when entertained by him therein. (1923, c. 1, s. 10; C. S. 3411(j).)

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of the wisdom of permitting proof of possession to raise a presumption of unlawful handling for gain, see 5 N. C. Law Rev. 302.

Liberal Construction.—This section is to be liberally construed to prevent the use of liquor as a beverage; and the possession of such liquor is made prima facie evidence of the violation of the law, but the possession thereof for the personal consumption of the owner and bona fide guests, etc., is allowed. State v. Hammond, 188 N. C. 602, 125 S. E. 402.

Section Limited to Private Dwelling Used Exclusively as a Dwelling.—The provision of this section that a person may legally possess intoxicating liquor in his dwelling for his personal consumption is limited by its terms to a private dwelling occupied and used exclusively as a dwelling, and a person may not lawfully possess intoxicating liquor in a building or structure used and operated by such person as a filling station and dwelling combined when the parts of the structure used for the respective purposes are connected. State v. Hardy, 209 N. C. 83, 182 S. E. 831.

The provision of this section permitting the possession of intoxicating liquor for personal use applies only to possession in a structure used exclusively as a dwelling, and therefore defendants' possession in the structure used as a dwelling and store house was illegal. State v. Carpenter, 215 N. C. 635, 3 S. E. (2d) 34.

Possession as Evidence of Sale.—If one had possession of liquor as disclosed by this record it was prima facie evidence that he had it for sale. If not in his private dwelling, if he had actual constructive possession, whether for sale or not, it is a violation of law. State v. Pierce, 192 N. C. 766, 770, 136 S. E. 121; State v. McAllister, 187 N. C. 400, 121 S. E. 739; State v. Knight, 188 N. C. 630, 125 S. E. 406.

But the prima facie case so established may be rebutted by showing that possession was lawful under the statutory qualification, the burden remaining with the State to show guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Hammond, 188 N. C. 602, 125 S. E. 402.

However, the mere possession unrebutted is sufficient to carry the issue to the jury. State v. Hammond, 188 N. C. 602, 607, 125 S. E. 402.

Prima Facie Evidence Applies to Possession in Private Dwelling.—The prima facie evidence arising under this section from the possession of liquor applies to possession in a private dwelling or elsewhere. State v. Dowell, 195 N. C. 523, 143 S. E. 133.

Keeping in Home.—As shown in this section one is not allowed "to manufacture, sell, barter, etc., or possess intoxicating liquors," except as heretofore explained and modified, but if received only in one's home (without violation of the acts as specified and prohibited in the statute), and is kept there only for the consumption of the owner and his family and the bona fide guests entertained by him, this constitutes no breach of the present statute, though received since the same was enacted. State v. Hammond, 188 N. C. 602, 608, 125 S. E. 402.

Such possession in the absence of a count in the indictment charging that it was for prohibited purposes, is not made unlawful by our prohibition statutes. State v. Mull, 193 N. C. 668, 137 S. E. 866.

When Possession in Private Dwelling Unlawful.—Under this section the possession of liquor in the private dwelling of defendant, for any other purpose than stated in the exception, is unlawful. State v. Dowell, 195 N. C. 523, 143 S. E. 133.

Purchase and Transportation to Home Unlawful.—While this section does not make it a criminal offense for one to have intoxicating liquor in his own dwelling for his own personal use or that of his family and friends, it is a violation of the criminal law, by the express provisions of section 18-2, for him to either purchase it elsewhere or carry it there. State v. Winston, 194 N. C. 243, 139 S. E. 240.

Burden of Proving Proper Purposes.—Where the defendant, charged with the violation of our prohibition law, seeks to defend himself under the provisions of this act, allowing the possession of intoxicating liquors in his house for his own purposes, he must plead and show that the liquor was for the purpose allowed by the act. State v. Foster, 185 N. C. 674, 116 S. E. 561. See the discussion in 5 N. C. Law Rev. 302.

Under this section the State is not required to allege or prove that the case does not fall within the exception allowing possession for personal use, etc. This being a matter of defense, must be alleged and proven by the defendant. State v. Dowell, 195 N. C. 523, 143 S. E. 133.

Same—Rebuttal by Proof of Large Quantity.—The possession of a large quantity of whiskey in the home of the defendant raised the prima facie case of her guilt, permitting the inference from the method of its being bottled, etc., that it was for the purpose of an unlawful sale, or that it had been received for unlawful purposes, defendant's motion as of non-suit thereon was properly denied. State v. Hammond, 188 N. C. 602, 125 S. E. 402.

Charge Negating Proper Purpose Unnecessary.—Where the indictment sufficiently charges the offense of the unlawful possession of whiskey under this section, a charge negating the exception making it lawful to have such possession for family purposes, etc., as provided in this section is unnecessary to a conviction. State v. Hege, 194 N. C. 526, 140 S. E. 80.

An indictment for illegal possession and transportation of intoxicating liquor need not negative the conditions under which intoxicating liquor may be possessed for the purpose of sale and may be transported, since the exceptions are matters of defense. State v. Epps, 213 N. C. 709, 197 S. E. 580.

Applied in State v. Libby, 213 N. C. 662, 197 S. E. 154.

§ 18-12. Summons on citizens having interest in property.—In all cases wherein the property of any citizen is proceeded against or wherein a judgment affecting it might be rendered, and the citizen is not the one who in person violated the provisions of the law, summons must be issued in due form and served personally, if said person is to be found within the jurisdiction of the court. (1923, c. 1, s. 11; C. S. 3411(k).)

§ 18-13. Search warrants; disposal of liquor seized.—Upon the filing of a complaint under oath by a reputable citizen or information furnished under oath by an officer charged with the execution of the law, before a justice of the peace, recorder, mayor, or other officer authorized by the law to issue warrants, that he has reason to believe that any person has in his possession, at a place or places specified, liquor for the purpose of sale, a warrant shall be issued commanding the officer to whom it is directed to search the place or places described in such complaint or information; and if such liquor be found in any such place or places, to seize and take into his custody all such liquor, and to seize and take into his custody all glasses, bottles, jugs, pumps, bars, or other equipment used in the business of selling intoxicating liquor which may be found at such place or places, and to keep the same subject to the order of the court. The complaint or information shall describe the place or places to be searched with sufficient particularity to identify the same, and shall describe the intoxicating liquor or other property alleged to be used in carrying on the business of selling intoxicating liquor as particularly as practicable, and any description, however general, that will enable the officer executing the warrant to identify the property seized shall be deemed sufficient. All liquor seized under this section shall be held and shall upon the acquittal of the person so charged be returned to the established owner, and shall within ten days from conviction or default of appearance of such person be destroyed: Provided that any tax-paid liquor so seized shall within ten days be turned over to the board of county commissioners, which shall within ninety days from the receipt thereof turn it over to hospitals for medicinal purposes, or sell it to legalized alcoholic beverage control stores within the state of North Carolina, the proceeds of such sale being placed in the school fund of the county in which such seizure was made, or destroy it. (1923, c. 1, s. 12; 1939, c. 12; 1941, c. 310; C. S. 3411(l).)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the proviso at the end of this section. The 1941 amendment revised the proviso and added the ten day limitation in the last sentence. For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 477.

For article discussing limits to search and seizure, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 229. See also, 15 N. C. Law Rev. 101.

§ 18-14. Grand jury, witnesses before; effect of evidence.—When the solicitor of any judicial district has good reason to believe that liquor has been manufactured or sold contrary to law within a county in his district, and believes that any person has knowledge of the existence and establishment of any illicit distillery, or that any person has sold liquor illegally, then it is lawful for the solicitor to apply to the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein the offense is supposed to have been committed to issue a subpoena for the person so having knowledge of said offense to appear before the next grand jury drawn for the county, there to testify upon oath what he may know touching the existence, establishment, and whereabouts of said distillery, or persons who have sold intoxicating liquor contrary to law, who shall give the names and personal description of the keepers thereof, and of any person who has sold liquor unlawfully; and such evidence, when so obtained, shall be considered and held in law as an information on oath upon which the grand jury shall make presentment, as provided by law in other cases. If any officer shall fail or refuse to use due diligence in the execution of the provisions of this section he shall be guilty of laches in office, and such failure be cause for removal from office. (1923, c. 1, s. 13; C. S. 3411(m).)

§ 18-15. Clubrooms and other places for keeping, etc., of liquor.—No corporation, club, association, or person shall directly or indirectly keep or maintain, alone or by association with others, or by any other means, or shall in any manner aid, assist, or abet others in keeping or maintaining a clubroom or other place where intoxicating liquor is received, kept, or stored for barter, sale, exchange, distribution, or division among the members of any such club or association or aggregation of persons, or to or among any other persons by any means whatever, or shall act as agents in ordering, procuring, buying, storing, or keeping intoxicating liquor for any such purpose. (1923, c. 1, s. 14; C. S. 3411(n).)

§ 18-16. Records of transportation companies; evidence.—All express companies, railroad companies, or other transportation companies doing business in this state are required hereby to keep a separate book in which shall be entered immediately upon receipt thereof the name of the person to whom liquor is shipped, the amount and kind received, and the date when received, the date when delivered, by whom delivered, and to whom delivered, after which record shall be a blank space, in which the consignee shall be required to sign his name, or, if he cannot write, shall make his mark in the presence of a witness, before such liquor is delivered to such consignee, and which book shall be open for inspection to any officer or citizen of the state, county, or municipality any time during business hours of the company, and such book shall constitute prima facie evidence of the facts therein and will be admissible in any of the courts of this state. Any express company, railroad company, or other transportation company, or any employee or agent of any express company, railroad company, or other transportation company violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1923, c. 1, s. 15; C. S. 3411(o).)

Editor's Note.—See State v. R. Co., 169 N. C. 295, 84 S. E. 283.

§ 18-17. Indictments; allegations of sale; circumstantial evidence.—In indictments for violating any provisions of this article it shall not be necessary to allege a sale to a particular person, and the violation of law may be proved by circumstantial evidence as well as by direct evidence. (1923, c. 1, s. 16; C. S. 3411(p).)

Editor's Note.—The cases which follow were decided under a similar section, C. S. § 3383, which has been superseded by this section.

Evidence — Sale to Unknown Persons.—To convict under an indictment of sale of intoxicating liquors "to some person to the jurors unknown," it is as necessary to offer evidence of an actual sale to the unknown person as if his name had been inserted in the indictment. State v. Watkins, 164 N. C. 425, 79 S. E. 619.

Same—Other Sales.—The rule of evidence that one illegal sale of intoxicating liquors should not be received as any evidence that another such sale had been made, applies where the sales are entirely separated and distinct transactions, the one having no fair or reasonable tendency to establish the other, but inapplicable when it tends to show that the defendant, accused of violating the prohibition law at a certain city number, with evidence tending to show such violation there, kept the spirituous liquor elsewhere in the city, or under his control, for the purpose of making illegal sales. State v. Boynton, 155 N. C. 456, 71 S. E. 341.

Same—Liquors on Hand.—Upon trial on indictment for the sale of intoxicating liquors at a certain city number, testimony that the accused had and kept liquors on hand in other portions of the city is a relevant circumstance tending to show that he had it on hand and was prepared and equipped to make the illegal sale charged in the bill of indictment, and to be considered by the jury with other evidence tending to show that he had sold such liquor at the place charged in the indictment. State v. Boynton, 155 N. C. 456, 71 S. E. 341.

Upon indictment for violating the prohibition law, the possession of liquors by the accused, at the time of the offense charged, is always a circumstance admissible against him, and in general the circumstances under which liquors are kept, and even that they are kept at other places or in other rooms, may be shown. Id.

Same—Photographs.—Photographs are admissible in evidence. Butler v. State, 142 Ga. 286, 82 S. E. 654; Wade v. R. R., 89 S. C. 280, 71 S. E. 859; Griffith v. Coal Co., 75 W. Va. 686, 84 S. E. 621; Spencer v. Looney, 116 Va. 767, 82 S. E. 745; Prok v. R. R., 75 W. Va. 697, 84 S. E. 568; Napier v. Little, 137 Ga. 242, 73 S. E. 3, 38 L. R. A. (N. S.) 91, (Anno. Cases, 1913 A, 1013); Shaw v. State, 83 Ga. 92, 9 S. E. 768; and in State v. O'Reilly, 126 Mo. 597, 29 S. W. 577, where it is said: "It has always been permissible to use diagrams in the trial of causes, both civil and criminal, and especially in the latter class to use diagrams, if shown to be correct, to illustrate the position of persons and places and to better enable the witnesses to properly locate them. If, then, a diagram may be used for such a purpose, we can see no good reason why a photograph may not be, by which is presented to view everything within the range of the camera at the time the photograph was taken." State v. Jones, 175 N. C. 709, 713, 95 S. E. 576.

Same—Conversation between Accused and Wife.—Where the husband is on trial for violating the prohibition law, it is competent for a third person to testify as to the conversation between the defendant and his wife, with statements by the latter tending to fix the former with guilt of the offense charged. State v. Randall, 170 N. C. 757, 87 S. E. 227.

§ 18-18. Serving liquor with meals.—It is unlawful for any person to serve with meals, or otherwise, any liquor or intoxicating biters, where any charge is made for such meal or service. (1923, c. 1, s. 17; C. S. 3411(q).)

Editor's Note.—See Felia v. Betton, 170 N. C. 112, 86 S. E. 999.

§ 18-19. Sale by druggists or pharmacists. — It is unlawful for any druggist or pharmacist to sell, or otherwise dispose of for gain, any intoxicating liquor. (1923, c. 1, s. 18; C. S. 3411(r).)

§ 18-20. Grain alcohol for use in medicine or surgery; manufacture or sale of cider.—The provisions of this article shall not apply to grain alcohol, received by duly licensed physicians, druggists, dental surgeons, college, university, and state laboratories, and manufacturers of medicine, when intended to be used in compounding, mixing, or preserving medicines or medical preparations, or for surgical purposes, when obtained as hereinbefore provided: Provided, however, that nothing contained in this article shall prohibit the importation into the state of North Carolina and the delivery and possession in the state for use in industry, manufactures, and arts of any denatured alcohol or other denatured spirits which are compounded and made in accordance with the formulae prescribed by acts of Congress of the United States and regulations made under authority thereof by the Treasury Department of the United States and the commissioner of internal revenue thereof, and which are not now subject to internal revenue tax levied by the Government of the United States: Provided further, that this article shall not apply to wines and liquors required and used by hospitals or sanatoriums bona fide established and maintained for the treatment of patients addicted to the use of liquor, morphine, opium, cocaine, or other deleterious drugs, when the same are administered to patients actually in such hospitals or sanatoriums for treatment, and when the same are administered as an essential part of the particular system or method of treatment and exclusively by or under the direction of a duly licensed and registered physician of good moral character and standing: Provided, further, that this article shall not prohibit the manufacture or sale of cider or vinegar. (1923, c. 1, s. 19; C. S. 3411(s).)

§ 18-21. Wine for sacramental purposes. — It is lawful for any ordained minister of the gospel who is in charge of a church and at the head of a congregation in this state to receive in the space of ninety consecutive days a quantity of vinous liquor not greater than five gallons, for use in sacramental purposes only, and it shall be lawful for him to receive same in one or more packages or one or more receptacles. (1923, c. 1, s. 20; 1935, c. 114; C. S. 3411(t).)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1935 the quantity which could be received was increased from three to five gallons.

§ 18-22. Sheriffs and police to search for and seize distilleries; confiscation; disposal of property. — It is the duty of the sheriff of each county in the state and of the police of each incorporated town or city in the state to search for and seize any distillery or apparatus used for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor in violation of the laws of North Carolina, and to deliver same, with any materials used for making such liquor found on the premises, to the board of county commissioners, who shall confiscate the same and shall cause the distillery to be cut up and destroyed, in their presence or in the presence of a committee of the board, and who may dispose of the material, including the copper or other material from the destroyed still or apparatus, in such manner as they may deem proper. (1923, c. 1, s. 21; C. S. 3411(u).)

§ 18-23. Destruction of liquor at distillery; persons arrested.—It is the duty of the sheriff and other officers mentioned in § 18-22 to seize and then and there destroy any and all liquor which may be found at any distillery for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor in violation of law, and to arrest and hold for trial all persons found on the premises engaged in distilling or aiding or abetting in the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor. (1923, c. 1, s. 22; C. S. 3411(v).)

§ 18-24. Laches of officers; removal from office.—If any officer mentioned in §§ 18-22, 18-23, shall fail or refuse to use diligence in the execution of the provisions of such sections, after being informed of violation thereof, he shall be guilty of laches in office, and such failure shall be cause for removal therefrom. (1923, c. 1, s. 23; C. S. 3411(w).)

Cross Reference.—As to removal of officers, see § 126-16.

§ 18-25. Rewards for seizure of still.—For every distillery seized under this article the sheriff or other police officer shall receive such sum as the board of county commissioners of the county in which the seizure was made shall, in the discretion of such board, allow, which sum shall not be less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars: Provided, that the commissioners shall not pay any amount if they are satisfied, after due investigation, that the seizure of the distillery was not bona fide made: Provided further, that when the sheriff of a county captures a distillery he shall receive the fee for his own use, regardless of whether he be on fees or salary. (1923, c. 1, s. 24; C. S. 3411(x).)

Local Modification.—Sheriff's fees for seizure of stills were prior to 1923 regulated by C. S. 3401, 3402, § 18-25, part of the Turlington Act, would seem to supersede C. S. 3401, 3402, since it sets a different fee, and 1933, c. 480 specifically repealed C. S. 3401, 3402, except in three counties. However, many local laws have been passed with reference to C. S. 3401, as well as to §§ 18-25 and 18-26. Citations to all of these laws which have been discovered are listed here, not as a statement of the present status of the law in any county, but merely as an aid in tracing down the fees in the counties named. These citations are: Alamance, Avery, Caswell, Chowan, Graham, Greene, Jackson, Northampton, Surry, Wilson, Yadin: C. S. 3401, 3402; 1933, c. 480; Anson: 1937, c. 442; Burke: 1933, c. 136; Haywood, Lincoln, Pitt, Transylvania: C. S. 3909; Ex. Sess. 1908, c. 97; Pub. Loc. 1919, c. 30; Lenoir: 1933, c. 246; Moore: 1933, c. 246; 1935, c. 253; Nash: 1931, c. 91; Surry: 1925, c. 173; Union: Pub. Loc. 1933, c. 160; Warren: 1933, c. 230.

§ 18-26. Same.—In certain counties.—The Board of Commissioners of the several counties in the State, hereinafter named, shall pay by way of reward to the sheriff or other officers in the various counties for the capture and destruction of stills used in the manufacture of spirituous liquors, the sum of twenty dollars ($20.00) and no more, upon the production of a certificate from the Clerk of the Superior Court or other court having final jurisdiction, that one or more operators of the still captured and destroyed were by the sheriff or other officer apprehended, captured and have been convicted and that no appeal has been taken from the judgment rendered, which said twenty dollars ($20.00) shall be in lieu of any and all other rewards authorized by law to be paid for the capture and destruction of stills to the sheriff or other officers in the counties hereinafter named.

This section shall apply to the following counties only: Alleghany, Ashe, Avery, Bladen, Buncombe, Caswell, Catawba, Chowan, Craven, Duplin, Forsyth, Beaufort, Hyde, Hoke, Lee, Lenoir, Lincoln, Mecklenburg, New Hanover, Onslow, Pamlico, Pender, Perquimans, Richmond, Rockingham, Sampson, Vance, Wake, Washington, Watauga, Wilkes, Wilson and Yancey. (1927, c. 42; Pub. Loc. 1933, c. 160.)

§ 18-27. Officers given power to compel evidence; effect of evidence; process; immunity to witnesses.—When any justice of the peace, magistrate, recorder, mayor of a town, or judge of the superior courts or supreme court shall have good reason to believe that any person within his jurisdiction has knowledge of the unlawful sale of liquor or the existence and establishment of any place where intoxicating liquor is sold or manufactured contrary to law, in any town or county within his jurisdiction, such person not being minded to make voluntary information thereof on oath, then it shall be lawful for such justice of the peace, magistrate, recorder, mayor, or judge to issue to the sheriff of the county or to any constable of the town or township in which such place where intoxicating liquor is sold or manufactured contrary to law is supposed to be, a subpoena, capias ad testificandum, or other summons in writing, commanding such person to appear immediately before such justice of the peace, magistrate, recorder, mayor, or judge, and give evidence on oath as to what he may know touching the existence, establishment, and whereabouts of such place where intoxicating liquor is sold or manufactured contrary to law, and the name and personal description of the keeper thereof, or person selling or manufacturing liquor. Such evidence, when obtained, shall be considered and held in law as an information under oath, and the justice, magistrate, recorder, mayor, or judge may thereupon proceed to seize and arrest such keeper or person selling, manufacturing, or having liquor contrary to law, and issue such process as is provided by law. No discovery made by the witness upon such examination shall be used against him in any penal or criminal prosecution, and he shall be altogether pardoned of the offense so done or participated in by him. (1923, c. 1, s. 25; C. S. 3411(y).)

Cross Reference.—As to testimony enforced in criminal investigations, immunity, see § 8-55.

§ 18-28. Distilling or manufacturing liquor; first offense misdemeanor.—It is unlawful for any person to distill, manufacture, or in any manner make, or for any person to aid, assist, or abet any such person in distilling, manufacturing, or in any manner making any spirituous or malt liquors or intoxicating bitters within the state of North Carolina. Any person or persons violating the provisions of this section shall, for the first conviction, be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction or confession of guilt, punished in the discretion of the court; for the second or any subsequent conviction, said person or persons shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction or confession in open court shall be imprisoned in the state prison for not less than four months and not exceeding five years, in the discretion of the court. (1923, c. 1, s. 26; C. S. 3411(z).)

Process of Manufacturing Need Not Be Complete.—It is not necessary for a conviction under the provisions of Public Laws 1917, chap. 157, similar to those of this section, making the distilling or manufacturing, etc., of spirituous or malt liquors or intoxicating bitters within the State unlawful, including within its express terms those who aid, assist, or abet therein, that the liquor should have been actually manufactured or the product finished; and where there is evidence tending to show that such manufacture had been in progress, but had been suspended by the arrest of the prisoner, and that he was aiding or assisting therein, it is sufficient to be submitted to the jury and to sustain conviction of the offense charged. State v. Horner, 174 N. C. 788, 94 S. E. 291.

When Question for Jury.—Where there is evidence of defendant's guilty knowledge in aiding in the distilling or manufacturing of intoxicating liquor prohibited by Public Laws 1917, chap. 157, similar to this section, by hauling it away, and also consistent with his innocence in merely hauling away the remnants after the illegal purpose had been accomplished or frustrated, without intention of taking part or aiding in its manufacture, the question of his guilt or innocence is one for the jury, under proper instructions. State v. Horner, 174 N. C. 788, 94 S. E. 291.

Second Degree.—Upon a charge in an indictment for manufacturing liquor, etc., the defendant may be convicted of the second degree of the offense—i. e., aiding or abetting its manufacture. State v. Horner, 174 N. C. 788, 94 S. E. 291.

Accessories Equally Guilty.—The defendant, guilty of aiding and abetting the unlawful manufacture of liquor, is equally guilty with those who actually operated the still. State v. Clark, 183 N. C. 733, 110 S. E. 641.

The appellant, convicted on his trial of aiding or abetting in the manufacture of whiskey on one count of the indictment may not complain because he was tried on another count of the same bill for the unlawful manufacture of liquor and acquitted, there being sufficient evidence to sustain a conviction on each one. State v. Smith, 183 N. C. 725, 110 S. E. 654.

Presumption Regarding Previous Conviction.—The first conviction of manufacturing or aiding and abetting in the manufacture of spirituous, etc., liquors is a misdemeanor, and the second is a felony; and where the indictment does not charge a previous conviction it will be presumed that the defendant has not heretofore been convicted of the offense charged. State v. Clark, 183 N. C. 733, 110 S. E. 641.

Irrelevant Testimony.—The rejection of evidence as to the lawful manufacture of liquor, etc., had raised on his farm that year, is of irrelevant testimony, and its exclusion not erroneous. State v. Smith, 183 N. C. 725, 110 S. E. 654.

Evidence Sufficient for Conviction.—See State v. Smith, 183 N. C. 725, 110 S. E. 564; State v. Grier, 184 N. C. 723, 114 S. E. 622; State v. McMillan, 180 N. C. 741, 105 S. E. 403.

Indictment.—The second offense of manufacturing spirituous liquor is a felony and a person may be tried on a charge of manufacturing spirituous liquor for the second offense only upon indictment, since the offense is a felony. State v. Sanderson, 213 N. C. 381, 196 S. E. 324.

Cited in State v. Clegg, 214 N. C. 675, 200 S. E. 371.

§ 18-29. Misdemeanor; punishment; effect of previous punishment by federal court.—Any person violating any of the provisions of this article, except as otherwise specified in this article, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court: Provided, that no person shall be punished who has been previously punished for the same offense by a federal court. (1923, c. 1, s. 27; C. S. 3411(aa).)

§ 18-30. Laws repealed; local laws.—All laws in conflict with this article are hereby repealed, but nothing in this article shall operate to repeal any of the local acts of the general assembly of North Carolina prohibiting the manufacture or sale or other disposition of any liquor mentioned in this article, or any laws for the enforcement of the same, but all such acts shall continue in full force and effect and in concurrence herewith, and indictment or prosecution may be had either under this article or under any local act relating to the same subject. (1923, c. 1, s. 28; C. S. 3411(bb).)

Editor's Note.—See State v. Johnson, 170 N. C. 685, 86 S. E. 788.

Art. 2. Miscellaneous Regulations.

§ 18-31. Unlawful sale through agents.—If any person unlawfully and illegally procures and delivers any spirituous or malt liquors to another, he shall be deemed and held in law to be the agent of the person selling said spirituous and malt liquors, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (Rev., ss. 3526, 3534; 1905, c. 498, ss. 6, 7, 8; C. S. 3371.)

What Constitutes One an Agent.—Revisal, section 3534, now this section, making it unlawful for any one to procure for and deliver spirituous liquors to another, and making such person, in law, the agent of the seller, and punishable, though its meaning is not plain, makes the one procuring liquor by purchase from an illicit dealer, and delivering it to another, the agent of the seller, and subjects him to the punishment prescribed therein, as a principal in the misdemeanor. State v. Burchfield, 149 N. C. 537, 63 S. E. 89.

If one buys whiskey for another from an illicit dealer in prohibited territory, without being interested in the sale otherwise than as agent of the purchaser, to whom he delivers it, and pays the money to the seller for the buyer, it is a wrongful procuring of the whiskey for another within the meaning of Revisal, section 3534, now this section, and his testimony, that he was acting solely as agent for the buyer, cannot change the character of the act from that intended by the statute. State v. Burchfield, 149 N. C. 537, 63 S. E. 89.

§ 18-32. Keeping liquor for sale; evidence.—It is unlawful for any person, firm, association or corporation, by whatever name called, to have or keep in possession, for the purpose of sale, except as otherwise authorized by law, any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, and proof of any one of the following facts shall constitute prima facie evidence of the violation of this section:

1. The possession of a license from the government of the United States to sell or manufacture intoxicating liquors; or

2. The possession of more than one gallon of spirituous liquors at any one time, whether in one or more places; or

3. The possession of more than three gallons of vinous liquors at any one time, whether in one or more places; or

4. The possession of more than five gallons of malt liquors at any one time, whether in one or more places; or

5. The delivery to such person, firm, association or corporation of more than five gallons of spirituous or vinous liquors, or more than twenty gallons of malt liquors within any four successive weeks, whether in one or more places; or

6. The possession of intoxicating liquors as samples to obtain orders thereon: Provided, that this section shall not prohibit any person from keeping in his possession wines and ciders in any quantity where such wines and ciders have been manufactured from grapes or fruit grown on the premises of the person in whose possession such wines and ciders may be. (1913, c. 44, s. 2; 1915, c. 97, s. 8; C. S. 3379.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 315.

Constitutionality.—The section is constitutional and valid. State v. Randall, 170 N. C. 757, 87 S. E. 227; State v. Langley, 209 N. C. 178, 183 S. E. 526.

And is not in contravention of the Federal Constitution. State v. Brown, 170 N. C. 714, 86 S. E. 1042.

For cases holding that this section was unaffected by P. L. 1935, cc. 418, 493, see State v. Langley, 209 N. C. 178, 183 S. E. 526; State v. Tate, 210 N. C. 168, 185 S. E. 665; State v. Jones, 209 N. C. 49, 182 S. E. 699.

"Prima Facie" Defined.—The words "prima facie evidence" are defined in Webster's International Dictionary as meaning "evidence sufficient, in law, to raise a presumption of fact or establish the fact in question, unless rebutted." It must presume that the Legislature had such meaning in mind when such words were used in the statute. State v. Russell, 164 N. C. 482, 490, 80 S. E. 66.

Effect of the Presumption.—This (prima facie evidence) neither conclusively determines the guilt or innocence of the party who is accused nor withdraws from the jury the right and duty of passing upon and deciding the issue to be tried. The burden of proof remains continually upon the State to establish the accusation which it makes, as prima facie evidence does not change or shift the burden. State v. Russell, 164 N. C. 482, 487, 80 S. E. 66.

Same—Sufficient to Sustain Verdict.—While the prima facie case, unexplained, is sufficient to sustain a verdict of guilty, yet the defendant is not required to show, by the greater weight of evidence, that the whiskey was in his possession for lawful purposes, for such, in effect, would require him to establish his own innocence, and relieve the State of the burden of the issue, which is placed upon it. State v. Wilkerson, 164 N. C. 431, 79 S. E. 888.

Same—Power of Legislature to Change Rule of Evidence.—See full discussion in State v. Wilkerson, 164 N. C. 431, 440, 79 S. E. 888.

Burden of Proof.—The possession of the specified quantity of spirituous liquors sufficient to make out prima facie evidence of an unlawful purpose is only sufficient to sustain a verdict of guilty, and does not shift the burden upon the defendant to show his innocence, and an instruction to that effect is reversible error. State v. Helms, 181 N. C. 566, 107 S. E. 228.

Where the possession of the specified quantities of intoxicating liquors under a statutory provision has made out prima facie evidence of guilt, and the defendant has not introduced evidence, an instruction to the jury placing the burden on the defendant to establish his innocence is reversible error, being equivalent to directing a verdict, which is not permissible in a criminal case. Id.

U. S. Government License as Defense.—For cases under the former law, see Pfeifer v. Drug Co., 171 N. C. 214, 88 S. E. 343; State v. Dowdy, 145 N. C. 432, 58 S. E. 1002; State v. Boynton, 155 N. C. 456, 71 S. E. 341.

Possession Means Actual or Constructive.—This section making the "possession of certain specified quantities of spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors" prima facie evidence of its violation, intends that the "possession" shall be construed as either actual or constructive; so that the possession of such quantities by the agent will be deemed the possession of the principal for the purpose of the act. State v. Lee, 164 N. C. 533, 80 S. E. 405.

The possession of the agent, for the one accused of violating our prohibition law, of more than one gallon of intoxicating liquor is sufficient to make out a prima facie case of guilt, under the provisions of this section. State v. Blauntia, 170 N. C. 749, 87 S. E. 101.

Possession for Use of Owner.—The mere possession of spirituous liquor in the home for the use of the owner, his family and their guests on the premises in the absence of a count in the indictment charging that it was for prohibited purposes, is not made unlawful by our prohibition statutes. State v. Mull, 193 N. C. 668, 137 S. E. 866.

Evidence.—Where there is evidence that the defendant, indicted under this section had in his possession sufficient spirituous liquors to raise the prima facie presumption that it was for the purpose of sale, it is competent to show this intent, and in furtherance of the presumption, that soon thereafter, about two months, he was found working on a copper still on his premises, and had copper enough to make two of them; and that, upon his premises being searched, he had falsely denied the possession and had attempted to shoot the officer making the search. State v. Simon, 178 N. C. 679, 100 S. E. 239.

Evidence that over a gallon of whiskey in pint bottles with unbroken seals was found on defendant's premises, that defendant admitted owning the whiskey, and that empty whiskey bottles were found around premises, is held sufficient to be submitted to the jury on a charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale. State v. Libby, 213 N. C. 662, 197 S. E. 154.

Possession of More than Gallon Is Prima Facie Evidence of Possession for Purpose of Sale.—The possession of more than one gallon of intoxicating liquor is prima facie evidence of possession for the purpose of sale under this section, and is sufficient to take the case to the jury on the issue. State v. Tate, 210 N. C. 168, 185 S. E. 665.

But evidence establishing defendant's possession of more than a gallon of intoxicating liquor, without other incriminating evidence, is insufficient to support a directed verdict of guilty of possession of intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale under this section. State v. Ellis, 210 N. C. 166, 185 S. E. 663.

Sufficient Evidence to Submit Question of Possession to Jury.—Evidence that officers found a funnel, a number of containers, and glasses smelling of whiskey, in different places on defendant's premises, is held sufficient to be submitted to the jury in a prosecution on a charge of having possession of intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale, although the amount of whiskey discovered was insufficient to invoke the presumption under the subdivision (2) of this section. State v. Rhodes, 210 N. C. 473, 187 S. E. 553.

The defendant was convicted of having liquor in his possession for the purpose of sale in violation of this section. He appealed on the ground that the statute was repealed by the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. The court sustained the conviction. State v. Campbell, 182 N. C. 911, 110 S. E. 86.

Allegation That Whiskey Did Not Contain A. B. C. Stamp Regarded as Surplusage.—In an indictment sufficiently charging possession of liquor for the purpose of sale under this section an additional allegation that the whiskey did not bear the stamp of the A. B. C. Board of the county is an allegation of a nonessential fact, and will be regarded as surplusage. State v. Atkinson, 210 N. C. 661, 188 S. E. 73.

Effect of Turlington Act.—The Turlington Act repeals all conflicting laws and makes the possession of any intoxicating liquors for the purpose of sale unlawful, unless such liquors are for the private use and in the residence of the possessor; and the prior statute making the possession of more than one gallon thereof prima facie evidence of the purpose of unlawful sale is not in conflict therewith or repealed thereby. State v. Foster, 185 N. C. 674, 116 S. E. 561. Applied in State v. Potter, 185 N. C. 742, 117 S. E. 504.

Applied in State v. Epps, 213 N. C. 709, 197 S. E. 580. Cited in State v. Scoggins, 199 N. C. 821, 155 S. E. 927; State v. Locky, 214 N. C. 525, 199 S. E. 715.

§ 18-33. Unlawful to handle draft connected with receipt for liquor.—It is unlawful for any bank incorporated under the laws of this state, or national bank, or any individual, firm or association, to present, collect or in any wise handle any draft, bill of exchange or order to pay money, to which draft, bill of exchange or order to pay money is attached a bill of lading, or order, or receipt for intoxicating liquors, or which draft is enclosed with, connected with, or in any way related to, directly or indirectly, any bill of lading, order, or receipt for intoxicating liquors. Provided, this section shall not apply to such instruments issued in connection with the sale or purchase of intoxicating liquors when such sale or purchase is not prohibited by the laws of this state. (1913, c. 44, s. 4; C. S. 3381.)

Cross Reference.—As to bills of lading generally, see § 21-1 et seq.

Editor's Note.—See State v. Jones, 175 N. C. 709, 712, 95 S. E. 576.

§ 18-35. Federal license as evidence.—The possession of a license or the issuance to any person of a license to manufacture, rectify or sell, at wholesale or retail, spirituous liquors by the United States government or any officer thereof in any county, city or town where the manufacture, sale or rectification of spirituous liquors is forbidden by the laws of this state shall be prima facie evidence that the person having such license, or to whom the same was issued, is guilty of doing the act permitted by such license in violation of the laws of this state. On the trial of any person charged with the violation of any such laws, it shall be competent to prove that such a license is in the possession of or has been issued to such person, by the testimony of any witness who has personally examined the records of the government office where the official record of such licenses is kept. (Rev., s. 2060; 1905, c. 339, s. 5; 1907, c. 931; C. S. 3408.)

Cross Reference.—As to federal license as prima facie evidence of keeping liquor for sale, see § 18-32.

Art. 3. Alcoholic Beverage Control Act of 1937.

§ 18-36. Purposes of article.—The purpose and intent of this article is to establish a system of control of the sale of certain alcoholic beverages in North Carolina, and to provide the administrative features of the same, in such a manner as to insure, as far as possible, the proper administration of the sale of certain alcoholic beverages under a uniform system throughout the state. (1937, c. 49, s. 1.)

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Acts do not repeal the provisions of the Turlington Act in regard to the possession and transportation of intoxicating liquors except in so far as the control acts are inconsistent with the Turlington Act. State v. Carpenter, 215 N. C. 635, 3 S. E. (2d) 34.

Applied in State v. Davis, 214 N. C. 787, 199 S. E. 927.
Cited in State v. Epps, 213 N. C. 709, 197 S. E. 580; Bailey v. Bryson, 214 N. C. 212, 198 S. E. 622.

§ 18-37. State board of alcoholic control created; membership; compensation.—A state board of alcoholic control is hereby created, to consist of a chairman and two associate members. The members of said board shall be men well known for their character and ability and business acumen and success. The chairman of said board shall devote his whole time to his official duties and shall receive a salary of six thousand ($6,000.00) dollars per annum, payable monthly, together with necessary traveling expenses, and the two associate members of said board shall receive for the time actually engaged in their official duties, seven dollars ($7.00) per day and necessary traveling expenses. (1937, c. 49, s. 2, c. 411; 1939, c. 185, s. 5; 1941, c. 107, s. 5.)

§ 18-38. Members of board appointed by governor; terms of office.—The members of said state board shall be appointed by the governor, and the first appointees shall serve as follows:

The chairman shall serve for a period of three years from the date of his appointment and one associate member shall serve for a period of two years from the date of his appointment and the other associate member shall serve for a period of one year from the date of his appointment, and the subsequent appointments of all of the members of the said board shall be for a term of three years from the date of each appointment. (1937, c. 49, s. 3.)

§ 18-39. Powers and authority of board.—Said state board of alcoholic control shall have power and authority as follows, to wit:

(a) To see that all the laws relating to the sale and control of alcoholic beverages are observed and performed.

(b) To audit and examine the accounts, records, books and papers relating to the operation of county stores herein provided for, or to have the same audited.

(c) To approve or disapprove the prices at which the several county stores may sell alcoholic beverages and it shall be the duty of said board to require the store or stores in the several counties coming under the provisions of this article to fix and maintain uniform prices and to require sales to be made at such prices as shall promote temperate use of such beverages and as may facilitate policing.

(d) To remove any member, or members, of county boards whenever in the opinion of the state board, such member, or members, of the county board, or boards, may be unfit to serve thereon.

(e) To test any and all alcoholic beverages which may be sold, or proposed to be sold to the county stores, and to install and operate such apparatus, laboratories, or other means or instrumentalities, and employ to operate the same such experts, technicians, employees and laborers, as may be necessary to operate the same, in accordance with the opinion of the said board. In lieu of establishing and operating laboratories as above directed, the board may, with the approval of the governor and the commissioner of agriculture, arrange with the state chemist to furnish such information and advice, and to perform such analyses and other laboratory services as the board may consider necessary, or may, if they deem advisable, cause such tests to be made otherwise.

(f) To supervise purchasing by the county boards when said state board is of the opinion that it is advisable for it to exercise such power in order to carry into effect the purpose and intent of this article, with full power to disapprove any such purchase and at all times shall have the right to inspect all invoices, papers, books and records in the county stores or boards relating to purchases.

(g) To exercise the power to approve or disapprove in its discretion all regulations adopted by the several county stores for the operation of said stores and the enforcement of alcoholic beverage control laws which may be in violation of the terms or spirit of this article.

(h) To require that a sufficient amount shall be so allocated as to insure adequate enforcement and the amount shall, in no instance, be less than five per cent, nor more than ten per cent of the net profits arising from the sale of alcoholic beverages.

(i) To remove in case of violation of the terms or spirit of this article, officers employed, elected or appointed in the several counties where county stores may be operated.

(j) To approve or disapprove, in its discretion, the opening of county stores, except each county that may be entitled to operate stores for the sale of alcoholic beverages shall be entitled to operate at least one store for such purpose, at the county seat therein, or at such other place as may be selected by the said county board, provided that in the location of control stores in any county in which a majority of the votes have been cast for liquor control stores due consideration shall be given to communities or towns in which a majority of the votes were cast against control, but nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to abridge any of the provisions elsewhere contained relative to the opening, closing or locating such stores. As to all additional stores in each of said counties the same shall not be opened until and unless the opening of the same and the place of location thereof shall first be approved by the said state board, which at any time may withdraw its approval of the operation of any additional county store when the said store is not operated efficiently and in accordance with the alcoholic beverage control laws and all valid regulations prescribed therefor, or whenever, in the opinion of the said state board, the operation of any county store shall be inimical to the morals or welfare of the community in which it is operated or for such other cause, or causes, as may appear to said state board sufficient to warrant the closing of any county store.

(k) To require the use of a uniform accounting system in the operation of all county stores hereunder and to provide in said system for the keeping therein and the record of all such information as may, in the opinion of the said state board, be necessary or useful in its auditing of the affairs of the said county stores, as well as in the study of such problems and subjects as may be studied by said state board in the performance of its duties.

(l) To grant, to refuse to grant, or to revoke, permits for any person, firm or corporation to do business in North Carolina in selling alcoholic beverages to or for the use of any county store and to provide and to require that such information be furnished by such person, firm or corporation as a condition precedent to the granting of such permit, or permits, and to require the furnishing of such data and information as it may desire during the life of such permit, or permits, and for the purpose of determining whether such permit, or permits, shall be continued, revoked or re-granted after expiration dates. No permit, however, shall be granted by said state board, to any person, firm or corporation when the said state board has reason sufficient unto itself to believe that such person, firm or corporation has furnished to it any false or inaccurate information or is not fully, frankly and honestly cooperating with the said state board and the several county boards in the observance and performance of all alcoholic beverage laws which may now or hereafter be in force in this state, or whenever the said board shall be of opinion that such permit ought not to be granted or continued for any cause.

(m) The said state board shall have all other powers which may be reasonably implied from the granting of express powers herein named, together with such other powers as may be incidental to, or convenient for, the carrying out and performance of the powers and duties herein given to said board.

(n) To permit the establishment of warehouses for the storage of alcoholic beverages within the state, the storage of alcoholic beverages in warehouses already established, and to prescribe rules and regulations for the storage of such beverages and the withdrawal of the same therefrom. Such warehousing or bailment of alcoholic beverages as may be made hereunder shall be for the convenience of delivery to alcoholic boards of control authorized to purchase the same and shall be under the strict supervision and subject to all of the rules and regulations of the state board of control relating thereto. (1937, c. 49, s. 4, cc. 237, 411.)

Editor's Note.—This section would seem to authorize the making of necessary rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of the act. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 323.

Under this section the state board is given power to grant, deny or revoke permits for the sale of alcoholic beverages to county liquor stores. This seems to be a very flexible provision to secure an honest co-operation by those who sell alcoholic beverages with the state board and the several county boards. There are no provisions for notice or hearing or appeal and it is likely that no such provisions are needed in view of the fact that state agencies are engaged in the purchase of goods and may do so on their own terms. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 323.

§ 18-40. Removal of member by governor; vacancy appointments.—The governor shall at all times have full power and authority to remove any and all members of the said state board, upon notice to such member or members, in his discretion, for any cause that appears to him to be sufficient, and to reappoint his successor or successors to the removed members, observing, however, the terms of office of each of them, as herein set forth, and whenever a vacancy shall occur for any cause then the appointment to fill such vacancy shall be for the unexpired portion of the term of the predecessor of each appointee. (1937, c. 49, s. 5.)

§ 18-41. County boards of alcoholic control.—In each county which may be permitted to engage in the sale of alcoholic beverages, there is hereby created a county board of alcoholic control, to consist of a chairman and two other members. The members of said board shall be well known for their character, ability and business acumen. The members of said board shall be selected in each respective county in a joint meeting of the board of county commissioners, the county board of health and the county board of education, and each member present shall have only one vote, notwithstanding the fact that there may be instances in which some members are members of another board.

The terms of office of the members of said county boards shall be as follows: The chairman, who shall be so designated by the appointing boards, shall serve for his first term a period of three years and one member shall serve for his first term a period of two years and the other member shall serve for a period of one year, all terms beginning with the date of their appointment and after the said term shall have expired their successors in office shall serve for a period of three years and shall be appointed in the same manner as herein provided in this section.

Any member of any of the county boards herein above referred to in this section may be removed at any time by such composite board consisting of the board of county commissioners, the board of education and the board of health, whenever such composite board may find by a majority vote of its entire membership such member or members unfit to serve thereon, each member having only one vote as above provided for the selection of such members of county boards. In the event any member of the county board shall be removed hereunder, his successor shall be selected to serve out the time for which such member was originally selected.

Upon the death or resignation of the chairman or any other member of the county board of alcoholic control, whether selected under the provisions of this article or under the provisions of chapter four hundred and eighteen or chapter four hundred and ninety-three of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five, before the expiration of the term of office for which said chairman or member has been appointed, elected or selected, his successor to fill out such unexpired term shall be selected at a joint meeting of the board of county commissioners, the county board of health and the county board of education, which joint meeting shall be held within ten (10) days after such resignation or death, which meeting shall be called by the chairman or some other member of the county board of alcoholic control, by giving notice to each member of the time and place of holding such meeting. (1937, c. 49, s. 6, cc. 411, 431.)

Local Modification.—Bertie: 1937, c. 310; Dare: 1939, c. 168; Halifax: 1937, c. 302; Pasquotank: 1939, c. 131; Halifax: 1943, c. 433.

§ 18-42. Compensation for members of county boards.—The salaries of the members of the said county board shall be fixed by the joint meeting of the several boards that appoint them and shall be fixed with the view to securing the very best members available, with due regard to the fact that such salaries shall be adequate compensation, but shall not be large enough to make said positions unduly attractive or the objects of political aspirations. (1937, c. 49, s. 7.)

§ 18-43. Persons disqualified for membership on boards.—No person shall be appointed a member of either the state board or of any county board or employed thereby who shall be a stockholder in any brewery or the owner of any interest therein in any manner whatsoever, or interested therein directly or indirectly, or who is likewise interested in any distillery or other enterprise that produces, mixes, bottles or sells alcoholic beverages, or who is related to any person likewise interested or associated in business with any person likewise interested and neither of said boards shall employ any person who is interested in, directly or indirectly, or related to, any person interested in any firm, person or corporation permitted to sell alcoholic beverages in this state. (1937, c. 49, s. 8, c. 411.)

§ 18-44. Bonds required of members of county boards.—The several members of the county board shall give bond for the faithful performance of their duties, in the penal sum of five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars, and the said bond shall be payable to the state of North Carolina and to the county in which said board performs its duties, with some corporate surety, which surety shall be satisfactory to, and approved by, the county attorney of said county, and the chairman of the state board, and shall be deposited with the chairman of the state board. The state board for and on behalf of the state of North Carolina, and the county named in said bond, shall each be secured therein to the full amount of the penalty thereof and the recovery or payment of any sums due thereunder to either shall not diminish or affect the right of the other obligee in said bond to recover the full amount of the said penalties thereof, and the giving and the approval of such bond shall be a part of the qualification of said members and no member shall be entitled to exercise any of the functions or powers incident to his appointment until and unless the said bond shall have been given and approved as herein provided. The three joint boards referred to in § 18-41 shall be authorized to relieve any member of the county boards who does not handle any money or funds from furnishing such bond, and shall be further authorized to require bond in excess of five thousand dollars ($5,000) of any member of the board handling money or funds in the event said joint boards deem it advisable to increase such bond. (1937, ch. 49, s. 9; 1939, c. 202.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the last sentence.

§ 18-45. Powers and duties of county boards.—The said county boards shall each have the following powers and duties:

(a) Control and jurisdiction over the importation, sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages within its respective county.

(b) Power to buy and to have in its possession and to sell alcoholic beverages within its county.

(c) Power and authority to adopt rules and regulations governing the operation of stores within its county and relating to the carrying out of the provisions and purposes of this article.

(d) To prescribe and regulate and direct the duties and services of all employees of said county board.

(e) To fix the hours for the opening and closing of stores operated by it. No store, however, shall be permitted to remain open between the hours of nine o'clock p. m. and nine o'clock a. m.

(f) To require any county stores to close on such days as it may designate, but all stores in any county operating under the provisions of this article shall remain closed on Sundays, election days, New Year's Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day, Armistice Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas Day.

(g) To import, transport, receive, purchase, sell and deliver and have in its possession for sale for present and future delivery alcoholic beverages.

(h) To purchase or lease property, furnish and equip buildings, rooms and accommodations as and when required for the storage and sale of alcoholic beverages and for distribution to all county stores within said county.

(i) To borrow money, guarantee the payment thereof and the interest thereon, in such manner as may be required or permitted by law, and to issue, sign, endorse and accept checks, promissory notes, bills of exchange and other negotiable instruments and to do all such other and necessary things as may be required or may be convenient in the conduct of liquor stores in its county.

(j) To investigate and aid in the prosecution of violations of this article and other liquor laws, by whatever name called, and to seize alcoholic beverages in said county sold, kept, imported or transported illegally and to apply for confiscation thereof and to cooperate in the prosecution of offenders in any court in said county.

(k) To regulate and to prescribe rules and regulations that may be necessary or feasible for the obtaining of purity in all alcoholic beverages, including true statements of contents and the proper labeling thereof.

(l) To fix and maintain the prices of all alcoholic beverages sold by liquor stores in said county and to prescribe to whom the same may be sold.

The provisions of this article shall not apply to ethyl alcohol intended for use and/or used for the following purposes:

For scientific, chemical, mechanical, industrial, medicinal and culinary purposes.

For use by those authorized to procure the same tax free, as provided by the acts of congress and regulations promulgated thereunder.

(m) To exercise the power to buy, purchase and sell and to fix the prices at which all alcoholic beverages may be purchased from it, but nothing herein contained shall give said board the power to purchase or sell or deal in alcoholic beverages which contain less than five per centum of alcohol by weight.

All the powers and duties herein conferred upon county boards, or required of them, shall be subject to the powers herein conferred upon the state board and whenever or wherever herein the state board has been given power to approve or disapprove anything in respect to county stores or county boards, then no power on the part of the county boards and no act of any county board shall be exercisable or valid until and unless the same has been approved by the state board. (1937, c. 49, s. 10, cc. 411, 431; 1939, c. 98.)

ployees; list of persons convicted of drunkenness, etc.; unlawful to buy for person prohibited.—No alcoholic beverage shall be sold knowingly by any county store or the manager thereof or any employee therein at any time other than within the opening and closing hours for said store, as fixed in the manner herein provided, and otherwise as prescribed by the said county board. The manager and employees of and in any county store may, in their discretion, refuse to sell alcoholic beverage to any individual applicant, and such power and the duty to exercise the same shall vest in and apply to such manager and employees, regardless of the failure of the county boards to make any regulations providing for the same, and in their discretion may refuse to sell more than four quarts at any one time in any one day to any person.

The various clerks of the superior court and of any inferior courts in counties coming under the provisions of this article shall furnish to the chairman of the control board of their county a list of all persons convicted of public drunkenness or convicted of driving an automobile while intoxicated; and the state motor vehicle department shall furnish to the chairmen of all the control boards in this state a list of all persons whose driving licenses have been revoked for driving an automobile while intoxicated, or for the illegal use of whiskey.

§ 18-48. Possession illegal if taxes not paid; punishment and forfeiture for violations; possession in container without proper stamp, prima facie evidence.—It shall be unlawful for any firm, person or corporation to have in his or its pos-

(1937, c. 49, s. 13.)

§ 18-49. Transportation, not in excess of one gallon, authorized; transportation in course of delivery to stores.—It shall not be unlawful for any person to transport a quantity of alcoholic beverages not in excess of one gallon from a county in North Carolina coming under the provisions of this article to or through another county in North Carolina not coming under the provisions of this article: Provided, said alcoholic beverages are not being transported for the purposes of sale, and provided further that the cap or seal on the container or containers of said alcoholic beverages has not been opened or broken. (1937, c. 49, s. 14.)

(1937, c. 49, s. 15.)

In a prosecution for possession of intoxicating liquor in violation of this section, the fact of possession does not constitute prima facie evidence that the possession was for the purpose of sale, since the statute under which the warrant is drawn does not provide for such prima facie rule. State v. Locke, 214 N. C. 525, 199 S. E. 715.

§ 18-57. Net profits to be paid into general fund of the various counties.—After deducting the amount required to be expended for enforcement as herein provided and retaining sufficient and proper working capital, the amount to be determined by the board, and except as hereinbefore provided in chapters four hundred ninety-three and four hundred eighteen of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, the entire net profits derived from any stores shall be paid quarterly to the general fund of each respective county wherein county stores are operated. § 18-61. County elections as to liquor control stores; application of Turlington Act; time of elections.—No county liquor store shall be established, maintained or operated in this state, in any county thereof, until and unless there shall have been held in such county an election, under the same rules and regulations which apply to elections for members of the general assembly, and at said election there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such county the question of setting up and operating in such county a liquor store, or stores, as herein provided, and those favoring the setting up and operation of liquor stores in such county shall mark in the voting square to the left of the words, "for county liquor control stores" printed on the ballot, and those opposed to setting up and operating liquor stores in such county shall mark in the voting square to the left of the words, "against county liquor control stores," printed on the same ballot, and if a majority of the votes cast in such election shall be for county liquor stores, then a liquor store, or liquor stores, may be set up and operated in such county as herein provided, and if a majority of the votes cast at said election shall be against county liquor stores, then no liquor stores shall be set up or operated in said county under the provisions of this article.

Such election shall be called in such county by the board of elections of such county only upon the written request of the board of county commissioners therein, or upon a petition to said board of elections signed by at least fifteen per centum of the registered voters in said county that voted in the last election for governor. During this period of time, the county control board shall dispose of all alcoholic beverages on hand, all fixtures and all other property in the hands and under the control of the county control board and convert the same into money and shall, after making a true and faithful accounting, turn all money in its hands over to the general fund of the county. Thereafter, chapter one of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred twenty-three [§ 18-1 et seq.], being commonly known as the Turlington Act, shall be in full force and effect in such county, until and unless another election is held under the provisions of this article, in which a majority of the votes shall be cast "for county liquor control stores," except as modified by this article or any acts amendatory hereof.

No election under this section shall be held on the day of any biennial election for county officers, or within sixty days of such an election, and the date of such elections under this section shall be fixed by the board of elections of the county wherein the same is held.

No other election shall be called and held in any of the counties in the state under the provisions of this article within three years from the holding of the last election under this article. In any county in which an election was held either under the provisions of chapter four hundred ninety-three or chapter four hundred eighteen of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, an election may be called under the provisions of this article, provided no such election shall be called within three years of the holding of the last election. (1937, c. 49, s. 25, c. 431.)

No county shall levy a tax on any business under the provisions of this section, nor shall any city or town, in which any person, firm, corporation or association taxed hereunder has its principal place of business levy and collect more than one-fourth of the state tax levied under this section; nor shall any tax be levied or collected by any county, city or town on account of delivery of the products, beverages or articles enumerated in § 18-64. (1939, c. 158, s. 506; 1941, c. 339, s. 4.)

(2) For "off premises" license, ten dollars ($10.00).

The rate of license tax levied in this section shall be for the first license issued to one person and for each additional license issued to one person an additional tax of ten per cent (10%) of the base tax, such increase to apply progressively for each additional license issued to one person. Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment reduced the license tax stated in lines six and seven from ten to five dollars.

§ 18-75. Who may sell at retail.—Every person making application for license to sell at retail beverages enumerated in § 18-64, if the place where such sale is to be made is within a municipality, shall make application first to the governing board of such municipality, and the application shall contain:

(1) Name and residence of the applicant and the length of his residence within the state of North Carolina.

(2) The particular place for which the license is desired, designating the same by a street and number, if practicable; if not, by such other apt description as definitely locates it.

(3) The name of the owner of the premises upon which the business licensed is to be carried on.

(4) That the applicant intends to carry on the business authorized by the license for himself or under his immediate supervision and direction.

(5) A statement that the applicant is a citizen and resident of North Carolina and not less than twenty-one years of age; that he has never been convicted of a felony or other crime involving moral turpitude; and that he has not, within the last two years prior to the filing of the application, been adjudged guilty of violating the prohibition laws, either state or federal. The application must be verified by the affidavit of the petitioner made before a notary public or other person duly authorized by law to administer oaths. If it appears from the statement of the applicant or otherwise that he has at any time been convicted of a felony or other crime involving moral turpitude, or that he has, within the two years prior to the filing of the application, been adjudged guilty of violating the prohibition laws, either state or federal, or that he has within two years prior to the filing of the application completed a sentence for violation of the prohibition laws, such license shall not be granted. If it appears that any false statement is knowingly made in any part of the application and license is received thereon, the license shall be revoked and the applicant subjected to the penalty provided by law for misdemeanors. Before issuing a license, the governing body of the municipality shall be satisfied that the statements required by subsections (1), (2), (3), (4), and (5) of this section are true.

Neither the state nor any county or city shall issue a license under this article to any person, or firm, or corporation who has not been a bona fide resident of North Carolina for one year. No resident of the state shall obtain a license under this article and employ or receive aid from a non-resident for the purpose of defeating this requirement. Any person violating this paragraph shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be imprisoned not more than thirty days or fined not more than two hundred dollars ($200.00). (1939, c. 158, s. 511.)

License to sell at retail shall be issued by the board of commissioners of the county, and application for such license shall be made in the same manner and contain the same information set out in § 18-75 with respect to municipal license. If the application is for license to sell within a municipality, the application must also show that license has been granted the applicant by the governing board of such municipality. The granting of a license by the governing board of a municipality shall determine the right of an applicant to receive a county license upon compliance with the conditions of this article.

If the application is for license to sell outside of a municipality within the county, the application shall also show the distance to the nearest church or public or private school from the place at which the applicant purposes to sell at retail. No license shall be granted to sell within three hundred feet of any public or private school buildings or church building outside of incorporated cities and towns: Provided, the restriction set forth in this sentence shall not apply to unincorporated towns and villages having police protection.

The clerk of the board of commissioners of each county shall make prompt report to the commissioner of revenue of each license granted by the board of commissioners of such county. The county license fee shall be fixed at (1) twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for "on premises" license and (2) five dollars ($5.00) for "off premises" license, for the sale of beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (a), and twenty-five dollars ($25.00), for the sale of beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (b) and the same shall be placed in the county treasury, for the use of the county. (1939, c. 158, s. 512; 1941, c. 339, s. 4; 1943, c. 400, s. 6.)

Local Modification.—Anson: 1941, c. 331; Currituck (Poplar Branch Township): 1937, c. 390.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out the reference to former subsection (c) of § 18-64 appearing in the third paragraph.

The 1943 amendment struck out the words and figures "twenty-five dollars ($25.00)" in lines five and six of the third paragraph and inserted in lieu thereof "(1) twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for 'on premises' license and (2) five dollars ($5.00) for 'off premises' license."

§ 18-77. Issuance of license mandatory; sales during religious services.—It shall be mandatory that the governing body of a municipality or county issue license to any person applying for the same when such person shall have complied with requirements of this article: Provided, no person shall dispense beverages herein authorized to be sold, within fifty feet of a church building in an incorporated city or town, or in a city or town having police protection whether incorporated or not, while religious services are being held in such church, or within three hundred feet of a church building outside the incorporate limits of a city or town while church services are in progress: And provided further that this section shall not apply in any territory where the sale of wine and/or beer prohibited by special legislative act. And provided further, that such governing bodies in the counties of Watauga, Ashe, Jackson, Haywood, Duplin, Alexander, Robeson, McDowell, Yadkin, Wilkes, Sampson, Greene, Montgomery, Transylvania, Randolph, Chatham, Alamance, Clay, Madison, Pender, Avery, Nash, Granville and the Town of Aulander, or any municipality therein shall be authorized in their discretion to decline to issue the "on premises" licenses provided for in subsection one of § 18-73. The governing bodies in the counties of Watauga, Ashe, Jackson, Haywood, Duplin, Alexander, Robeson, McDowell, Yadkin, Wilkes, Sampson, Greene, Montgomery, Transylvania, Randolph, Chatham, Alamance, Clay, Madison, Pender, Avery, Nash, Granville and the town of Aulander or municipalities therein, shall be authorized to prohibit the sale of beer and/or wine between the hours of 12:01 A. M. on Sundays and midnight Sunday night. (1939, c. 158, s. 513; 1939, c. 405.)

§ 18-78. Revocation or suspension of license; rule making power of commissioner of revenue.—

If any licensee violates any of the provisions of this article or any rules and regulations under authority of this article or fails to superintend in person or through a manager, the business for which the license was issued, or allows the premises with respect to which the license was issued to be used for any unlawful, disorderly, or immoral purposes, or knowingly employs in the sale or distribution of beverages any person who has been convicted of a felony involving moral turpitude or adjudged guilty of violating the prohibition laws within two years or otherwise fails to carry out in good faith the purposes of this article, the license of any such person may be revoked by the governing board of the municipality or by the board of county commissioners after the licensee has been given an opportunity to be heard in his defense. Whenever any person, being duly licensed under this article, shall be convicted of the violation of any of the prohibition laws or of any of the provisions of this article or of any rule or regulation of the commissioner of revenue on the premises herein licensed, it shall be the duty of the court to revoke said license. Whenever any license which has been issued by any municipality, any board of county commissioners, or by the commissioner of revenue has been revoked, it shall be unlawful to reissue said license for said premises to any person for a term of six months after the revocation of said license.

The commissioner of revenue shall have the power to adopt, repeal, and amend rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of this article and to revoke or suspend the state license of any licensee for violation of the provisions of this article or of any rule or regulation adopted by him, as provided in § 18-78.1. Whenever there shall be filed with the commissioner of revenue a certified copy of a judgment of a court convicting a licensee of a violation of the prohibition laws or of any provision of this article or of any rule or regulation issued by the commissioner of revenue, the commissioner of revenue shall forthwith revoke the license of said licensee. The revocation or suspension of either a state, county, or municipal license shall automatically revoke or suspend any other license issued to the licensee under the authority of this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 514; 1943, c. 400, s. 6.)

Cross Reference.—See also § 18-91.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted in the second sentence the words "or of any of the provisions of this article or of any rule or regulation of the commissioner of revenue." It also added the second paragraph.

§ 18-78.1. Prohibited acts under license for sale for consumption on premises; procedure for revocation or suspension of license; enforcement.—No holder of a license authorizing the sale at retail of beverages, as defined in § 18-64, for consumption on the premises where sold, or any servant, agent, or employee of the licensee, shall do any of the following upon the licensed premises:

(1) Knowingly sell such beverages to any person under eighteen (18) years of age.

(2) Knowingly sell such beverages to any person while such person is in an intoxicated condition.

(3) Sell such beverages upon the licensed premises or permit such beverages to be consumed thereon, on any day or at any time when such sale or consumption is prohibited by law.

(4) Permit on the licensed premises any disorderly conduct, breach of peace, or any lewd, immoral, or improper entertainment, conduct or practices.

(5) Sell, offer for sale, possess, or permit the consumption on the licensed premises of any kind of alcoholic liquors the sale or possession of which is not authorized under his license.

Proceedings for the revocation or suspension under this section of any license authorizing the sale of such beverages at retail for consumption on the premises shall be instituted by the filing of a complaint with the commissioner of revenue against the licensee. Said complaint may be filed by the commissioner of revenue upon his own initiative and the said commissioner of revenue may, in his discretion, file a complaint when requested to do so by a peace officer or any person as hereinafter provided. Any peace officer, who learns that any such licensee within his jurisdiction has violated any of the provisions of this section, shall file with commissioner of revenue an affidavit specifying in detail the facts alleged to constitute said violation and requesting that a complaint be filed against said licensee for the revocation or suspension of his license. A like affidavit may be filed with the commissioner of revenue by any person who resides, and has for at least one year prior thereto resided, within two miles of the licensed premises, of such licensee, requesting that a complaint be filed for the revocation or suspension of said licensee's license. Promptly upon receiving any such affidavit, the said commissioner of revenue shall prepare a proper complaint, which shall be signed and sworn to by the person or persons filing the affidavit with him. The commissioner of revenue shall serve, or cause to be served, upon the licensee by personal service or by United States registered mail a notice of the filing of said complaint, together with a copy of said complaint.

The licensee shall have a right at any time within twenty days after service of the notice, above provided for, within which to file with the commissioner of revenue a written denial of the facts alleged in the complaint and demand a hearing thereon. In event such licensee files a written denial of the facts set out in the complaint and demands a hearing thereon, the commissioner of revenue shall immediately certify the record to the superior court of the county in which the license was issued where the matter shall be heard and determined at the next term of the superior court held in said county. If, upon the trial of said matter in the superior court, the allegations contained in the complaint are found against the licensee, the court shall immediately order a revocation or suspension of the license. In event the licensee fails to file a written denial of the facts set out in the complaint and demand a hearing thereon within twenty days after the service of the notice above provided for, the commissioner of revenue shall immediately revoke or suspend the license of said licensee.

It shall be the duty of all peace officers to enforce within their jurisdiction the provisions of this section and they shall frequently visit all such licensed premises within their jurisdiction to determine whether such licensees are complying with the laws; and shall promptly investigate all complaints made to them by any citizen relative to any alleged violations of this section within their jurisdiction. When any peace officer has knowledge of a violation of this section committed by a licensee within his jurisdiction, it shall be his duty forthwith to file an affidavit with the commissioner of revenue, as herein provided, requesting that a complaint be filed for the revocation or suspension of the license of said licensee.

The jurisdiction herein conferred upon the commissioner of revenue shall not be exclusive and any authority conferred upon the governing boards of a municipality, or boards of county commissioners to revoke or suspend licenses shall remain in full force and effect: Provided, however, that when a complaint is filed with the commissioner of revenue, any proceedings which may then be pending before the municipal or county authorities against the same licensee on the same charges shall abate and no proceedings for the revocation or suspension of a license for a violation of the provisions of this section shall be filed with the governing board of municipality or a board of county commissioners when proceedings are pending with the commissioner of revenue against the licensee on the same charge.

The revocation or suspension of a licensee's license, as herein provided, shall be in addition to and not in lieu of or limitation of any other penalty imposed by law. (1943, c. 400, s. 6.)

For the first license issued to each licensee five dollars ($5.00), and for each additional license issued to one person an additional tax of ten per cent (10%) of the five dollars base tax shall be charged. That is to say, that for the second license issued the tax shall be five dollars and fifty cents ($5.50) annually, for third license six dollars ($6.00) annually, and an additional fifty cents (50c.) per annum for each additional license issued to such person. (1939, c. 158, s. 515.)

§ 18-80. State license to sell wine at retail.—Every person who intends to engage in the business of selling wines as defined in § 18-64, subsection (b) shall procure a state license for such business which license shall in all cases be issued under the same restrictions, rules and regulations as set out in this article for the issuance of license for the sale of beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (a) and for which license the following schedule of taxes is hereby levied:

- (1) For "on premises" license twenty-five dollars$25.00

Such retail license shall authorize the sale of the beverages described in this section only on the premises described in the license, and if the same person operates more than one place at which said beverages are sold at retail, he shall obtain a license for each such place and pay therefor the license tax provided in this section.

If the license issued to any person by any municipality or county to sell the beverages referred to in this article shall be revoked by the proper officers of such municipality or county, or by any court, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of revenue to revoke the state license of such licensee; and in such event, the licensee shall not be entitled to a refund of any part of the license tax paid.

It shall be unlawful for any wholesale licensee to make any sale or delivery of the beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (b) to any person except persons who have been licensed to sell such beverages at retail, as prescribed in this article.

It shall be unlawful for any retail licensee to purchase any of the beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (b) from any person except wholesale licensees maintaining a place of business within this state and duly licensed under the provisions of this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 516; 1941, c. 339, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out the references to former subsection (c) of § 18-64 formerly appearing in the first, fourth and fifth paragraphs of this section.

§ 18-81. Additional tax.—(a) In addition to the license taxes herein levied, a tax is hereby levied upon the sale of beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (a) of three dollars and seventy-five cents ($3.75) per barrel of thirty-one gallons, or the equivalent of such tax in containers of more or less than thirty-one gallons, and in bottles or other containers of not more than twelve ounces, a tax of one and one-quarter cents per bottle or container: Provided fruit cider of alcoholic content not exceeding that provided in this article may be sold in bottles or other containers of not more than six ounces at a tax of five-eighths of a cent per bottle or container.

(b) The payment of the tax imposed by the preceding subsection shall be evidenced as to containers of not more than six ounces by the affixing of crowns or lids to such containers in which beverages are placed, received, stored, shipped, or handled, and upon which the tax has been paid at the rate of five-eighths of a cent per bottle or container. And the payment of the tax imposed by the preceding subsection shall be evidenced as to containers of more than six ounces and not more than twelve ounces by the affixing of crowns or lids to such containers in which beverages are placed, received, stored, shipped, or handled, and upon which a tax has been paid of one and one-quarter cents per bottle or container.

(c) Except as may be otherwise provided herein, each manufacturer or bottler manufacturing, selling or delivering beverages in this state shall, within twenty-four hours after the beverages are placed in original containers or bottles, and prior to delivery of any container of beverages to any wholesaler, distributor, retailer, jobber, or any other person whatsoever in this state, affix the proper crown or lid to each container.

(d) Except as may be otherwise provided herein, and unless such crowns or lids have been previously affixed, such crowns or lids shall be affixed as herein provided by each distributor or wholesaler in this state within twenty-four hours after such beverages come into the possession of such wholesaler and prior to the delivery of any container thereof to any retailer or other person in this state.

(e) The commissioner of revenue shall prescribe, prepare, furnish and sell the crowns or lids provided for in this section under rules and regulations prescribed by him, and all such crowns and lids shall carry the following words: "N. C. Tax Paid," and shall be so designed as to enable the manufacturer or bottler to place his brand or trade mark thereon, and they shall be purchased by the manufacturer or bottler or other person after the payment of the tax imposed by this article, only from such persons, firms or corporations as may be designated as manufacturers of such crowns and lids by the commissioner of revenue. The commissioner of revenue is authorized to enter into contracts on behalf of the state with one or more manufacturers for the manufacture, sale and distribution of such crowns or lids and shall require of such persons, firms and corporations so manufacturing, selling and distributing such crowns or lids a bond or bonds with a company authorized to do business in this state as surety payable to the state of North Carolina in such penalty and upon such conditions as in the opinion of the commissioner of revenue will adequately protect the state. The crowns and lids shall be manufactured, sold and distributed at the cost of the taxpayer. No manufacturer or bottler will be allowed to purchase the crowns or lids prescribed by this section unless such bottler or manufacturer has a valid permit from the federal government and the state of North Carolina, or the state in which such manufacturer or bottler is located, to manufacture, bottle, or sell the beverages herein described. The crowns and lids shall be sold by the commissioner of revenue at a discount of two per cent (2%) as sole compensation for North Carolina tax-paid crown and lid losses sustained in the process of production of malt beverages. No compensation or refund shall be made for tax-paid malt beverages given as free goods, or advertising, and losses, sustained by spoilage and breakage incident to the sale and distribution of malt beverages.

(f) At the time of delivering beverages to any person, firm or corporation in this state, each manufacturer or bottler shall make a true duplicate invoice showing the date of delivery, the amount and value of each shipment of beverages delivered, and the name of the purchaser to whom the delivery is made, and shall retain the same for a period of two years, subject to the use and inspection of the commissioner of revenue or his agents.

(g) Persons operating boats, dining cars, buffet cars or club cars upon or in which beverages are sold shall not be required to evidence the payment of the tax herein provided for by affixing crowns or lids as herein provided, but instead shall keep such records of the sales of such beverages in this state as the commissioner of revenue shall prescribe and shall submit monthly reports of such sales to the commissioner of revenue upon a form prescribed therefor by the commissioner of revenue, and shall pay the tax levied under this article at the time such reports are filed.

(h) It is the intent and purpose of this section to require all manufacturers and bottlers and other persons, except as herein provided, to affix the crowns or lids provided for herein to all original containers in which beverages are normally placed, prepared for market, received, sold or handled, before such beverages are sold, offered for sale, or held for sale within this state.

(i) Any person, firm or corporation, except as herein provided, who shall sell the beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (a) to wholesalers, retailers, or consumers which do not have affixed thereto the crowns or lids required by this section, or who shall purchase, receive, transport, store, or possess any beverage in containers to which the crowns or lids required herein are not affixed, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court, and, in addition thereto, such person shall be liable for double the amount of the tax due under this article and the commissioner of revenue shall have authority to assess said tax and penalty and cause the same to be collected in the same manner provided for the collection of other taxes levied in this article.

(j) Manufacturers, bottlers, or vendors of beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (a), from without this state, shall affix the crowns or lids to original containers of such beverages to be sold, offered for sale, held for sale, delivered or transported for delivery in this state.

(k) The commissioner of revenue shall promulgate rules and regulations to relieve manufacturers or bottlers of beverages from the liability to affix crowns or lids to such containers of such beverages as are intended to be shipped and are thereafter shipped out of this state by such manufacturers or bottlers for resale out of this state.

(l) Any person who falsely or fraudulently makes, forges, alters, or counterfeits any crowns or lids prescribed by the commissioner of revenue under the provisions of this section, or causes or procures to be falsely or fraudulently made, forged, altered, or counterfeited any such crowns or lids, or knowingly or wilfully utters, passes or tenders as true any such false, forged, altered, or counterfeited crowns or lids, or uses more than once any crown or lid provided for and required by this article, or uses a crown or lid other than that prescribed herein for the purpose of evading the tax imposed under this article, or for the purpose of aiding or abetting others to evade the tax imposed under this article, shall be guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison for not more than five years, or by a fine of not more than five thousand dollars ($5,000.00), or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

(m) Any person, firm or corporation having in his possession a container or containers of beverages not bearing the crowns or lids required to be affixed to such container, or who fails to produce upon demand by the commissioner of revenue or his agent, invoices of all beverages purchased or received by him within two years prior to such demand, unless upon satisfactory proof it is shown that such non-production is due to providential or other causes beyond his control, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

(n) Any person who shall fail, neglect, or refuse to comply with or shall violate any provisions of this section, for which no specific penalty is provided, or who shall refuse to permit the commissioner of revenue or his agents to examine his books, papers, invoices and other records, his store of beverages in and upon any premises where the same are manufactured, bottled, stored, sold, offered for sale, or held for sale, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

(o) The commissioner of revenue is hereby charged with the enforcement of the provisions of this section and hereby authorized and empowered to prescribe, adopt, promulgate, and enforce rules and regulations relating to any matter or thing pertaining to the administration and enforcement of the provisions of this section, and the collection of taxes, penalties, and interest imposed by this article.

In the event that the commissioner of revenue shall find as facts that due to war conditions or other unusual circumstances, a free supply of taxpaid crowns cannot be obtained, and that the beverage tax revenues of the state are being, or will likely be, impaired by the difficulty or impossibility in obtaining said taxpaid crowns, the commissioner shall be empowered to promulgate a regulation authorizing the use of stamps, labels, or other suitable devices in lieu of or in addition to crowns as evidences of tax payments for the duration of the emergency, but no longer. In the event that stamps, labels, or other devices are authorized by the commissioner as herein provided, the remaining provisions of this article shall not be affected, and shall be construed by substituting the name of the substituted device for "crown or lid" or "crowns or lids" wherever these words appear, unless the context clearly will not permit such construction.

The action of the commissioner of revenue in promulgating a regulation under date of September second, one thousand nine hundred and forty-two, authorizing the use of stamps as an alternative to crowns or lids, is in all respects hereby approved, ratified and confirmed.

(p) The commissioner of revenue is hereby authorized to prescribe, adopt, promulgate, and enforce the rules and regulations relating to the transportation of beverages enumerated in § 18-64 through this state, and from points outside of this state to points within this state, and to prescribe, adopt, promulgate and enforce rules and regulations reciprocal to those of, or laws of, any other state or territory affecting the transportation of beverages manufactured in this state.

(q) The commissioner of revenue shall have authority at any time after March 24, 1939, to make provisions for the furnishing of crowns or lids required by this section.

(r) In addition to the license taxes herein levied, a tax is hereby levied upon the sale of beverages described in section 18-64, subsection (b) of twenty cents (20c.) per gallon.

These additional taxes levied under this subsection shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue by the wholesale distributor or bottler of such beverages.

Reports shall be made to the commissioner of revenue in such form as he may prescribe, on or before the tenth day of each month, for all beverages sold by such wholesale distributor or bottler within the preceding month, and such reports when filed shall be accompanied by a remittance of the amount of tax shown to be due. Failure to file the reports herein prescribed and pay the tax as shown to be due thereon shall subject such wholesale distributor or bottler to a penalty of five per centum of the amount of the tax due, per month from the date the tax is due.

If the wholesale distributor or bottler shall refuse to make the reports required under this section, then such reports shall be made by the commissioner or his duly authorized agents from the best information available, and such reports shall be prima facie correct for the purposes of this section, and the amount of tax due thereby shall be a lien against all the property of the taxpayer until discharged by payments, and if payment is not made within thirty days after demand therefor by the commissioner or his duly authorized agents, there shall be added not more than one hundred per centum as damages, together with interest at the rate of one per centum per month from the time such tax was due. If such tax be paid within thirty days after notice by the commissioner, then there shall be added not more than ten per centum as damages, per month from the time such tax was due until paid.

The commissioner for good cause may extend the time for making any report required under the provisions of this section, and may grant such additional time within which to make such report as he may deem proper, but the time for filing any such report shall not be extended beyond the fifteenth day of the month next succeeding the regular due date of such report. If the time for filing a report be extended, interest at the rate of one-half of one per centum per month from the time the report was required to be filed to the time of payment shall be added and paid.

The taxes levied in this section are in addition to the taxes levied in Schedule E of the Revenue Act. (1939, c. 158, s. 517; c. 370, s. 1; 1941, c. 50, s. 7; c. 339, s. 4; 1943, c. 400, s. 6; 1943, cc. 564, 565.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendments added the last two sentences in subsection (e) and struck out references to former subsection (c) of § 18-64.

The first 1943 amendment added the second and third paragraphs of subsection (o). The third 1943 amendment substituted in the first paragraph of subsection (r) "twenty cents" for "ten cents," and the second 1943 amendment rewrote the other paragraphs of the subsection.

§ 18-82. By whom tax payable.—The tax levied in § 18-81 upon the sale of beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (a) shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue by the manufacturer or bottler of such beverages, and the tax levied in § 18-81 upon the sale of the beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (b) shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue by the wholesale distributor or bottler of such beverages. As a condition precedent to the granting of license by the commissioner of revenue to any wholesale distributor, manufacturer or bottler of beverages under this article, the commissioner of revenue shall require each such wholesale distributor, manufacturer or bottler to furnish bond in an indemnity company licensed to do business under the insurance laws of this state in such sums as the commissioner of revenue shall find adequate to cover the tax liability of each such wholesale distributor, manufacturer or bottler, proportioned to the volume of business of each such wholesale distributor, manufacturer or bottler, but in no event to be less than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), or to deposit federal, state, county or municipal bonds in required amounts, such county and municipal bonds to be approved by the commissioner of revenue. The commissioner of revenue may grant such extension of time for compliance with this condition as may be found to be reasonable. (1939, c. 158, s. 518; 1941, c. 339, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out the reference to former subsection (c) of § 18-64, appearing in the first sentence of this section.

§ 18-83. Nonresident manufacturers and wholesale dealers to be licensed.—From and after April thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, every non-resident desiring to engage in the business of making sales of the beverages described in § 18-64, to wholesale dealers licensed under the provisions of this article, shall first apply to the commissioner of revenue for a permit so to do. The commissioner of revenue may require of every such applicant that a bond in a sum not to exceed two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) be executed by such applicant and deposited with the commissioner, conditioned upon the faithful compliance by such applicant with the provisions of this article, and particularly that such applicant shall not make sales of any of the beverages described in section 18-64 to any person in this state except a duly licensed wholesale dealer. Upon the payment of a license tax of one hundred fifty dollars ($150.00), if the commissioner is satisfied that said applicant is a bona fide manufacturer or distributor of the beverages defined in § 18-64, he shall then issue a permit to such applicant which shall bear a serial number. Every holder of such non-resident permit and license shall thereafter put the number of such permit on every invoice for any quantity of beverages sold by such licensee to any wholesale dealer in North Carolina. Upon the failure of any such licensee to comply with all the provisions of this article, the commissioner of revenue may revoke such permit or license.

Any resident manufacturer licensed under § 18-67 shall not be required to post the bond required by this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 518½.)

§ 18-84. Payment of tax by retailers.—The granting of license by any municipality or county under this article to any person to sell at retail the beverages enumerated under § 18-64 shall not be valid license for such sale at retail until such person shall have filed with the commissioner of revenue a bond in a surety company licensed by the insurance department to do business in this state in such sum as the commissioner of revenue may find to be sufficient to cover the tax liability of every such person, but in no event to be less than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00). The commissioner of revenue may waive the requirement of this section for indemnity bond with respect to any such person who may file a satisfactory contract or agreement with the commissioner of revenue that such person will purchase and sell beverages enumerated in § 18-64 only from wholesale distributors or bottlers licensed by the commissioner of revenue under this article who pay the tax under § 18-81 upon all such beverages sold to retail dealers in this state. The violation of the terms of any such contract or agreement between any such retail dealer and the commissioner of revenue by the purchase or sale of any of the beverages enumerated in § 18-64 from any one other than a licensed wholesale distributor or bottler under this article shall automatically cancel the license of any such retail dealer and shall be prima facie evidence of intent to defraud, and any person guilty of violation of any such contract or agreement shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1939, c. 158, s. 519.)

§ 18-85. Tax on fortified wines and spirituous liquors; sale of fortified wines in A. B. C. stores.—In addition to other taxes levied in this article, and in lieu of taxes levied in Schedule E of the Revenue Act on the sale of fortified wines and spirituous liquors, there is hereby levied a tax of eight and one-half per cent (8½%) on the retail price of fortified wines and spirituous distilled liquors of every kind that may be sold in this state, including liquors sold in county liquor stores. Provided, however, that in no event shall the amount paid under this section exceed one-half of the net profits from liquors sold through such stores in any county. The taxes levied in this section shall be payable monthly, at the same time and in the same manner as taxes levied in Schedule E of the Revenue Act, and the liability for such tax shall be subject to all the rules, regulations and penalties provided in Schedule E and in other sections of the Revenue Act for the payment of taxes. One-fourteenth of the taxes collected under this section are intended to pay the necessary expenses of the state alcoholic control board, and for other necessary expenses in connection with the enforcement of such laws as may be enacted by this general assembly for the sale of alcoholic liquors and to meet such appropriations there is hereby appropriated and made available for the purpose above set forth one-fourteenth of the amount of taxes collected under this section, such sum to be allocated for such purpose by the director of the budget upon request of the state alcohol control board and expended and accounted for as other state funds, and the director of the budget is hereby given authority to estimate the revenues to be received under this section, to the end that a sufficient sum shall be made available for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the state alcoholic control board until sufficient revenues have been collected as provided hereunder for said purposes.

Spirituous liquors, as referred to in this section, shall be deemed to include any alcoholic beverages containing an alcoholic content of more than twenty-four per cent (24%) by volume.

Fortified wines may be sold in county alcoholic beverage control stores duly established under the authority of article 3 of this chapter. (1939, c. 158, s. 519½; 1941, c. 339, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the references to fortified wines in the first sentence of the first paragraph and added the third paragraph.

§ 18-86. Books, records, reports.—Every person licensed under any of the provisions of this article shall keep accurate records of purchase and sale of all beverages taxable under this article, such records to be kept separate from all purchases and sales of merchandise taxable under this article, including a separate file and record of all invoices. The commissioner of revenue or any authorized agent, shall at any time during business hours, have access to such records. The commissioner of revenue may also require regular or special reports to be made by every such person, at such times and in such form as the commissioner may require. (1939, c. 158, s. 520.)

§ 18-87. No license for sales upon school property.—No license shall be issued for the sale of beverages enumerated in § 18-64 upon the campus or property of any public or private school or college in this state. (1939, c. 158, s. 521.)

§ 18-88. License shall be posted.—Each form of license required by this article shall be kept posted in a conspicuous place at each place where the business taxable under this article is carried on, and a separate license shall be required for each place of business. (1939, c. 158, s. 522.)

§ 18-89. Administrative provisions.—The commissioner of revenue and the authorized agents of the state department of revenue shall have and exercise all the rights, duties, powers, and responsibilities in enforcing this article that are enumerated in the Revenue Act in administering taxes levied in Schedule B of that act. (1939, c. 158, s. 523.)

§ 18-90. Appropriation for administration.—For the efficient administration of this article an appropriation is hereby made for the use of the department of revenue in addition to the appropriation in the Appropriation Bill of a sum equal to three per cent (3%) of the total revenue collections under this article to be expended under allotments made by the budget bureau of such part of the whole of such appropriation as may be found necessary for the administration of this article. The budget bureau may estimate the yield of revenue under this article and make advance apportionment based upon such estimate. (1939, c. 158, s. 524.)

§ 18-90.1. Sale to minors under 18 a misdemeanor.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to sell or give any of the products authorized to be sold by this article to any minor under eighteen years of age. (1933, c. 216, s. 8.)

Cross Reference.—As to sale of liquor to minors under the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, see § 18-46.

§ 18-91. Violation made misdemeanor; revocation of permits; forfeiture of license.—Whoever violates any of the provisions of this article, or any of the rules and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine or by imprisonment, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. If any licensee is convicted of the violation of the provisions of this article, or any of the rules and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto, the court shall immediately declare his permit revoked, and notify the county commissioners accordingly, and no permit shall thereafter be granted to him within a period of three years thereafter. Any licensee who shall sell or permit the sale on his premises or in connection with his business, or otherwise, of any alcoholic beverages not authorized under the terms of this article, unless otherwise permitted by law, shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit his license in addition to any punishment imposed by law for such offense. (1939, c. 158, s. 525.)

§ 18-92. Effective date.—All taxes levied in this article shall be in effect from and after April thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine. (1939, c. 158, s. 528.)

§ 18-93. Adoption of federal regulations.—The "Standards of Identity for Wine" and the regulations relating to "Labeling and Advertising of Wine" promulgated by the Federal Alcohol Administration of the United States Treasury Department, and known respectively as Regulation Number Four, Article II, and Regulation Number Four, Articles III and VI, are hereby adopted by North Carolina. (1937, c. 335, s. 2.)

Art. 5. Fortified Wine Control Act of 1941.

§ 18-94. Title of article.—The title of this article shall be the "Fortified Wine Control Act of one thousand nine hundred and forty-one." (1941, c. 339, s. A.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1941, c. 339, § 8, provides: "This act shall be in full force and effect on and after May first one thousand nine hundred and forty-one."

And § 7 of said chapter provides: "This act shall be in full force and effect on and after midnight, July first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one, in so far as it applies to the sale of fortified wines, but the effective date of same as applicable to wholesale distributors shall be midnight, July fifteenth, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one. The intent of this section being to grant to the wholesale distributors fifteen (15) days time in which to deplete the entire stock of the retailers, package and return same to such wineries from which said wines were purchased. The commissioner of revenue is hereby empowered and directed to reimburse all wholesale distributors in an amount of money equivalent to the sum represented by North Carolina wine tax stamps in possession of said wholesale distributors, whether affixed to containers or not, as of July second, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one. Such distributors claiming refunds hereunder shall prepare and forward to the commissioner of revenue sworn itemized statements of such tax stamps in their possession, and the commissioner of revenue is empowered to audit and verify such statements before granting refunds."

§ 18-95. Purpose of article.—The purpose of this article is to prevent and prohibit sales of fortified wines at any places in the state except through county operated alcoholic beverage control stores and to regulate such sales. (1941, c. 339, s. B.)

Cross Reference.—As to alcoholic beverage control stores, see § 18-36 to § 18-62.

Stated in State v. Tola, 222 N. C. 406, 23 S. E. (2d) 321.

It shall be unlawful for any person to purchase on order and receive by mail or express from any such alcoholic beverage control store fortified wines in quantities not in excess of one gallon at any one time. § 18-103. Information furnished farmers.—It shall be the duty of the department of agriculture to disseminate to the farmers of the State in an economical way the best information it can get of the best methods of cultivation of such crops, and the making of such light domestic wines. (1935, c. 393, s. 7.)

Cross Reference.—As to duties of board and commissioner of agriculture with reference to new agricultural industries, especially grapes, etc., see § 106-22, subsec. 6.

Chapter 19. Offenses against Public Morals.

Sec.

19-1. What are nuisances under this chapter.

19-2. Action for abatement; injunction.

19-3. When triable; evidence; dismissal of complaint.

19-4. Violation of injunction; punishment.

Sec.

19-5. Order abating nuisance; what it shall contain.

19-6. Application of proceeds of sale.

19-7. How order of abatement may be canceled.

19-8. Attorney's fees may be taxed as costs.

§ 19-1. What are nuisances under this chapter.—Whoever shall erect, establish, continue, maintain, use, own, or lease any building, erection, or place used for the purpose of lewdness, assignation, prostitution, gambling, or illegal sale of whiskey is guilty of nuisance, and the building, erection, or place, or the ground itself, in or upon which such lewdness, assignation, prostitution, gambling, or illegal sale of liquor is conducted, permitted, or carried on, continued, or exists, and the furniture, fixtures, musical instruments and contents, are also declared a nuisance, and shall be enjoined and abated as hereinafter provided. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 25; C. S. 3180.)

Cross References.—As to criminal actions: For prostitution, see § 14-203 et seq.; for gambling, see § 14-289 et seq.; for unlawful sale of whiskey, see § 18-31 et seq.; for lewdness, etc., see § 14-190.

Constitutionality.—This section, et seq., providing for the abatement of public nuisances is constitutional as a valid exercise of the police power of the state. Carpenter v. Boyles, 213 N. C. 432, 196 S. E. 850. See also, Barker v. Palmer, 217 N. C. 519, 8 S. E. (2d) 610.

Nuisance Need Not Be Nucleus of Crime.—It is not essential to the nuisance defined by this section that the acts of the customers, which impart that quality to the premises and the business conducted there, should be violations of the criminal law, either generally speaking or under the terms of the statute. It is not necessary that the nuisance declared should have a nucleus of crime essential to its existence. While nuisance is frequently associated with criminal offenses, the law is not under the necessity of predicating one crime upon another to make valid its denunciation of an act which it denominates a nuisance. State v. Brown, 221 N. C. 301, 20 S. E. (2d) 286.

Establishment Facilitating Betting on Races.—The maintenance of an establishment with ticker tape and other paraphernalia to facilitate the making of wagers on horse races, and in which offers to lay wagers were transmitted to race tracks outside the state, and through which wagers were paid off to successful betters, constitutes a public nuisance. State v. Brown, 221 N. C. 301, 20 S. E. (2d) 286.

Authority of Municipalities Concerning Nuisances.—Under the authority conferred upon a municipal corporation to adopt ordinances for the government of the corporation and to abate nuisances, no power is granted to enact that the permitting of prostitution by the owner or occupant of any house therein shall constitute such owner or occupant the keeper of a house of ill fame, nor to declare what shall be a bawdy house or a disorderly house. State v. Webber, 107 N. C. 962, 12 S. E. 598.

Cited, in dissenting opinion, in Newman v. Watkins, 208 N. C. 675, 182 S. E. 453.

§ 19-2. Action for abatement; injunction.—Whenever a nuisance is kept, maintained, or exists as defined in this chapter, the city prosecuting attorney, the solicitor, or any citizen of the county may maintain civil action in the name of the state of North Carolina upon the relation of such city prosecuting attorney, solicitor, or citizen, to perpetually enjoin said nuisance, the person or persons conducting or maintaining the same, and the owner or agent of the building or ground upon which said nuisance exists. In such action the court, or a judge in vacation, shall, upon the presentation of a petition therefor, alleging that the nuisance complained of exists, allow a temporary writ of injunction without bond, if it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the judge by evidence in the form of affidavits, depositions, oral testimony, or otherwise, as complainant may elect, unless the judge, by previous order, shall have directed the form and manner in which it shall be presented. When an injunction has been granted it shall be binding on the defendant throughout the county in which it was issued, and any violation of the provisions of injunction herein provided shall be a contempt, as hereinafter provided. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 26; C. S. 3181.)

Evidence Supporting Abatement.—The evidence disclosed that defendant operated a tourist camp with filling station, dining room and dance hall in front, and cabins in the rear, that the camp was on highway in a thickly settled rural community, that whiskey and contraceptives were sold, that drunken men and women were seen nightly at the place, and seen to go in the cabins in pairs and stay for a short time, that the community was constantly awakened at night by loud and boisterous conduct and profanity, that fighting occurred between drunken men and women, with many of both sexes nude or indecently clad, and that the general reputation of the place was bad, is held amply sufficient to be submitted to the jury upon the issue of whether the place constituted a nuisance against public morals as defined by § 19-1, and to support a judgment for its abatement in accordance with this section in an action brought by the solicitor as relator. Carpenter v. Boyles, 213 N. C. 432, 196 S. E. 850.

Lease Is Made in Contemplation of Section.—A lease contract will be held to have been made in contemplation of the statute, in effect at the time of the execution of the lease, providing for the abatement of nuisances against public morals, and the lessor is subject to the rights of the state to padlock the premises in accordance with the statute if they are used in operating a nuisance as defined by the act. Barker v. Palmer, 217 N. C. 519, 8 S. E. (2d) 610.

Cited in Calcutt v. McGeachy, 213 N. C. 1, 195 S. E. 49.

§ 19-3. When triable; evidence; dismissal of complaint.—The action when brought shall be triable at the first term of court after service of the summons has been made, and in such action evidence of the general reputation of the place shall be admissible for the purpose of proving the existence of said nuisance. If the complaint is filed by a citizen, it shall not be dismissed except upon a sworn statement made by the complainant and his attorney, setting forth the reason why the action should be dismissed, and the dismissal approved by the city prosecuting attorney, or solicitor, in writing or in open court. If the court is of the opinion that the action ought not to be dismissed, he may direct the city prosecuting attorney, or the solicitor, to prosecute said action to judgment; and if the action continued more than one term of court, any citizen of the county, or the county attorney, may be substituted for the complaining party and prosecute said action to judgment. If the action is brought by a citizen, and the court finds there was no reasonable ground or cause of said action, the costs may be taxed to such citizen. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 27; C. S. 3182.)

Cross Reference.—As to certain evidence relative to keeping disorderly houses admissible in criminal proceedings, see § 14-188.

By provision of this section, evidence of the general reputation of the place in question is competent in an action to abate a public nuisance. Carpenter v. Boyles, 213 N. C. 432, 196 S. E. 850.

§ 19-4. Violation of injunction; punishment.—In case of the violation of any injunction granted under the provisions of this chapter, the court, or, in vacation, a judge thereof, may summarily try and punish the offender. A party found guilty of contempt under the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than two hundred or more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than three or more than six months, or by both fine and imprisonment. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 28; C. S. 3183.)

Cited in Carpenter v. Boyles, 213 N. C. 432, 196 S. E. 850.

§ 19-5. Order abating nuisance; what it shall contain.—If the existence of the nuisance be established in an action as provided in this chapter, or in a criminal proceeding, an order of abatement shall be entered as a part of the judgment in the cause, which order shall direct the removal from the building or place of all fixtures, furniture, musical instruments, or movable property used in conducting the nuisance, and shall direct the sale thereof in the manner provided for the sale of chattels under execution, and the effectual closing of the building or place against its use for any purpose, and so keeping it closed for a period of one year, unless sooner released. If any person shall break and enter, or use said building, erection, or place so directed to be closed, he shall be punished as for contempt, as provided in the preceding section. For moving and selling the movable property, the officer shall be entitled to charge and receive the same fees as he would for levying upon and selling like property on execution; and for closing the premises and keeping them closed, a reasonable sum shall be allowed by the court. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 29; C. S. 3184.)

Fishing in waters when prohibited by law is a public nuisance and the General Assembly has the power to authorize a prompt abatement of the nuisance by seizure and sale of the nets, subject to the right of their owner to contest the fact of his violation of the law by a proceeding in the nature of claim and delivery, or by injunction to prevent sale, or by an action to recover the proceeds of sale plus damages. Daniels v. Homer, 139 N. C. 219, 51 S. E. 992.

Proceeding Is In Personam.—A proceeding to abate a nuisance against the public morals is not a proceeding in rem against the property itself, but is in personam, and the provisions of the statute for padlocking the premises and for the sale of chattels used in connection with the operation of the nuisance, being more than sufficient for the abatement of the nuisance, are penalties prescribed by law for its violation, and therefore innocent lessors of the premises or owners or mortgagees of chattels which do not constitute a nuisance per se may not be deprived of their property rights unless they have actual or constructive notice that the property is used in the operation of the nuisance, and they have the right to have this issue determined by the verdict of a jury. Sinclair v. Croom, 217 N. C. 526, 8 S. E. (2d) 834.

Innocent Mortgagee May Recover Property before Sale.—An innocent mortgagee without knowledge that the property was being used by the mortgagor in operating a nuisance contrary to law and in violation of provisions in the conditional sales contract, may institute action to recover the property after it has been seized by the sheriff but before it has been sold under this section. Habit v. Stephenson, 217 N. C. 447, 8 S. E. (2d) 245.

Lessors Must Have Knowledge before Personal Judgment Can Be Rendered.—In an action to abate a nuisance against public morals under this chapter, lessors of the property are entitled to the submission of an issue as to whether they knew the lessee was operating a public nuisance thereon before personal judgment is rendered against lessors taxing them with the cost and padlocking the premises, such personal judgment against them being justified only if they knew or, by the exercise of due diligence, should have known of the maintenance of the nuisance. Barker v. Palmer, 217 N. C. 519, 8 S. E. (2d) 610.

As Must Conditional Seller.—Intervener sold a cash register under a conditional sales contract and same, together with other chattels of the purchaser, was seized for sale upon the determination that the purchaser was using it in the maintenance of a nuisance against public morals. Upon the facts agreed intervenor had no actual or constructive knowledge that the cash register was used in the maintenance of a nuisance. Only the equity of the purchaser could be condemned for sale under the statute and the intervenor may be charged with no part of the cost. Sinclair v. Croom, 217 N. C. 526, 8 S. E. (2d) 834.

Restraining Sale of Part of Personalty.—Where judgment directing the sale of personal property used in the operation of a nuisance is entered in a proceeding instituted by the solicitor, the complaint in an independent action thereafter instituted against the sheriff alone by the defendant in the former proceeding to restrain the sale of certain of the personalty on the ground that it was not used in the operation of the nuisance cannot be treated as a motion in the cause, since the plaintiff in the former action is not a party. Humphrey v. Churchill, 217 N. C. 530, 8 S. E. (2d) 810.

In a proceeding under this chapter, judgment was entered upon determination that the defendant therein was operating a nuisance against public morals, directing that the personal property of defendant used in the operation of the nuisance be sold in accordance with this section. Thereafter the defendant in that proceeding instituted this action against the sheriff to restrain the sale of certain of the personal property upon allegations that the property specified had not been used in the operation of the nuisance and that the sheriff was about to sell it under the prior judgment. There was neither allegation nor contention that the execution was void. The temporary restraining order was properly dissolved, the proper remedy being by motion in the cause and not by independent action to restrain the sheriff from selling the chattels as directed by the prior judgment. Id.

§ 19-6. Application of proceeds of sale.—The proceeds of the sale of the personal property as provided in § 19-5 shall be applied in the payment of the costs of action and abatement, and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the defendant. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 30; C. S. 3185.)

§ 19-7. How order of abatement may be canceled.—If the owner appears and pays all cost of the proceeding and files a bond, with sureties to be approved by the clerk, in the full value of the property, to be ascertained by the court, or, in vacation, by the clerk of the superior court, conditioned that he will immediately abate said nuisance, and prevent the same from being established or kept within a period of one year thereafter, the court may, if satisfied of his good faith, order the premises closed under the order of abatement to be delivered to said owner, and said order of abatement canceled so far as same may relate to said property; and if the proceeding be a civil action, and said bond be given and costs therein paid before judgment and order of abatement, the action shall be thereby abated as to said building only. The release of the property under the provisions of this section shall not release it from any judgment, lien, penalty, or liability to which it may be subject by law. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 31; C. S. 3186.)

§ 19-8. Attorney's fees may be taxed as costs.—The court shall tax as part of the cost in any action brought hereunder such fee for the attorney prosecuting the action or proceedings as may in the court's discretion be reasonable remuneration for the services performed by such attorney. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 32; C. S. 3187.)

Provided that when such applicant shall have held a license from a state where a similar examination is required, the department may waive part or all of such examination, in its discretion. Provided, further, that until November first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five, one year's driving experience and freedom from conviction of traffic violations during such year shall be considered prima facie qualification for license as operator.

(d) When the department is satisfied as to the ability and competency of any applicant, it shall issue to him a license, either unlimited or containing such limitations as the department shall deem advisable. If any applicant shall suffer from physical defect or from any disease which might affect the operation by him of a motor vehicle, the department may require a certificate of such applicant's condition signed by medical authority designated by the department, which certificate shall in all cases be treated as confidential. A license containing such limitations as the department shall deem advisable may be issued in any case, but nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the department from refusing a license, either limited or unlimited, to any person deemed to be incapable of operating a motor vehicle with safety to himself and to the public. Provided nothing herein shall prohibit deaf persons from operating a motor vehicle who in every other way meet the requirements.

(e) Every operator's or chauffeur's license issued by the department shall bear thereon the distinguishing number assigned to the licensee and shall contain the name, age, residence address and a brief description of the licensee, who, for the purpose of identification and as a condition precedent to the validity of the license, immediately upon receipt thereof, shall endorse his or her regular signature in ink upon the same in the space provided for that purpose. Such license shall be carried by the licensee at all times while engaged in the operation of a motor vehicle. However no person charged with failing to so carry such license shall be convicted, if he produces in court an operator's or chauffeur's license theretofore issued to him and valid at the time of his arrest.

(f) Any person operating a motor vehicle in violation of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in this article.

(g) Any person who, except for lack of instruction in operating a motor vehicle, would otherwise be qualified to obtain an operator's license under this article, shall apply for a temporary learner's permit, and the department shall issue such permit, entitling the applicant, while having such permit in his immediate possession, to drive a motor vehicle upon the highways for a period of thirty (30) days, during daylight hours. Any such learner's permit may be renewed or a new permit issued for an additional period of thirty (30) days. Such person must be accompanied by a licensed operator or chauffeur who is actually occupying a seat by the driver. (1935, c. 52, s. 2; 1943, c. 649, s. 1; c. 787, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The first 1943 amendment struck out former subsection (f) relating to chauffeur's badge, and changed former subsection (g) to subsection (f). The second 1943 amendment inserted in the second sentence of subsection (b) the words "the drivers' license examiners, or other designated representatives of the department of motor vehicles." It also added present subsection (g).

Temporary Law.—Acts 1943, c. 346, § 1, in force for two years from March 1, 1943, amended the proviso of subsection (a) by changing the age mentioned therein from sixteen to fifteen years.

(d) A non-resident who is at least eighteen (18) years of age and who has in his immediate possession a valid chauffeur's license issued to him in his home state or country may operate a motor vehicle in this state either as an operator or chauffeur except any such person must be licensed as a chauffeur hereunder before accepting employment as a chauffeur from a resident of this state;

(e) Any non-resident who is at least eighteen (18) years of age, whose home state or country does not require the licensing of operators may operate a motor vehicle as an operator only, for a period of not more than ninety (90) days in any calendar year if the motor vehicle so operated is duly registered in the home state or country of such non-resident;

(f) Any non-resident who is at least eighteen (18) years of age, whose home state or country does not require the licensing of chauffeurs may operate a motor vehicle as a chauffeur for a period of not more than ten days in any calendar year if the motor vehicle so operated is duly registered in the home state or country of such non-resident. (1935, c. 52, s. 3.)

—(a) An operator's license shall not be issued to any person under the age of sixteen (16) years, and no chauffeur's license shall be issued to any person under the age of eighteen (18) years.

(b) The department shall not issue an operator's or chauffeur's license to any person whose license, either as operator or chauffeur, has been suspended, during the period for which license was suspended; nor to any person whose license, either as operator or chauffeur, has been revoked under the provisions of this article, until the expiration of one year after such license was revoked.

(c) The department shall not issue an operator's or chauffeur's license to any person whom it has determined is an habitual drunkard or is addicted to the use of narcotic drugs.

(d) No operator's or chauffeur's license shall be issued to any applicant who has been previously adjudged insane or an idiot, imbecile, grand mal epileptic, or feeble-minded, and who has not at the time of such application been restored to competency by judicial decree or released from a hospital for the insane or feeble-minded upon a certificate of the superintendent that such person is competent, nor then unless the department is satisfied that such person is competent to operate a motor vehicle with safety to persons and property.

(e) The department shall not issue an operator's or chauffeur's license to any person when in the opinion of the department such person is afflicted with or suffering from such physical or mental disability or disease as will serve to prevent such person from exercising reasonable and ordinary control over a motor vehicle while operating the same upon the highways, nor shall a license be issued to any person who is unable to understand highway warnings or direction signs. (1935, c. 52, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—Acts 1943, c. 346, § 3, in force for two years from March 1, 1943, amended subsection (a) by changing the first age mentioned therein from sixteen to fifteen years.

cant, otherwise by the mother or guardian having the custody of such minor, or in the event a minor under the age of eighteen years has no mother, father, or guardian, then the operator's license shall not be granted to the minor unless his application therefor is signed by his employer. (1935, c. 52, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—Acts 1943, c. 346, § 4, in force for two years from March 1, 1943, amended this section by changing the first age mentioned therein from sixteen to fifteen years. See note under § 20-17.

§ 20-12. Instruction. — Any licensed operator or chauffeur may instruct a person who is sixteen or more years of age, during daylight hours, in the operation of a motor vehicle. Any person so instructing another shall be seated as to be within reach of the controls of the motor vehicle and shall be responsible for the operation thereof. (1935, c. 52, s. 7.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 20-7, paragraph (a).

Editor's Note.—Acts 1943, c. 346, § 5, in force for two years from March 1, 1943, amended this section by changing the age mentioned therein from sixteen to fifteen years.

§ 20-13. Expiration of license.—(a) Every operator's license issued hereunder shall be valid until suspended or revoked as provided in this article except that the department shall hereafter, but not more often than once every three years and after public notice, cancel all outstanding operators' licenses and issue in lieu thereof new operators' licenses to persons applying therefor and entitled thereto under the provision of this article. Such licenses shall be issued without fee and without examination except in those instances when the department has reason to believe that the applicant may not be qualified to hold an operator's license under this article.

(b) Every chauffeur's license shall expire June thirtieth each year and shall be renewed annually upon application and payment of fees required by law, provided that the department may in its discretion waive the examination of any such applicant previously licensed as a chauffeur under this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 8.)

§ 20-14. Duplicate certificates.—In the event that an operator's or chauffeur's license issued under the provisions of this article is lost or destroyed, the person to whom the same was issued may, upon payment of a fee of fifty cents ($.50), obtain a duplicate, or substitute thereof, upon furnishing proof satisfactory to the department that such license has been lost or destroyed. (1935, c. 52, s. 9; 1943, c. 649, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment struck out the words "or badge" formerly appearing after the word "license."

§ 20-15. Authority of department to cancel license.—(a) The department shall have authority to cancel any operator's or chauffeur's license upon determining that the licensee was not entitled to the issuance thereof hereunder, or that said licensee failed to give the required or correct information in his application, or committed fraud in making such application.

(b) Upon such cancellation, the licensee must surrender the license so cancelled to the department. (1935, c. 52, s. 10; 1943, c. 649, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment struck out in subsection (b) the words, "together with chauffeur's badge, if any," formerly appearing after the word "cancelled."

§ 20-16. Authority of department to suspend license.—(a) The department shall have authority to suspend the license of any operator or chauffeur without preliminary hearing upon a showing by its records or other satisfactory evidence that the licensee:

1. Has committed an offense for which mandatory revocation of license is required upon conviction;
2. Has been involved as a driver in any accident resulting in the death or personal injury of another or serious property damage, which accident is obviously the result of the negligence of such driver;
3. Is an habitually reckless or negligent driver of a motor vehicle;
4. Is incompetent to drive a motor vehicle;
5. Is an habitual violator of the traffic laws;
6. Has permitted an unlawful or fraudulent use of such license;

7. Has committed an offense in another state, which if committed in this state would be grounds for suspension or revocation; or

8. Has been convicted of illegal transportation of intoxicating liquors.

(b) Upon suspending the license of any person as hereinbefore in this section authorized, the department shall immediately notify the licensee in writing and upon his request shall afford him an opportunity for a hearing as early as practical within not to exceed twenty (20) days after receipt of such request in the county wherein the licensee resides unless the department and the licensee agree that such hearing may be held in some other county. Upon such hearing the duly authorized agents of the department may administer oaths and may issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and the production of relevant books and papers and may require a re-examination of the licensee. Upon such hearing the department shall either rescind its order of suspension, or good cause appearing therefor, may extend the suspension of such license or revoke such license. (1935, c. 52, s. 11.)

Cross Reference.—As to period of suspension or revocation, see § 20-19.

§ 20-17. Mandatory revocation of license by department.—(a) The department shall forthwith revoke the license of any operator or chauffeur upon receiving a record of such operator's or chauffeur's conviction for any of the following offenses when such conviction has become final:

1. Manslaughter (or negligent homicide) resulting from the operation of a motor vehicle.
2. Driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or a narcotic drug.
3. Any felony in the commission of which a motor vehicle is used.
4. Failure to stop and render aid as required under the laws of this State in the event of a motor vehicle accident.
5. Perjury or the making of a false affidavit or statement under oath to the department under this article or under any other law relating to the ownership of motor vehicles.
6. Conviction, or forfeiture of bail not vacated, upon two charges of reckless driving committed within a period of twelve months.
7. Conviction, or forfeiture of bail not vacated, upon one charge of reckless driving while engaged in the illegal transportation of intoxicants for the purpose of sale.

(b) The department, upon receiving a record of the conviction of any person upon a charge of operating a motor vehicle while the license of such person is suspended or revoked, shall immediately extend the period of such first suspension or revocation for an additional like period. (1935, c. 52, s. 12.)

Cross Reference.—As to period of suspension or revocation, see § 20-19.

Editor's Note.—Section 9 of Chapter 346 of the Public Laws of 1943, makes violation of sections 7 and 8 of the act ground for the revocation of license of 15-year-olds licensed for two years under the act. Section 7 makes it unlawful for any person under 16 to drive a vehicle of more than 1½ tons in weight or to drive a vehicle hauling any material of a highly inflammable nature. Section 8 provides that no license shall be issued to any person under 16 except upon written application of parent or person in loco parentis.

§ 20-18. Conviction for failure to dim, etc., lights not ground for suspension or revocation.—Conviction of the offense of failure to shift, depress, deflect, tilt or dim the beams of the head lamps whenever a motor vehicle meets another vehicle on the highways of this state shall not be cause for the suspension or revocation of the operator's or chauffeur's license under the terms of this article. (1939, c. 351, s. 2.)

§ 20-19. Period of suspension or revocation.—The department shall not suspend a license for a period of more than one year and upon revoking a license shall not in any event grant application for a new license until the expiration of one year. (1935, c. 52, s. 13.)

§ 20-20. Surrender and return of license.—The department upon suspending or revoking a license shall require that such license shall be surrendered to and be retained by the department except that at the end of a period of suspension such license so surrendered shall be returned to the licensee. (1935, c. 52, s. 14; 1943, c. 649, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment struck out provision relating to chauffeur's badge.

§ 20-21. No operation under foreign license during suspension or revocation in this state.—Any resident or nonresident whose operator's or chauffeur's license or right or privilege to operate a motor vehicle in this State has been suspended or revoked as provided in this article shall not operate a motor vehicle in this State under a license, permit or registration issued by another jurisdiction or otherwise during such suspension, or after such revocation until a new license is obtained when and as permitted under this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 15.)

§ 20-22. Suspending privileges of nonresidents and reporting convictions.—(a) The privilege of driving a motor vehicle on the highways of this State given to a nonresident hereunder shall be subject to suspension or revocation by the department in like manner and for like cause as an operator's or chauffeur's license issued hereunder may be suspended or revoked.

(b) The department is further authorized, upon receiving a record of the conviction in this State of a non-resident driver of a motor vehicle of any offense under the motor vehicle laws of this State, to forward a certified copy of such record to the motor vehicle administrator in the state wherein the person so convicted is a resident. (1935, c. 52, s. 16.)

§ 20-23. Suspending resident's license upon conviction in another state.—The department is authorized to suspend or revoke the license of any resident of this State upon receiving notice of the conviction of such person in another state of any offense therein which, if committed in this State, would be grounds for the suspension or revocation of the license of an operator or chauffeur. (1935, c. 52, s. 17.)

§ 20-24. When court to forward license to department and report convictions.—(a) Whenever any person is convicted of any violation of the motor vehicle laws of this State, a notation of such conviction shall be entered by the court upon the license of the person so convicted. Whenever any person is convicted of any offense for which this article makes mandatory the revocation of the operator's or chauffeur's license of such person by the department, the court in which such conviction is had shall require the surrender to it of all operator's and chauffeur's licenses then held by the person so convicted and the court shall thereupon forward the same, together with a record of such conviction, to the department.

(b) Every court having jurisdiction over offenses committed under this article, or any other law of this State regulating the operation of motor vehicles on highways, shall forward to the department a record of the conviction of any person in said court for a violation of any said laws, and may recommend the suspension of the operator's or chauffeur's license of the person so convicted.

(c) For the purpose of this article the term "conviction" shall mean a final conviction. Also, for the purposes of this article a forfeiture of bail or collateral deposited to secure a defendant's appearance in court, which forfeiture has not been vacated, shall be equivalent to a conviction.

(d) Pending an appeal, the court from which the appeal is taken shall make such recommendation to the department relative to suspension of license until the appeal shall have been finally determined, as to it may seem just and proper under the circumstances.

(e) After November 1, 1935, no operator's or chauffeur's license shall be suspended or revoked except in accordance with the provisions of this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 18.)

Jurisdiction to Revoke.—A municipal court is without authority to revoke a driver's license, the power to suspend or revoke drivers' licenses being vested exclusively in the department of revenue, subject to the right of review by the superior court, as provided in the following section. State v. McDaniels, 219 N. C. 763, 14 S. E. (2d) 793.

§ 20-25. Right of appeal to court.—Any person denied a license or whose license has been cancelled, suspended or revoked by the department, except where such cancellation is mandatory under the provisions of this article, shall have a right to file a petition within thirty (30) days thereafter for a hearing in the matter in the superior court of the county wherein such person shall reside, or to the resident judge of the district or judge holding the court of that district, or special or emergency judge holding a court in such district in which the violation was committed, and such court or judge is hereby vested with jurisdiction and it shall be its or his duty to set the matter for hearing upon thirty (30) days, written notice to the department, and thereupon to take testimony and examine into the facts of the case, and to determine whether the petitioner is entitled to a license or is subject to suspension, cancellation or revocation of license under the provisions of this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 19.)

§ 20-26. Records.—The department shall keep a record of proceedings and orders pertaining to all licenses granted, refused, suspended or revoked by the department. It shall furnish without charge, for official use only, certified copies of certificates and licenses and documents relating thereto, to officials of the State, counties and municipalities or to any court in this State. A charge not to exceed one dollar ($1.00) shall be made by the department for copies furnished for other than official use. (1935, c. 52, s. 20.)

§ 20-28. Unlawful to drive while license suspended or revoked.—Any person whose operator's or chauffeur's license has been suspended or revoked, as provided in this article, and who shall drive any motor vehicle upon the highways of this State while such license is suspended or revoked, may be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than six months, and there may be imposed in addition thereto a fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00). (1935, c. 52, s. 22.)

§ 20-29. Surrender of license.—Any person operating or in charge of a motor vehicle, when requested by an officer in uniform, or, in the event of accident in which the vehicle which he is operating or in charge of shall be involved, when requested by any other person, who shall refuse to write his name for the purpose of identification or to give his name and address and the name and address of the owner of such vehicle, or who shall give a false name or address, or who shall refuse, on demand of such officer or such other person, to produce his license and exhibit same to such officer or such other person for the purpose of examination, or who shall refuse to surrender his license on demand of the department, or fail to produce same when requested by a court of this State, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 23.)

§ 20-29.1. Commissioner may require reexamination.—The commissioner of motor vehicles, having good and sufficient cause to believe that a licensed operator or chauffeur is incompetent or otherwise not qualified to be licensed, may, upon written notice of at least five days to such licensee, require him to submit to a reexamination to determine his competency to operate a motor vehicle. Upon the conclusion of such examination, the commissioner shall take such action as may be appropriate, and may suspend or revoke the license of such person or permit him to retain such license, or may issue a license subject to restrictions. Refusal or neglect of the licensee to submit to such reexamination shall be grounds for the suspension or revocation of his license. (1943, c. 787, s. 2.)

§ 20-30. Violations of license provisions.—It shall be unlawful for any person to commit any of the following acts:

(a) To display or cause to be displayed or to have in possession any operator's or chauffeur's license, knowing the same to be fictitious or to have been cancelled, revoked, suspended or altered.

(b) To counterfeit, sell, lend to, or knowingly permit the use of, by one not entitled thereto, any operator's or chauffeur's license.

(c) To display or to represent as one's own a license not issued to the person so displaying same.

(d) To fail or refuse to surrender to the department upon demand any license or the badge of any chauffeur whose license has been suspended, cancelled or revoked as provided by law.

(e) To use a false or fictitious name or give a false or fictitious address in any application for an operator's or chauffeur's license, or any renewal or duplicate thereof, or knowingly to make a false statement or knowingly conceal a material fact or otherwise commit a fraud in any such application. Any license procured as aforesaid shall be void from the issuance thereof, and any monies paid therefor shall be forfeited to the State. (1935, c. 52, s. 24.)

§ 20-31. Making false affidavits perjury.—Any person who shall make any false affidavit, or shall knowingly swear or affirm falsely, to any matter or thing required by the terms of this article to be sworn to or affirmed shall be guilty of perjury and upon conviction shall be punished by fine or imprisonment as other persons committing perjury are punishable under the laws of this State. (1935, c. 52, s. 25.)

Cross Reference.—As to perjury, see § 14-209, et seq.

§ 20-32. Unlawful to permit unlicensed minor to drive motor vehicle.—It shall be unlawful for any person to cause or knowingly permit any minor over sixteen and under the age of eighteen years to drive a motor vehicle upon a highway as an operator, unless such minor shall have first obtained a license to so drive a motor vehicle under the provisions of this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 26.)

Editor's Note.—Acts 1943, c. 346, § 6, in force for two years from March 1, 1943, amended this section by changing the first age mentioned therein from sixteen to fifteen years. The cases treated below were decided under a corresponding provision of an earlier law, but should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

Violation of Age Limit as Negligence.—Where a person within the age prohibited by the statute runs an automobile upon and injures a pedestrian, the violation of the statute is negligence per se, and a charge by the court that it is a circumstance from which the jury could infer negligence is reversible error. Taylor v. Stewart, 172 N. C. 203, 90 S. E. 134.

Same—Liability for Injuries.—While it is negligence per se for one within the prohibited age to run an automobile, it is necessary that such negligence proximately cause the injury for damages to be recovered on that account, with the burden of proof on the plaintiff to show it by the preponderance of the evidence. Taylor v. Stewart, 172 N. C. 203, 90 S. E. 134.

Same—Jury Question.—It is for the jury to determine whether a competent and careful chauffeur of maturer years could have avoided the injury under the circumstances, or whether it was due to the fact that a lad within the prohibited age was running it at the time. Taylor v. Stewart, 172 N. C. 203, 90 S. E. 134.

Same—Liability of Father.—While ordinarily a father is not held responsible in damages for the negligent acts of his minor son done without his knowledge and consent, such may be inferred, as where the father constantly permitted his 13 year-old son to run his automobile. Taylor v. Stewart, 172 N. C. 203, 90 S. E. 134.

Liability of Owner for Torts of Driver.—See Cates v. Hall, 171 N. C. 360, 88 S. E. 524; Linville v. Nissen, 162 N. C. 95, 77 S. E. 1096; Williams v. May, 173 N. C. 78, 91 S. E. 604; Wilson v. Polk, 175 N. C. 490, 95 S. E. 849. For a complete treatment, see 2 N. C. Law Rev. 181 et seq.

Same—Where Driver Is Son.—Clark v. Sweaney, 176 N. C. 529, 97 S. E. 474; Linville v. Nissen, 162 N. C. 95, 77 S. E. 1096. See 2 N. C. Law Rev. 181 et seq.

§ 20-33. Unlawful to employ unlicensed chauffeur.—No person shall employ any chauffeur to operate a motor vehicle who is not licensed as provided by this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 27.)

§ 20-34. Unlawful to permit violations of this article.—No person shall authorize or knowingly permit a motor vehicle owned by him or under his control to be driven by any person who has no legal right to do so or in violation of any of the provisions of this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 28.)

§ 20-35. Penalties for misdemeanor.—(a) It shall be a misdemeanor to violate any of the provisions of this article unless such violation is by this article or other law of this State declared to be a felony.

(b) Unless another penalty is in this article or by the laws of this State provided, every person convicted of a misdemeanor for the violation of any provision of this article shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred ($500.00) dollars or by imprisonment for not more than six (6) months. (1935, c. 52, s. 29.)

§ 20-36. Fees.—(a) The fees charged for the licenses herein provided for shall be as follows:

For an operator's license the sum of one ($1.00) dollar, which shall continue the license in effect until revoked or cancelled; chauffeur's license two ($2.00) dollars annually, or until revoked: Provided, that no charge shall be made for any private operator's license which shall be applied for prior to November first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five.

(b) All fees collected under the provisions of this article shall be paid by the commissioner of revenue to the state treasurer to be credited by him to the state highway fund. (1935, c. 52, s. 30.)

§ 20-37. Limitations on issuance of licenses.—There shall be no operator's or chauffeur's license issued within this State other than that provided for in this article, nor shall there be any other examination required: Provided, however, that cities and towns shall have the power to license, regulate and control drivers and operators of taxicabs within the city or town limits and to regulate and control operators of taxicabs operating between the city or town to points, not incorporated, within a radius of five miles of said city or town. (1935, c. 52, s. 34; 1942, c. 639, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the proviso.

The cases treated below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the earlier law, but should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

"Auto Truck" Defined as Automobile.—See Bethlehem Motors Corp. v. Flynt, 178 N. C. 399, 100 S. E. 693.

Motorcycle. — Statutory definition cited in Anderson v. Life, etc., Ins. Co., 197 N. C. 72, 76, 147 S. E. 693, holding that the expression "motor driven car" in an insurance policy excludes a motorcycle.

Intersection.—Under this section where one public highway joins another, but does not cross it, the point where they join is an intersection of public highways. Goss v. Williams, 196 N. C. 213, 145 S. E. 169, citing Vartanian, Law of Automobiles, Part II, chapter 1, p. 414, note.

Bicycle.—Under this section a bicycle is deemed a vehicle, and the rider of a bicycle upon the highway is subject to the applicable provisions of the statutes relating to motor vehicles. Van Dyke v. Atlantic Greyhound Corp., 218 N. C. 283, 10 S. E. (2d) 727.

A bicycle is a vehicle and is subject to provisions of the motor vehicle act except those which by their nature can have no application. Tarrant v. Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., 221 N. C. 390, 20 S. E. (2d) 565.

Residential District.—A charge defining a "residential district" as being "the territory contiguous to a highway, not comprising a business district, when the frontage on the highway for a distance of 300 feet or more is mainly occupied by dwellings and buildings in use for business" is held without error, the definition of a residential district in chapter 148, Public Laws of 1927, Art. 1, § (s), not having been repealed by this section. Reid v. City Coach Co., 215 N. C. 469, 2 S. E. (2d) 578, 123 A. L. R. 140. But note 1939 amendment adding subd. (w) 1.

Where the evidence established that the scene of the accident was not in a business district, and there was no evidence that defendant's vehicle was being driven in excess of 20 miles an hour, whether the accident occurred in a residential district as defined by subsection (w) 1 of this section, was held immaterial, since such speed did not violate the statutory restriction. Mitchell v. Melts, 220 N. C. 793, 18 S. E. (2d) 406.

That part of a highway comprising an intersection may not properly be considered in applying subsection (w) 1 of this section to any given locality. Mitchell v. Melts, 220 N. C. 793, 18 S. E. (2d) 406.

Business District.—Uncontradicted testimony that only two business buildings front on the street in the block in which the accident occurred and that both of them together comprise not more than 40 feet frontage, establishes as a matter of law that the locus in quo is not a business district as defined by subsection (a) of this section. Mitchell v. Melts, 220 N. C. 793, 18 S. E. (2d) 406.

Applied in State v. Brooks, 210 N. C. 273, 186 S. E. 237; Kelly v. Hunsucker, 211 N. C. 153, 189 S. E. 664; Wooten v. Smith, 215 N. C. 48, 200 S. E. 921.

§ 20-44. Authority to grant or refuse applications.—The department shall examine and determine the genuineness, regularity and legality of every application for registration of a vehicle and for a certificate of title therefor, and of any other application lawfully made in the department, and may in all cases make investigation as may be deemed necessary or require additional information, and shall reject any such application if not satisfied of the genuineness, regularity, or legality thereof or the truth of any statement contained therein, or for any other reason, when authorized by law. § 20-47. Department may summon witnesses and take testimony.—(a) The commissioner and officers of the department designated by him shall have authority to summon witnesses to give testimony under oath or to give written deposition upon any matter under the jurisdiction of the department. Such summons may require the production of relevant books, papers, or records.

(b) Every such summons shall be served at least five days before the return date, either by personal service made by any person over eighteen years of age or by registered mail, but return acknowledgment is required to prove such latter service. The giving of notice by mail is complete upon the expiration of four days after such deposit of such notice. Proof of the giving of notice in either such manner may be made by the certificate of any officer or employee of the department or affidavit of any person over twenty-one years of age, naming the person to whom such notice was given and specifying the time, place, and manner of the giving thereof. (1937, c. 407, s. 13.)

§ 20-49. Police authority of department.—The commissioner and such officers and inspectors of the department as he shall designate and all members of the highway patrol shall have the power:

(a) Of peace officers for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this article and of any other law regulating the operation of vehicles or the use of the highways.

(b) To make arrests upon view and without warrant for any violation committed in their presence of any of the provisions of this article or other laws regulating the operation of vehicles or the use of the highways.

Owner to secure registration and certificate of title.—Every owner of a vehicle intended to be operated upon any highway of this state and required by this article to be registered shall, before the same is so operated, apply to the department for and obtain the registration thereof, the registration plates therefor, and a certificate of title therefor, and attach the registration plates to the vehicle, except when an owner is permitted to operate a vehicle under the registration provisions relating to manufacturers, dealers and non-residents contained in § 20-79: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall require the application for or the issuance of a certificate of title for a trailer having not more than two wheels with a gross weight of vehicle and load of twenty-five hundred (2500) pounds or less, and towed by a passenger car but before operating a trailer as described above upon the highways of the state, the owner thereof must obtain the registration thereof and pay the registration fees as now provided by part seven of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 15; 1943, c. 648.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote the proviso. The cases treated below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the earlier law, but should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

Purpose as Compared with Mortgage Registration Statute.—This statute is a police regulation to protect the general public from fraud, imposition and theft of motor vehicles. The registration statute, secs. 47-20 and 47-23, specifically protects mortgagees. Carolina Discount Corp. v. Landis Motor Co., 190 N. C. 157, 160, 129 S. E. 414.

Effect upon Mortgage Registration Statute.—The provisions of secs. 47-20 and 47-23 are not affected or repealed by this article as amended. Carolina Discount Corp. v. Landis Motor Co., 190 N. C. 157, 160, 129 S. E. 414.

Necessity of Registering Conditional Sale Contracts.—All chattel mortgages and conditional-sale contracts on motor vehicles must be registered in the county in which the mortgagor resides, and in case the mortgagor resides out of the State, then in the county where the said motor vehicle is situated, in order to obtain immunity against the creditors and purchasers for value, from the mortgagor. The conditional-sale contract, purchased by the plaintiff, never having been registered, is invalid as against the defendant, a purchaser for full value. Carolina Discount Corp. v. Landis Motor Co., 190 N. C. 157, 160, 129 S. E. 414.

§ 20-51. Exempt from registration.—The following shall be exempt from the requirement of registration and certificate of title: (a) Any such vehicle driven or moved upon a highway in conformance with the provisions of this article relating to manufacturers, dealers, or nonresidents.

(b) Any such vehicle which is driven or moved upon a highway only for the purpose of crossing such highway from one property to another.

(c) Any implement of husbandry, whether of a type otherwise subject to registration hereunder or not, which is only incidentally operated or moved upon a highway.

(d) Any special mobile equipment as herein defined.

(e) No certificate of title need be obtained for any vehicle of a type subject to registration owned by the government of the United States.

(f) Farm tractors and trailers or semi-trailers with rubber tires used in farming operations, if such farm tractors or trailers or semi-trailers are otherwise exempt from registration, shall not be rendered subject to registration by reason of the use of such vehicles upon public highways by the owner of a farm in transporting wood, fertilizer, farm products, farm supplies, farm implements, or farm equipment from place to place on the same farm or from one farm to another. (1937, c. 407, s. 16; 1943, c. 500.)

Cross References.—As to manufacturers and dealers, see § 20-79. As to non-residents, see § 20-83.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added paragraph (f).

§ 20-52. Application for registration and certificate of title.—(a) Every owner of a vehicle subject to registration hereunder shall make application to the department for the registration thereof and issuance of a certificate of title for such vehicle upon the appropriate form or forms furnished by the department, and every such application shall bear the signature of the owner written with pen and ink, and said signature shall be acknowledged by the owner before a person authorized to administer oaths, and said application shall contain:

1. The name, bona fide residence and mail address of the owner or business address of the owner if a firm, association or corporation;

2. A description of the vehicle, including, in so far as the hereinafter specified data may exist with respect to a given vehicle, the make, model, type of body, the serial number of the vehicle, the engine and other identifying numbers of the vehicle and whether new or used, and if a new vehicle, the date of sale and actual date of delivery of vehicle by the manufacturer or dealer to the person intending to operate such vehicle;

3. A statement of the applicant's title and of all liens or encumbrances upon said vehicle and the names and addresses of all persons having any interest therein and the nature of every such interest;

4. Such further information as may reasonably be required by the department to enable it to determine whether the vehicle is lawfully entitled to registration and the owner entitled to a certificate of title.

(b) When such application refers to a new or foreign vehicle purchased from a dealer, the application shall be accompanied by an application for certificate of title in the name of the dealer containing the description of vehicle, statement of dealer's title and all liens or encumbrances upon said vehicle, the name and address of person to whom sold, date of sale, actual date vehicle was delivered to purchaser, and such other information as may be required by the department. (1937, c. 407, s. 17.)

§ 20-53. Application for specially constructed, reconstructed, or foreign vehicle.—(a) In the event the vehicle to be registered is a specially constructed, reconstructed, or foreign vehicle, such fact shall be stated in the application, and with reference to every foreign vehicle which has been registered outside of this state, the owner shall surrender to the department all registration cards and certificates of title or other evidence of such foreign registration as may be in his possession or under his control, except as provided in sub-division (b) hereof.

(b) Where, in the course of interstate operation of a vehicle registered in another state, it is desirable to retain registration of said vehicle in such other state, such applicant need not surrender, but shall submit for inspection said evidence of such foreign registration, and the department in its discretion, and upon a proper showing, shall register said vehicle in this state but shall not issue a certificate of title for such vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 18.)

§ 20-54. Authority for refusing registration or certificate of title.—The department shall refuse registration or issuance of a certificate of title or any transfer of registration upon any of the following grounds:

(a) That the application contains any false or fraudulent statement or that the applicant has failed to furnish required information or reasonable additional information requested by the department or that the applicant is not entitled to the issuance of a certificate of title or registration of the vehicle under this article;

(b) That the vehicle is mechanically unfit or unsafe to be operated or moved upon the highways;

(c) That the department has reasonable ground to believe that the vehicle is a stolen or embezzled vehicle, or that the granting of registration or the issuance of a certificate of title would constitute a fraud against the rightful owner or other person having valid lien upon such vehicle;

(d) That the registration of the vehicle stands suspended or revoked for any reason as provided in the motor vehicle laws of this state;

(e) That the required fee has not been paid. (1937, c. 407, s. 19.)

Cross Reference.—As to fees, see § 20-85.

§ 20-55. Examination of registration records and index of stolen and recovered vehicles.—The department, upon receiving application for any transfer of registration or for original registration of a vehicle, other than a new vehicle sold by a North Carolina dealer, shall first check the engine and serial numbers shown in the application against the indexes of registered motor vehicles, and against the index of stolen and recovered motor vehicles required to be maintained by this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 20.)

§ 20-56. Registration indexes.—The department shall file each application received, and when satisfied as to the genuineness and regularity thereof, and that the applicant is entitled to register such vehicle and to the issuance of a certificate of title, shall register the vehicle therein described and keep a record thereof in suitable books or on index cards as follows:

(a) Under a distinctive registration number assigned to the vehicle;

(b) Alphabetically, under the name of the owner;

(c) Under the motor number, if available; otherwise any other identifying number of the vehicle; and

(d) In the discretion of the department, in any other manner it may deem advisable. (1937, c. 407, s. 20½.)

§ 20-57. The department to issue certificate of title and registration card.—(a) The department upon registering a vehicle shall issue a registration card and a certificate of title as separate documents.

(b) The registration card shall be delivered to the owner and shall contain upon the face thereof the name and address of the owner, space for owner's signature, the registration number assigned to the vehicle, and such description of the vehicle as determined by the commissioner, and upon the reverse side a form for endorsement of notice to the department upon transfer of the vehicle.

(c) Every owner, upon receipt of a registration card, shall write his signature thereon with pen and ink in the space provided. Every such registration card shall at all times be carried in the vehicle to which it refers, or shall be carried by the person operating or in control of such vehicle, who shall display the same upon demand of any peace officer or any officer of the department: Provided, however, no person charged with failing to so carry such registration card shall be convicted if he produces in court a registration card theretofore issued to him and valid at the time of his arrest.

(d) The certificate of title shall contain upon the face thereof the identical information required upon the face of the registration card, and in addition thereto the date of issuance and a statement of the owner's title and of all liens and encumbrances upon the vehicle therein described, and whether possession is held by the owner under a lease, contract or conditional sale, or other like agreement.

(e) The certificate of title shall also contain upon the reverse side form of assignment of title or interest and warranty thereof, with space for notation of liens and encumbrances upon such vehicle at the time of a transfer.

(f) Certificates of title upon which liens or encumbrances are shown shall be delivered or mailed by the department to the holder of the first lien or encumbrance.

(g) Certificates of title shall bear thereon the seal of the department.

(h) Certificates of title need not be renewed annually, but shall remain valid until canceled by the department for cause or upon a transfer of any interest shown therein. (1937, c. 407, s. 21; 1943, c. 715.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the proviso to paragraph (c).

§ 20-58. Release by lien holder to owner.—

(a) A person holding a lien or encumbrance as shown upon a certificate of title upon a vehicle may release such lien or encumbrance or assign his interest to the owner without affecting the registration of said vehicle. The department, upon receiving a certificate of title upon which a lien holder has released or assigned his interest to the owner or upon receipt of a certificate of title not so endorsed, but accompanied by a legal release from a lien holder of his interest in or to a vehicle, shall issue a new certificate of title as upon an application for duplicate certificate of title.

(b) Any lien in favor of any person, firm or corporation which, since notice of such lien to the department has dissolved, ceased to do business, or gone out of business for any reason whatsoever, and which shall remain of record in the department as a notice of lien of such person, firm or corporation for a period of more than three years from the date of notice, shall become null and void and of no further force and effect as it relates to the issuance or transfer of title by the department. (1937, c. 407, s. 22.)

§ 20-59. Unlawful for lienor who holds certificate of title not to surrender same when lien satisfied.—It shall be unlawful and constitute a misdemeanor for a lienor who holds a certificate of title as provided in this article to refuse or fail to surrender such certificate of title to the person legally entitled thereto, when called upon by such person, within ten days after his lien shall have been paid and satisfied, and any person convicted under this section shall be fined not more than fifty dollars ($50.00) or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1937, c. 407, s. 23.)

§ 20-60. Owner after transfer not liable for negligent operation.—The owner of a motor vehicle who has made a bona fide sale or transfer of his title or interest, and who has delivered possession of such vehicle and the certificate of title thereto properly endorsed to the purchaser or transferee, shall not be liable for any damages thereafter resulting from negligent operation of such vehicle by another. (1937, c. 407, s. 24.)

§ 20-61. Owner dismantling or wrecking vehicle to return evidence of registration.—Any owner dismantling or wrecking any vehicle shall forward to the department the certificate of title, registration card and/or other proof of ownership, and the registration plate or plates last issued for such vehicle. No person, firm or corporation shall dismantle or wreck any motor vehicle without first complying with the requirements of this section. (1937, c. 407, s. 25.)

§ 20-62. Sale of motor vehicles to be dismantled.—Any owner who sells a motor vehicle as scrap or to be dismantled or destroyed shall assign the certificate of title thereto to the purchaser, and shall deliver such certificate so assigned to the department with an application for a permit to dismantle such vehicle. The department shall thereupon issue to the purchaser a permit to dismantle the same, which shall authorize such person to possess or transport such vehicle or to transfer ownership thereto by endorsement upon such permit. A certificate of title shall not again be issued for such motor vehicle in the event it is scrapped, dismantled, or destroyed. In any case, where the owner for any reason fails to send in title for a junked or dismantled vehicle, the department shall have authority to take possession of such title for cancellation. (1937, c. 407, s. 26.)

§ 20-63. Registration plates to be furnished by the department.—(a) The department upon registering a vehicle shall issue to the owner one registration plate for a motorcycle, trailer or semi-trailer and two registration plates for every other motor vehicle. Registration plates issued by the department under this article shall be and remain the property of the state, and it shall be lawful for the commissioner or his duly authorized agents to summarily take possession of any plate or plates which he has reason to believe is being illegally used, and to keep in his possession such plate or plates pending investigation and legal disposition of the same.

(b) Every registration plate shall have displayed upon it the registration number assigned to the vehicle for which it is issued, also the name of the state of North Carolina, which may be abbreviated, and the year number for which it is issued or the date of expiration thereof.

(c) Such registration plate and the required numerals thereon, except the year number for which issued, shall be of sufficient size to be plainly readable from a distance of one hundred feet during daylight.

(d) Registration plates issued for a motor vehicle other than a motorcycle, trailer or semi-trailer shall be attached thereto, one in the front and the other in the rear. The registration plate issued for a motorcycle, trailer or semi-trailer shall be attached to the rear thereof.

(e) Preservation and cleaning of registration plates: It shall be the duty of each and every registered owner of a motor vehicle to keep the registration plates assigned to such motor vehicle reasonably clean and free from dust and dirt, and such registered owner, or any person in his employ, or who operates such motor vehicle by his authority, shall, upon the request of any proper officer, immediately clean such registration plates so that the numbers thereon may be readily distinguished, and any person who shall neglect or refuse to so clean a registration plate, after having been requested to do so, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not exceeding fifty dollars ($50.00) or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days.

(f) Operating with false numbers. Any person who shall wilfully operate a motor vehicle with a registration plate which has been repainted or altered or forged, or which was issued by the commissioner for a motor vehicle other than the one on which used, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

(g) Alteration, disguise, or concealment of numbers. Any operator of a motor vehicle who shall wilfully mutilate, bend, twist, cover or cause to be covered or partially covered by any bumper, light, spare tire, tire rack, strap, or other device, or who shall paint, enamel, emboss, stamp, print, perforate, or alter or add to or cut off any part or portion of a registration plate or the figures or letters thereon, or who shall place or deposit or cause to be placed or deposited any oil, grease, or other substance upon such registration plates for the purpose of making dust adhere thereto, or who shall deface, disfigure, change, or attempt to change any letter or figure thereon, or who shall display a number plate in other than a horizontal upright position, shall be

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment struck out the words "and with intent to defraud the state of registration fees" formerly appearing after the word "wilfully" in line two of paragraph (f). The amendment also struck out the words "and with intent to conceal the identity of such motor vehicle or the identity of the registered owner thereof" formerly appearing after the word "wilfully" in line three of paragraph (g).

§ 20-64. Transfer of registration plates. — (a) Registration plates issued by the department for vehicles privately owned and operated shall not be transferred from one vehicle to another, but shall be assigned and transferred from one owner to another, upon the assignment of title as required by this article, and shall remain on the vehicle for which originally issued.

(b) Registration plates issued by the department for vehicles owned and operated by the state or any department thereof, or by any county, city or town, school district or other political subdivision of the state, shall not be assigned and transferred from one owner to another, but shall be retained by the owner to whom originally issued, and may be used by the owner on another vehicle: Provided, that the owner shall make application to the department for said transfer and comply with the requirements of this article relative to certificate of title for vehicle the registration plates are to be transferred to.

(c) Registration plates issued by the department for vehicles operated for hire shall be subject to the same transfer provision as of vehicles owned by the state or any department thereof as set forth in subsection (b) of this section. (1937, c. 407, s. 28.)

§ 20-65. Expiration of registration.—Every vehicle registration under this article and every registration card and registration plate issued hereunder shall expire at midnight on the thirty-first day of December of each year: Provided, however, that it shall not be unlawful to continue to operate any vehicle upon the highways of this state after the expiration of the registration of said vehicle, registration card and registration plate during the period between the thirty-first day of December and the thirty-first day of January, inclusive. (1937, c. 407, s. 29; 1943, c. 592, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the proviso.

§ 20-66. Application for renewal of registration.—(a) Application for renewal of a vehicle registration shall be made by the owner upon proper application and by payment of the registration fee for such vehicle, as provided by law.

(b) The department may receive applications for renewal of registration and grant the same, and issue new registration cards and plates at any time prior to expiration of registration, but no person shall display upon a vehicle the new registration plates prior to December first. (1937, c. 407, s. 30.)

§ 20-67. Notice of change of address or name.—(a) Whenever any person, after making application for or obtaining the registration of a vehicle or a certificate of title, shall move from the address named in the application or shown upon a registration card or certificate of title, such person shall within ten days thereafter notify the department in writing of his old and new addresses.

(b) Whenever the name of any person who has made application for or obtained the registration of a vehicle or a certificate of title is thereafter changed by marriage or otherwise, such person shall within ten days notify the department of such former and new name. (1937, c. 407, s. 31.)

§ 20-68. Replacement of lost or damaged certificates, cards and plates.—(a) In the event any registration card or registration plate is lost, mutilated, or becomes illegible, the owner or legal representative of the owner of the vehicle for which the same was issued, as shown by the records of the department, shall immediately make application for and may obtain a duplicate or a substitute or a new registration under a new registration number, as determined to be most advisable by the department, upon the applicant's furnishing under oath information satisfactory to the department and payment of required fee.

(b) When a dealer acquires a motor vehicle which has been previously licensed, he should advise the party from whom he acquires the vehicle as to the provisions of the law which require that party to report to the motor vehicle bureau the sale or disposal of the vehicle. If the dealer wishes to have the license transferred to his name he may do so, but this is optional with him. However, should the license plate or plates be lost or destroyed while the vehicle is in the possession of the dealer, no replacement may be issued unless and until license and title has been transferred to the dealer. Nor shall any subsequent owner secure replacement plates until application for transfer of title and license has been made.

(c) In the event any certificate of title is lost, mutilated, or becomes illegible, the owner or legal representative of the owner of the vehicle for which the same was issued, as shown by the records of the department, shall immediately make application for and may obtain a duplicate upon the applicant furnishing under oath information satisfactory to the department and payment of required fee. Upon issuance of any duplicate certificate of title the previous certificate last issued shall be void. (1937, c. 407, s. 32.)

Cross Reference.—As to fees for duplicate certificate, see § 20-85.

§ 20-69. Department authorized to assign new engine number.—The owner of a motor vehicle upon which the engine number or serial number has become illegible or has been removed or obliterated shall immediately make application to the department for a new engine or serial number for such motor vehicle. The department, when satisfied that the applicant is the lawful owner of the vehicle referred to in such application is hereby authorized to assign a new engine or serial number thereto, and shall require that such number, together with the name of this state, or a symbol indicating this state, be stamped upon the engine, or in the event such number is a serial number, then upon such portion of the motor vehicle as shall be designated by the department. (1937, c. 407, s. 33.)

§ 20-70. Department to be notified when another engine is installed or body changed.—(a) Whenever a motor vehicle registered hereunder is altered by the installation of another engine in place of an engine, the number of which is shown in the registration records, or the installation of another body in place of a body, the owner of such motor vehicle shall immediately give notice to the department in writing on a form prepared by it, which shall state the number of the former engine and the number of the newly installed engine, the registration number of the motor vehicle, the name of the owner and any other information which the department may require. Whenever another engine has been substituted as provided in this section, and the notice given as required hereunder, the department shall insert the number of the newly installed engine upon the registration card and certificate of title issued for such motor vehicle.

(b) Whenever a new engine or serial number has been assigned to and stamped upon a motor vehicle as provided in section 20-69, or whenever a new engine has been installed or body changed as provided in this section, the department shall require the owner to surrender to the department the registration card and certificate of title previously issued for said vehicle. The department shall also require the owner to make application for a duplicate registration card and a duplicate certificate of title showing the new motor or serial number thereon or new style of body, and upon receipt of such application and fee, as for any other duplicate title, the department shall issue to said owner a duplicate registration and a duplicate certificate of title showing thereon the new number in place of the original number or the new style of body. (1937, c. 407, s. 34; 1943, c. 726.)

Cross Reference.—As to fee for duplicate registration card and certificate of title, see § 20-85.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment made this section applicable to change of body of motor vehicle.

§ 20-71. Altering or forging certificate of title a felony.—Any person who shall alter with fraudulent intent any certificate of title or registration card issued by the department, or forge or counterfeit any certificate of title or registration card purporting to have been issued by the department under the provisions of this article, or who shall alter or falsify with fraudulent intent or forge any assignment thereof, or who shall hold or use any such certificate, registration card or assignment knowing the same to have been altered, forged or falsified, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 407, s. 35.)

Cross Reference.—As to punishment of felonies for which no specific punishment is prescribed, see § 14-2.

Part 4. Transfer of Title or Interest.

§ 20-72. Transfer by owner.—(a) Whenever the owner of a registered vehicle transfers or assigns his title or interest thereto, he shall endorse upon the reverse side of the registration card issued for such vehicle the name and address of the transferee and the date of transfer, and shall immediately forward such card to the department.

(b) The owner of any vehicle registered under the foregoing provisions of this article, transferring or assigning his title or interest thereto, shall also endorse an assignment and warranty of title in form approved by the department upon the reverse side of the certificate of title or execute an assignment and warranty of title of such vehicle and a statement of all liens or encumbrances thereon, which statement shall be verified under oath by the owner, who shall deliver the certificate of title to the purchaser or transferee at the time of delivering the vehicle, except that where a deed of trust, mortgage, conditional sale or title retaining contract is obtained from purchaser or transferee in payment of purchase price or otherwise, the lien holder shall forward such certificate of title papers to the department within twenty days together with necessary fees, or deliver such papers to the purchaser at the time of delivering the vehicle, as he may elect, but in either event the penalty provided in section 20-74 shall apply if application for transfer is not made within twenty days. (1937, c. 407, s. 36.)

Cross Reference.—As to fees, see § 20-85.

Editor's Note.—The case cited below was decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

Transfer of Certificate as Prerequisite to Passing of Title.—A careful perusal of this article fails to disclose any provision prohibiting a sale or transfer of the title of a motor vehicle without a transfer and delivery of a certificate of registration of title, and there is no provision that a sale so made is either fraudulent or void. Its provisions operate upon the parties who make a sale or a purchase without complying with its terms. Its penal provisions are clear. They are directed against those who violate after the sale, or transfer, has been made. Carolina Discount Corp. v. Landis Motor Co., 190 N. C. 157, 160, 129 S. E. 414.

Necessity for Writing to Pass Title.—"A sale of personal property is not required to be evidenced by any written instrument in order to be valid. This rule had been of such long standing prior to the enactment of the Motor Vehicle Registration Act, we cannot assume that the Legislature intended to change this rule, unless it says so." Carolina Discount Corp. v. Landis Motor Co., 190 N. C. 157, 160, 129 S. E. 414.

§ 20-73. New owner to secure transfer of registration and new certificate of title.—The transferee within twenty days after the purchase shall apply to the department for a transfer of registration of the vehicle and shall present the certificate of title endorsed and assigned as hereinbefore provided to the department, and make application for and obtain a new certificate of title for such vehicle except as otherwise permitted in sections 20-75 and 20-76. (1937, c. 407, s. 37; 1939, c. 275.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment substituted "twenty" for "fifteen" with reference to number of days.

§ 20-74. Penalty for failure to make application for transfer within the time specified by law.—It is the intent and purpose of this article that every new owner or purchaser of a vehicle previously registered shall make application for transfer of title and registration within twenty days after acquiring same, or see that such application is sent in by the lien holder with proper fees, and responsibility for such transfer shall rest on the purchaser. Any person, firm or corporation failing to do so shall pay a penalty of two dollars ($2.00) in addition to the fees otherwise provided in this article. It is further provided that any dealer or owner who shall knowingly make any false statement as to the date a vehicle was sold or acquired shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars ($50.00) or imprisoned not more than thirty days. All moneys collected under this section shall go to the state highway fund. (1937, c. 407, s. 38; 1939, c. 275.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment substituted "twenty" for "fifteen" with reference to number of days.

§ 20-75. When transferee is a dealer.—When the transferee of a vehicle is a dealer who holds the same for resale and operates the same only for purposes of demonstration under a dealer's number plate such transferee shall not be required to register such vehicle nor forward the certificate of title to the department as provided in section 20-73, but such transferee, upon transferring his title or interest to another person, shall give notice of such transfer to the department and shall execute and acknowledge an assignment and warranty of title in form approved by the department, and deliver the same to the person to whom such transfer is made at the same time the vehicle is delivered, except as provided in section 20-72, sub-section (b). (1937, c. 407, s. 39.)

§ 20-76. Title lost or unlawfully detained.—Whenever the applicant for the registration of a vehicle or a new certificate of title thereto is unable to present a certificate of title thereto by reason of the same being lost or unlawfully detained by one in possession, or the same is otherwise not available, the department is hereby authorized to receive such application and to examine into the circumstances of the case, and may require the filing of affidavits or other information; and when the department is satisfied that the applicant is entitled thereto is hereby authorized to register such vehicle and issue a new registration card, registration plate or plates and certificates of title to the person entitled thereto, upon payment of proper fee for duplicate title and/or replacement. (1937, c. 407, s. 40.)

Cross Reference.—As to proper fee, see § 20-85.

§ 20-77. Transfer by operation of law.—(a) Whenever the title or interest of an owner in or to a vehicle shall pass to another by operation of law, as upon order in bankruptcy, execution sale, repossession upon default in performing the terms of a lease or executory sales contract, or otherwise than by voluntary transfer, the transferee shall secure a transfer of registration to himself and a new certificate of title upon proper application, payment of the fees provided by law, and presentation of the last certificate of title, if available and such instruments or documents of authority or certified copies thereof as may be sufficient or required by law to evidence or effect a transfer of interest in or to chattels in such cases: Provided, however, transfers of registration shall only be made as provided for in § 20-64, sub-sections (a), (b) and (c).

(b) In the event of transfer as upon inheritance, devise or bequest, the department shall, upon receipt of a certified copy of a will, letters of administration and/or a certificate from the clerk of the superior court showing that the motor vehicle registered in the name of the decedent owner has been assigned to his widow as part of her year's support, transfer both title and license as otherwise provided for transfers. However, if no administrator has qualified or the clerk of the superior court refuses to issue a certificate, the department may upon affidavit showing satisfactory reasons therefor effect such transfer, but the new title so issued shall not affect the validity nor be in prejudice of any creditor's lien.

(c) Mechanic's or Storage Lien.—In any case where a vehicle is sold under a mechanic's or storage lien, the department shall be given a twenty-day notice as provided in § 20-114. (1937, c. 407, s. 41; 1943, c. 726.)

Cross Reference.—As to fees required, see § 20-85.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment substituted the word "twenty-day" for the word "thirty-day" in subsection (c).

§ 20-78. When department to transfer registration and issue new certificate.—(a) The department, upon receipt of a properly endorsed certificate of title and application for transfer of registration, accompanied by the required fee, shall transfer the registration thereof under its registration number to the new owner, and shall issue a new registration card and certificate of title as upon an original registration.

(b) The department shall retain and appropriately file every application for certificate of title upon which certificate of title was issued and every surrendered certificate of title, such file to be so maintained as to permit the tracing of title of the vehicle designated therein.

After such applications for certificate of title or surrendered certificates of title have been on file with the department for a period of three years, the commissioner is hereby authorized and empowered to provide for the photographic or photostatic recording of such documents in such manner as he may deem expedient. The photographic or photostatic copies herein authorized shall be sufficient as evidence in the tracing of the titles of the motor vehicles designated therein, and shall also be admitted in evidence in all actions or proceedings to the same extent that the originals would have been admitted. (1937, c. 407, s. 42; 1943, c. 726.)

Cross Reference.—As to required fees, see § 20-85.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the second and third sentences of subsection (b).

Part 5. Issuance of Special Plates.

§ 20-79. Registration by manufacturers and dealers.—(a) A manufacturer of or dealer in motor vehicles, trailers or semi-trailers, owning or operating any such vehicle or any vehicle known as a wrecker upon any highway, in lieu of registering such vehicle, may obtain from the department, upon application therefor upon the proper official forms and payment of the fees required by law, and attach to each such vehicle, two number plates, which plates shall each bear thereon a distinctive number, also the name of this state, which may be abbreviated, and the year for which issued, together with the word "dealer" or a distinguishing symbol indicating that such plate or plates are issued to a dealer may, during the calendar year for which issued, be transferred from one such vehicle to another owned and operated by such manufacturer or dealer.

(b) Every manufacturer of or dealer in motor vehicles shall obtain and have in his possession a certificate of title issued by the department to such manufacturer or dealer of each vehicle, owned and operated upon the highways by such manufacturer or dealer, except that a certificate of title shall not be required for any new vehicle to be sold as such by a manufacturer or dealer prior to the sale of such vehicle by the manufacturer or dealer; and except that any dealer or any employee of any dealer may operate any motor vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer, the property of the dealer, for the purpose of furthering the business interest of the dealer in the sale, demonstration and servicing of motor vehicles, trailers and semi-trailers, of collecting accounts, contacting prospective customers and generally carrying on routine business necessary for conducting a general motor vehicle sales business: Provided, that no use shall be made of dealer's demonstration plates on vehicles operated in any other business dealers may be engaged in: Provided further, that dealers may allow the operation of motor vehicles owned by dealers and displaying dealer's demonstration plates in the personal use of persons other than those employed in the dealer's business: Provided further, that said persons shall, at all times while operating a motor vehicle under the provisions of this section, have in their possession a certificate on such form as approved by the commissioner from the dealer, which shall be valid for not more than forty-eight hours: Provided further, that motor vehicles, trailers and semi-trailers sold by dealers may be operated for a period not exceeding ten days from the date of sale by the purchaser thereof with dealer's demonstration plates, provided the purchasers have in their possession receipts from the dealers upon which the dealer has certified that the necessary amount of money to pay for titles and licenses has been paid by the purchasers to the dealers to be forwarded to the motor vehicle bureau, either direct or through one of its branch offices, on such form as approved by the commissioner.

(c) No manufacturer of or dealer in motor vehicles, trailers or semi-trailers shall cause or permit any such vehicle owned by such person to be operated or moved upon a public highway without there being displayed upon such vehicle a number plate or plates issued to such person, either under section 20-63 or under this section.

(d) No manufacturer of or dealer in motor vehicles, trailers or semi-trailers shall cause or permit any such vehicle owned by such person or by any person in his employ, which is in the personal use of such person or employee, to be operated or moved upon a public highway with a "dealer" plate attached to such vehicle.

(e) Transfer of Dealer Registration. — No change in the name of a firm, partnership or corporation, nor the taking in of a new partner, nor the withdrawal of one or more of the firm, shall be considered a new business; but if any one or more of the partners remain in the firm, or if there is change in ownership of less than a majority of the stock, if a corporation, the business shall be regarded as continuing and the dealers' plates originally issued may continue to be used. (1937, c. 407, s. 43.)

§ 20-80. National guard plates.—The commissioner shall cause to be made each year a sufficient number of automobile license plates to furnish each officer of the North Carolina National Guard with a set thereof, said license plates to be in the same form and character as other license plates now or hereafter authorized by law to be used upon private passenger vehicles registered in this state, except that such license plates shall bear on the face thereof the following words, "National Guard." The said license plates shall be issued only to officers of the North Carolina National Guard, and for which license plates the commissioner shall collect fees in an amount equal to the fees collected for the licensing and registering of private vehicles. The adjutant general of North Carolina shall furnish to the commissioner each year, prior to the date that licenses are issued, a list of the officers of the North Carolina National Guard, which said list shall contain the rank of each officer listed in the order of his seniority in the service, and the said license plates shall be numbered, beginning with the number two hundred and one and in numerical sequence thereafter up to and including the number five hundred, according to seniority, the senior officer being issued the license bearing the numerals two hundred and one. Upon transfer of the ownership of a private passenger vehicle upon which there is a license plate bearing the words national guard, said plates shall be removed and the authority to use the same shall thereby be canceled; however, upon application to the commissioner, he shall reissue said plate to the officer of the national guard to whom the same were originally issued, and upon said reissue the commissioner shall collect fees in an amount equal to the fees collected for the original licensing and registering of said private passenger vehicle as is now or may be prescribed by law. (1937, c. 407, s. 44; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-81. Official license plates.—Official license plates issued as a matter of courtesy to state officials shall be subject to the same transfer provisions as provided in section 20-80. (1937 c. 407, s. 45.)

§ 20-82. Manufacturer or dealer to give notice of sale or transfer.—Every manufacturer or dealer, upon transferring a motor vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer, whether by sale, lease or otherwise, to any person other than the manufacturer or dealer shall, on or before the tenth of each month, give written report of all such transfers made during the preceding calendar month to the department upon the official form provided by the department. Every such report shall contain the date of such transfer, the names and addresses of the transferer and transferee and such description of the vehicle as may be called for in such official form. Every manufacturer or dealer shall keep a record of all vehicles received or sold containing such information regarding same as the department may require. (1937, c. 407, s. 46.)

Part 6. Vehicles of Non-Residents of States, etc.

§ 20-83. Registration by non-residents. — (a) Nonresidents of this state, except as otherwise provided in this article, will be exempt from the provisions of this article as to the registration of motor vehicles for the same time and to the same extent as like exemptions are granted residents of this state under laws of another state, district or territory: Provided, that they shall have complied with the provisions of the law of the state, district or territory of their residence relative to the registration and equipment of their motor vehicles, and shall conspicuously display the registration plates as required thereby, and have in their possession the registration certificates issued for such motor vehicles, and that nothing herein contained shall be construed to permit a bona fide resident of this state to use any registration plate or plates from a foreign state, district or territory, under the provisions of this section. The commissioner shall determine what exemptions the non-resident vehicle operators of the several states, districts or territories, are entitled to under the provisions of this section, and ordain and publish rules and regulations for making effective the provisions of this section, which rules and regulations shall be observed and enforced by all the officers of this state whose duties require the enforcement of the automobile registration laws, and any violations of such rules and regulations shall constitute a misdemeanor.

(b) Motor vehicles duly registered in a state or territory which are not allowed exemptions by the commissioner, as provided for in the preceding paragraph, desiring to make occasional trips into or through the state of North Carolina, or operate in this state for a period not exceeding thirty days, may be permitted the same use and privileges of the highways of this state as provided for similar vehicles regularly licensed in this state, by procuring from the commissioner trip licenses upon forms and under rules and regulations to be adopted by the commissioner, good for use for a period of thirty days upon the payment of a fee in compensation for said privilege equivalent to one-tenth of the annual fee which would be chargeable against said vehicle if regularly licensed in this state: Provided, however, that nothing in this provision shall prevent the extension of the privileges of the use of the roads of this state to vehicles of other states under the reciprocity provisions provided by law: Provided further, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the owners of vehicles from other states from licensing such vehicles in the state of north Carolina under the same terms and the same fees as like vehicles are licensed by owners resident in this state.

(c) Every non-resident, including any foreign corporation carrying on business within this state and owning and operating in such business any motor vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer within this state, shall be required to register each such vehicle and pay the same fees therefor as is required with reference to like vehicles owned by residents of this state. (1937, c. 407, s. 47; 1941, cc. 99, 365.)

Local Modification.—Buncombe, Catawba, Lee, New Hanover, Pender, Sampson, Wake: 1941, c. 99, s. 2.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1941, c. 99, amended by c. 365, inserted in subsection (b) the words "or operate in this state for a period not exceeding thirty days."

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 514.

§ 20-84. Vehicles owned by state, municipalities or orphanages, etc.—The department, upon proper proof being filed with it that any motor vehicle for which registration is herein required is owned by the state or any department thereof, or by any county, township, city or town, or by any board of education, or by any orphanage, shall collect one dollar for the registration of such motor vehicles, but shall not collect any fee for application for certificate of title in the name of the state or any department thereof, or by any county, township, city or town, or by any board of education or orphanage: Provided, that the term "owned" shall be construed to mean that such motor vehicle is the actual property of the state or some department thereof, or of the county, township, city or town, or of the board of education, and no motor vehicle which is the property of any officer or employee of any department named herein shall be construed as being "owned" by such department. Provided, that the above exemptions from registration fees shall also apply to any church owned bus used exclusively for transporting children and parents to Sunday School and church services and for no other purpose. The term "farmer" as used in this section means any person engaged in the raising, growing and producing of farm products on a farm not less than ten acres in area, and who does not engage in the business of buying farm products for resale; and the term "farm products" means any food crop, cattle, hogs, poultry, dairy products and other agricultural products designed and to be used for food purposes.

(d) Rates on trucks, trailers and semi-trailers wholly or partially equipped with solid tires shall be double the above schedule.

(e) Franchise Haulers.—Franchise haulers shall pay an annual license tax as per the above schedule of rates for each vehicle unit, and in addition thereto six per cent of the gross revenue derived from such operations: Except on vehicles licensed for interstate routes and used exclusively for interstate business where more than fifty per cent of the designated route lies outside of the state of North Carolina, the required deposit may be reduced by the commissioner to fifty per cent of the above schedule of rates as to deposit only: Provided, said additional six per cent shall not be collectible unless and until and only to the extent that such amount exceeds the license tax or deposit per the above schedule: Provided, further, franchise haulers operation from a point or points in this state to another point or points in this state, shall be liable for a tax of six per cent on the gross revenue earned in such intrastate hauls. Franchise haulers operating through this state from a point or points outside this state to a point or points outside this state shall be liable for a six per cent tax on that proportion of the gross revenue earned between such terminals as the mileage in North Carolina bears to the total mileage between the respective terminals. In no event shall the tax paid by such franchise haulers be less than the license tax or deposit shown on the above schedule, except where a franchise is hereafter issued by the utilities commission for service over a route within the state which is not now served by any franchise hauler the six per cent gross revenue tax may be reduced to four per

(f) Non-resident motor vehicle carriers which do not operate in intrastate commerce in this state, and the title to whose vehicles are not required to be registered under the provisions of this article, shall be taxed for the use of the roads in this state and shall pay the same fees therefor as are required with reference to like vehicles owned by residents of this state: Provided, that if any such fees as applied to non-residents shall at any time become inoperative, such carriers shall be taxed for the use of the roads of this state as franchise haulers as provided above: Provided further, that this provision shall not prevent the extension to vehicles of other states of the benefits of the reciprocity provisions provided by law.

(g) Contract haulers under the definitions of this article who receive and operate under a certificate or permit or other authority from the utilities commissioner as restricted common carriers under the provisions of §§ 62-103 to 62-121, shall, in addition to the rate of tax for contract carriers provided above, be subject to the gross six per cent tax to the extent that it exceeds the rate for contract haulers to be levied and collected in the same manner provided for franchise haulers, and the tax in the schedule provided for contract haulers shall be deemed a deposit only.

(h) Every person operating a motor vehicle upon the highways of the state equipped with motors of the Diesel type shall make a report to the commissioner upon forms to be prescribed and furnished by the commissioner at least four times a year on dates to be designated by the commissioner; and such reports shall show, among other things, the purchases of motor fuel for use in said Diesel type motor and whether or not the tax levied upon motor fuels has been paid or assumed by the person from whom bought; and it shall be unlawful to operate any such motor equipment upon the highways of this state except with fuel upon which the tax has been paid. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation operating such Diesel type motor to fail, refuse, or neglect to make returns in accordance with the forms prescribed by the commissioner; and any person knowingly making false returns shall be guilty of a felony. (1937, c. 407, s. 52; 1939, c. 275; 1941, cc. 36, 227; 1943, c. 648.)

Cross Reference.—As to franchise certificates, see §§ 62-105, 62-106.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added subsection (h). The 1941 amendment, which added that part of subsection (c) relating to "farmer" license plates, provides that it shall be effective beginning with license period of 1942.

For temporary act exempting trucks engaged in national defense projects from contract hauler license fees, see Public Laws 1941, c. 14.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 514.

The 1943 amendment added the last sentence of subsection (a) and made changes in subsection (e).

§ 20-89. Method of computing gross revenue of franchise bus carriers and haulers.—In computing the gross revenue of franchise bus carriers and franchise haulers, revenue derived from the transportation of United States mail or other United States government services shall not be included. All revenue earned both within and without this state from the transportation of persons or property, except as herein provided, by franchise bus carriers and franchise haulers, whether on fixed schedule routes or by special trips or by auxiliary vehicles not licensed as franchise haulers, whether owned by the franchise hauler or hired from another for the transportation of persons or property within the limits of the designated franchise route shall be included in the gross revenue upon which said tax is based. (1937, c. 407, s. 53; 1943, c. 726.)

The 1943 amendment struck out the word "collected" formerly appearing after the word "provided" in line eight.

§ 20-90. Due date of franchise tax.—The six per cent additional tax on franchise bus carriers and franchise haulers shall become due and payable on or before the twentieth day of the month following the month in which it accrues. (1937, c. 407, s. 54.)

§ 20-91. Records and reports required of franchise carriers.—(a) Every franchise bus carrier and franchise hauler shall keep a record of all business transacted and all revenue received on such forms as may be prescribed by or satisfactory to the commissioner, and such records shall be preserved for a period of three years, and shall at all times during the business hours of the day be subject to inspection by the commissioner or his deputies or such other agents as may be duly authorized by the commissioner. Any operator of such a franchise line failing to comply with or violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

(b) All franchise bus carriers and franchise haulers shall, on or before the twentieth day of each month, make a report to the department of gross revenue earned and gross mileage operated during the month previous, in such manner as the department may require and on such forms as the department shall furnish.

(c) It shall be the duty of the commissioner, by competent auditors, to have the books and records of every franchise bus carrier and franchise hauler examined at least once each year to determine if such operators are keeping complete records as provided by this section of this article, and to determine if correct reports have been made to the state department of motor vehicles covering the total amount of tax liability of such operators.

(d) If any franchise bus carrier or franchise hauler shall fail, neglect, or refuse to keep such records or to make such reports as required, and within the time provided in this article, the commissioner shall immediately inform himself as best he may as to all matters and things required to be set forth in such records and reports, and from such information as he may be able to obtain, determine and fix the amount of the tax due the state from such delinquent operator for the period covering the delinquency, adding to the tax so determined and as a part thereof an amount equal to five per cent (5%) of the tax, to be collected and paid. The said commissioner shall proceed immediately to collect the tax including the additional five per cent (5%).

(e) Except in accordance with proper judicial order, or as otherwise provided by law, it shall be unlawful for the commissioner of motor vehicles, any deputy, assistant, agent, clerk, other officer, employee, or former officer or employee, to divulge or make known in any manner the amount of gross revenue or tax paid by any franchise bus carrier or franchise hauler as set forth or disclosed in any report or return required in remitting said tax, or as otherwise disclosed. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit the publication of statistics, so classified as to prevent the identification of particular reports or returns, and the items thereof; the inspection of such reports or returns by the governor, attorney general, utilities commission, or their or its duly authorized representatives; or the inspection by a legal representative of the state of the report or return of any franchise bus carrier or franchise hauler which shall bring an action to set aside or review the tax based thereon, or against which action or proceeding has been instituted to recover any tax or penalty imposed by this article. Any person, officer, agent, clerk, employee, or former officer or employee violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 407, s. 55, 1939, c. 275; 1941, c. 36; 1943, c. 726.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment struck out the word "willfully" formerly appearing after the word "shall" in subsection (d).

The 1943 amendment added subsection (e).

§ 20-92. Revocation of franchise registration.

—The failure of any franchise bus carrier or any franchise hauler to pay any tax levied under this article, and/or to make reports as is required, shall constitute cause for revocation of registration and franchise, and the commissioner is hereby authorized to seize the registration plates of any such delinquent carrier and require the cessation of the operation of such vehicles. (1937, c. 407, s. 56.)

§ 20-93. Bond or deposit required.—The commissioner, before issuing any registration plates to a franchise bus carrier or a franchise hauler, shall either satisfy himself of the financial responsibility of such carrier or require a bond or deposit in such amount as he may deem necessary to insure the collection of the tax imposed by this section. (1937, c. 407, s. 57.)

§ 20-94. Partial payments.—In the purchase of licenses, where the gross amount of the license to any one owner amounts to more than four hundred dollars ($400.00), half of such payment may, if the commissioner is satisfied of the financial responsibility of such owner, be deferred until April first in any calendar year upon the execution to the commissioner of a draft upon any bank or trust company upon forms to be provided by the commissioner in an amount equivalent to one-half of such tax, plus a carrying charge of two per cent (2%): Provided, that any person using any tag so purchased after the first day of April in any such year, without having first provided for the payment of such draft, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Any such drafts being dishonored and not paid shall be subject to the penalties prescribed in § 20-178 and shall be immediately turned over by the commissioner to his duly authorized agents and/or the state highway patrol, to the end that this provision may be enforced. (1937, c. 407, s. 58; 1943, c. 726.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added after the word "may" in line five the words "if the commissioner is satisfied of the financial responsibility of such owner." It also inserted in the last sentence the following: "shall be subject to the penalties prescribed in section 20-178 and."

§ 20-95. Licenses for less than a year.—Licenses issued on or after April first of each year and before July first for all vehicles, except franchise haulers and two-wheel trailers under one thousand five hundred pounds weight pulled by passenger cars, shall be three-fourths of the annual fee. Licenses issued on or after July first and before October first, except two-wheel trailers under one thousand five hundred pounds weight pulled by passenger cars, shall be one-half the annual fee. Licenses issued on or after October first, except on two-wheel trailers under one thousand five hundred pounds weight pulled by passenger cars, shall be one-fourth of the annual fee. (1937, c. 407, s. 59.)

§ 20-96. Overloading.—The commissioner, or his authorized agent, may allow any owner of a motor vehicle for transportation of property to overload said vehicle by paying the fee at the rate per hundred pounds which would be assessed against such vehicle if its gross weight capacity provided for such load; but such calculation shall be made only in units of one thousand pounds or major fraction thereof, excessive weights of five hundred pounds or less being disregarded and weights of more than five hundred pounds and not more than one thousand pounds being counted as one thousand. It is the intent of this section that every owner of a motor vehicle shall procure license in advance to cover any overload which may be carried. Any owner failing to do so, and whose vehicle shall be found in operation on the highways carrying an overload in excess of one ton over the weight for which such vehicle is licensed, shall pay in addition to the normal tax levied in this article an additional tax of three dollars ($3.00) per each thousand pounds in excess of the licensed weight of such vehicle. Any person who shall willfully violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor in addition to being liable for the additional tax herein prescribed. (1937, c. 407, s. 60; 1943, c. 726.)

The 1943 amendment added the last sentence.

§ 20-97. Taxes compensatory; no additional tax.

—(a) All taxes levied under the provisions of this article are intended as compensatory taxes for the use and privileges of the public highways of this state, and shall be paid by the commissioner to the state treasurer, to be credited by him to the state highway fund; and no county or municipality shall levy any license or privilege tax upon the use of any motor vehicle licensed by the state of North Carolina, except that cities and towns may levy not more than one dollar ($1.00) per year upon any such vehicle resident therein: Provided, however, that cities and towns may levy, in addition to the one dollar ($1.00) per year, herein set forth, a sum not to exceed fifteen dollars ($15.00) per year upon each vehicle operated in such city or town as a taxicab.

(b) No additional franchise tax, license tax, or other fee shall be imposed by the state against any franchise motor vehicle carrier taxed under this article nor shall any county, city or town impose a franchise tax or other fee upon them, except that cities and towns may levy a license tax not in excess of fifteen dollars ($15.00) per year on each vehicle operated in such city as a taxicab as provided in subsection (a) hereof.

(c) In addition to the appropriation carried in the Appropriations Act there shall be appropriated to the motor vehicle department the additional sum of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000.00) from the state highway fund: Provided, that such additional sum shall be made available only in the event that the regular appropriation is insufficient and it shall be determined by the director of the budget that such additional amount is necessary to carry out the provisions of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 61; 1941, c. 36; 1943, c. 639, ss. 3, 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the proviso to subsection (a), and the exception clause to subsection (b).

Municipalities are prohibited by this section from levying a license or privilege tax for use of its streets by motor trucks. Kenny Co. v. Brevard, 217 N. C. 269, 7 S. E. (2d) 542.

May Not Impose Additional License Tax on Vehicles for Hire.—This section expressly prohibits a municipality from levying a license or privilege tax in excess of $1.00 upon the use of any motor vehicle licensed by the state, and must be construed with and operates as an exception to, and limitation upon the general power to levy license and privilege taxes upon businesses, trades and professions granted by charter and § 160-56, and provisions of a municipal ordinance imposing a license tax upon the operation of passenger vehicles for hire in addition to the $1.00 theretofore imposed by it upon motor vehicles generally, is void, nor may the additional municipal tax be sustained upon the theory that it is a tax upon the business of operating a motor vehicle for hire rather than ownership of the vehicle, since the word "business" and the word "use" as used in the sections mean the same thing. Cox v. Brown, 218 N. C. 350, 11 S. E. (2d) 152.

For cases decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law, see Southeastern Exp. Co. v. Charlotte, 186 N. C. 668, 120 S. E. 475; State v. Fink, 179 N. C. 712, 103 S. E. 16; State v. Jones, 191 N. C. 371, 131 S. E. 734.

§ 20-98. Tax lien.—In the distribution of assets in case of receivership or insolvency of the owner against whom the tax herein provided is levied and in the order of payment thereof, the state shall have priority over all other debts or claims except prior recorded liens or liens given by statute an express priority. (1937, c. 407, s. 62.)

§ 20-99. Sale under execution; franchise canceled.—Whenever any tax imposed by this article shall be in default for a period of ten days, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to certify the same to the sheriff of any county of this state in which such delinquent motor vehicle operator is operating, which said certificate to said sheriff shall have all the force and effect of a judgment and execution, and the said sheriff is hereby authorized and directed to levy upon any property in said county owned by said delinquent motor vehicle operator and to sell the same for the payment of said tax as other property is sold in the state for the non-payment of taxes; and for such services the sheriff shall be allowed the fees now prescribed by law for sales under execution, and the cost in such cases shall be paid by the delinquent taxpayer or out of the proceeds of the said property, and upon the filing of said certificate with the sheriff, in the event the delinquent taxpayer shall be the operator of any franchise bus carrier or franchise hauler vehicle, the franchise certificate issued to such operator shall become null and void and shall be canceled by the utilities commissioner, and it shall be unlawful for any such franchise bus carrier or the operator of any franchise hauler vehicle to continue the operation under said franchise. (1937, c. 407, s. 63.)

Cross References.—As to fees of sheriffs, see § 162-6. As to cancellation of franchise certificates, see § 62-111.

§ 20-100. Vehicles junked or destroyed by fire or collision.—Upon satisfactory proof to the commissioner that any motor vehicle, duly licensed, has been completely destroyed by fire or collision, or has been junked and completely dismantled so that the same can no longer be operated as a motor vehicle, the owner of such vehicle may be allowed on the purchase of a new license for another vehicle a credit equivalent to the unexpired proportion of the cost of the original license, dating from the first day of the next month after the date of such destruction. (1937, c. 407, s. 64; 1939, c. 369, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment inserted the provision relating to junked vehicle.

§ 20-101. Vehicles to be marked.—All motor vehicles licensed as franchise bus carriers, franchise hauler vehicles and contract hauler vehicles, shall have printed on the side thereof in letters not less than three inches in height the name and home address of the owner, or such other identification as the utilities commissioner may approve. (1937, c. 407, s. 65.)

Part 8. Anti-Theft and Enforcement Provisions.

§ 20-102. Report of stolen and recovered motor vehicles.—Every sheriff, chief of police, or peace officer upon receiving reliable information that any vehicle registered hereunder has been stolen shall immediately report such theft to the department. Any said officer upon receiving information that any vehicle, which he has previously reported as stolen, has been recovered, shall immediately report the fact of such recovery to the department. (1937, c. 407, s. 66.)

§ 20-103. Reports by owners of stolen and recovered vehicles.—The owner, or person having a lien or encumbrance upon a registered vehicle which has been stolen or embezzled, may notify the department of such theft or embezzlement, but in the event of an embezzlement may make such report only after having procured the issuance of a warrant for the arrest of the person charged with such embezzlement. Every owner or other person who has given any such notice must notify the department of the recovery of such vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 67.)

§ 20-104. Action by department on report of stolen or embezzled vehicles.—(a) The department, upon receiving a report of a stolen or embezzled vehicle as hereinbefore provided, shall file and appropriately index the same and shall immediately suspend the registration of the vehicle so reported, and shall not transfer the registration of the same until such time as it is notified in writing that such vehicle has been recovered.

(b) The department shall at least once each month compile and maintain at its headquarters office a list of all vehicles which have been stolen or embezzled or recovered as reported to it during the preceding month, and such lists shall be open to inspection by any peace officer or other persons interested in any such vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 68.)

§ 20-105. Unlawful taking of a vehicle.—Any person who drives or otherwise takes and carries away a vehicle, not his own, without the consent of the owner thereof, and with intent to temporarily deprive said owner of his possession of such vehicle, without intent to steal the same, is guilty of a misdemeanor. The consent of the owner of a vehicle to its taking or driving shall not in any case be presumed or implied because of such owner's consent on a previous occasion to the taking or driving of such vehicle by the same or a different person. Any person who assists in, or is a party or accessory to or an accomplice in any such unauthorized taking or driving, is guilty of a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 407, s. 69; 1943, c. 543.)

Cross Reference.—As to misdemeanors for which no specific punishment is prescribed, see § 14-3.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted after the word "drives" in the second line the words "or otherwise takes and carries away."

The cases treated below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the earlier law, but should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

Civil Liability of Owner for Injuries.—The owner is not liable for an injury caused by his automobile while it is operated by another without his consent. This applies to parent and child and where the father forbade his child from taking his car he is not liable. Linville v. Nissen, 162 N. C. 95, 77 S. E. 1096.

An indictment charging larceny and receiving does not include a charge of driving a motor vehicle without the knowledge or consent of the owner, and a defendant charged in the indictment only with larceny and receiving may not be convicted under this section. State v. Stinnett, 203 N. C. 829, 167 S. E. 63.

§ 20-106. Receiving or transferring stolen vehicles.—Any person who, with intent to procure or pass title to a vehicle which he knows or has reason to believe has been stolen or unlawfully taken, receives or transfers possession of the same from or to another, or who has in his possession any vehicle which he knows or has reason to believe has been stolen or unlawfully taken, and who is not an officer of the law engaged at the time in the performance of his duty as such officer, is guilty of a felony. (1937, c. 407, s. 70.)

Cross Reference.—As to felonies for which no specific punishment is prescribed, see § 14-2.

§ 20-107. Injuring or tampering with vehicle.—(a) Any person who either individually or in association with one or more other persons wilfully injures or tampers with any vehicles or breaks or removes any part or parts of or from a vehicle without the consent of the owner is guilty of a misdemeanor.

(b) Any person who, with intent to steal, commit any malicious mischief, injury or other crime, climbs into or upon a vehicle, whether it is in motion or at rest, or with like intent attempts to manipulate any of the levers, starting mechanism, brakes, or other mechanism or device of a vehicle while the same is at rest and unattended or with like intent sets in motion any vehicle while the same is at rest and unattended, is guilty of a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 407, s. 71.)

§ 20-108. Vehicles without manufacturer's numbers.—Any person who knowingly buys, receives, disposes of, sells, offers for sale, conceals, or has in his possession any motor vehicle, or engine removed from a motor vehicle, from which the manufacturer's serial or engine number or other distinguishing number or identification mark or number placed thereon under assignment from the department has been removed, defaced, covered, altered, or destroyed for the purpose of concealing or misrepresenting the identity of said motor vehicle or engine is guilty of a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 407, s. 72.)

§ 20-109. Altering or changing engine or other numbers.—No person shall wilfully deface, destroy, or alter the manufacturer's serial or engine number or other distinguishing number or identification mark of a motor vehicle, nor shall any person place or stamp any serial, engine, or other number or mark upon a motor vehicle, except one assigned thereto by the department. Any violation of this provision is a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 407, s. 73; 1943, c. 726.)

The 1943 amendment substituted the word "wilfully" in line one for the words "with fraudulent intent."

§ 20-110. When registration shall be rescinded.—(a) The department shall rescind and cancel the registration of any vehicle which the department shall determine is unsafe or unfit to be operated or is not equipped as required by law.

(b) The department shall rescind and cancel the registration of any vehicle whenever the person to whom the registration card or registration number plates therefor have been issued shall make or permit to be made any unlawful use of the said card or plates or permit the use thereof by a person not entitled thereto.

(c) The department shall rescind and cancel the license of any dealer to whom such license has been issued when such dealer allows his registration number plates to be used for other than demonstration purposes except as provided by § 20-79, fails to carry out the provisions of § 20-79 and § 20-82, or is convicted of a felony. (1937, c. 407, s. 74.)

§ 20-111. Violation of registration provisions.—It shall be unlawful for any person to commit any of the following acts:

(a) To operate or for the owner thereof knowingly to permit the operation upon a highway of any motor vehicle, trailer, or semi-trailer which is not registered or for which a certificate of title has not been issued, or which does not have attached thereto and displayed thereon the registration number plate or plates assigned thereto by the department for the current registration year, subject to the exemption mentioned in §§ 20-65 and 20-79.

(b) To display or cause or permit to be displayed or to have in possession any registration card, certificate of title or registration number plate knowing the same to be fictitious or to have been canceled, revoked, suspended or altered.

(c) The giving, lending, or borrowing of a license plate for the purpose of using same on some motor vehicle other than that for which issued shall make the giver, lender, or borrower guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction he shall be fined not more than fifty dollars ($50.00), or imprisoned not more than thirty days. Where license plate is found being improperly used, such plate or plates shall be revoked or canceled, and new license plates must be purchased before further operation of the motor vehicles.

(d) To fail or refuse to surrender to the department, upon demand, any title certificate registration card or registration number plate which has been suspended, canceled or revoked as in this article provided.

(e) To use a false or fictitious name or address in any application for the registration of any vehicle or for a certificate of title or for any renewal or duplicate thereof, or knowingly to make a false statement or knowingly to conceal a material fact or otherwise commit a fraud in any such application. (1937, c. 407, s. 75; 1943, c. 592, s. 2.)

The 1943 amendment inserted the reference to § 20-65 near the end of subsection (a).

§ 20-112. Making false affidavit perjury.—Any person who shall knowingly make any false affidavit or shall knowingly swear or affirm falsely to any matter or thing required by the terms of this article to be sworn or affirmed to shall be guilty of perjury, and upon conviction shall be punishable by a fine and imprisonment as other persons committing perjury are punishable. (1937, c. 407, s. 76.)

Cross References.—As to punishment for perjury, see § 14-209. As to revocation of license in event of conviction of perjury or the making of false affidavits, etc., see § 20-17.

§ 20-113. Licenses protected.—No person, partnership, association or corporation shall maintain an office or place of business in which or through which persons desiring transportation for themselves or their baggage are brought into contact by advertisement or otherwise with persons owning or operating motor vehicles and willing to transport other persons, or baggage, for compensation, or on a division of expense basis, unless the owner or operator of such motor vehicles furnishing the transportation has qualified under the tax provisions of this article for the class of service he holds himself out to perform. (1937, c. 407, s. 77.)

§ 20-114. Duty of officer; manner of enforcement.—(a) For the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this article, it is hereby made the duty of every police officer, every marshal, deputy marshal, or watchman of any incorporated city or village, and every sheriff, deputy sheriff, and all other lawful officers of any county, and every constable of any township, to arrest within the limits of their jurisdiction any person known personally to any such officer, or upon the sworn information of a creditable witness, to have violated any of the provisions of this article, and to immediately bring such offender before any justice of the peace or officer having jurisdiction, and any such person so arrested shall have the right of immediate trial, and all other rights given to any person arrested for having committed a misdemeanor. Every officer herein named who shall neglect or refuse to carry out the duties imposed by this chapter shall be liable on his official bond for such neglect or refusal as provided by law in like cases.

(b) It shall be the duty of all sheriffs, police officers, deputy sheriffs, deputy police officers, and all other officers within the state to co-operate with and render all assistance in their power to the officers herein provided for, and nothing in this article shall be construed as relieving said sheriffs, police officers, deputy sheriffs, deputy police officers, and other officers of the duties imposed on them by this chapter.

(c) It shall also be the duty of every sheriff of every county of the state and of every police or peace officer of the state to make immediate report to the commissioner of all motor vehicles reported to him as abandoned or that are seized by him for being used for illegal transportation of intoxicating liquors or other unlawful purposes, and no motor vehicle shall be sold by any sheriff, police or peace officer, or by any person, firm or corporation claiming a mechanic's or storage lien, or under judicial proceedings, until notice shall have been given the commissioner at least twenty days before the date of such sale. (1937, c. 407, s. 78; 1943, c. 726.)

The 1943 amendment substituted "twenty" for "thirty" in the next to the last line of subsection (c).

Part 9. The Size, Weight, Construction and Equipment of Vehicles.

§ 20-115. Scope and effect of regulations in this title.—It shall be unlawful and constitute a misdemeanor for any person to drive or move or for the owner to cause or knowingly permit to be driven or moved on any highway any vehicle or vehicles of a size or weight exceeding the limitations stated in this title, or any vehicle or vehicles which are not so constructed or equipped as required in this title, or the rules and regulations of the commission adopted pursuant thereto and the maximum size and weight of vehicles herein specified shall be lawful throughout this state, and local authorities shall have no power or authority to alter said limitations except as express authority may be granted in this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 79.)

§ 20-116. Size of vehicles and loads.—(a) The total outside width of any vehicle or the load thereon shall not exceed ninety-six inches, except as otherwise provided in this section.

(b) No passenger-type vehicle shall be operated on any highway with any load carried thereon extending beyond the line of the fenders on the left side of such vehicle nor extending more than six inches beyond the line of the fenders on the right side thereof.

(c) No vehicle unladen or with load shall exceed a height of twelve feet, six inches.

(d) No vehicle shall exceed a length of thirty-five feet extreme over-all dimension, inclusive of front and rear bumpers. A truck-tractor and semi-trailer shall be regarded as two vehicles for the purpose of determining lawful length and license taxes.

(e) No combination of vehicles coupled together shall consist of more than two units and no such combination of vehicles shall exceed a total length of forty-five feet exclusive of front and rear bumpers, subject to the following exceptions: Said length limitation shall not apply to vehicles operated in the daytime when transporting poles, pipe, machinery or other objects of a structural nature which cannot readily be dismembered, nor to such vehicles transporting such objects operated at night-time by a public utility when required for emergency repair of public service facilities or properties, but in respect to such night transportation every such vehicle and the load thereon shall be equipped with a sufficient number of clearance lamps on both sides and marker lamps upon the extreme ends of said projecting load to clearly mark the dimensions of such load: Provided, that the state highway and public works commission shall have authority to designate any highways upon the state system as light-traffic roads when, in the opinion of the commission, such roads are inadequate to carry and will be injuriously affected by the maximum load, size, and/or width of trucks or busses using such roads as herein provided for, and all such roads so designated shall be conspicuously posted as light-traffic roads and the maximum load, size and/or width authorized shall be displayed on proper signs erected thereon. The operation of any vehicle whose gross load, size and/or width exceed the maximum shown on such signs over the roads thus posted shall constitute a misdemeanor: Provided further, that no standard concrete highway, or other highway built of material of equivalent durability, and not less than eighteen feet in width, shall be designated as a light-traffic road: Provided further, that the limitations placed on any road shall not be less than eighty per cent (80%) of the standard weight, unless there shall be available an alternate improved route of not more than twenty per cent (20%) increase in the distance.

(f) The load upon any vehicle operated alone, or the load upon the front vehicle of a combination of vehicles, shall not extend more than three feet beyond the front wheels of such vehicle or the front bumper of such vehicle, if it is equipped with such a bumper.

(g) No vehicle shall be driven or moved on any highway unless such vehicle is so constructed or loaded as to prevent any of its load from dropping, sifting, leaking or otherwise escaping therefrom, except that sand may be dropped for the purpose of securing traction, or water or other substance may be sprinkled on a roadway in cleaning or maintaining such roadway.

(h) Wherever there exist two highways of the state system of approximately equivalent construction, convenience and distance between two or more points, the state highway and public works commission shall have authority, when in the opinion of the commission the public interest is served thereby, to designate one of said roads for heavy or truck-line traffic between said points, and to prohibit the use of the other or parallel road by heavy or truck-line traffic thereon; and in such instances the roads selected for heavy or truck-line traffic shall be so designated by signs conspicuously posted thereon, and the roads upon upon which heavy or truck-line traffic is prohibited shall likewise be so designated by signs conspicuously posted thereon showing the maximum load authorized for said roads. The operation of any vehicle whose gross load exceeds the maximum load shown on such signs over the road thus posted shall constitute a misdemeanor: Provided, that nothing herein shall prohibit a truck or other motor vehicle whose gross load exceeds that prescribed for the light traffic roads from using said light traffic road when the destination of said truck is located solely upon said light traffic road: Provided, further, that nothing herein shall prohibit passenger or other light traffic vehicles from using any road or roads so designated for heavy or truck-line traffic.

(i) The total width of any vehicle propelled by electric power obtained from trolley wires, but not operated upon rails, commonly known as an electric trackless trolley coach, which is operated as a part of the general trackless trolley system of passenger transportation of the city of Greensboro and vicinity, shall not exceed one hundred and two inches, and the total length, inclusive of front and rear bumpers, of any such vehicle shall not exceed thirty-six feet, and the height of any such vehicle, exclusive of trolley pole for operating same, shall not exceed twelve feet, six inches. (1937, c. 246; 1937, c. 407, s. 80; 1943, c. 213, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to size and weight limitations for motor vehicle carriers applying for franchise certificates, see § 62-105, subsec. (e).

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added subsection (i). This section prohibiting the extension of any part of the load of a passenger vehicle beyond the line of the fenders on the left side of such vehicle imposes a duty for the safety of other vehicles on the highway, and is not conclusive on the question of contributory negligence of a passenger riding on the running board, with none of his body extending beyond the line of the fenders, who is injured by the negligent operation of another vehicle. Roberson v. Carolina Taxi Service, 214 N. C. 624, 200 S. E. 363.

§ 20-117. Flag or light at end of load.—Whenever the load on any vehicle shall extend more than four feet beyond the rear of the bed or body thereof, there shall be displayed at the end of such load, in such position as to be clearly visible at all times from the rear of such load, a red flag not less than twelve inches both in length and width, except that between one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise there shall be displayed at the end of any such load a red light plainly visible under normal atmospheric conditions at least two hundred feet from the rear of such vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 81.)

The corresponding provision of the former law was cited in Williams v. Frederickson Motor Exp. Lines, 198 N. C. 193, 151 S. E. 197.

§ 20-118. Weight of vehicles and load.—No vehicle or combination of vehicles shall be moved or operated on any highway or bridge when the gross weight thereof exceeds the limits specified below:

(a) When the wheel is equipped with high-pressure pneumatic, solid rubber or cushion tire, eight thousand pounds.

(b) When the wheel is equipped with low-pressure pneumatic tire, nine thousand pounds.

(c) The gross weight on any one axle of the vehicle when the wheels attached to said axle are equipped with high-pressure solid rubber or cushion tires, sixteen thousand pounds.

(d) When the wheels attached to said axle are equipped with low-pressure pneumatic tires, eighteen thousand pounds.

(e) For the purposes of this section an axle load shall be defined as the total load on all wheels whose centers are included within two parallel transverse vertical planes not more than forty inches apart.

(f) For the purposes of this section every pneumatic tire designed for use and used when inflated with air to less than one hundred pounds pressure shall be deemed a low-pressure pneumatic tire, and every pneumatic tire inflated to one hundred pounds pressure or more shall be deemed a high-pressure pneumatic tire.

(g) No vehicle shall be operated on any highway the weight of which, resting on the surface of such highway, exceeds six hundred pounds upon any inch of tire roller or other support.

(h) Subject to the foregoing limitations, the gross weight of any vehicle having two axles shall not exceed twenty-six thousand pounds.

(i) Subject to the foregoing limitations, the gross weight of any vehicle or combination of vehicles having three or more axles shall not exceed forty thousand pounds. For the purpose of determining gross weight, no axle shall be considered unless the wheels thereof are equipped with adequate brakes. (1937, c. 407, s. 82.)

(j) The gross weight with normal load of passengers of any vehicle propelled by electric power obtained from trolley wires, but not operated upon rails, commonly known as an electric trackless trolley coach, which is operated as a part of the general trackless trolley system of passenger transportation of the city of Greensboro and vicinity, shall not exceed thirty thousand pounds. (1937, c. 407, s. 82; 1943, c. 213, s. 2; 1943, cc. 726, 784.)

Cross Reference.—As to size and weight limitations for motor vehicle carriers applying for franchise certificates, see § 62-105, subsec. (e).

Editor's Note.—The first 1943 amendment added subsection (j). The second 1943 amendment as changed by the third amendment substituted "twenty-six" for "twenty" in subsection (h).

§ 20-118.1. Peace officer may weigh vehicle and require removal of excess load.—Any peace officer having reason to believe that the weight of a vehicle and load is unlawful is authorized to weigh the same either by means of portable or stationary scales, and may require that such vehicle be driven to the nearest scales in the event such scales are within two miles. The officer may then require the driver to unload immediately such portion of the load as may be necessary to decrease the gross weight of such vehicle to the maximum therefor specified in this article. (1927, c. 148, s. 37.)

§ 20-119. Special permits for vehicles of excessive size or weight.—The state highway and public works commission may, in their discretion, upon application in writing and good cause being shown therefor, issue a special permit in writing authorizing the applicant for seasonal operations to operate or move a vehicle of a size or weight exceeding a maximum specified in this article upon any highway under the jurisdiction and for the maintenance of which the body granting the permit is responsible. Every such permit shall be carried in the vehicle to which it refers and shall be open to inspection by any peace officer; and it shall be a misdemeanor for any person to violate any of the terms or conditions of such special permit: Provided, the authorities in any incorporated city or town may grant permits in writing and for good cause shown, authorizing the applicant to move a vehicle over the streets of such city or town, the size or width exceeding the maximum expressed in this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 83.)

§ 20-120. Operation of flat trucks on state highways regulated.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to operate, or have operated on any public highway in the state any open, flat truck loaded with logs, cotton bales, boxes or other load piled on said truck, without having the said load securely fastened on said truck. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1939, c. 114.)

§ 20-121. When authorities may restrict right to use highways.—The state highway and public works commission or local authorities may prohibit the operation of vehicles upon or impose restrictions as to the weight thereof, for a total period not to exceed ninety days in any one calendar year, when operated upon any highway under the jurisdiction of and for the maintenance of which the body adopting the ordinance is responsible, whenever any said highway by reason of deterioration, rain, snow or other climatic conditions will be damaged unless the use of vehicles thereon is prohibited or the permissible weights thereof reduced. The local authority enacting any such ordinance shall erect, or cause to be erected and maintained, signs designating the provisions of the ordinance at each end of that portion of any highway to which the ordinance is applicable, and the ordinance shall not be effective until or unless such signs are erected and maintained. (1937, c. 407, s. 84.)

Cross Reference.—As to powers of municipal corporations as to streets, see § 160-200, subsections 11, 31.

§ 20-122. Restrictions as to tire equipment.—(a) Every solid rubber tire on a vehicle moved on any highway shall have rubber on its entire traction surface at least one and a half inches thick above the edge of the flange of the entire periphery.

(b) No tire on a vehicle moved on a highway shall have on its periphery any block, stud, flange, cleat or spike or any other protuberance of any material other than rubber which projects beyond the tread of the traction surface of the tire, except that it shall be permissible to use farm machinery with tires having protuberances which will not injure the highway and except, also, that it shall be permissible to use tire chains of reasonable proportions upon any vehicle when required for safety because of snow, ice or other conditions tending to cause a vehicle to slide or skid.

(c) The state highway and public works commission or local authorities in their respective jurisdictions may, in their discretion, issue special permits authorizing the operation upon a highway of traction engines or tractors having movable tracks with transverse corrugation upon the periphery of such movable tracks or farm tractors or other farm machinery.

(d) It shall not be unlawful to drive farm tractors on dirt roads from farm to farm: Provided, in doing so they do not damage said dirt roads or interfere with traffic. (1937, c. 407, s. 85; 1939, c. 266.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added subsection (d).

§ 20-123. Trailers and towed vehicles.—(a) No motor vehicle shall be driven upon any highway drawing or having attached thereto more than one trailer or semi-trailer.

(b) No trailer or semi-trailer shall be operated over the highways of the state unless such trailer or semi-trailer be firmly attached to the rear of the motor vehicle drawing same, and unless so equipped that it will not shake, but will travel in the path of the wheels of the vehicle drawing such trailer or semi-trailer, which equipment shall at all times be kept in good condition. (1937, c. 407, s. 86.)

§ 20-124. Brakes. — (a) Every motor vehicle when operated upon a highway shall be equipped with brakes adequate to control the movement of and to stop such vehicle or vehicles, and such brakes shall be maintained in good working order and shall conform to regulations provided in this section.

(b) No person having control or charge of a motor vehicle shall allow such vehicle to stand on any highway unattended without first effectively setting the hand brake thereon, stopping the motor and turning the front wheels into the curb or side of the highway.

(c) On a dry, hard, approximately level stretch of highway free from loose material, the service (foot) brake shall be capable of stopping the motor vehicle at a speed of twenty miles per hour within a distance of twenty-five feet with four wheel brakes or forty-five feet with two wheel brakes. The hand brake shall be capable of stopping the vehicle under like conditions of this section within a distance of not more than seventy-five feet.

(d) Motor trucks and tractor-trucks with semi-trailers attached shall be capable of stopping on a dry, hard, approximately level highway free from loose material at a speed of twenty miles per hour within the following distances: thirty feet with both hand and service brake applied simultaneously and fifty feet when either is applied separately, except that vehicles maintained and operated permanently for the transportation of property and which were registered in this or any other state or district prior to August, nineteen hundred and twenty-nine, shall be capable of stopping on a dry, hard, approximately level highway free from loose material at a speed of twenty miles per hour within a distance of fifty feet with both hand and service brake applied simultaneously, and within a distance of seventy-five feet when either applied separately.

(e) Every semi-trailer, or trailer, or separate vehicle, attached by a draw-bar or coupling to a towing vehicle, and having a gross weight of two tons, and all house trailers of one thousand pounds gross weight or more, shall be equipped with brakes controlled or operated by the driver of the towing vehicle, which shall conform to the specifications set forth in sub-section (d) of this section and shall be of a type approved by the commissioner. (1937, c. 407, s. 87.)

§ 20-125. Horns and warning devices. — (a) Every motor vehicle when operated upon a highway shall be equipped with a horn in good working order capable of emitting sound audible under normal conditions from a distance of not less than two hundred feet, and it shall be unlawful, except as otherwise provided in this section, for any vehicle to be equipped with or for any person to use upon a vehicle any siren, compression or spark plug whistle or for any person at any time to use a horn otherwise than as a reasonable warning or to make any unnecessary or unreasonable loud or harsh sound by means of a horn or other warning device. All such horns and warning devices shall be maintained in good working order and shall conform to regulation not inconsistent with this section to be promulgated by the commissioner.

(b) Every police and fire department and fire patrol vehicle and every ambulance used for emergency calls shall be equipped with a bell, siren or exhaust whistle of a type approved by the commissioner. (1937, c. 407, s. 88.)

§ 20-126. Mirrors. — No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway which motor vehicle is so constructed or loaded as to prevent the driver from obtaining a view of the highway to the rear by looking backward from the driver's position, unless such vehicle is equipped with a mirror of a type to be approved by the commissioner so located as to reflect to the driver a view of the highway for a distance of at least two hundred feet to the rear of such vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 89.)

Cited in Bechtler v. Bracken, 218 N. C. 515, 11 S. E. (2d) 721.

§ 20-127. Windshields must be unobstructed. — (a) It shall be unlawful for any person to drive any vehicle upon a highway with any sign, poster or other non-transparent material upon the front windshield, side wings, side or rear window of such motor vehicle other than a certificate or other paper required to be so displayed by law.

(b) Every permanent windshield on a motor vehicle shall be equipped with a device for cleaning snow, rain, moisture or other matter from the windshield directly in front of the operator, which device shall be so constructed as to be controlled or operated by the operator of the vehicle. The device required by this sub-section shall be of a type approved by the commissioner. (1937, c. 407, s. 90.)

§ 20-128. Prevention of noise, smoke, etc.; muffler cut-outs regulated. — (a) No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless such motor vehicle is equipped with a muffler in good working order and in constant operation to prevent excessive or unusual noise, annoying smoke and smoke screens.

(b) It shall be unlawful to use a "muffler cut-out" on any motor vehicle upon a highway. (1937, c. 407, s. 91.)

§ 20-129. Required lighting equipment of vehicles. — (a) When vehicles must be equipped: Every vehicle upon a highway within this state during the period from a half hour after sunset to a half hour before sunrise, and at any other time when there is not sufficient light to render clearly discernible any person on the highway at a distance of two hundred feet ahead, shall be equipped with lighted front and rear lamps as in this section respectively required for different classes of vehicles, and subject to exemption with reference to lights on parked vehicles as declared in § 20-134.

(b) Head Lamps on Motor Vehicles: Every motor vehicle other than a motorcycle, road-roller, road machinery, or farm tractor shall be equipped with two head lamps, no more and no less, at the front of and on opposite sides of the motor vehicle, which head lamps shall comply with the requirements and limitations set forth in §§ 20-131 or 20-132.

(c) Head Lamps on Motorcycles: Every motorcycle shall be equipped with at least one and not more than two head lamps which shall comply with the requirements and limitations set forth in § 20-131 or 20-132.

(d) Rear Lamps: Every motor vehicle and every trailer or semi-trailer which is being drawn at the end of a train of vehicles shall carry at the rear a lamp of a type which has been approved by the commissioner and which exhibits a red light plainly visible under normal atmospheric conditions from a distance of five hundred feet to the rear of such vehicle, and so constructed and placed that the number plate carried on the rear of such vehicle shall under like conditions be so illuminated by a white light as to be read from a distance of fifty feet to the rear of such vehicle, and every trailer or semi-trailer shall carry at the rear, in addition to a rear lamp as above specified, a red reflector of a type which has been approved by the commissioner and which is so designed, located as to a height and maintained as to be visible for at least five hundred feet when opposed by a motor vehicle displaying lawful undimmed headlights at night on an unlighted highway. Such reflector shall be placed at the extreme end of the load.

(e) Clearance Lamps: Every motor vehicle having a width at any part in excess of eighty inches shall carry two clearance lamps at the front, one at each side reflecting an amber light plainly visible under normal atmospheric conditions from a distance of five hundred feet to the front of said vehicle and two clearance lamps at the rear, one on each side and reflecting a red light visible under like conditions from a distance of five hundred feet to the rear of the vehicle. As relates to truck-trailer or tractor-trailer combinations, such lights shall be required only at the front and rear of the overall dimensions.

(f) Lamps on Bicycles: Every bicycle shall be equipped with a lighted lamp on the front thereof, visible under normal atmospheric conditions from a distance of at least three hundred feet in front of such bicycle, and shall also be equipped with a reflex mirror or lamp on the rear, exhibiting a red light visible under like conditions from a distance of at least two hundred feet to the rear of such bicycle, when used at night.

(g) Lights on Other Vehicles: All vehicles not heretofore in this section required to be equipped with specified lighted lamps shall carry on the left side one or more lighted lamps or lanterns projecting a white light, visible under normal atmospheric conditions from a distance of not less than five hundred feet to the front of such vehicle and visible under like conditions from a distance of not less than five hundred feet to the rear of such vehicle, or in lieu of said lights shall be equipped with reflectors of a type which is approved by the commissioner. (1937, c. 407, s. 92; 1939, c. 275.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment changed subsection (e). Some of the cases noted below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the prior law.

Effect of Violation in Civil Action.—Negligence in not having a light on the rear of a truck will not preclude recovery against one who drove his car into the truck, unless it contributed to the injury. Hughes v. Luther, 189 N. C. 841, 128 S. E. 145.

Absence of Rear Lights on Smoke Covered Road.—Where plaintiff's evidence tended to show that he was driving at night along a highway covered with smoke from fires along its side and that he collided with the rear of an oil truck which was headed in the same direction and which had been stopped on the highway without rear lights in violation of this section it was held that conceding negligence on the part of defendant, plaintiff's evidence discloses contributory negligence barring recovery as a matter of law, either in driving at a speed in excess of that at which he could stop within the distance to which his lights would disclose the existence of obstructions, or, if he could have seen the oil truck in time to have avoided a collision, in failing to do so. Sibbitt v. R. & W. Transit Co., 220 N. C. 702, 18 S. E. (2d) 203.

Whether Obstruction Should Have Been Seen Is Jury Question.—Generally speaking, where the statutes, as this section, or the decisions of the courts, require red lights as a warning of danger on any object in the highway and such lights are not present, it is a question for the jury to determine whether the driver at night should have seen the obstruction, notwithstanding the absence of red lights. Morris v. Sells-Floto Circus, 65 F. (2d) 783, 785.

Evidence Sufficient for Jury.—Evidence tending to show that the headlights on defendant's car were defective and that he was driving at a speed of 60 to 65 miles an hour and, in a sudden effort to avoid colliding with another automobile which had been backed into the highway and which was apparently not in motion at the time, defendant drove off the road, causing the car to overturn, inflicting serious injury to plaintiff, a guest in the car, require the submission of the case to the jury. Stewart v. Stewart, 221 N. C. 147, 19 S. E. (2d) 242.

§ 20-130. Additional permissible light on vehicle.—(a) Spot Lamps: Any motor vehicle may be equipped with not to exceed two spot lamps, except that a motorcycle shall not be equipped with more than one spot lamp, and every lighted spot lamp shall be so aimed and used upon approaching another vehicle that no part of the beam will be directed to the left of the center of the highway nor more than one hundred feet ahead of the vehicle. No spot lamps shall be used on the rear of any vehicle.

(b) Auxiliary Driving Lamps: Any motor vehicle may be equipped with not to exceed two auxiliary driving lamps mounted on the front, and every such auxiliary driving lamp or lamps shall meet the requirements and limitations set forth in § 20-131, subsection (c).

(c) Restrictions on Lamps: Any device, other than head lamps, spot lamps, or auxiliary driving lamps, which projects a beam of light of an intensity greater than twenty-five candle power, shall be so directed that no part of the beam will strike the level of the surface on which the vehicle stands at a distance of more than fifty feet from the vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 93.)

§ 20-130.1. Use of red lights on front of vehicles prohibited; exceptions.—It shall be unlawful for any person to drive upon the highways of this state any vehicle displaying red lights visible from the front of said vehicle. The provisions of this section shall not apply to police cars, highway patrol cars, ambulances, wreckers, or fire fighting vehicles, or to such lights as may be prescribed by the interstate commerce commission. (1943, c. 726.)

§ 20-131. Requirements as to head lamps and auxiliary driving lamps.—(a) The head lamps of motor vehicles shall be so constructed, arranged, and adjusted that, except as provided in subsection (c) of this section, they will at all times mentioned in § 20-129, and under normal atmospheric conditions and on a level road, produce a driving light sufficient to render clearly discernible a person two hundred feet ahead, but any person operating a motor vehicle upon the highways, when meeting another vehicle, shall so control the lights of the vehicle operated by him by shifting, depressing, deflecting, tilting, or dimming the headlight beams in such manner as shall not project a glaring or dazzling light to persons in front of such head lamp.

(b) Head lamps shall be deemed to comply with the foregoing provisions prohibiting glaring and dazzling lights if none of the main bright portion of the head lamp beams rises above a horizontal plane passing through the lamp centers parallel to the level road upon which the loaded vehicle stands, and in no case higher than forty-two inches, seventy-five feet ahead of the vehicle.

(c) Whenever a motor vehicle is being operated upon a highway, or portion thereof, which is sufficiently lighted to reveal a person on the highway at a distance of two hundred feet ahead of the vehicle, it shall be permissible to dim the head lamps or to tilt the beams downward or to substitute therefor the light from an auxiliary driving lamp or pair of such lamps, subject to the restrictions as to tilted beams and auxiliary driving lamps set forth in this section.

(d) Whenever a motor vehicle meets another vehicle on any highway it shall be permissible to tilt the beams of the head lamps downward or to substitute therefor the light from an auxiliary driving lamp or pair of such lamps subject to the requirement that the tilted head lamps or auxiliary lamp or lamps shall give sufficient illumination under normal atmospheric conditions and on a level road to render clearly discernible a person seventy-five feet ahead, but shall not project a glaring or dazzling light to persons in front of the vehicle: Provided, that at all times required in § 20-129 at least two lights shall be displayed on the front of and on opposite sides of every motor vehicle other than a motorcycle, roadroller, road machinery, or farm tractor.

(e) No city or town shall enact an ordinance in conflict with this section. (1937, c. 407, s. 94; 1939, c. 351, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to failure to dim headlights not cause for suspension or revocation of driver's license, see § 20-18. As to penalties imposed for failure to dim headlights, see § 20-181.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment inserted in subsection (a) the provision as to controlling lights.

Contributory Negligence.—In an action for damages due to negligence of defendants, where the evidence showed that plaintiffs, on a joint enterprise, driving their car about 2:00 o'clock a. m., at 40 or 45 miles per hour, with lights dimmed so that they could not see ahead over 75 to 100 feet, never applied the brakes and failed to see defendants' truck until after the collision, crashing into the back of the truck with terrific force, plaintiffs were guilty of contributory negligence which was a proximate cause of the accident, thereby barring their recovery. Pike v. Seymour, 222 N. C. 42, 21 S. E. (2d) 884.

Quoted in Newbern v. Leary, 215 N. C. 134, 1 S. E. (2d) 384.

§ 20-132. Acetylene lights.—Motor vehicles may be equipped with two acetylene head lamps of approximately equal candle power when equipped with clear plane glass fronts, bright six-inch spherical mirrors, and standard acetylene five-eighths foot burners not more and not less and which do not project a glaring or dazzling light into the eyes of approaching drivers. (1937, c. 407, s. 95.)

§ 20-133. Enforcement of provisions.—(a) The commissioner is authorized to designate, furnish instructions to and to supervise official stations for adjusting head lamps and auxiliary driving lamps to conform with the provisions of § 20-129. When head lamps and auxiliary driving lamps have been adjusted in conformity with the instructions issued by the commissioner, a certificate of adjustment shall be issued to the driver of the motor vehicle on forms issued in duplicate by the commissioner and showing date of issue, registration number of the motor vehicle, owner's name, make of vehicle and official designation of the adjusting station.

(b) The driver of any motor vehicle equipped with approved head lamps, auxiliary driving lamps, rear lamps or signal lamps, who is arrested upon a charge that such lamps are improperly adjusted or are equipped with bulbs of a candle power not approved for use therewith, shall be allowed forty-eight hours within which to bring such lamps into conformance with the requirements of this article. It shall be a defense to any such charge that the person arrested produce in court or submit to the prosecuting attorney a certificate from an official adjusting station showing that within forty-eight hours after such arrest such lamps have been made to conform with the requirements of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 96.)

§ 20-134. Lights on parked vehicles.—Whenever a vehicle is parked or stopped upon a highway, whether attended or unattended during the times mentioned in § 20-129, there shall be displayed upon such vehicle one or more lamps projecting a white light visible under normal atmospheric conditions from a distance of five hundred feet to the front of such vehicle, and projecting a red light visible under like conditions from a distance of five hundred feet to the rear, except that local authorities may provide by ordinance that no lights need be displayed upon any such vehicle when parked in accordance with local ordinances upon a highway where there is sufficient light to reveal any person within a distance of two hundred feet upon such highway. (1937, c. 407, s. 97.)

It is not necessarily unlawful in all cases to park a vehicle at night on the paved portion of a highway without lights thereon, as an emergency may arise thereby making it impossible to move such vehicle immediately. Pike v. Seymour, 222 N. C. 42, 21 S. E. (2d) 884.

Violation Is Negligence Per Se.—The parking of a truck on a public highway at night without lights in violation of this section is negligence per se, and the question of proximate cause is for the determination of the jury. [This case was decided under the corresponding section of the former law.] Barrier v. Thomas, etc., Co., 205 N. C. 425, 171 S. E. 626.

§ 20-135. Safety glass.—(a) It shall be unlawful to operate knowingly, on any public highway or street in this state, any motor vehicle which is registered in the state of North Carolina and which shall have been manufactured or assembled on or after January first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six, unless such motor vehicle be equipped with safety glass wherever glass is used in doors, windows, windshields, wings or partitions; or for a dealer to sell a motor vehicle manufactured or assembled on or after January first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six, for operation upon the said highways or streets unless it be so equipped. The provisions of this article shall not apply to any motor vehicle if such motor vehicle shall have been registered previously in another state by the owner while the owner was a bona fide resident of said other state.

(b) The term "safety glass" as used in this article shall be construed as meaning glass so treated or combined with other materials as to reduce, in comparison with ordinary sheet glass or plate glass, the likelihood of injury to persons by glass when the glass is cracked or broken.

(c) The department of motor vehicles shall approve and maintain a list of the approved types of glass, conforming to the specifications and requirements for safety glass as set forth in this article, and in accordance with standards recognized by the United States bureau of standards, and shall not issue a license for or relicense any motor vehicle subject to the provisions of this article unless such motor vehicle be equipped as herein provided with such approved type of glass.

(d) The owner of any motor vehicle which is operated knowingly or any dealer who sells a motor vehicle in violation of the provisions of this article shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than twenty-five dollars or be imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 407, s. 98; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-136. Smoke screens.—(a) It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to drive, operate, equip or be in the possession of any automobile or other motor vehicle containing, or in any manner provided with, a mechanical machine or device designed, used or capable of being used for the purpose of discharging, creating or causing, in any manner, to be discharged or emitted, either from itself or from the automobile or other motor vehicle to which attached, any unusual amount of smoke, gas or other substance not necessary to the actual propulsion, care and keep of said vehicle, and the possession by any person or persons of any such device, whether the same is attached to any such motor vehicle, or detached therefrom, shall be prima facie evidence of the guilt of such person or persons of a violation of this section.

(b) Any person or persons violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be imprisoned in the state's prison for a period of not less than one year or not more than ten years, in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 407, s. 99.)

§ 20-137. Unlawful display of emblem or insignia.—It shall be unlawful for any person to display on his motor vehicle, or to allow to be displayed on his motor vehicle, any emblem or insignia of any organization, association, club, lodge, order, or fraternity, unless such person be a member of the organization, association, club, lodge, order, or fraternity, the emblem or insignia of which is so displayed.

Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars ($50) or imprisonment for a period not exceeding thirty days. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 63.)

Editor's Note.—The effect of this act was summarized in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 25.

Part 10. Operation of Vehicles and Rules of the Road.

§ 20-138. Persons under the influence of intoxicating liquor or narcotic drugs.—It shall be unlawful and punishable, as provided in § 20-179, for any person, whether licensed or not, who is a habitual user of narcotic drugs or any person who is under the influence of intoxicating liquor or narcotic drugs, to drive any vehicle upon the highways within this state. (1937, c. 407, s. 101.)

Editor's Note.—The cases treated below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the earlier law, but should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

Death caused by a violation of this section may be manslaughter but a condition precedent to conviction is that the violation of the law in this respect must have caused the wreck and the death of deceased. State v. Dills, 204 N. C. 33, 167 S. E. 459.

One who drives his automobile, in violation of this section, and runs into another car and thereby proximately causes the death of one of the occupants, is guilty of manslaughter at least. State v. Stansell, 203 N. C. 69, 74, 164 S. E. 580.

Circumstantial Evidence May Suffice.—Though the evidence on the part of the state as to violation of this section is circumstantial, it may be sufficient to be submitted to a jury. State v. Newton, 207 N. C. 323, 326, 177 S. E. 184.

§ 20-139. Operation upon driveways of public or private institutions while under the influence of intoxicating liquors, etc.—Any person who shall wilfully operate a motor vehicle over any drive, driveway, road, roadway, street or alley upon the grounds and premises of any public or private hospital, college, university, school, or any of the state institutions, maintained and kept up by the state of North Carolina, or any of its subdivisions, while under the influence of intoxicating liquors, opiates, or narcotic drugs, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished as now or hereafter provided by law for the punishment of operators of motor vehicles upon the public highways while under the influence of intoxicating liquors. (1939, c. 292.)

§ 20-140. Reckless driving.—Any person who drives any vehicle upon a highway carelessly and heedlessly in wilful or wanton disregard of the rights or safety of others, or without due caution and circumspection and at a speed or in a manner so as to endanger or be likely to endanger any person or property, shall be guilty of reckless driving, and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in § 20-180. (1937, c. 407, s. 102.)

Editor's Note.—Most of the cases cited below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

Surrounding Circumstances Govern Case.—Driving an automobile with tires which are known to be worn out and slick, on a highway which is wet and slippery, at a rate of speed not ordinarily unlawful, under this section may be unlawful under all the circumstances shown by the evidence. Waller v. Hipp, 208 N. C. 117, 120, 179 S. E. 428.

Care Required in Emergency.—While the operator of a public automobile is obligated to exercise a high degree of care, he is not charged with the necessity, either of possessing superhuman powers of anticipation or of exercising such powers in a threatened emergency. Love v. Queen City Lines, 206 N. C. 575, 579, 174 S. E. 514.

When Person Guilty of Reckless Driving.—Under this section, a person is guilty of reckless driving (1) if he drives an automobile on a public highway in this state, carelessly and heedlessly, in a wilful or wanton disregard of the rights or safety of others, or (2) if he drives an automobile on a public highway in this state without due caution and circumspection and at a speed or in a manner so as to endanger or be likely to endanger any person or property. State v. Folger, 211 N. C. 695, 697, 191 S. E. 747.

Violation of Traffic Ordinance.—The simple violation of a traffic regulation, which does not involve actual danger to life, limb or property, while importing civil liability if damage or injury ensue, would not perforce constitute the criminal offense of reckless driving. State v. Cope, 204 N. C. 28, 31, 167 S. E. 456.

Effect of Using Prudence after Violation.—A reckless violation which put a driver in such position that he could not avoid an injury though attempting to do so after the danger became apparent, is not excused by the subsequent attempt. State v. Gray, 180 N. C. 697, 104 S. E. 647.

Jurisdiction of Mayor's Court—Excessive Sentence.—Defendant was tried in the mayor's court of North Wilkesboro on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and reckless driving. On appeal to the superior court, judgment was pronounced exceeding that permitted for the offense of reckless driving alone. It was held that the mayor's court was without jurisdiction of the charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, and even conceding it had jurisdiction of the charge of reckless driving, the sentence exceeded that permitted for that offense, and the trial of defendant in the superior court upon the warrants, without a bill of indictment first being found and returned, was a nullity. State v. Johnson, 214 N. C. 319, 199 S. E. 96.

Proof of Violation in Criminal Prosecutions.—Our statutes on the subject of regulating the care to be used by those driving motor vehicles upon the State's highways are to secure the reasonable safety of persons in and upon the highways of the State, and where death or great bodily harm results, evidence that the accused was, at the time charged, violating these provisions may be properly received upon a trial for murder or for manslaughter in appropriate instances, or as evidence of an assault where no serious injury has resulted. State v. Suddarth, 184 N. C. 753, 114 S. E. 828.

Proximate Cause is Question for Jury.—The violation of this and succeeding sections enacted for the safety of those driving upon the highway is negligence per se, and when such violation is admitted or established the question of proximate cause is ordinarily for the jury. King v. Pope, 202 N. C. 554, 163 S. E. 447; Godfrey v. Queen City Coach Co., 201 N. C. 264, 267, 159 S. E. 412.

Sufficiency of Evidence for Jury.—Evidence that the individual defendant drove his car in a negligent manner in violation of this and other sections and that such negligence proximately caused injury to the plaintiff is held sufficient to have been submitted to the jury. Puckett v. Dyer, 203 N. C. 684, 167 S. E. 43.

The better rule under this and the following section is that except where the evidence is so conclusive that there could be, in the minds of reasonable men, no doubt as to the plaintiff's negligence contributing to the injury, the question should be left to the jury. Morris v. Sells-Floto Circus, 65 F. (2d) 782, 784.

Sufficient Evidence to Sustain Negligence and Proximate Cause as a Matter of Law.—Smith v. Miller, 209 N. C. 170, 183 S. E. 370.

An indictment under this section may be consolidated for trial with an indictment under § 20-217, which prohibits the driver of a motor vehicle from passing a standing school bus on the highway without first bringing said motor vehicle to a complete stop. State v. Webb, 210 N. C. 350, 186 S. E. 241.

Instruction on Reckless Driving Held Reversible Error.—See State v. Folger, 211 N. C. 695, 697, 191 S. E. 747.

An acquittal of reckless driving in the recorder's court will not bar a prosecution of manslaughter in the superior court arising out of the same occurrence, the two offenses differing both in grade and kind and not being the same in law or in fact, and the one not being a lesser degree of the other, and the recorder being without jurisdiction over the charge of manslaughter, but having bound defendant over to the superior court on that charge. State v. Midgett, 214 N. C. 107, 198 S. E. 613.

This and the following section constitute the hub of the Motor Traffic Law around which all other provisions regulating the operation of automobiles revolve. Kolman v. Silbert, 219 N. C. 134, 12 S. E. (2d) 915.

Sufficiency of Warrant.—A warrant charging that defendant "did unlawfully and willfully operate a motor vehicle on a state highway in a careless and reckless manner and without due regard for the rights and safety of others and their property in violation" of municipal ordinances and contrary to the form of the statute, is held sufficient to charge defendant with reckless driving under this section, since, although the warrant fails to follow the language of the statute in accordance with the better practice, it does charge facts sufficient to enable the court to proceed to judgment, and the charge of violating the municipal ordinances may be treated as surplusage. State v. Wilson, 218 N. C. 769, 12 S. E. (2d) 654.

Sufficiency of Evidence for Jury.—The state's evidence tending to show that defendant, driving 60 miles an hour, crashed into the rear of a car driven in the same direction on its right-hand side of the highway at 20 or 25 miles an hour, that the driver of the other car saw in his rear-view mirror defendant approaching at an excessive speed but that defendant struck the car before its driver could get on the shoulders of the road, together with evidence showing that defendant's car struck the other car with terrific force, is held sufficient to be submitted to the jury upon a warrant charging defendant with reckless driving under this section. State v. Wilson, 218 N. C. 769, 12 S. E. (2d) 654.

Stated in Etheridge v. Etheridge, 222 N. C. 616, 24 S. E. (2d) 477.

Quoted in State v. Crews, 214 N. C. 705, 200 S. E. 378; Newbern v. Leary, 215 N. C. 134, 1 S. E. (2d) 384.

Cited in Hancock v. Wilson, 211 N. C. 129, 189 S. E. 631; Bechtler v. Bracken, 218 N. C. 515, 11 S. E. (2d) 721.

§ 20-141. Speed restrictions. — (a) No person shall drive a vehicle on a highway at a speed greater than is reasonable and prudent under the conditions then existing.

(b) Where no special hazard exists the following speeds shall be lawful, but any speed in excess of said limits shall be prima facie evidence that the speed is not reasonable or prudent and that it is unlawful:

1. Twenty miles per hour in any business district;

2. Twenty-five miles per hour in any residence district;

3. Thirty-five miles per hour for motor vehicles designed, equipped for, or engaged in transporting property, and thirty miles per hour for such vehicles to which a trailer is attached: Provided the speed of forty miles per hour shall be lawful for three-quarter ton trucks and the speed limit of forty-five miles per hour shall be lawful for one-half ton or pick-up trucks;

4. Forty-five miles per hour under other conditions.

5. Notwithstanding the foregoing prima facie limits it shall be unlawful to drive any vehicle at a speed in excess of sixty (60) miles per hour, except those exempted in § 20-145.

(c) The fact that the speed of a vehicle is lower than the foregoing prima facie limits shall not relieve the driver from the duty to decrease speed when approaching and crossing an intersection, when approaching and going around a curve, when approaching a hill crest, when traveling upon any narrow or winding roadway, or when special hazard exists with respect to pedestrians or other traffic or by reason of weather or highway conditions, and speed shall be decreased as may be necessary to avoid colliding with any person, vehicle, or other conveyance on or entering the highway in compliance with legal requirements and the duty of all persons to use due care. It shall be unlawful to violate any provision of this section, and upon conviction the violator shall be punished as provided in § 20-180.

(d) Whenever the state highway and public works commission shall determine upon the basis of an engineering and traffic investigation that any prima facie speed hereinbefore set forth is greater than is reasonable or safe under the conditions found to exist at any intersection or other place or upon any part of a highway, said commission shall determine and declare a reasonable and safe prima facie speed limit thereat which shall be effective when appropriate signs giving notice thereof are erected at such intersection or other place or part of the highway.

(e) The foregoing provisions of this section shall not be construed to relieve the plaintiff in any civil action from the burden of proving negligence upon the part of the defendant as the proximate cause of an accident.

(f) Whenever local authorities within their respective jurisdictions determine, upon the basis of an engineering and traffic investigation that the prima facie speed permitted under this article at any intersection is greater than is reasonable or safe under the conditions found to exist at such intersection, such local authority shall determine and declare a reasonable and safe prima facie speed limit thereat, which shall be effective when appropriate signs giving notice thereof are erected at such intersection or upon the approaches thereto.

(g) Local authorities in their respective jurisdictions may, in their discretion, authorize by ordinance higher prima facie speeds than those stated in subsection (b) herein upon through highways or upon highways or portions thereof where there are no intersections or between widely spaced intersections: Provided, signs are erected giving notice of the authorized speed, but local authorities shall not have authority to modify or alter the basic rules set forth in sub-section (a) herein, or in any event to authorize by ordinance a speed in excess of forty-five miles per hour.

(h) No person shall drive a motor vehicle at such a slow speed as to impede or block the normal and reasonable movement of traffic, except when reduced speed is necessary for safe operation or in compliance with law. Police officers are hereby authorized to enforce this provision by directions to drivers, and in the event of apparent wilful disobedience to this provision and refusal to comply with direction of an officer in accordance herewith, the continued slow operation by a driver shall be a misdemeanor.

(i) The state highway and public works commission shall have authority to designate and appropriately mark certain highways of the state as truck routes, and any truck of a gross weight in excess of three tons for each axle operating on any highway in the state not designated by the state highway and public works commission as a truck route shall at no time exceed a speed limit of twenty miles per hour. Any person violating the provisions of this subsection shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 297, s. 2; 1937, c. 407, s. 103; 1939, c. 275; 1941, c. 347.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 20-216.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added item 5 to subsection (b).

The 1941 amendment added the proviso in the third subparagraph of subsection (b).

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 455.

Most of the cases cited below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

This section applies to criminal actions only and not to civil actions for damages. Piner v. Richter, 202 N. C. 573, 163 S. E. 561. See Jones v. Charlotte, 183 N. C. 630, 112 S. E. 423.

Regulation of Speed at Night.—The motorist upon a public highway on a dark, misty and foggy night, is required to regulate the speed of his car with a view to his own safety according to the distance the light from his headlights is thrown in front of him upon the highway, and to observe the rule of the ordinary prudent man. Weston v. Southern R. Co., 194 N. C. 210, 139 S. E. 237. See also, Stewart v. Stewart, 221 N. C. 147, 19 S. E. (2d) 242.

Contributory Negligence at Crossing.—Failure of a driver to keep his car under such control as will enable him to observe the restrictions imposed by this section as to grade crossings is contributory negligence sufficient to bar recovery against the railroad. Hinnant v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 202 N. C. 489, 163 S. E. 555.

Passing Animals.—See Gaskins v. Hancock, 156 N. C. 56, 72 S. E. 80; Tudor v. Bowen, 152 N. C. 441, 67 S. E. 1015, cited and applied; Curry v. Fleer, 157 N. C. 16, 72 S. E. 626.

Intersecting Streets.—The word "intersecting" has been construed as synonymous with "joining" or "touching" or "entering into." Manly v. Abernathy, 167 N. C. 220, 83 S. E. 343; Fowler v. Underwood, 193 N. C. 402, 403, 137 S. E. 155.

The words "intersecting highways" include all space made by the junction of frequented streets of a town, though one of the streets enters the other without crossing or going beyond it. Manly v. Abernathy, 167 N. C. 220, 83 S. E. 343.

Same—Effect of Exercising Judgment Where Speed Exceeded.—Where one recklessly drives an automobile without signal or warning, in excess of the speed limit fixed by ordinance and the general statute, and thereby injures or kills another at a street intersection of the town, his violating the law in this manner makes him criminally liable for the injury without regard to the exercise of his judgment at the time in endeavoring to avoid the injury or contributory negligence on the part of the one injured or killed. State v. McIver, 175 N. C. 761, 94 S. E. 682.

Same—Criminal Liability.—A reckless approach and traverse of an intersection may render one criminally liable for the consequences of his acts in addition to liability under this section. State v. Gash, 177 N. C. 595, 597, 99 S. E. 387.

Same—Application to Railroads.—The prior law, similar in phraseology to this section, was held to include railroads within its provisions, and it was therefore a misdemeanor to run an automobile at a greater speed than permitted at intersections while approaching a railroad crossing in a town. Hinton v. Southern R. Co., 172 N. C. 587, 90 S. E. 756.

Same—Effect of Violation upon Recovery from Railroad.—The mere fact that the speed of an automobile exceeded that allowed by law, at the time of collision with a railroad train at a public crossing, does not of itself prevent a recovery by the owner, where there is evidence of negligence on the part of the railroad, because it would, among other things, withdraw the question of proximate cause from the jury. Shepard v. Norfolk Southern Railroad, 169 N. C. 239, 84 S. E. 277.

Same—Purpose of Regulation.—Statutory regulation of speed at intersections has for its purpose the protection of those who are in, entering, or about to enter, the intersecting highway. Etheridge v. Etheridge, 222 N. C. 616, 618, 24 S. E. (2d) 477.

Application to Approach from Private Drive.—In approaching a highway from a yard the driver of an automobile must have his car under control, and not exceed a speed of ten miles an hour, and also give timely signals of its approach, and evidence of his failure to do so causing an accident to another car being properly driven on the highway, is sufficient actionable negligence to take the case to the jury; and the fact that this negligence did not actually result in a collision of the two cars, but proximately caused the injury in the reasonable effort of the driver of the plaintiff's car to avoid it, does not vary the application of the rule. Fowler v. Underwood, 193 N. C. 402, 137 S. E. 155.

Care as to Children.—The law requires more than ordinary care in regard to children. Moore v. Powell, 205 N. C. 636, 172 S. E. 327.

This section states several offenses each of which is a separate crime independently of the others. State v. Mills, 181 N. C. 530, 106 S. E. 677. See also State v. Rountree, 181 N. C. 535, 106 S. E. 669.

Limitation upon Privilege of Driving at Maximum Rate.—The speed limit prescribed by statute at which an automobile driver may go at various places, does not alone excuse those who drive within that specified by the statute, and it is likewise required that they use proper care where other conditions require it within the limitations given. State v. Whaley, 191 N. C. 387, 132 S. E. 6.

Motorist may not lawfully drive at speed which is not reasonable and prudent under the circumstances notwithstanding that the speed is less than limit set by this section. Kolman v. Silbert, 219 N. C. 134, 12 S. E. (2d) 915.

The trial court's instruction correctly defining "residential district" and charging that the lawful speed therein was 25 miles an hour, but that this limitation did not relieve the driver from further reducing his speed if made necessary by special hazards in order to avoid colliding with any person or vehicle, is without error, whether the scene of the accident was in a "residential district" as defined by statute and the conflicting evidence as to the speed of the bus being left to the determination of the jury. Reid v. City Coach Co., 215 N. C. 469, 2 S. E. (2d) 578, 123 A. L. R. 140.

The driver of an automobile upon a through highway did not have the right to assume absolutely that a driver approaching the intersection along a servient highway would obey the stop sign before entering or crossing the through highway, ch. 148, Public Laws 1927, § 21, but was required to keep a proper lookout and to keep his car at a reasonable speed under the circumstances in order to avoid injury to life or limb, § 4 of the 1927 act, and the driver of the car along the through highway forfeited his right to rely upon the assumption that the other driver would stop before entering or crossing the intersection when he approached and attempted to traverse it himself at an unlawful or excessive speed, and even when his speed was lawful he remained under duty to exercise due care to ascertain if the driver of the other car was going to violate the statutory requirement in order to avoid the consequences of such negligence, it being necessary to construe the pertinent statutes in pari materia and this result being consonant with such construction. Groome v. Davis, 215 N. C. 519, 2 S. E. (2d) 771.

Violation as Constituting Negligence.—It is negligence per se to drive an automobile upon a public highway at a speed greater than that permitted by statute, and where in an action to recover damages for the negligent killing of plaintiff's intestate, a voluntary passenger in the car thus driven, a motion as of nonsuit upon such evidence is properly denied. Albritton v. Hill, 190 N. C. 429, 130 S. E. 5.

When Negligence Not Imputed to Passenger.—The negligent driving of the owner of the car or his agent is not attributable to a passenger therein who has no authority over him or control over the car or the manner in which it was being driven at the time his injury was caused, the subject of his action for damages, nor will the principles of law applicable to those engaged in a common purpose apply from the fact that the injured party and the driver of the car were riding together to the same destination. Albritton v. Hill, 190 N. C. 429, 130 S. E. 5.

Necessity for Criminal Negligence.—Under an indictment with three counts: assault with a deadly weapon, an automobile; operating a motor vehicle on a public highway while under the influence of intoxicating liquor; and recklessly, and in breach of this section, wherein it was admitted by the State that there was no evidence of intentional assault, and the jury having returned for their verdict that defendant "was guilty of an assault, but not with reckless driving," the admission and the verdict on the last two counts dispelled the element of criminal negligence and criminal intent, and a conviction on the first count will not be sustained. State v. Rawlings, 191 N. C. 265, 131 S. E. 632. See also State v. Rountree, 181 N. C. 535, 106 S. E. 669.

When Violation Amounts to Manslaughter.—Where one drives his automobile in violation of the statutory requirements, and thus directly, or without an independent intervening sole proximate cause, the death of another results, he is guilty of manslaughter, though the death was unintentionally caused by his act. State v. Whaley, 191 N. C. 387, 132 S. E. 6. But the violation also is insufficient unless it was the proximate cause of the death, and a charge disregarding the element of proximate cause is error. Ibid.

Ordinance Held in Conflict.—Where one is permitted by the State law to enter upon and go across an intersecting highway at a speed not exceeding ten miles an hour unless due regard to the traffic or to the safety of the public requires a reduction of the speed; but the ordinance in question deprives him of this right by prescribing an arbitrary rule that he shall always and under all circumstances stop his vehicle before entering certain streets, the ordinance is inconsistent with the statute and therefore not enforceable. State v. Stallings, 189 N. C. 104, 106, 126 S. E. 187.

Circumstantial Evidence May Be Sufficient.—Though the evidence on the part of plaintiff is not direct, but circumstantial, yet it may be sufficient evidence to be submitted to the jury that defendant was exceeding the speed limit contrary to the law of this section. Jones v. Bagwell, 207 N. C. 378, 382, 177 S. E. 170.

Proximate Cause Is for Jury.—Where there is evidence that defendant was driving his automobile on the highway at a speed of sixty-five miles per hour and that the injury in suit was proximately caused by such excessive speed, it is sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the issue of actionable negligence. Norfleet v. Hall, 204 N. C. 573, 169 S. E. 143.

Proof of Residential District or Section.—Where there is no definite evidence as to the number of residences at the scene of the action so as to bring the place within the definition of "residential section," as provided by this section, or "residential district," as set out in § 20-38, and no evidence that the speed of the car was a proximate cause of the accident in suit, the evidence is insufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question of defendant's negligence in exceeding the speed limit prescribed in residential districts, there being no evidence that defendant exceeded the speed limit prescribed for highway travel generally. Fox v. Barlow, 206 N. C. 66, 173 S. E. 43.

Where the evidence established that the scene of the accident was not in a business district, and there was no evidence that defendants' vehicle was being driven in excess of 20 miles an hour, whether the accident occurred in a residential district was immaterial, since such speed did not violate this section. Mitchell v. Melts, 220 N. C. 793, 18 S. E. (2d) 406.

Sufficient Evidence to Overrule Defendant's Motion to Nonsuit in Prosecution for Manslaughter.—Evidence that the defendant was driving his car at a speed of from 50 to 55 miles per hour, on or near the center of the highway, when he collided with another car, resulting in the death of the driver thereof, was held sufficient to overrule defendant's motion to nonsuit in a prosecution for manslaughter, although defendant introduced evidence in sharp conflict. State v. Webber, 210 N. C. 137, 185 S. E. 659.

Instruction failing to charge provisions of this section, in civil action, held error. Barnes v. Teer, 219 N. C. 823, 15 S. E. (2d) 379.

Speed in excess of statutory limits is prima facie evidence of negligence. Morris v. Johnson, 214 N. C. 402, 403, 199 S. E. 390. And an instruction that such speed constitutes negligence per se is reversible error. Latham v. Elizabeth City Orange Crush Bottling Co., 213 N. C. 158, 195 S. E. 372.

A speed in excess of the statutory restrictions is prima facie evidence that the speed is not reasonable or prudent and that it is unlawful, but it does not establish that the speed is unlawful as a matter of law, and is not prima facie proof of proximate cause, and does not make out a prima facie case, and an instruction that such speed constituted prima facie evidence of negligence, and if the jury should so find they should answer the issue of negligence in the affirmative, is erroneous. Woods v. Freeman, 213 N. C. 314, 195 S. E. 812. See Fleeman v. Citizens Transfer, etc., Co., 214 N. C. 117, 198 S. E. 596.

An instruction that the jury might find, but were not required to find, that a speed in excess of forty-five miles an hour was unlawful, but that if they should find such speed was unlawful it would constitute negligence per se, is held not prejudicial under the evidence in this case tending to show special hazards in that defendant was driving into a curve on wet pavement with worn, slick tires, at a speed in excess of forty-five miles per hour. York v. York, 212 N. C. 695, 194 S. E. 486.

An instruction that the violation of statutes regulating the operation of motor vehicles and the conduct of pedestrians on the highway would constitute negligence per se and would be actionable if the proximate cause of injury, is held without error when it appears that the instruction was applied solely to §§ 20-146 and 20-174 prescribing that vehicles should be operated on the right-hand side of the highway and that warning should be given pedestrians, there being no reference in the charge to a violation of speed restrictions which this section makes merely prima facie evidence that the speed is unlawful. Williams v. Woodward, 218 N. C. 305, 10 S. E. (2d) 913.

As to violation of statutory speed limit as constituting negligence per se, see James v. Carolina Coach Co., 207 N. C. 742, 178 S. E. 607; Norfleet v. Hall, 204 N. C. 573, 169 S. E. 143; Exum v. Baumrind, 210 N. C. 650, 188 S. E. 200. As to evidence establishing negligence per se but not wanton negligence, see Turner v. Lipe, 210 N. C. 627, 188 S. E. 108. See also, Smart v. Rodgers, 217 N. C. 560, 8 S. E. (2d) 833.

Driving Automobile in Excess of Forty-Five Miles Per Hour Is Only Prima Facie Negligence.—The driving of an automobile upon a highway at a speed in excess of forty-five miles per hour is not negligence per se or as a matter of law, but only prima facie evidence that the speed is unlawful under the provisions of this section. State v. Webber, 210 N. C. 137, 185 S. E. 659, citing State v. Spencer, 209 N. C. 827, 184 S. E. 835.

Evidence of Excessive Speed Is Not Prima Facie Evidence of Proximate Cause.—Speed in excess of 21 miles per hour in a business district is prima facie evidence that the speed is excessive and unlawful, but such evidence is not prima facie proof of proximate cause, but is merely evidence to be considered with other evidence in determining actionable negligence. Templeton v. Kelley, 215 N. C. 577, 2 S. E. (2d) 696.

A violation of subsection (a) would be negligence per se and if injury proximately result therefrom, it would be actionable. Tarrant v. Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., 221 N. C. 390, 20 S. E. (2d) 565.

Truck with Trailer Attached.—Where the evidence in a prosecution for manslaughter is not conclusive as to whether the truck operated by the defendant had attached thereto a trailer or semitrailer, and all the evidence shows that the defendant was driving the truck between thirty and thirty-five miles per hour, it was held error for the court to instruct the jury that defendant's speed was limited to thirty miles per hour. State v. Brooks, 210 N. C. 273, 186 S. E. 237.

Where it was admitted that when the driver of a truck first saw a cow at a distance of several hundred feet, the truck was then traveling in excess of 30 miles an hour, the limit imposed upon motor vehicles with trailers by this section, it was held that this admission was of significance in determining whether the driver of the truck was negligent in the management of the vehicle in the descent of the hill, if the jury should find, as the witnesses for the plaintiff assert, that the truck was driven to its left side of the road in order to avoid collision with the cow. Jarman v. Philadelphia-Detroit Lines, 131 F. (2d) 728, 729.

The burden is upon the State to prove that a truck had a trailer attached thereto in order to reduce the maximum lawful speed at which a vehicle might be lawfully operated from thirty-five miles per hour as prescribed for trucks without trailers, to thirty miles per hour. State v. Brooks, 210 N. C. 273, 186 S. E. 237.

Warrant Charging No Offense.—A warrant charging merely that defendant operated his automobile at a designated speed in excess of the maximum prescribed by statute and the applicable municipal ordinance, charges no criminal offense, and defendant's motion in arrest of judgment should be allowed, since under the provisions of this section such speed constitutes merely prima facie evidence that the speed is unlawful. State v. Crayton, 214 N. C. 579, 199 S. E. 918.

Applied in Moore v. Powell, 205 N. C. 636, 172 S. E. 327; Hancock v. Wilson, 211 N. C. 129, 189 S. E. 631; Gaffney v. Phelps, 207 N. C. 553, 178 S. E. 231 (speed in entering intersection).

C. 640, 152 S. E. 894; Lancaster v. B. & H. Coast Line, 198 N. C. 107, 109, 150 S. E. 716; Jones v. Bagwell, 207 N. C. 378, 382, 177 S. E. 170; Pittman v. Downing, 209 N. C. 219, 183 S. (2d) 334; Reeves v. Staley, 220 N. C. 573, 18 S. E. (2d) 239; Swinson v. Nance, 219 N. C. 772, 15 S. E. (2d) 284 (dis. op.).

§ 20-142. Railroad warning signals must be obeyed.—Whenever any person driving a vehicle approaches a highway and interurban or steam railway grade crossing, and a clearly visible and positive signal gives warning of the immediate approach of a railway train or car, it shall be unlawful for the driver of the vehicle to fail to bring the vehicle to a complete stop before traversing such grade crossing. (1937, c. 407, s. 104.)

§ 20-143. Vehicles must stop at certain railway grade crossings.—The road governing body (whether state or county) is hereby authorized to designate grade crossings of steam or interurban railways by state and county highways, at which vehicles are required to stop, respectively, and such railways are required to erect signs thereat notifying drivers of vehicles upon any such highway to come to a complete stop before crossing such railway tracks, and whenever any such crossing is so designated and sign-posted it shall be unlawful for the driver of any vehicle to fail to stop within fifty feet, but not closer than ten feet, from such railway tracks before traversing such crossing. No failure so to stop, however, shall be considered contributory negligence per se in any action against the railroad or interurban company for injury to person or property; but the facts relating to such failure to stop may be considered with the other facts in the case in determining whether the plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence: Provided, that all school trucks and passenger busses be required to come to a complete stop at all railroad crossings. (1937, c. 407, s. 105.)

Editor's Note.—Most of the cases treated below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the earlier law, but should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

Duty to Stop May Be Mixed Question of Law and Fact.—A driver of an automobile is not required by this section under all circumstances to stop before driving upon a railroad grade crossing, and whether he is required to do so under the particular circumstances disclosed by the evidence is ordinarily a mixed question of law and fact to be submitted to the jury upon proper instruction from the court. Keller v. Southern R. Co., 205 N. C. 269, 171 S. E. 73.

Necessity for Section.—Although a railroad is a highway (Hinton v. Southern R. Co., 172 N. C. 587, 90 S. E. 756), an amendment of the statute (Acts of 1923) was necessary in order to compel the operator of a motor vehicle to bring it to a full stop before crossing or attempting to cross a railroad track. State v. Stallings, 189 N. C. 104, 106, 126 S. E. 187.

Failure to Stop as Negligence Per Se—Contributory Negligence.—The failure of a motorist to stop his automobile before crossing a railroad at a grade crossing on a public highway, as directed by this section, "at a distance not exceeding fifty feet from the nearest rail," does not constitute contributory negligence per se in his action against the railroad company to recover damages to his car caused by a collision with a train standing upon the track, and where the evidence tends only to show that the proximate cause of the plaintiff's injury was his own negligence in exceeding the speed he should have used under the circumstances, a judgment as of nonsuit thereon should be entered on defendant's motion therefor properly entered. Weston v. Southern R. Co., 194 N. C. 210, 139 S. E. 237.

The failure of a motorist to come to a full stop before entering upon a railroad crossing as required by statute is not contributory negligence per se, but such failure is a circumstance to be considered by the jury with the other evidence in the case upon the question. White v. North Carolina R. Co., 216 N. C. 79, 3 S. E. (2d) 310.

§ 20-144. Special speed limitation on bridges.—It shall be unlawful to drive any vehicle upon any public bridge, causeway or viaduct at a speed which is greater than the maximum speed which can with safety to such structure be maintained thereon, when such structure is sign-posted as provided in this section.

The state highway and public works commission, upon request from any local authorities, shall, or upon its own initiative may conduct an investigation of any public bridge, causeway or viaduct, and if it shall thereupon find that such structure cannot with safety to itself withstand vehicles traveling at the speed otherwise permissible under this article, the commissioner shall determine and declare the maximum speed of vehicles which such structure can withstand, and shall cause or permit suitable signs stating such maximum speed to be erected and maintained at a distance of one hundred feet beyond each end of such structure. The findings and determination of the commission shall be conclusive evidence of the maximum speed which can with safety to any such structure be maintained thereon. (1937, c. 407, s. 106.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of state highway and public works commission to fix maximum load limits on bridges, see § 136-72.

§ 20-145. When speed limit not applicable.

—The speed limitations set forth in this article shall not apply to vehicles when operated with due regard for safety under the direction of the police in the chase or apprehension of violators of the law or of persons charged with or suspected of any such violation, nor to fire department or fire patrol vehicles when traveling in response to a fire alarm, nor to public or private ambulances when traveling in emergencies. This exemption shall not, however, protect the driver of any such vehicle from the consequence of a reckless disregard of the safety of others. (1937, c. 407, s. 107.)

§ 20-146. Drive on right side of highway.

—Upon all highways of sufficient width, except upon one-way streets, the driver of a vehicle shall drive the same upon the right half of the highway, and shall drive a slow-moving vehicle as closely as possible to the right-hand edge or curb of such highway, unless it is impracticable to travel on such side of the highway and except when overtaking and passing another vehicle subject to the limitations applicable in overtaking and passing, set forth in §§ 20-149 and 20-150. (1937, c. 407, s. 108.)

Editor's Note.—Most of the cases annotated were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

For discussion of the subject matter of statutes similar to this and succeeding sections, see 2 N. C. Law Rev. 178; 5 N. C. Law Rev. 248.

Proximate Cause.—A violation of this section is negligence per se, but such negligence is not actionable unless there is a causal relation between the breach and the injury. Grimes v. Carolina Coach Co., 203 N. C. 605, 608, 166 S. E. 599. See Stovall v. Ragland, 211 N. C. 536, 190 S. E. 899.

Burden on Plaintiff to Establish Negligence.—Where plaintiff's evidence leaves in speculation and conjecture the determinative fact of whether defendant's car was being driven on the wrong side of the highway at the time of the collision, defendant's motion to nonsuit is properly granted, the burden being on plaintiff to establish the negligence of defendant. Cheek v. Barnwell Warehouse, etc., Co., 209 N. C. 569, 183 S. E. 729.

Negligence Per Se.—An instruction that the violation of statutes regulating the operation of motor vehicles and the conduct of pedestrians on the highway would constitute negligence per se and would be actionable if the proximate cause of injury, is held without error when it appears that the instruction was applied solely to this section and § 20-174 prescribing that vehicles should be operated on the right-hand side of the highway and that warning should be given pedestrians, there being no reference in the charge to a violation of speed restrictions which § 20-141 makes merely prima facie evidence that the speed is unlawful. Williams v. Woodward, 218 N. C. 305, 10 S. E. (2d) 913.

Applied in Hancock v. Wilson, 211 N. C. 129, 189 S. E. 631; Newbern v. Leary, 215 N. C. 134, 1 S. E. (2d) 384. See also, State v. Toler, 195 N. C. 481, 142 S. E. 715; State v. Durham, 201 N. C. 724, 161 S. E. 398; Queen City Coach Co. v. Lee, 218 N. C. 320, 11 S. E. (2d) 341.

§ 20-147. Keep to the right in crossing intersections or railroads.—In crossing an intersection of highways or the intersection of a highway by a railroad right-of-way, the driver of a vehicle shall at all times cause such vehicle to travel on the right half of the highway unless such right side is obstructed or impassable. (1937, c. 407, s. 109.)

§ 20-148. Meeting of vehicles.—Drivers of vehicles proceeding in opposite directions shall pass each other to the right, each giving to the other at least one-half of the main-traveled portion of the roadway as nearly as possible. (1937, c. 407, s. 110.)

Editor's Note.—The cases cited below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

Assumption that Vehicle Will Turn to Right.—When the driver of one of the automobiles is not observing the rule of this section, as the automobiles approach each other, the other may assume that before the automobiles meet the driver of the approaching automobile will turn to his right, so that the two automobiles may pass each other in safety. Shirley v. Ayers, 201 N. C. 51, 53, 158 S. E. 840. See also James v. Carolina Coach Co., 207 N. C. 742, 178 S. E. 607; Hancock v. Wilson, 211 N. C. 129, 189 S. E. 631.

Ordinarily, a motorist has the right to assume that the driver of a vehicle approaching on the same side or on his left-hand side will yield half of the highway or turn out in time to avoid a collision, but this right is not absolute. It may be qualified by the particular circumstances existing at the time. Brown v. Southern Paper Products Co., 222 N. C. 626, 628, 24 S. E. (2d) 334.

§ 20-149. Overtaking a vehicle.—(a) The driver of any such vehicle overtaking another vehicle proceeding in the same direction shall pass at least two feet to the left thereof, and shall not again drive to the right side of the highway until safely clear of such overtaken vehicle.

(b) The driver of an overtaking motor vehicle not within a business or residence district, as herein defined, shall give audible warning with his horn or other warning device before passing or attempting to pass a vehicle proceeding in the same direction. (1937, c. 407, § 111.)

Editor's Note.—The cases cited below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

Purpose of Section.—This section was enacted for the protection of the public upon the roads and highways of the State, and its violation is negligence per se entitling the person injured to his damages when there is a causal connection between the negligent act and the injury complained of. Wolfe v. Independent Coach Line, 198 N. C. 140, 150 S. E. 876.

The violation of this section is negligence and if such negligence was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries, the defendant, nothing else appearing, is liable to the plaintiff in this action. Stovall v. Ragland, 211 N. C. 536, 539, 190 S. E. 899.

A violation of subsection (a) would be negligence per se and if injury proximately result therefrom, it would be actionable. Tarrant v. Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., 221 N. C. 390, 20 S. E. (2d) 565.

Evidence Sufficient to Raise Issue of Last Clear Chance.—Where the evidence tended to show that plaintiff, in order to avoid striking a chicken standing on the hard surface of the highway, drove his automobile gradually to the left, so that the car was traveling in about the center of the highway at the time of the accident in suit, and that a bus belonging to defendant was traveling in the same direction and hit plaintiff's car when the bus attempted to pass, it was held that, conceding plaintiff was negligent in driving to the left without giving any signal or ascertaining if the car could be driven to the left in safety, defendant's motion to nonsuit was erroneously granted, since the pleadings and evidence are sufficient to raise the issue of the last clear chance upon the evidence tending to establish defendant's negligence in failing to keep a safe distance between the vehicles and in failing to take the precautions and give the signals required by this section for passing cars on the highway. Morris v. Seashore Transp. Co., 208 N. C. 807, 182 S. E. 487.

Quoted in Leary v. Norfolk Southern Bus Corp., 220 N. C. 745, 18 S. E. (2d) 426 (dis. op.).

§ 20-150. Limitations on privilege of overtaking and passing.—(a) The driver of a vehicle shall not drive to the left side of the center of a highway, in overtaking and passing another vehicle proceeding in the same direction, unless such left side is clearly visible and is free of oncoming traffic for a sufficient distance ahead to permit such overtaking and passing to be made in safety.

(b) The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass another vehicle proceeding in the same direction upon the crest of a grade or upon a curve in the highway where the driver's view along the highway is obstructed within a distance of five hundred feet.

(c) The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass any other vehicle proceeding in the same direction at any steam or electric railway grade crossing nor at any intersection of highway unless permitted so to do by a traffic or police officer.

(d) The driver of a vehicle shall not drive to the left side of the center line of a highway upon the crest of a grade or upon a curve in the highway where such center line has been placed upon such highway by the state highway and public works commission, and is visible. (1937, c. 407, s. 112.)

Editor's Note.—Most of the cases cited below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

Negligence Per Se.—It is negligence per se for the operator of a motor vehicle to overtake and pass another vehicle traveling in the same direction at a railroad grade crossing. Murray v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 218 N. C. 392, 11 S. E. (2d) 326.

Sufficient Evidence to Submit Question of Negligence to Jury.—Evidence that the driver of a truck, in attempting to pass cars going in the same direction, pulled out in the center of the road and hit the car which plaintiff was driving in the opposite direction, causing damage to the car and injury to plaintiff, was held sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question of the actionable negligence of the driver to the truck. Joyner v. Dail, 210 N. C. 663, 188 S. E. 209.

§ 20-151. Driver to give way to overtaking vehicle.—The driver of a vehicle upon a highway about to be overtaken and passed by another vehicle approaching from the rear, shall give way to the right in favor of the overtaking vehicle on suitable and audible signal being given by the driver of the overtaking vehicle, and shall not increase the speed of his vehicle until completely passed by the overtaking vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 113.)

Editor's Note.—The cases treated below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the earlier law, but should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

Degree of Care in Observing Traffic in Rear.—The driver of an auto-truck along a public highway is not held to the same degree of care in observing those who may wish to pass him coming from the rear, as in front, and is not required to turn to the right for such purpose, unless he is apprised by the one who wishes to pass, by proper signal, of his intention to do so. Dreher v. Divine, 192 N. C. 325, 135 S. E. 29.

Duty to Turn to Right.—The driver of an automobile upon the signal of a faster car approaching from the rear, must turn to the right so that the other may pass to his left, when the conditions existing there at the time are reasonably safe to permit the other to pass. Dreher v. Divine, 192 N. C. 325, 135 S. E. 29.

When Question One of Reasonable Prudence.—Where the driver of an automobile violates the statute by turning to the right to avoid a motorcycle traveling in the same direction upon a public road, and collides therewith, and action is brought to recover damages therefor, and the evidence is conflicting as to whether the motorcycle was unexpectedly turned out in the wrong direction, resulting in the injury, the question of proximate cause depends upon whether the driver of the automobile acted with reasonable prudence under the circumstances, to avoid the injury, or whether the collision was caused by the wrongful and unexpected act of the one on the motorcycle. Cooke v. Jerome, 172 N. C. 626, 90 S. E. 767.

Duty of Passer from Rear.—The driver of an automobile who wishes to pass another ahead of him, must keep his automobile under control, so as to avoid a collision if the driver ahead of him apparently does not hear his signals or is not aware of his intention to pass, or the condition of the road makes it unsafe not only to himself, but to those who are driving from the opposite direction. Dreher v. Divine, 192 N. C. 325, 135 S. E. 29.

Proof of Violation in Trial for Resulting Crime.—See State v. Jessup, 183 N. C. 771, 111 S. E. 523; State v. Rountree, 181 N. C. 535, 106 S. E. 669, 676.

Same—Violation as Evidence of Intent to Assault.—Since the intentional driving of a motor vehicle on the wrong side of the road in disregard of the statute is malum prohibitum, not malum in se, the performance of this unlawful act is not evidence of a specific intent to commit an assault. State v. Rawlings, 191 N. C. 265, 267, 131 S. E. 632.

Act Must Have Been Likely to Cause Harm.—One who violated the provisions of this section, not intentionally or recklessly, but merely through a failure to exercise due care and thereby proximately caused the death would not be culpably negligent unless in the light of the attendant circumstances his negligent act was likely to result in death or bodily harm. State v. Stansell, 203 N. C. 69, 74, 164 S. E. 580.

Questions for Jury.—Where there was evidence that the plaintiff, desiring to pass a truck on the highway going in the same direction, blew his horn, and that the driver of the truck heard the signal, but instead of driving to the right of the center of the road to allow the plaintiff to pass on the left, drove to the left and stopped or came almost to a stop, that the plaintiff, thinking that the truck was going to stop, and having his car under control, attempted to pass on the right, when the truck suddenly turned to the right, forcing the plaintiff to turn to the right to avoid hitting the truck, causing the plaintiff's car to run off the embankment on the right of the road, resulting in the injury in suit: Held, the evidence should have been submitted to the jury upon issues of negligence, contributory negligence and damages. Stevens v. Rostan, 196 N. C. 314, 145 S. E. 555.

§ 20-152. Following too closely.—(a) The driver of a motor vehicle shall not follow another vehicle more closely than is reasonable and prudent, with regard for the safety of others and due regard to the speed of such vehicles and the traffic upon and condition of the highway.

(b) The driver of any motor truck, when traveling upon a highway outside of a business or residence district, shall not follow another motor truck within one hundred feet, but this shall not be construed to prevent one motor truck overtaking and passing another. (1937, c. 407, s. 114.)

Editor's Note.—The first case annotated below was decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

Charge to Jury.—Where the court, in its charge on contributory negligence, does not call attention to this section, an exception to the charge will not be sustained in the absence of a special request for such instructions. Alexander v. Southern Public Utilities Co., 207 N. C. 438, 441, 177 S. E. 427.

Negligence Per Se.—A violation of subdivision (a) would be negligence per se, and, if injury proximately results therefrom, it would be actionable. Murray v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 218 N. C. 392, 11 S. E. (2d) 326.

Cited in Hobbs v. Mann, 199 N. C. 532, 155 S. E. 163; Smith v. Carolina Coach Co., 214 N. C. 314, 199 S. E. 90.

§ 20-153. Turning at intersection.—(a) Except as otherwise provided in this section, the driver of a vehicle intending to turn to the right at an intersection shall approach such intersection in the lane for traffic nearest to the right-hand side of the highway, and in turning shall keep as closely as practicable to the right-hand curb or edge of the highway, and when intending to turn to the left shall approach such intersection in the lane for the traffic to the right of and nearest to the center of the highway, and in turning shall pass beyond the center of the intersection, passing as closely as practicable to the right thereof before turning such vehicle to the left.

(b) For the purpose of this section, the center of the intersection shall mean the meeting point of the medial lines of the highways intersecting one another.

(c) Local authorities in their respective jurisdiction may modify the foregoing method of turning at intersections by clearly indicating by buttons, markers or other directions signs within an intersection the course to be followed by vehicles turning thereat, and it shall be unlawful for any driver to fail to turn in a manner as so directed when such direction signs are authorized by local authorities. (1937, c. 407, s. 115.)

A violation of subsection (a) is negligence per se and if injury proximately results therefrom, violation is actionable. Tarrant v. Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., 221 N. C. 390, 20 S. E. (2d) 565.

§ 20-154. Signals on starting, stopping or turning.—(a) The driver of any vehicle upon a highway before starting, stopping or turning from a direct line shall first see that such movement can be made in safety, and if any pedestrian may be affected by such movement shall give a clearly audible signal by sounding the horn, and whenever the operation of any other vehicle may be affected by such movement, shall give a signal as required in this section, plainly visible to the driver of such other vehicle, of the intention to make such movement.

(b) The signal herein required shall be given by means of the hand and arm in the manner herein specified, or by any approved mechanical or electrical signal device, except that when a vehicle is so constructed or loaded as to prevent the hand and arm signal from being visible, both to the front and rear, the signal shall be given by a device of a type which has been approved by the department.

Whenever the signal is given the driver shall indicate his intention to start, stop, or turn by extending the hand and arm from and beyond the left side of the vehicle as hereinafter set forth.

Left turn—hand and arm horizontal, forefinger pointing.

Right turn—hand and arm pointed upward.

Stop—hand and arm pointed downward.

In General.—One driving an automobile upon a public highway is required by provision of this section to give specific signals before stopping or turning thereon, and the failure of one so driving to give the signal required by statute is negligence, and when the proximate cause of injury, damages may be recovered therefor by the one injured. Murphy v. Asheville-Knoxville Coach Co., 200 N. C. 92, 93, 156 S. E. 550.

Person Observing No Vehicles in Either Direction Is under No Obligation to Give Signal.—The plaintiff having first looked in both directions, and having observed no automobile or other vehicle approaching from either direction, was under no obligation, by virtue of this section to give any signal of his purpose to turn to his left and enter the driveway to his home. He was therefore not negligent as a matter of law in failing to give a signal before he turned to his left and crossed the highway for the purpose of entering the driveway to his home. Stovall v. Ragland, 211 N. C. 536, 539, 190 S. E. 899.

Question for Jury.—Whether defendant observed the rule of the road by ascertaining, first, if such turn would affect the operation of any other vehicle, and, second, by giving the required signal, under this section, held to raise an issue of fact for the jury. Mason v. Johnston, 215 N. C. 95, 1 S. E. (2d) 379.

Violation of Section as Negligence Per Se.—The violation of this section requiring a motorist desiring to stop on the highway to first ascertain if he can stop in safety, and, where the movement of another vehicle may be thereby affected, to give the statutory signal for stopping, is negligence per se. Holland v. Strader, 216 N. C. 436, 5 S. E. (2d) 311.

"One driving an automobile upon a public highway is required by provision of this section to give specific signals before stopping or turning thereon, and the failure of one so driving to give the signal required by statute is negligence, and when the proximate cause of injury, damages may be recovered therefor by the one injured." Bechtler v. Bracken, 218 N. C. 515, 523, 11 S. E. (2d) 721.

Proximate Cause.—See Templeton v. Kelley, 216 N. C. 487, 5 S. E. (2d) 555; Leary v. Norfolk Southern Bus Corp., 220 N. C. 745, 759, 18 S. E. (2d) 426 (dis. op.).

Whether the violation of a safety statute is a proximate cause of injury is ordinarily a question of fact for the determination of the jury. Holland v. Strader, 216 N. C. 436, 5 S. E. (2d) 311.

Cited in Smith v. Carolina Coach Co., 214 N. C. 314, 199 S. E. 90; Newbern v. Leary, 215 N. C. 134, 1 S. E. (2d) 384.

§ 20-155. Right-of-way.—(a) When two vehicles approach or enter an intersection and/or junction at approximately the same time, the driver of the vehicle on the left shall yield the right-of-way to the vehicle on the right except as otherwise provided in § 20-156.

(b) The driver of a vehicle approaching, but not having entered an intersection and/or junction, shall yield the right-of-way to a vehicle within such intersection and turning therein to the left across the line of travel of such first mentioned vehicle: Provided, the driver of the vehicle turning left has given a plainly visible signal of intention to turn as required in § 20-154.

(c) The driver of any vehicle upon a highway within a business or residence district shall yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian crossing such highway within any clearly marked cross-walk, or any regular pedestrian crossing included in the prolongation of the lateral boundary lines of the adjacent sidewalk at the end of a block, except at intersections where the movement of traffic is being regulated by traffic officers or traffic direction devices. (1937, c. 407, s. 117.)

Instruction.—Under this section where damages are sought for defendant's negligent driving at a street intersection and there is evidence tending to show that the defendant was approaching the intersection at an unlawful rate of speed and did not slow up before the happening of the collision with another car; an instruction correctly charging the rule of the right of way if both cars approached the intersection simultaneously and the rule that if one of the cars was already in the intersection it was the duty of the driver of the other car to slow down and permit it to pass will not be held for error. Piner v. Richter, 202 N. C. 573, 163 S. E. 561.

§ 20-156. Exceptions to the right-of-way rule.—(a) The driver of a vehicle entering a public highway from a private road or drive shall yield the right-of-way to all vehicles approaching on such public highway.

(b) The driver of a vehicle upon a highway shall yield the right-of-way to police and fire department vehicles and public and private ambulances when the latter are operated upon official business and the drivers thereof sound audible signal by bell, siren or exhaust whistle. This provision shall not operate to relieve the driver of a police or fire department vehicle or public or private ambulance from the duty to drive with due regard for the safety of all persons using the highway, nor shall it protect the driver of any such vehicle from the consequence of any arbitrary exercise of such right-of-way. (1937, c. 407, s. 118.)

Cited in Swinson v. Nance, 219 N. C. 772, 15 S. E. (2d) 284 (dis. op.).

§ 20-157. What to do on approach of police or fire department vehicles.—(a) Upon the approach of any police or fire department vehicle giving audible signal by bell, siren or exhaust whistle, the driver of every other vehicle shall immediately drive the same to a position as near as possible and parallel to the right-hand edge or curb, clear of any intersection of highways, and shall stop and remain in such position unless otherwise directed by a police or traffic officer until the police or fire department vehicle shall have passed.

(b) It shall be unlawful for the driver of any vehicle other than one on official business to follow any fire apparatus traveling in response to a fire alarm closer than one block or to drive into or park such vehicle within one block where fire apparatus has stopped in answer to a fire alarm. (1937, c. 407, s. 119.)

§ 20-158. Vehicles must stop at certain through highways.—(a) The state highway and public works commission, with reference to state highways, and local authorities, with reference to highways under their jurisdiction, are hereby authorized to designate main traveled or through highways by erecting at the entrance thereto from intersecting highways signs notifying drivers of vehicles to come to full stop before entering or crossing such designated highway, and whenever any such signs have been so erected it shall be unlawful for the driver of any vehicle to fail to stop in obedience thereto. No failure so to stop, however, shall be considered contributory negligence per se in any action at law for injury to person or property; but the facts relating to such failure to stop may be considered with the other facts in the case in determining whether the plaintiff in such action was guilty of contributory negligence.

(b) This section shall not interfere with the regulations prescribed by towns and cities.

(c) Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than ten dollars or imprisoned not more than ten days. (1937, c. 407, s. 120; 1941, c. 83.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out former subsections (b) and (d) and relettered the remaining subsections.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 455.

Failure to come to a complete stop before entering a through street intersection is not negligence per se, but only evidence of negligence to be considered with other facts in the case, such holding being a necessary corollary to the provision of this section, that failure to stop before entering a through street intersection should not be considered contributory negligence per se, but only evidence to be considered with the other facts in the case upon the issue of contributory negligence. Sebastian v. Horton Motor Lines, 213 N. C. 770, 197 S. E. 539; Reeves v. Staley, 220 N. C. 573, 18 S. E. (2d) 239.

This rule is unaffected by a municipal ordinance making such failure to stop unlawful, since this section prevails over the ordinance. Swinson v. Nance, 219 N. C. 772, 15 S. E. (2d) 284.

Negligence of Car Approaching on Through Highway.—

The driver of an automobile upon a through highway did not have the right to assume absolutely that a driver approaching the intersection along a servient highway would obey the stop sign before entering or crossing the through highway, ch. 148, Public Laws 1927, § 21, but was required to keep a proper lookout and to keep his car at a reasonable speed under the circumstances in order to avoid injury to life or limb, § 4 of the 1927 Act, and the driver of the car along the through highway forfeited his right to rely upon the assumption that the other driver would stop before entering or crossing the intersection when he approached and attempted to traverse it himself at an unlawful or excessive speed, and even when his speed was lawful he remained under duty to exercise due care to ascertain if the driver of the other car was going to violate the statutory requirement in order to avoid the consequences of such negligence, it being necessary to construe the pertinent statutes in pari materia and this result being consonant with such construction. Groome v. Davis, 215 N. C. 510, 2 S. E. (2d) 771.

Right of Way.—While the failure to stop before attempting to cross a through street intersection in violation of a municipal ordinance is negligence per se, a vehicle traveling along the through street does not have the right of way at the intersection if a vehicle from the cross street is already in the intersection before the vehicle traveling along the through street is near enough the intersection to constitute an immediate hazard. Pearson v. Luther, 212 N. C. 412, 193 S. E. 739.

Proximate Cause Must Be Shown Beyond a Mere Chance.—Where a conviction of involuntary manslaughter is sought for the failure to observe a positive duty imposed by statute with reference to the driving of automobiles upon the State highways, the question of proximate cause must be shown beyond a mere chance or casualty. State v. Satterfield, 198 N. C. 682, 153 S. E. 155.

The manifest object of this section is to protect the public by requiring the driver of an automobile upon the public highways of the State to stop and ascertain the circumstances and conditions at highway intersections, particularly with reference to traffic, with a view of determining whether in the exercise of due care he may go upon the intersecting highway with reasonable safety to himself and others, and where the defendant in a prosecution for manslaughter fails to stop, but has knowledge of the conditions and has an unobstructed view of the highway for a long distance, and there is no evidence tending to show that he had violated any other statute or that he was negligent in any other respect, the evidence alone that he had violated the statute in the respect stated is insufficient to take the case to the jury, there being no evidence that the violation of the statute was a proximate cause of the death or in causal relation thereto, and defendant's motion as of nonsuit, made in apt time, should have been granted. State v. Satterfield, 198 N. C. 682, 153 S. E. 155.

Instruction as to negligence held error since it was counter to the provision of this section. Stephens v. Johnson, 215 N. C. 133, 1 S. E. (2d) 367.

Applied in Jones v. Bagwell, 207 N. C. 378, 177 S. E. 170.

§ 20-159. Passing street cars.—(a) The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass upon the left any street car proceeding in the same direction, whether actually in motion or temporarily at rest, when a travelable portion of the highway exists to the right of such street car.

(b) The driver of a vehicle overtaking any railway, interurban or street car stopped or about to stop for the purpose of receiving or discharging any passenger, shall bring such vehicle to a full stop not closer than ten feet to the nearest exit of such street car and remain standing until any such passenger has boarded such car or reached the adjacent sidewalk, except that where a safety zone has been established, then a vehicle may be driven past any such railway, interurban or street car at a speed not greater than ten miles per hour and with due caution for the safety of pedestrians. (1937, c. 407, s. 121.)

§ 20-160. Driving through safety zone prohibited.—The driver of a vehicle shall not at any time drive through or over a safety zone as defined in part one of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 122.)

Cross Reference.—As to definition of safety zone, see § 20-38, subsec. (2).

§ 20-161. Stopping on highway.—(a) No person shall park or leave standing any vehicle, whether attended or unattended, upon the paved or improved or main traveled portion of any highway, outside of a business or residence district, when it is practicable to park or leave such vehicle standing off of the paved or improved or main traveled portion of such highway: Provided, in no event shall any person park or leave standing any vehicle, whether attended or unattended, upon any highway unless a clear and unobstructed width of not less than fifteen feet upon the main traveled portion of said highway opposite such standing vehicle shall be left for free passage of other vehicles thereon, nor unless a clear view of such vehicle may be obtained from a distance of two hundred feet in both directions upon such highway: Provided further, that in no event shall any person park or leave standing any vehicle, whether attended or unattended, upon any highway bridge: Provided further that in the event that a truck, trailer or semi-trailer be disabled upon the highway that the driver of such vehicle shall display, not less than two hundred feet in the front or rear of such vehicle, a warning signal; that during the hours from sunup to sundown a red flag shall be displayed, and after sundown red flares or lanterns. These warning signals shall be displayed as long as such vehicle is disabled upon the highways.

(b) Whenever any peace officer shall find a vehicle standing upon a highway in violation of the provisions of this section, he is hereby authorized to move such vehicle or require the driver or person in charge of such vehicle to move such vehicle to a position permitted under this section.

(c) The provisions of this section shall not apply to the driver of any vehicle which is disabled while on the paved or improved or main traveled portion of a highway in such manner and to such extent that it is impossible to avoid stopping and temporarily leaving such vehicle in such position. (1937, c. 407, s. 123.)

The word "park" means the permitting of such vehicles to remain standing on a public highway or street, while not in use. State v. Carter, 205 N. C. 761, 763, 172 S. E. 415.

To "park" means something more than a mere temporary or momentary stoppage on the road for a necessary purpose. Stallings v. Buchan Transport Co., 210 N. C. 201, 203, 185 S. E. 643.

Thus where the driver of a truck with a trailer stopped on the highway at night on the right-hand side, with lights burning, because two automobiles in front of him were interlocked in a wreck, and at the time of the collision the truck and trailer had been standing still only a fraction of a minute, and it remained parked for about five minutes thereafter, it was held that at the time of the collision the truck was not parked on the highway within the meaning of this section, and the length of time it remained still after the collision is immaterial to plaintiff's right to recover; since it was not the intention of those who drafted the statute to make it a violation of law for a driver of a heavy truck and trailer to stop on his right-hand side of the highway before driving around or by two cars interlocked in a collision on the highway, and around which a number of people were working. Id.

Starting and stopping on a highway in accordance with the exigencies of the occasion is an incident to the right of travel, and the word "park" and the words "leave standing" as used in this section are modified by the words "whether attended or unattended" so that they are synonymous, and neither term includes a mere temporary stop for a necessary purpose when there is no intent to break the continuity of the travel. Peoples v. Fulk, 220 N. C. 635, 18 S. E. (2d) 147.

The stopping of a bus on the hard surface of a highway outside of a business or residential district for the purpose of taking on a passenger is not parking or leaving the vehicle standing within the meaning of the terms as used in this section, Peoples v. Fulk, 220 N. C. 635, 18 S. E. (2d) 147; even though the shoulders of the highway at the scene are of sufficient width to permit the bus to be stopped thereon. Leary v. Norfolk Southern Bus Corp., 220 N. C. 745, 18 S. E. (2d) 426.

"I cannot authoritatively define 'parking' in a dissenting opinion, but it seems to me clear that a car is parked when those in charge stop it upon a highway and intentionally leave it upon the concrete to pursue some activity other than that concerned with the car and its operation, however commendable it may be." Beck v. Hooks, 218 N. C. 105, 114, 10 S. E. (2d) 608 (dissenting opinion).

To Be Actionable Negligence Must Be Proximate Cause of Injury.—Negligence in parking an automobile on a public highway in violation of this section, to be actionable, must be a proximate cause of the injury in suit, and where the plaintiff fails to show by his evidence that such violation was a proximate cause of his injury, a judgment as of nonsuit is properly allowed. Burke v. Carolina Coach Company, 198 N. C. 8, 150 S. E. 636.

The parking of a car on the hard surface of a highway at night without a tail light in violation of statute is sufficient to sustain the jury's affirmative answer upon the issue of actionable negligence, and the question of contributory negligence in failing to see the parked car under the circumstances in time to have avoided the collision is also properly submitted to the jury. Lambert v. Caronna, 206 N. C. 616, 175 S. E. 303.

Exception in Subsection (c) Is Question for Jury.—Where there is evidence tending to show that the defendant had parked his truck upon the hard surface of a highway in violation of this section, resulting in injury to the plaintiff, and the defendant claims that under the facts it came within the exception, subsection (c), under the statute and the facts disclosed by the record the matter should have been submitted to the jury under proper instructions, and the granting of defendant's motion as of non-suit was error. Smithwick v. Colonial Pine Co., 200 N. C. 519, 157 S. E. 612.

Charge to Jury.—The charge of the court as to subsection (a) of this section, will not be held for error for the failure to instruct the jury upon the provision in subsection (c), where the defendant's only evidence in excuse of parking was that he had a flat tire, such evidence being insufficient to bring defendant within the exception. Lambert v. Caronna, 206 N. C. 616, 175 S. E. 303.

Section Not Violated Where Disabled Truck Is Parked on Shoulder of Highway.—See State v. McDonald, 211 N. C. 672, 676, 191 S. E. 733.

Evidence Disclosing Contributory Negligence of Plaintiff.—Conceding defendant was negligent in parking the car on the hard surface in violation of this section, the evidence discloses contributory negligence of plaintiff as a matter of law in attempting to pass the parked car without first ascertaining that he could pass the car in safety. McNair v. Kilmer & Co., 210 N. C. 65, 185 S. E. 481.

§ 20-162. Parking in front of fire hydrant, fire station or private driveway.—No person shall park a vehicle or permit it to stand, whether attended or unattended, upon a highway in front of a private driveway or within fifteen feet in either direction of a fire hydrant or the entrance to a fire station, nor within twenty-five feet from the intersection of curb lines or if none, then within fifteen feet of the intersection of property lines at an intersection of highways; provided, that local authorities may by ordinance decrease the distance within which a vehicle may park in either direction of a fire hydrant. (1937, c. 407, s. 124; 1939, c. 111.)

thereon and stopping the motor of said vehicle, and, when standing upon any grade, without turning the front wheels of such vehicle to the curb or side of the highway. (1937, c. 407, s. 125.)

§ 20-164. Driving on mountain highways.—The driver of a motor vehicle traversing defiles, canyons or mountain highways shall hold such motor vehicle under control and as near the right-hand side of the highway as reasonably possible, and upon approaching any curve where the view is obstructed within a distance of two hundred feet along the highway, shall give audible warning with a horn or other warning device. (1937, c. 407, s. 126.)

§ 20-165. Coasting prohibited.—The driver of a motor vehicle when traveling upon a down grade upon any highway shall not coast with the gears of such vehicle in neutral. (1937, c. 407, s. 127.)

The violation of this section is negligence per se, and, if injury to the violator proximately result therefrom, it would bar his right to recover therefor. Dillon v. Winston-Salem, 221 N. C. 512, 519, 20 S. E. (2d) 845.

§ 20-166. Duty to stop in event of accident.—(a) The driver of any vehicle involved in an accident resulting in injury or death to any person shall immediately stop such vehicle at the scene of such accident, and any person violating this provision shall upon conviction be punished as provided in § 20-182.

(b) The driver of any vehicle involved in an accident resulting in damage to property and in which there is not involved injury or death of any person, shall immediately stop such vehicle at the scene of the accident, and any person violating this provision shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court.

(c) The driver of any vehicle involved in any accident resulting in injury or death to any person or damage to property shall also give his name, address, operator's or chauffeur's license number and the registration number of his vehicle to the person struck or the driver or occupants of any vehicle collided with, and shall render to any person injured in such accident reasonable assistance, including the carrying of such person to a physician or surgeon for medical or surgical treatment if it is apparent that such treatment is necessary or is requested by the injured person, and it shall be unlawful for any person to violate this provision, and such violator shall be punishable as provided in § 20-182.

(d) The driver of any vehicle involved in any accident resulting in injuries or death to any person, or property damage to an apparent extent of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) or more, shall, within twenty-four hours, file or cause to be filed a report of such accident with the department, except that when such accident occurs within a city such report shall be made within twenty-four hours to the police department of such city. Every police department shall forward on the fifth day of each month every such report received during the previous calendar month, or a copy thereof, so filed with it to the main office of the department. All accident reports shall be made on forms approved by the department. With respect to any such accident involving a collision between any common carrier and another vehicle, such common carrier shall also make a report of the accident to the department, such report to be filed on or before the tenth day of the month following the accident.

(e) Where a person required to report an accident by the preceding subsection is physically incapable of making such report, and there is another occupant in the vehicle at the time of the accident, such occupant shall make the report.

The department may require drivers, or common carriers involved in accidents, to file supplemental reports, and may require witnesses of accidents to render reports to it upon forms furnished by it whenever the original report is insufficient in the opinion of the department.

All accident reports together with all supplemental reports above mentioned shall be without prejudice and shall be for the use of the department, and shall not be used in any manner whatsoever as evidence, or for any other purpose in any trial, civil or criminal, arising out of such accident: Provided, however, that all reports made by state, city or county police shall be subject to inspection by members of the general public at all reasonable times. The department shall be required to furnish, upon demand of any court, a properly executed certificate stating that a specific accident report has or has not been filed with the department solely to prove a compliance with this section.

(f) The department shall prepare and shall upon request supply to police, coroners, sheriffs and other suitable agencies, or individuals, forms for accident reports calling for sufficiently detailed information to disclose with reference to a highway accident the cause, conditions then existing, and the persons and vehicles involved.

The department shall receive accident reports required to be made by this section and may tabulate and analyze such reports and publish annually, or at more frequent intervals, statistical information based thereon as to the number, cause and location of highway accidents.

Based upon its findings after such analysis, the department may conduct further necessary detailed research to more fully determine the cause and control of highway accidents. It may further conduct experimental field tests within areas of the state from time to time to prove the practicability of various ideas advanced in traffic control and accident prevention.

(g) Every person holding the office of coroner in this state shall, on the tenth day of each month, report to the department the death of any person during the preceding calendar month as the result of an accident involving a motor vehicle and the circumstances of such accident. (1937, c. 407, s. 128; 1939, c. 10, ss. 1, 1½; 1943, c. 439.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendatory act clarified inconsistencies between this section and § 20-182. See 17 N. C. Law Rev. 349.

The 1943 amendment increased the amount named in line four of subsection (d) from ten dollars to twenty-five dollars.

Evidence Sufficient for Jury.—Where all the evidence tended to show that the car of the prosecuting witness was struck by a car which was traveling at the time of the accident with its left wheels over the center line of the highway, that an occupant in the car of the prosecuting witness was injured, and that the car which collided with her car failed to stop after the collision, in violation of this section, and the state's circumstantial evidence, including marks on the highway leading uninterruptedly from the point of collision to a car parked at defendant's place of business, which defendant admitted to be his, the condition of defendant's car, a hub cap and other automobile parts found at the scene of the collision which were missing from defendant's car, and other circumstances tending to show efforts on the part of defendant to conceal the identity of his car as the one involved in the collision, together with testimony by defendant that no one else had driven his car on the evening in question, it was held sufficient to have been submitted to the jury on the question of defendant's guilt, and his motions for judgment as of nonsuit were held properly refused. State v. King, 219 N. C. 667, 14 S. E. (2d) 803.

Instruction.—In a prosecution for "hit and run driving" an instruction that defendant was charged with the violation of one of the motor vehicle statutes designed for the protection of life and property, cannot be held for error, the statement not being related to any fact in issue or any evidence introduced in the case, and containing no inference as to the guilt or innocence of defendant, it further appearing that the court correctly charged upon the presumption of innocence and the burden of proof. State v. King, 219 N. C. 667, 14 S. E. (2d) 803.

§ 20-167. Vehicles transporting explosives. —

Any person operating any vehicle transporting any explosive as a cargo or part of a cargo upon a highway shall at all times comply with the provisions of this section.

(a) Said vehicle shall be marked or placarded on each side and the rear with the word "Explosives" in letters not less than eight inches high, or there shall be displayed on the rear of such vehicle a red flag not less than twenty-four inches square marked with the word "Danger" in white letters six inches high.

(b) Every said vehicle shall be equipped with not less than two fire extinguishers, filled and ready for immediate use, and placed at a convenient point on the vehicle so used.

(c) The commissioner is hereby authorized and directed to promulgate such additional regulations governing the transportation of explosives and other dangerous articles by vehicles upon the highways as he shall deem advisable for the protection of the public. (1937, c. 407, s. 129.)

Cross Reference.—As to provision that vehicles transporting motor fuels shall be labelled, see § 119-41.

§ 20-168. Drivers of state, county and city vehicles subject to provisions of this article.—The provisions of this article applicable to the drivers of vehicles upon the highways shall apply to the drivers of all vehicles owned or operated by this state or any political sub-divisions thereof, or of any city, town or district, except persons, teams, motor vehicles and other equipment while actually engaged in work on the surface of the road, but not when traveling to or from such work. (1937, c. 407, s. 130.)

§ 20-169. Powers of local authorities.—Local authorities, except as expressly authorized by § 20-141, subsection (g) and § 20-158, shall have no power or authority to alter any speed limitations declared in this article or to enact or enforce any rule or regulations contrary to the provisions of this article, except that local authorities shall have power to provide by ordinances for the regulation of traffic by means of traffic or semaphores or other signaling devices on any portion of the highway where traffic is heavy or continuous and may prohibit other than one-way traffic upon certain highways, and may regulate the use of the highways by processions or assemblages and except that local authorities shall have the power to regulate the speed of vehicles on highways in public parks, but signs shall be erected giving notices of such special limits and regulations. (1937, c. 407, s. 131.)

For application of former statute prohibiting ordinance in conflict, see State v. Freshwater, 183 N. C. 762, 111 S. E. 161.

§ 20-170. This article not to interfere with rights of owners of real property with reference thereto.—Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent the owner of real property used by the public for purposes of vehicular travel by permission of the owner, and not as matter of right from prohibiting such use nor from requiring other or different or additional conditions than those specified in this article or otherwise regulating such use as may seem best to such owner. (1937, c. 407, s. 132.)

§ 20-171. Traffic laws apply to persons riding animals or driving animal-drawn vehicles.—Every person riding an animal or driving any animal drawing a vehicle upon a highway shall be subject to the provisions of this article applicable to the driver of a vehicle, except those provisions of the article which by their nature can have no application. (1939, c. 275.)

Part 11. Pedestrians' Rights and Duties.

§ 20-172. Pedestrians subject to traffic control signals.—Pedestrians shall be subject to traffic control signals at intersections as heretofore declared in this article, but at all other places pedestrians shall be accorded the privileges and shall be subject to the restrictions stated in part eleven of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 133.)

Duty to Charge Sections in Civil Actions.—It is the duty of the court to charge the duty of drivers to pedestrians, imposed by this and the following sections, in an action for damages for their violation and this error is not cured by a general charge as to the use of necessary prudence, and is reversible even in the absence of a prayer for more specific instructions. Bowen v. Schnibben, 184 N. C. 248, 114 S. E. 170.

§ 20-173. Pedestrians' right-of-way at crosswalks.—(a) Where traffic control signals are not in place or in operation the driver of a vehicle shall yield the right-of-way, slowing down or stopping if need be to so yield, to a pedestrian crossing the roadway within any marked cross-walk or within any unmarked cross-walk at an intersection, except as otherwise provided in part eleven of this article.

(b) Whenever any vehicle is stopped at a marked cross-walk or at any unmarked cross-walk at an intersection to permit a pedestrian to cross the roadway, the driver of any other vehicle approaching from the rear shall not overtake and pass such stopped vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 134.)

Cited in Leary v. Norfolk Southern Bus Corp., 220 N. C. 745, 18 S. E. (2d) 426.

§ 20-174. Crossing at other than crosswalks.—(a) Every pedestrian crossing a roadway at any point other than within a marked cross-walk or within an unmarked cross-walk at an intersection shall yield the right-of-way to all vehicles upon the roadway.

(b) Any pedestrian crossing a roadway at a point where a pedestrian tunnel or overhead pedestrian crossing has been provided shall yield the right-of-way to all vehicles upon the roadway.

(c) Between adjacent intersections at which traffic control signals are in operation pedestrians shall not cross at any place except in a marked cross-walk.

(d) It shall be unlawful for pedestrians to walk along the traveled portion of any highway except on the extreme left-hand side thereof, and such pedestrians shall yield the right-of-way to approaching traffic.

(e) Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, every driver of a vehicle shall exercise due care to avoid colliding with any pedestrian upon any roadway, and shall give warning by sounding the horn when necessary, and shall exercise proper precaution upon observing any child or any confused or incapacitated person upon a roadway. (1937, c. 407, s. 135.)

Crossing between Adjacent Intersections at Which Traffic Control Signals Are in Operation.—It is unlawful for a pedestrian to cross a street between intersections at which traffic lights are maintained unless there is a marked cross-walk between the intersections at which he may cross and on which he has the right of way over vehicles, and his failure to observe the statutory requirement is evidence of negligence but not negligence per se. Templeton v. Kelley, 216 N. C. 487, 5 S. E. (2d) 555. See also, Templeton v. Kelley, 215 N. C. 577, 2 S. E. (2d) 696.

Walking on Traveled Portion of Highway.—Evidence established contributory negligence in that it disclosed that deceased was walking on the traveled portion of the highway otherwise than on his extreme left-hand side thereof, as required by this section. Miller v. Lewis, etc., Motor Freight Corp., 218 N. C. 464, 11 S. E. (2d) 300.

Where the evidence failed to sustain plaintiff's allegation that his intestate was walking along the edge of the highway on his left side at the place provided by law and was struck by a board projecting from defendants' truck, defendants' motion to nonsuit was properly allowed for failure of plaintiff to establish negligence proximately causing the fatal injury. Pack v. Auman, 220 N. C. 704, 18 S. E. (2d) 247.

Warning Should Be Given Pedestrians.—An instruction that the violation of statutes regulating the operation of motor vehicles and the conduct of pedestrians on the highway would constitute negligence per se and would be actionable if the proximate cause of injury, is held without error when it appears that the instruction was applied solely to § 20-146 and this section prescribing that vehicles should be operated on the right-hand side of the highway and that warning should be given pedestrians, there being no reference in the charge to a violation of speed restrictions which § 20-141 makes merely prima facie evidence that the speed is unlawful. Williams v. Woodward, 218 N. C. 305, 10 S. E. (2d) 913.

§ 20-175. Pedestrians soliciting rides.—No person shall stand in the travel portion of the highway for the purpose of soliciting a ride from the driver of any private vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 136.)

Part 12. Penalties.

§ 20-176. Penalty for misdemeanor.—(a) It shall be unlawful and constitute a misdemeanor for any person to violate any of the provisions of this article unless such violation is by this article or other law of this state declared to be a felony.

(b) Unless another penalty is in this article or by the laws of this state provided, every person convicted of a misdemeanor for the violation of any provision of this article shall be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars ($100.00) or by imprisonment in the county or municipal jail for not more than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment: Provided, that upon conviction for the following offenses—operating motor vehicles without displaying registration number plates issued therefor; permitting or making any unlawful use of registration number plates, or permitting the use of registration by a person not entitled thereto, and violation of §§ 20-116, 20-117, 20-118, 20-122, 20-123, 20-124, 20-125, 20-126, 20-127, 20-128, 20-129, 20-130, 20-131, 20-132, 20-133, 20-134, 20-142, 20-143, 20-144, 20-146, 20-147, 20-148, 20-150, 20-151, 20-152, 20-153, 20-154, 20-155, 20-156, 20-157, 20-159, 20-160, 20-161, 20-162, 20-163, 20-165—the punishment therefor shall be a fine not to exceed fifty dollars ($50.00) and not less than ten dollars ($10.00), or imprisonment not to exceed thirty days for each offense. (1937, c. 407, s. 137.)

Editor's Note.—The cases cited below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

In addition to being liable to punishment under these statutes, it is possible for a person to be so negligent in the violation in disregarding the rights of others as to be guilty of other crimes at the same time. For example, although it is a misdemeanor to violate the statute regulating the law of the road as to speed under the motor vehicle law, one may also be guilty of murder, manslaughter or assault and battery if he is so reckless in the violation that he runs down and kills or injures another, if the elements essential to constitute such crimes are present in the violation. See State v. Gush, 177 N. C. 595, 99 S. E. 337; State v. McIver, 175 N. C. 761, 94 S. E. 682. And evidence of violation of this chapter is admissible upon such trials. State v. Suddeth, 184 N. C. 753, 114 S. E. 828.

Strict Construction of Penal Provisions.—Inasmuch as this article contains provisions of a highly penal nature, and, although it is within the police power, the courts will not, by construction, extend its penal provisions unless the case comes within the letter of the law, and within its meaning and palpable design. Security Finance Co. v. Hendry, 189 N. C. 549, 553, 127 S. E. 629; Carolina Discount Corp. v. Landis Motor Co., 190 N. C. 157, 160, 129 S. E. 414.

§ 20-177. Penalty for felony.—Any person who shall be convicted of a violation of any of the provisions of this article herein or by the laws of this state declared to constitute a felony shall, unless a different penalty is prescribed herein or by the laws of this state, be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for a term not less than one year nor more than five years, or by a fine of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment. (1937, c. 407, s. 138.)

§ 20-178. Penalty for bad check.—When any person, firm, or corporation shall tender any uncertified check for payment of any tax or fees found to be due by him under the provisions of this article, and such check shall have been returned to the commissioner unpaid on account of insufficient funds of the drawer of said check in the bank upon which same is drawn, then in that event an additional tax shall be imposed equal to ten per cent of the fees due, and in no case shall the increase of said tax, because of said failure, be less than one dollar ($1.00), and the said additional tax shall not be waived or diminished by the commissioner. (1937, c. 407, s. 139.)

§ 20-179. Penalty for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or narcotic drugs.—Every person who is convicted of violation of § 20-138, relating to habitual users of narcotic drugs or driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or narcotic drugs, shall be punished by imprisonment in the county or municipal jail for not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or by fine of not less than fifty dollars ($50.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), or by both such fine and imprisonment. On a second or subsequent conviction for the same offense he shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than two years or fined not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 407, s. 140.)

Cross Reference.—As to mandatory revocation of license for driving under influence of liquor or drugs, see § 20-17, paragraph 2.

Sentence Not Excessive.—A sentence to the county jail for a term of six months, and to be assigned to work on the public roads, upon defendant's plea of nolo contendere to a warrant charging him with the operation of an automobile upon the public highways while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, is not excessive. State v. Parker, 220 N. C. 416, 17 S. E. 475.

§ 20-180. Penalty for reckless driving.—Every person convicted of reckless driving under section 20-140 shall be punished by imprisonment in the county or municipal jail for a period of not more than six months, or by fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00), or by both such fine and imprisonment, and on a second or subsequent conviction of such offense shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), or by both such fine and imprisonment. (1937, c. 407, s. 141.)

Cross Reference.—As to revocation of license for 2 convictions on reckless driving charges, see § 20-17, paragraph 6.

Penalty Not Excessive.—Upon conviction of reckless driving, sentence of defendant to six months in the county jail to be assigned to work the roads under the direction of the state highway and public works commission is within the limitations prescribed by this section and therefore cannot be held excessive. State v. Wilson, 218 N. C. 769, 12 S. E. (2d) 654.

§ 20-181. Penalty for failure to dim, etc., beams of headlamps.—Any person operating a motor vehicle on the highways of this state, who shall fail to shift, depress, deflect, tilt or dim the beams of the head lamps thereon whenever another vehicle is met on such highways shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than ten ($10.00) dollars or imprisoned for not more than ten (10) days. (1939, c. 351, s. 3.)

Cross Reference.—As to conviction not being ground for revocation of operator's or chauffeur's license, see § 20-18.

§ 20-182. Penalty for failure to stop in event of accident involving injury or death to a person.—Every person convicted of wilfully violating § 20-166, relative to the duties to stop in the event of accidents, except as otherwise provided, involving injury or death to a person, shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than one nor more than five years, or in the state prison for not less than one nor more than five years, or by fine of not less than five hundred dollars or by both such fine and imprisonment. The commissioner shall revoke the operator's or chauffeur's license of the person so convicted. In no case shall the court have power to suspend judgment upon payment of costs. (1937, c. 407, s. 142.)

Cross Reference.—As to mandatory revocation of license in event of failure to stop and render aid in case of accident, see § 20-17, paragraph 4.

Cited in State v. King, 219 N. C. 667, 14 S. E. (2d) 803.

§ 20-183. Duties and powers of law enforcement officers.—It shall be the duty of the law enforcement officers of the state and of each county, city, or other municipality to see that the provisions of this article are enforced within their respective jurisdictions, and any such officer shall have the power to arrest on sight or upon warrant any person found violating the provisions of this article. Such officers within their respective jurisdictions shall have the power to stop any motor vehicle upon the highways of the state for the purpose of determining whether the same is being operated in violation of any of the provisions of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 143.)

Art. 4. State Highway Patrol.

§ 20-184. Patrol under supervision of department of motor vehicles.—The commissioner of motor vehicles, under the direction of the governor, shall have supervision, direction and control of the state highway patrol. The commissioner shall establish in the department of motor vehicles a division of highway safety and patrol, prescribe regulations governing said division, and assign to the division such duties as he may deem proper. (1935, c. 324, s. 2; 1939, c. 387, s. 1; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-185. Personnel; appointment; salaries.—The state highway patrol shall consist of one person to be designated as major, and such additional subordinate officers and men as the commissioner of motor vehicles, with the approval of the governor and advisory budget commission, shall direct. Members of the state highway patrol shall be appointed by the commissioner with the approval of the governor, and shall serve at the pleasure of the governor and commissioner. The major, other officers, and members of the state highway patrol shall be paid such salaries as may be established by the division of personnel of the budget bureau. (1929, c. 218, s. 1; 1931, c. 381; 1935, c. 324, s. 1; 1937, c. 313, s. 1; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-186. Oath of office; bond.—Each member of the highway patrol shall subscribe and file with the commissioner of motor vehicles an oath of office for the faithful performance of his duties, and shall give a bond with good surety payable to the state of North Carolina in a sum not less than one thousand dollars ($1000.00) and not more than two thousand five hundred dollars ($2500.00) to be fixed by the commissioner of motor vehicles, conditioned as well for the faithful discharge of his duty as patrolman as for his diligently endeavoring to collect faithfully and pay over all sums of money received. The bond shall be duly approved and filed in the office of the insurance commissioner, and copies of the bond certified by the insurance commissioner shall be received and read in evidence in all actions and proceedings where the original might be. (1929, c. 218, s. 2; 1937, c. 339, s. 1; 1941, c. 36.)

See § 128-9.

§ 20-187. Orders and rules for organization and conduct.—The commissioner of motor vehicles is authorized and empowered to make all necessary orders, rules and regulations for the organization, assignment, and conduct of the members of the state highway patrol. Such orders, rules and regulations shall be subject to the approval of the governor. (1929, c. 218, ss. 1, 3; 1931, c. 381; 1933, c. 214, ss. 1, 2; 1939, c. 387, s. 2; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-188. Duties of highway patrol.—The state highway patrol shall be subject to such orders, rules and regulations as may be adopted by the commissioner of motor vehicles, with the approval of the governor, and shall regularly patrol the highways of the state and enforce all laws and regulations respecting travel and the use of vehicles upon the highways of the state and all laws for the protection of the highways of the state. To this end, the members of the patrol are given the power and authority of peace officers for the service of any warrant or other process issuing from any of the courts of the state having criminal jurisdiction, and are likewise authorized to arrest without warrant any person who, in the presence of said officers, is engaged in the violation of any of the laws of the state regulating travel and the use of vehicles upon the highways, or of laws with respect to the protection of the highways, and they shall have jurisdiction anywhere within the state, irrespective of county lines.

The state highway patrol shall have full power and authority to perform such additional duties as peace officers as may from time to time be directed by the governor, and such officers may at any time and without special authority, either upon their own motion or at the request of any sheriff or local police authority, arrest persons accused of highway robbery, bank robbery, murder, or other crimes of violence.

The state highway patrol shall be required to perform such other and additional duties as may be required of it by the commissioner of motor vehicles in connection with the work of the department of motor vehicles, and such other and additional duties as may be required of it from time to time by the governor. (1929, c. 218, s. 4; 1933, c. 214, ss. 1, 2; 1935, c. 324, s. 3; 1939, c. 387, s. 2; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-189. Patrolman assigned to governor's office.—The commissioner of motor vehicles, at the request of the governor, shall assign and attach one member of the state highway patrol to the office of the governor, there to be assigned such duties and perform such services as the governor may direct. The salary of the state highway patrolman so assigned to the office of the governor shall be paid from appropriations made to the office of the governor and shall be fixed in an amount to be determined by the governor and the advisory budget commission. (1941, cc. 23, 36.)

§ 20-190. Uniforms; furnishing motor vehicles.—The department of motor vehicles shall adopt some distinguishing uniform for the members of said state highway patrol, and furnish each member of the patrol with an adequate number of said uniforms and each member of said patrol force when on duty shall be dressed in said uniform. The department of motor vehicles shall likewise furnish each member of the patrol with a suitable motor vehicle, and necessary arms, and provide for all reasonable expense incurred by said patrol while on duty. (1929, c. 218, s. 5; 1941, c. 36.)

at its various district offices, or at some other point within the district if it shall be deemed advisable, suitable district headquarters, and the necessary clerical assistance for the major of the force at his headquarters in Raleigh and at the several district headquarters. (1929, c. 218, s. 6; 1937, c. 313, s. 1; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-192. Shifting of patrolmen from one district to another.—The major of the state highway patrol under such rules and regulations as the department of motor vehicles may prescribe shall have authority from time to time to shift the forces from one district to another, or to consolidate more than one district force at any point for special purposes. (1929, c. 218, s. 7; 1937, c. 313, s. 1; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-193. Fees for service of process by patrolmen to revert to county.—All fees for arrests or service of process that may be taxed in the bill of costs for the various courts of the state on account of the official acts of the members of the state highway patrol shall be remitted to the general fund in the county in which the said cost is taxed. (1929, c. 218, s. 8.)

§ 20-194. Expense of administration.—All expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of this article shall be paid out of the maintenance funds of the state highway and public works commission. (1929, c. 218, s. 9; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-195. Co-operation between patrol and local officers.—The commissioner of motor vehicles with the approval of the governor, through the division of highway safety and patrol, shall encourage the co-operation between the highway patrol and the several municipal and county peace officers of the state for the enforcement of all traffic laws and the proper administration of the Uniform Drivers' License Law, and arrangements for compensation of special services rendered by such local officers out of the funds allotted to the division of highway safety and patrol may be made, subject to the approval of the director of the budget. (1935, c. 324, s. 5; 1939, c. 387, s. 3; 1941, c. 36.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment inserted the words "with the approval of the governor" in the second and third lines.

§ 20-196. State-wide radio system authorized; use of telephone lines in emergencies.—The commissioner of motor vehicles, through the division of highway safety and patrol is hereby authorized and directed to set up and maintain a state-wide radio system, with adequate broadcasting stations so situate as to make the service available to all parts of the state for the purpose of maintaining radio contact with the members of the state highway patrol and other officers of the state, to the end that the traffic laws upon the highways may be more adequately enforced and that the criminal use of the highways may be prevented.

If the director of the budget shall find that the appropriation provided for the department is not adequate to take care of the entire cost of the radio service herein provided for, after providing for the administration of other provisions of this law, the state highway and public works commission, upon the order of the director of the budget approved by the advisory budget commission, shall make available such additional sum as the said budget commission may find to be necessary to make the installation and operation of such radio service possible; and the sum so provided by the state highway and public works commission shall constitute a valid charge against the appropriation item of betterments for state and county roads.

The commissioner of motor vehicles is likewise authorized and empowered to arrange with the various telephone companies of the state for the use of their lines for emergency calls by the members of the state highway patrol, if it shall be found practicable to arrange apparatus for temporary contact with said telephone circuits along the highways of the state.

In order to make this service more generally useful, the various boards of county commissioners and the governing boards of the various cities and towns are hereby authorized and empowered to provide radio receiving sets in the offices and vehicles of their various officers, and such expenditures are declared to be a legal expenditure of any funds that may be available for police protection. (1935, c. 324, s. 6; 1941, c. 36.)

Art. 5. Enforcement of Collection of Judgments against Irresponsible Drivers of Motor Vehicles.

§ 20-197. Certain words defined.—The following words, as used in this article, shall have the following meanings:

(a) The singular shall include the plural; the masculine shall include the feminine and neuter, as requisite.

(b) "Person" shall include individuals, partnerships, corporations, receivers, referees, trustees, executors and administrators; and shall also include the owner of any motor vehicle as requisite; but shall not include the State or any political subdivisions thereof.

(c) "Motor Vehicle" shall include trailers, motorcycles and tractors. (1931, c. 116, s. 13.)

§ 20-198. Suspension of driver's license and registration certificates for failure to pay tort judgment. — In the event of the failure of any person, firm or corporation, to satisfy any judgment which shall have hereafter become final, by expiration, without appeal, of the time within which appeal might have been perfected, or by final affirmance, on appeal, rendered against him, by a court of competent jurisdiction in this State, within thirty days thereafter for damages on account of personal injuries, or deaths, or damage to property in excess of one hundred dollars ($100.00) resulting from the ownership, maintenance, use or operation of a motor vehicle, the said operator's license and all of the registration certificates of the said person, firm or corporation shall be forthwith suspended by the commissioner of motor vehicles of North Carolina, upon receiving a certified copy or transcript of such final judgment, from the court in which the same was rendered, showing such judgment or judgments to have been still unsatisfied more than thirty days after the same became final, as aforesaid, and shall remain so suspended and shall not be renewed, nor shall any motor vehicle be thereafter registered in the name of the said person, firm or corporation while any such judgment remains unstayed, unsatisfied and subsisting and until every such judgment is satisfied or discharged, or until the said person gives proof of his ability to respond in damages, as hereinafter required, for future accidents. It shall be the duty of the Clerk of the Superior Court in any county in which any such judgment is rendered, to forward immediately after the expiration of said thirty days, as aforesaid, to the Commissioner of motor vehicles, a certified copy of such judgment or a transcript thereof as aforesaid. (1931, c. 116, s. 1; 1941, c. 36.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 223.

This article is patterned after the Safety Responsibility Act sponsored by the American Automobile Association. One important point of difference is that under this article the license may be renewed either by paying the judgment or establishing financial responsibility for future accidents, while the American Automobile Association Act uses the conjunctive "and" instead of "or". See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 384 et seq.

§ 20-199. Proof of ability to respond in damages; surety bond; withdrawal of license to operate automobile.—The proof of the ability of any person, firm or corporation to respond in damages for any liability incurred may be established by the execution of a bond of a surety company, duly authorized to transact business within this State or a bond, with at least two individual sureties, each owning real estate within this State, which real estate shall be scheduled in the bond and which bond shall be approved by a Clerk of the Superior Court. The said bond to be conditioned for any liability thereafter incurred resulting from the ownership, maintenance, use or operation thereafter of a motor vehicle for personal injury to or death of any one person in the amount of at least five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) and, subject to the aforesaid limit for any one person injured or killed, of at least ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) for personal injury to or the death of two or more persons in any one accident, and for damage to property in the amount of at least one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) resulting from any one accident. Additional evidence of ability to respond in damages, as required by this article, shall be furnished the commissioner of motor vehicles at any time upon his demand.

Provided, however, anything in this article to the contrary notwithstanding, that

(1) When five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) has been credited upon any judgment or judgments rendered in excess of that amount for personal injury to or the death of one person as the result of any one accident; or

(2) When, subject to the limit of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) for any one person so injured or killed, the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) has been credited upon any judgment or judgments rendered in excess of that amount for personal injury to or the death of more than one person as the result of any one accident; or

(3) When one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) has been credited upon any judgment or judgments rendered in excess of that amount for damage to property as the result of any one accident; resulting from the ownership, maintenance, use or operation of a motor vehicle, then and in such event, such payment or payments shall be deemed a satisfaction of such judgment or judgments for the purpose of this article only.

If any such motor vehicle owner or operator shall not be a resident of this State, the privilege of operating any motor vehicle in this State and the privilege of operation within the State of any motor vehicle owned by him shall be withdrawn while any final judgment against him as aforesaid, shall be unstayed, unsatisfied and subsisting for more than thirty (30) days, as aforesaid, and shall not be renewed, nor shall any operator's or chauffeur's license be issued to him or any motor vehicle registered in his name until every such judgment shall be stayed, satisfied or discharged as herein provided, and until such person shall have given proof of his ability to respond in damages for future accidents. (1931, c. 116, s. 2; 1941, c. 36.)

Editor's Note.—The discrimination against non-residents provided for in the last paragraph of this section presents a constitutional problem which will undoubtedly come before the courts, but much authority would sustain it. See La Tourette v. McMaster, 248 U. S. 465, 39 S. Ct. 160, 63 L. Ed. 362, upholding discrimination between residents and non-residents in granting licenses to act as insurance brokers. The practical difficulty is to understand what the non-resident would be doing with a North Carolina automobile license unless he sojourned in the state for some substantial part of each year. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 385.

Individual Sureties May Be Given.—The provision made in this section for the bond of a surety company, "or a bond with at least two individual sureties," etc., indicates the legislative intent as to giving individual sureties in certain cases. State v. Sasseen, 206 N. C. 644, 648, 175 S. E. 142.

§ 20-200. Proof of ability by insurance carrier's certificate.—Proof of ability to respond in damages, when required by this article, may be evidenced by the written certificate or certificates of any insurance carrier duly authorized to do business within the State, that it has issued to or for the benefit of the person named therein a motor vehicle liability policy or policies in the form hereinafter prescribed, which, at the date of the certificate or certificates, is or are in full force and effect, and designating therein by explicit description or by other adequate reference, all motor vehicles to which the policy or policies apply. The commissioner of motor vehicles shall not accept any certificate or certificates unless the same shall cover all motor vehicles then registered in this State in the name of the person furnishing such proof. Additional certificates, as aforesaid, shall be required as a condition precedent to the registration of any additional motor vehicle or motor vehicles in the name of such person required to furnish proof as aforesaid. Said certificate or certificates shall certify that the motor vehicle liability policies therein cited shall not be cancelled or expire except as hereinafter provided. If such person be a non-resident, a certificate, as aforesaid, of an insurance carrier authorized to transact business in the State in which the motor vehicle or motor vehicles described in such certificate is registered, or if none be described, then in the State in which the insured resides, shall be accepted if (a) such carrier shall execute a power of attorney authorizing the commissioner of motor vehicles to accept service of notice or process in any action arising out of a motor vehicle accident in this State, and (b) its governing executive authority shall duly adopt a resolution providing that its policies shall be deemed to be varied to comply with the law of this State relating to the terms of motor vehicle liability policies issued therein, and (c) such carrier shall agree to accept as final and binding any final judgment duly rendered in any action arising out of a motor vehicle accident in any court of competent jurisdiction in this State: Provided, however, that the provisions of this section shall be operative as to such insurance carriers (organized and existing under the laws of such State and not licensed to transact business in this State) only to the extent and under the same terms and conditions that under the laws of such State where such motor vehicle is registered or in which the insured resides, like recognition, if a law of like effect is in force and effect, is granted to certificates of insurance carriers, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of this State. If, under the laws of such State, in which a law of like effect is in force and effect, certificates of insurance carriers organized and existing under or by virtue of the laws of this State are not accepted, the certificates of insurance carriers of such State shall not be accepted under the provisions of this article.

The commissioner of motor vehicles shall be notified by the insurance carrier or sureties of the cancellation or expiration of any motor vehicle liability policy or bond certified under the provisions of the article at least ten (10) days before the effective date of such cancellation or expiration and until such notice is duly given, such policy shall continue in full force and effect.

The commissioner of motor vehicles shall require proof of ability to respond in damages, within the limits herein specified, from and after the effective date of this article, of all taxicab, jitney and for-hire operators not covered or embraced within the provisions of the present law or such laws as may be enacted at this session of the General Assembly affecting other motor vehicle operators transporting passengers or property upon the highways for compensation. (1931, c. 116, s. 3; 1941, c. 36.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of municipality to require insurance or surety bond of vehicles operated for hire in city, see § 160-200, paragraph 35.

Application to taxicab, jitney and "for hire" operators.—A person engaged in operating an automobile for the transportation of persons for hire, and against whom no judgment has been recovered for damages resulting from his ownership or operation of an automobile, is not required under the provisions of the last paragraph of this section to prove his ability to respond in damages for future accidents as a condition precedent to obtaining a license to operate an automobile. Nichols v. Maxwell, 232 N. C. 38, 161 S. E. 712; Kirk v. Maxwell, 202 N. C. 41, 161 S. E. 714.

§ 20-201. Bond to satisfy execution.—A bond, filed by or on behalf of any person under the provision of this article shall be held by the commissioner of motor vehicles to satisfy, in accordance with the provisions of this article, any execution issued against such person on a judgment for damages, as aforesaid, arising out of the ownership, maintenance, use or operation of a motor vehicle, as aforesaid. If such a judgment rendered against the principal on the surety company bond or real estate individual bond, given under the provisions of this article, shall not be satisfied within thirty (30) days after it has become final as hereinbefore provided, the judgment creditor may, for his own use and benefit and at his sole expense, bring an action or actions in the name of the State against the company or persons executing such bond. (1931, c. 116, s. 4; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-202. Abstracts of operating record furnished on request.—The commissioner of motor vehicles shall upon request furnish any insurance carrier, person, or surety a certified abstract of the operating record of any person subject to the provisions of this article, which abstract shall fully designate the motor vehicles (if any), registered in the name of such person, and if there shall be no record of any conviction of such person of a violation of any provision of any statute relating to the operating of a motor vehicle or of any injury or damage caused by such person as herein provided, the commissioner of motor vehicles shall so certify. The commissioner of motor vehicles shall collect for each such certificate the sum of one dollar. (1931, c. 116, s. 5; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-203. Commissioner to furnish other information on request.—The commissioner of motor vehicles shall furnish any person who may have been injured in person or property by any motor vehicle, upon written request, with all information of record in his office pertaining to the evidence of the ability of any operator or owner of any motor vehicle to respond in damages. (1931, c. 116, s. 6; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-204. Return by operator of licenses, number plates upon request of commissioner.—Any operator or any owner, whose operator's license or certificate of registration shall have been suspended as herein provided, or whose policy of insurance or surety bond shall have been cancelled or terminated, or who shall neglect to furnish additional evidence of ability to respond in damages upon request of the commissioner of motor vehicles, shall immediately return to the commissioner of motor vehicles his operator's license, certificate of registration and the number plates issued thereunder. If any person shall wilfully fail to return to the commissioner of motor vehicles the operator's license, certificate or certificates of registration and the number plates issued thereunder as provided herein, the commissioner of motor vehicles shall forthwith direct any State policeman or other police officer to secure possession thereof and to return the same to the office of the commissioner of motor vehicles. Any person wilfully failing to return such operator's license or such certificate or certificates and number plates shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) and such penalty shall be in addition to any penalty imposed for any violation of the Motor Vehicle Laws of North Carolina. (1931, c. 116, s. 7; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-205. Cancellation or return of bond by commissioner.—The commissioner of motor vehicles shall cancel such bond or return such proof of insurance to the person furnishing the same at any time after three years shall have elapsed since the filing of such bond or proof or the making of such deposit: Provided, that no suit or judgment against him for damages as aforesaid arising from the ownership, maintenance, use or operation hereafter of a motor vehicle shall then be pending or outstanding and unstayed or unsatisfied, as aforesaid; and the affidavit of such person, showing fulfillment of these requirements shall be sufficient proof thereof in the absence of evidence to the contrary before the commissioner. (1931, c. 116, s. 8; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-206. Fraudulent transfer of registration certificate.—If any owner's certificate of registration has been suspended under the provisions of this article, such certificate shall not be transferred nor the motor vehicle in respect of which such certificate was issued, registered in another name, whether the commissioner of motor vehicles has reasonable grounds to believe that such transfer of registration is proposed for the purpose or will have the effect of defeating the purpose of this article. Provided, however, that such transfer of registration shall be permitted upon the furnishing of proof of financial responsibility to the commissioner of motor vehicles by such transferee whenever the commissioner shall deem it necessary in furtherance of the purpose of this section. (1931, c. 116, s. 9; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-207. Present policies of automobile insurance unaffected.—Nothing in this article contained shall be held to apply to or affect policies of automobile insurance against liability which may now or hereafter be required by special act, and such policies, if endorsed to conform to the requirements of this article, shall be accepted as proof of financial responsibility when required under this article; nor shall anything in this article contained be held to apply to or affect policies insuring solely the insured named in the policy against liability resulting from the maintenance, operation or use by other persons in the insured's employ or in his behalf of motor vehicles not owned by the insured. (1931, c. 116, s. 10.)

§ 20-208. Fraudulent proof of ability to respond in damages.—Any person who shall forge, or without authority, sign any evidence of ability to respond in damages as required by the commissioner of motor vehicles in the administration of this article and any nonresident who shall operate a motor vehicle in this State from whom the privilege of operating any motor vehicle has been withdrawn as provided in § 20-199, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) or imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both. (1931, c. 116, s. 11; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-209. Motor vehicle liability policy.—"Motor vehicle liability policy," as used in this article, shall be taken to mean a policy of liability insurance issued by an insurance carrier authorized to transact business in this State or issued by an insurance carrier authorized to transact business in the State in which the motor vehicle or motor vehicles therein described is registered, or if none be described, then in the State in which the insured resides, to the person therein named as insured, which policy shall either (1) designate, by explicit description or other adequate reference, all motor vehicles with respect to which coverage is intended to be granted by said policy, and shall insure the insured named therein and any other person using or responsible for the use of any such motor vehicle with the consent, express or implied, of such insured against loss from the liability imposed by law upon such insured or upon such other person for injury to or death of any person, other than such insured and such person or persons as may be covered, as respects such injury or death, by any workmen's compensation law, and/or for damage to property, except property of others in charge of the insured or of his employees or other agents growing out of the ownership, maintenance, use or operation of any such motor vehicle within the continental limits of the United States of America; or which policy shall, in the alternative, (2) insure the person therein named as insured against loss from the liability imposed by law upon such insured for injury to or death of any person, other than such insured and such person or persons as may be covered as respects such injury or death by any workmen's compensation law, and/or for damage to property, except property of others in charge of the insured or of his employees or other agents, and except a motor vehicle registered in the name of such insured, growing out of the maintenance, operation or use by such insured of any motor vehicle, and occurring while such insured is personally in control, as driver or occupant, of such motor vehicle within the continental limits of the United States of America; and which policy, in either alternative, shall provide insurance to the amount or limit of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00), exclusive of interest and costs, on account of injury to or death of any one person, and, subject to the same limit as respects injury to or death of any one person, of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00), exclusive of interest and costs, on account of any one accident resulting in injury to or death of more than one person; and of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) for damage to property of others, as herein provided, resulting from any one accident; or a binder pending the issuance of any such policy, or an endorsement to an existing policy both as hereinafter provided: Provided, however, that this section shall not be construed as preventing an insurance carrier from granting in a "motor vehicle liability policy" any lawful coverage in excess of or in addition to the coverage herein provided for or from embodying in such policy and agreements, provisions or stipulations not contrary to the provisions of this article and not otherwise contrary to law. And: Provided, further, that separate concurrent policies, whether issued by one or several carriers, covering, respectively, (a) personal injury or death, as aforesaid, and (b) property damage, as aforesaid, shall be termed "a motor vehicle liability policy," within the meaning of this article.

Except as in section 20-207 provided, no motor vehicle liability policy shall be issued or delivered in this State until a copy of the form of policy shall have been on file with the Commissioner of Insurance for at least thirty (30) days, unless sooner approved in writing by such Commissioner, nor if within said period of thirty (30) days such Commissioner shall have notified the carrier in writing that in his opinion, specifying the reasons therefor, the form of policy does not comply with the provisions of this article. The Commissioner of Insurance shall approve any form of policy which specifies the name, address and business, if any, of the insured, the coverage afforded by the policy, the premium charged therefor, the policy period, and the limits of liability, and contains an agreement that the insurance thereunder is provided in accordance with the coverage defined in this section, as respects personal injury and death or property damage or both, and is subject to all the provisions of this article.

Every such motor vehicle liability policy shall be subject to the following provisions, whether or not contained therein:

(a) The liability of the insurance carrier under a motor vehicle liability policy shall become absolute whenever loss or damage covered by such policy occurs, and the satisfaction by the assured of a final judgment for such loss or damage shall not be a condition precedent to the right or obligation of the carrier to make payment on account of such loss or damage. No such policy shall be cancelled or annulled as respects any loss or damage, by any agreement between the carrier and the insured after the said insured has become responsible for such loss or damage, and any such cancellation or annulment shall be void.

The policy may provide that the insured, or any other person covered by the policy, shall reimburse the insurance carrier for payments made on account of any loss or damage claim or suit involving a breach of the terms, provisions or conditions of the policy; and further, if the policy shall provide for limits in excess of the limits specified in this section, the insurance carrier may plead against any plaintiff, with respect to the amount of such excess limits of liability, any defenses which it may be entitled to plead against the insured, and any such policy may further provide for the prorating of the insurance thereunder with other applicable valid and collectible insurance.

(b) The policy, the written application therefor, if any, and any rider or endorsement which shall not conflict with the provisions of this article shall constitute the entire contract between the parties.

(c) The insurance carrier shall, upon the request of the insured, deliver to the insured for filing, or at the request of the insured shall file direct, with the commissioner of motor vehicles an appropriate certificate in conformity with the provisions of § 20-200.

(d) Any carrier authorized to issue motor vehicle liability policies may, pending the issue of such a policy, execute an agreement, to be known as a "binder;" or may, in lieu of such a policy, issue an endorsement to an existing policy. Every such binder or endorsement shall be subject to the provisions of this section and shall be construed to provide indemnity or insurance in like manner and to the same extent as a motor vehicle liability policy. (1931, c. 116, s. 12; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-210. Rules and regulations.—The commissioner of motor vehicles shall make rules and regulations necessary for the administration of this article. (1931, c. 116, s. 14; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-211. Reliance on other security unaffected.—Nothing herein shall be construed as preventing the plaintiff in any action at law from relying for security upon the other processes provided by law. (1931, c. 116, s. 15.)

Art. 6. Giving Publicity to Highway Traffic Laws through the Public Schools.

§ 20-212. State highway commission to prepare digest.—The state highway and public works commission shall cause to be prepared a digest of the traffic laws of the State suitable for use in the public schools of the State and have published in pamphlet form and delivered on or before the first day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven, to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, a sufficient number of said pamphlets to supply at least one copy each to all of the public high school teachers of the State. (1927, c. 242, s. 1; 1933, c. 172, s. 17.)

§ 20-213. State superintendent of public instruction to distribute pamphlet.—The State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall cause to be delivered to the superintendents or principals of the various high schools of the State sufficient number of said pamphlets to supply one to each of the teachers engaged for said schools. (1927, c. 242, s. 2.)

§ 20-214. Pamphlets brought to attention of children.—The superintendents or principals, or other persons in charge of the public high schools of the state, shall cause the contents of said pamphlets to be brought to the attention of all the children in attendance upon the said high schools in the form of lessons of at least one each week until the entire contents of said pamphlet shall have been read and explained. (1927, c. 242, s. 3.)

§ 20-215. Practice to be continued; highway commission to supply additional copies yearly.—This practice shall be continued during each school year and the state highway and public works commission is directed annually on or before the first Monday of August, to supply, as hereinbefore provided, such additional copies of the said pamphlet having the same revised from time to time to meet any amendments of the traffic laws of the State, as the State Superintendent of Public Instruction may ascertain and report to the state highway and public works commission to be necessary. (1927, c. 242, s. 4.)

Art. 7. Miscellaneous Provisions Relating to Motor Vehicles.

§ 20-216. Driving regulations; frightened animals; crossings.—A person operating or driving a motor vehicle shall, on signal by raising the hand, from a person riding, leading, or driving a horse or horses or other draft animals, bring such motor vehicle immediately to a stop, and, if traveling in the opposite direction, remain stationary so long as may be reasonable to allow such horse or other animal to pass, and, if traveling in the same direction, use reasonable caution in thereafter passing such horse or other animal: Provided, that in case such horse or other animal appears badly frightened, and the person operating such motor vehicle is so signaled to do, such person shall cause the motor of the motor vehicle to cease running so long as shall be reasonably necessary to prevent accident and insure the safety of others; and it shall also be the duty of any male chauffeur or driver of any motor vehicle and other male occupants thereof over the age of sixteen years while passing any horse, horses or other draft animals which appear frightened, upon the request of the person in charge thereof and driving such horse or horses or other draft animals, to give such assistance as would be reasonable to insure the safety of all persons concerned and to prevent accident. (1917, c. 140, s. 15; C. S. 2616.)

Passing Animals.—The laws with respect to passing animals, with the exception of establishing a speed limit, are to a great extent an embodiment of general principles of law applicable to motor vehicles when operated on the highway and in places where their use is likely to be a source of danger to others. Gaskins v. Hancock, 156 N. C. 56, 72 S. E. 80; Tudor v. Bowen, 152 N. C. 441, 67 S. E. 1015, cited and applied; Curry v. Fleer, 157 N. C. 16, 72 S. E. 626.

When the law prescribed a maximum speed limit for the running of motor vehicles upon the highways in approaching animals it did not contemplate or intend that the specified limits were always permissible; for one driving a machine of this character was charged with notice of things which he observed or could have observed in the exercise of proper care, having regard to the nature of the vehicle he was operating and its tendency to frighten animals; and not infrequently it might have become his duty to move at a much slower speed, or stop altogether if conditions so require. Curry v. Fleer, 157 N. C. 16, 72 S. E. 626.

Cited in Goss v. Williams, 196 N. C. 213, 145 S. E. 169; York v. York, 212 N. C. 695, 194 S. E. 486.

§ 20-217. Motor vehicles to stop for school busses in certain instances.—Every person using, operating, or driving a motor vehicle upon or over the roads or highways of the state of North Carolina, or upon or over any of the streets of any of the incorporated towns and cities of North Carolina, upon approaching from any direction on the same highway any school bus transporting school children to or from school, while such bus is stopped and engaged in receiving or discharging passengers therefrom upon the roads or highways of the state or upon any of the streets of any of the incorporated towns and cities of the state, shall bring such motor vehicle to a full stop before passing or attempting to pass such bus and shall remain stopped until said passengers are received or discharged at that place and until the "stop signal" of such bus has been withdrawn or until such bus has moved on.

The provisions of this section are applicable only in the event the school bus bears upon the front and rear thereof a plainly visible sign containing the words "school bus" in letters not less than five inches in height.

Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not to exceed fifty dollars, or imprisoned not to exceed thirty days. (1925, c. 265; 1943, c. 767.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote the first paragraph and inserted the second paragraph.

This section applies to passing a school bus from either direction, from the rear or from the front. State v. Webb, 210 N. C. 350, 186 S. E. 241.

§ 20-218. Standard qualifications for school bus drivers; speed limit.—No person shall drive or operate a school bus over the public roads of North Carolina while the same is occupied by children unless said person shall be fully trained in the operation of motor vehicles, and shall furnish to the superintendent of the schools of the county in which said bus shall be operated a certificate from the highway patrol of North Carolina, or from any representative duly designated by the commissioner of motor vehicles, and the chief mechanic in charge of school busses in said county showing that he has been examined by a member of the said highway patrol and said chief mechanic in charge of school busses, in said county and that he is a fit and competent person to operate or drive a school bus over the public roads of the state.

It shall be unlawful for any person to operate or drive a school bus loaded with children over the public roads of North Carolina at a greater rate of speed than thirty-five miles per hour.

Any person violating paragraph two of this section shall, upon conviction, be fined not more than fifty dollars ($50.00) or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1937, c. 397, ss. 1-3; 1941, c. 21; 1943, c. 440.)

Cross Reference.—As to selection and employment of school bus drivers, see § 115-378.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the provision in paragraph one requiring an examination by the chief mechanic.

The 1943 amendment inserted in the first paragraph the words "or from any representative duly designated by the commissioner of motor vehicles."

§ 20-218.1. Jurisdiction over violations by persons over fifteen years of age.—No juvenile court or domestic relations court of this state shall have jurisdiction over any offense involving violation of any of the motor vehicle laws or of any of the laws relating to the operation of motor vehicles on the highways of this state when such offense has been committed by a person over fifteen years of age. Any such offense shall be within the jurisdiction of the court or courts which would have jurisdiction if the offender were over sixteen years of age. (1943, c. 760.)

§ 20-219. Refund to counties of costs of prosecuting theft cases.—Whenever the Motor Vehicle Department of the State has caused to be instituted criminal prosecutions in the Superior Court of any county of the State for violation of the automobile theft laws, and the county wherein such case was tried has incurred court costs incident thereto, upon certificate of the Clerk of the Superior Court of said county showing an itemized statement thereof, and that the same has been paid, upon the approval of the commissioner of motor vehicles and the Attorney General, the sum or sums so paid shall be refunded to said county, the same to be paid from the highway maintenance fund from receipts from the motor vehicle registration title fees.

This section shall apply to costs incurred in the prosecution of automobile theft cases only. (1929, c. 275; 1941, c. 36.)

Art. 8. Sales of Used Motor Vehicles Brought into State.

§ 20-220. Dealers required to register vehicles with department of revenue and furnish bond.—Every dealer in used, or second-hand, motor vehicles who is a nonresident of the state of North Carolina or who does not have a permanent place of business in this State, and every person, firm or corporation who bring any used, or second-hand, motor vehicles into the state of North Carolina for the purpose of sale or re-sale, except as a trade-in on a new motor vehicle or another used car, shall, before offering the same for sale, within ten days from the date of entry of said motor vehicle into the limits of the state of North Carolina, register such motor vehicle with the department of revenue on a form to be provided by said department and under such rules and regulations as may be promulgated by said department from time to time, and shall, before said used or second-hand car is offered for sale, or sold, execute a bond with two good sufficient sureties, or with a surety company duly authorized to do business in the state of North Carolina as a surety or sureties thereon, payable to the state of North Carolina, for the use and benefit of the purchaser and his vendees, conditioned to pay all loss, damages and expenses that may be sustained by the purchaser, and/or vendees, that may be occasioned by reason of the failure of the title of such vendor or by reason of any fraudulent misrepresentations or breaches of warranty as to freedom from liens, quality, condition, use or value of the motor vehicle being sold. Said bond shall be in the full amount of the sale price of each of such motor vehicles, but in no event to exceed the sum of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars for any one motor vehicle, and shall be filed with the department of revenue of the state of North Carolina by the vendor and be approved by it as to amount, form and as to the solvency of the surety or sureties, and for which service by said department, in registering said vehicle, the vendor shall pay the regular registration fee charged for the registration of motor vehicles and in addition thereto a fee of ten ($10.00) dollars for each bond so filed and approved, which sums shall be paid into the state treasury to the credit of the general fund and expended as provided by law. (1937, c. 62, s. 1.)

Held Unconstitutional by District Court.—As both the bond and the fee required by this section constitute a clear discrimination against used automobiles of foreign origin, the provisions requiring them must be held invalid under the commerce clause of the constitution. McLain v. Hoey, 19 F. Supp. 990, 993.

§ 20-221. Titles to all used cars to be furnished upon delivery.—Every person, firm or corporation, upon the sale and delivery of any used or second-hand motor vehicle, shall, at the time of the delivery of said vehicle, deliver to the vendee a certificate of title issued to the vendor by the North Carolina state department of revenue, duly endorsed in order that the vendee may obtain a title therefor. (1937, c. 62, s. 2.)

§ 20-222. Non-compliance defeats right of action; violations a misdemeanor.—No action, nor right of action to recover any such motor vehicle, nor any part of the selling price thereof shall be maintained in the courts of this state by any such dealer or vendor, his successors or assigns, in any case wherein such vendor or dealer shall have failed to comply with the terms and provisions of this article, and, in addition thereto, such vendor or dealer, upon conviction for the violation of any of the provisions of this article, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred ($100.00) dollars and not more than five hundred ($500.00) dollars, or by imprisonment for not less than thirty days, or more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (1937, c. 62, s. 3.)

Cited in McLain v. Hoey, 19 F. Supp. 990.

§ 20-223. "Dealers" and "vendors," defined.
—The terms "dealers" and "vendors" herein used shall be construed to include every individual, partnership, corporation or trust whose business, in whole or in part, is that of selling used motor vehicles not taken in exchange for vehicles sold in this state, and likewise shall be construed to include every agent, representative, or consignee of any such dealer as defined above as fully as if same had been herein expressly set out, except that no agent, representative or consignee of such dealer or vendor shall be required to make and file the said bond if such dealer or vendor for whom such agent, representative or consignee acts fully complies in each instance with the provisions of this article. North Carolina statutes depart in phraseology from the federal act wherever such a change is necessary to adopt the statutes to intrastate commerce. See § 21-4 providing that bills of lading issued in intrastate commerce shall be governed by this chapter.

§ 21-2. Definition of straight bill.—A bill in which it is stated that the goods are consigned or destined to a specified person is a straight bill. (1919, c. 65, s. 2; C. S. 284.)

Cross Reference.—As to bills of lading in evidence, see § 8-41.

§ 21-3. Definition of order bill.—A bill in which it is stated that the goods are consigned or destined to the order of any person named in such bill is an order bill. Any provision in such a bill or in any notice, contract, rule, regulation, or tariff that it is nonnegotiable shall be null and void, and shall not affect its negotiability within the meaning of this chapter unless upon its face and in writing agreed to by the shipper. (1919, c. 65, s. 3; C. S. 285.)

Cross Reference.—As to bills of lading in evidence, see § 8-41.

Art. 2. Issue of Bills of Lading.

§ 21-4. Bills governed by this chapter.—Bills of lading issued by any common carrier for the transportation of goods from one point in North Carolina to another shall be governed by this chapter. (1919, c. 65, s. 1; C. S. 280.)

§ 21-5. Order bills must not be issued in sets.—

Order bills issued in North Carolina for transportation of goods from one point to another in North Carolina shall not be issued in parts or sets. If so issued, the carrier issuing them shall be liable for failure to deliver the goods described therein to any one who purchases a part for value in good faith, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the carrier to a holder of one of the other parts. (1919, c. 65, s. 4; C. S. 286.)

§ 21-6. Duplicate order bills must be so marked.—When more than one order bill is issued in North Carolina for the same goods to be transported to any place in North Carolina, the word “duplicate” or some other word or words indicating that the document is not an original bill, shall be placed plainly upon the face of every such bill except the one first issued. A carrier shall be liable for the damage caused by his failure so to do to any one who has purchased the bill for value in good faith as an original, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the carrier to the holder of the original bill. (1919, c. 65, s. 5; C. S. 287.)

Cross Reference.—As to duplicate bills of lading in evidence, see § 8-41.

§ 21-7. Straight bill shall be marked “nonnegotiable.”—A straight bill shall have placed plainly upon its face by the carrier issuing it “nonnegotiable” or “not negotiable.”

This section shall not apply, however, to memoranda or acknowledgments of an informal character. (1919, c. 65, s. 6; C. S. 288.)

§ 21-8. Insertion of name of person to be notified.—The insertion in an order bill of the name of a person to be notified of the arrival of the goods shall not limit the negotiability of the bill or constitute notice to a purchaser thereof of any rights or equities of such person in the goods. (1919, c. 65, s. 7; C. S. 289.)

Editor's Note.—Formerly it was the rule in this state that when goods were shipped under a bill of lading made out to the order of the vendor, the mere insertion of the name of the consignee to be notified, would not bring such consignee into contract relations with the carrier so as to enable him to bring suit against the carrier for delay, damage, etc. Mfg. Co. v. R. R., 149 N. C. 261, 62 S. E. 1091, and likewise in such a case the rule was that title did not pass until the draft was paid, id.; Bank v. R. R., 153 N. C. 346, 69 S. E. 261; Killingsworth v. R. R., 171 N. C. 47, 87 S. E. 947. But the law has been changed by legislative enactment. See also sections 21-9 and 21-32 and annotations thereunder.

As to shipment made “Order, notify” see Watts v. R. R., 183 N. C. 12, 110 S. E. 582.

Art. 3. Obligations and Rights of Carriers upon Bills of Lading.

§ 21-9. Obligation of carrier to deliver.—A carrier, in the absence of some lawful excuse, is bound to deliver goods upon a demand made either by the consignee named in the bill for the goods or, if the bill is an order bill, by the holder thereof, if such a demand is accompanied by—

1. An offer in good faith to satisfy the carrier's lawful lien upon the goods;
2. Possession of the bill of lading and an offer in good faith to surrender, properly indorsed, the bill which was issued for the goods if the bill is an order bill; and
3. A readiness and willingness to sign, when the goods are delivered, an acknowledgment that they have been delivered, if such signature is requested by the carrier.

In case the carrier refuses or fails to deliver the goods, in compliance with a demand by the consignee or holder so accompanied, the burden shall be upon the carrier to establish the existence of a lawful excuse for such refusal or failure. (1919, c. 65, s. 8; C. S. 290.)

Possession of Properly Endorsed Bill is Sufficient.—An order bill of lading indorsed by the shipper, in the possession of the plaintiff is sufficient evidence of the plaintiff's ownership of the bill and of the goods for which the bill was issued. Temple v. R. R., 190 N. C. 439, 440, 129 S. E. 815.

Consignee Must Produce Bill.—The failure or refusal of consignee to produce, upon the carrier's demand, a bill of lading for a prepaid shipment of goods in the carrier's possession is ordinarily a valid defense to an action to recover of the carrier the value of a shipment, which has never been delivered, but the burden is upon the carrier to prove that such demand has been made and not complied with. Jeans v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 164 N. C. 224, 80 S. E. 242.

Bill Must Be Properly Endorsed.—Where shipper paid the draft and obtained the bill of lading but failed to have it endorsed by a certain bank as required by the terms of the bill, the carrier was not liable for failure to deliver the goods. Killingsworth v. R. R., 171 N. C. 47, 87 S. E. 947.

§ 21-10. Justification of carrier in delivery.—A carrier is justified, subject to the provisions of §§ 21-11, 21-12 and 21-13, in delivering goods to one who is—

1. A person lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods, or
2. The consignee named in a straight bill for the goods; or
3. A person in possession of an order bill for the goods, by the terms of which the goods are deliverable to his order; or which has been indorsed to him, or in blank by the consignee, or by the mediate or immediate indorsee of the consignee. (1919, c. 65, s. 9; C. S. 291.)

§ 21-11. Carrier's liability for misdelivery.—Where a carrier delivers goods to one who is not lawfully entitled to the possession of them, the carrier shall be liable to any one having a right of property or possession in the goods if he delivered the goods otherwise than as authorized by subdivisions 2 and 3 of § 21-10; and, though he delivered the goods as authorized by either of said subdivisions, he shall be so liable if prior to such delivery he—

1. Had been requested by or on behalf of a person having a right of property or possession in the goods, not to make such delivery; or
2. Had information at the time of the delivery that it was to a person not lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods.

Such request or information, to be effective within the meaning of this section, must be given to an officer or agent of the carrier, the actual or apparent scope of whose duties includes action upon such a request or information, and must be given in time to enable the officer or agent to whom it is given, acting with reasonable diligence, to stop delivery of the goods. (1919, c. 65, s. 10; C. S. 292.)

§ 21-12. Carrier's liability on order bill not cancelled on delivery.—Except as provided in § 21-27, and except when compelled by legal process, if a carrier delivers goods for which an order bill had been issued, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods, and fails to take up and cancel the bill, such carrier shall be liable for failure to deliver the goods to any one who for value and in good faith purchases such bill, whether such purchaser acquired title to the bill before or after the delivery of the goods by the carrier and notwithstanding delivery was made to the person entitled thereto. (1919, c. 65, s. 11; C. S. 293.)

§ 21-13. Carrier's liability on order bill unmarked to show partial delivery.—Except as provided in § 21-27, and except when compelled by legal process, if a carrier delivers part of the goods for which an order bill had been issued and fails, either—

1. To take up and cancel the bill, or

2. To place plainly upon it a statement that a portion of the goods has been delivered with a description, which may be in general terms, either of the goods or packages that have been so delivered or of the goods or packages which still remain in the carrier's possession, he shall be liable for failure to deliver all the goods specified in the bill to any one who for value and in good faith purchases it, whether such purchaser acquired title to it before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the carrier, and notwithstanding such delivery was made to the person entitled thereto. (1919, c. 65, s. 12; C. S. 294.)

§ 21-14. Altered bills.—Any alteration, addition, or erasure in a bill after its issue without authority from the carrier issuing the same, whether in writing or noted on the bill, shall be void, whatever be the nature and purpose of the change, and the bill shall be enforceable according to its original tenor. (1919, c. 65, s. 13; C. S. 295.)

§ 21-15. Lost or destroyed bills.—Where an order bill has been lost, stolen, or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss, theft, or destruction, and upon the giving of a bond, with sufficient surety, to be approved by the court, to protect the carrier or any person injured by such delivery from any liability or loss incurred by reason of the original bill remaining outstanding. The court may also, in its discretion, order the payment of the carrier's reasonable costs and counsel fees: Provided, a voluntary indemnifying bond without an order of court shall be binding on the parties thereto.

The delivery of the goods under an order of the court, as provided in this section, shall not relieve the carrier from liability to a person to whom the order bill has been, or shall be, negotiated for value without notice of the proceedings or of the delivery of the goods. (1919, c. 65, s. 14; C. S. 296.)

§ 21-16. Effect of duplicate bills.—A bill, upon the face of which the word "duplicate," or some other word or words indicating that the document is not an original bill, is placed plainly, shall impose upon the carrier issuing the same the liability of one who represents and warrants that such bill is an accurate copy of an original bill properly issued, but no other liability. (1919, c. 65, s. 15; C. S. 297.)

§ 21-17. When title or right of carrier excuses liability for non-delivery.—No title to the goods or right to their possession asserted by a carrier for his own benefit shall excuse him from liability for refusing to deliver the goods according to the terms of the bill issued for them, unless such title or right is derived directly or indirectly from a transfer made by the consignor or consignee after the shipment, or from the carrier's lien. (1919, c. 65, s. 16; C. S. 298.)

§ 21-18. Interpleader of adverse claimants.—If more than one person claim the title or possession of goods, the carrier may require all known claimants to interplead, either as a defense to an action brought against him for nondelivery of the goods or as an original suit, whichever is appropriate. (1919, c. 65, s. 17; C. S. 299.)

Cross Reference.—As to interpleader, new parties by order of court, see § 1-73.

§ 21-19. Carrier has reasonable time to determine validity of claims.—If some one other than the consignee or the person in possession of the bill has claim to the title or possession of the goods, and the carrier has information of such claim, the carrier shall be excused from liability for refusing to deliver the goods, either to the consignee or person in possession of the bill or to the adverse claimant, until the carrier has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claim or to bring legal proceedings to compel all claimants to interplead. (1919, c. 65, s. 18; C. S. 300.)

§ 21-20. Adverse title is no defense except as above provided.—Except as provided in the preceding sections of this article, no right or title of of a third person, unless enforced by legal process, shall be a defense to an action brought by the consignee of a straight bill or by the holder of an order bill against the carrier for failure to deliver the goods on demand. (1919, c. 65, s. 19; C. S. 301.)

§ 21-21. Carriers not to insert "shipper's weight, load and count" when goods loaded by carrier.—When goods are loaded by a carrier, such carrier shall count the packages of goods, if package freight, and ascertain the kind and quantity, if bulk freight, and such carrier shall not, in such cases, insert in the bill of lading or in any notice, receipt, contract, rule, regulation or tariff, "shipper's weight, load and count," or other words of like purport, indicating that the goods were loaded by the shipper and the description of them made by him or, in case of bulk freight and freight not concealed by packages, the description made by him. If so inserted, contrary to the provisions of this section, said words shall be treated as null and void and as if not inserted therein. (1919, c. 65, s. 20; C. S. 302.)

§ 21-22. Liability for nonreceipt or misdescription of goods loaded by shipper.—When package freight or bulk freight is loaded by a shipper and the goods are described in a bill of lading merely by a statement of marks or labels upon them or upon packages containing them, or by a statement that the goods are said to be goods of a certain kind or quantity, or in a certain condition, or it is stated in the bill of lading that packages are said to contain goods of a certain kind or quantity or in a certain condition, or that the contents or condition of the contents of packages are unknown, or words of like purport are contained in the bill of lading, such statements, if true, shall not make liable the carrier issuing the bill of lading, although the goods are not of the kind or quantity or in the condition which the marks or labels upon them indicate, or of the kind or quantity or in the condition they were said to be by the consignor. The carrier may also, by inserting in the bill of lading the words "shipper's weight, load, and count," or other words of like purport, indicate that the goods were loaded by the shipper and the description of them made by him; and, if such statement be true, the carrier shall not be liable for damages caused by the improper loading or by the nonreceipt or by the misdescription of the goods described in the bill of lading: Provided, however, where the shipper of bulk freight installs and maintains adequate facilities for weighing such freight, and the same are available to the carrier, then the carrier, upon written request of such shipper and when given a reasonable opportunity so to do, shall ascertain the kind and quantity of bulk freight within a reasonable time after such written request, and the carrier shall not in such case insert in the bill of lading the words "shipper's weight," or other words of like purport; and if so inserted contrary to the provisions of this section, said words shall be treated as null and void and as if not inserted therein. (1919, c. 65, s. 21; C. S. 303.)

Editor's Note. — The rule formerly was that when goods were sent "shipper's load and count" the bill of lading was only prima facie evidence that the carrier received the goods described in it. And where the evidence showed that the loading was all done by the shipper the burden was upon the plaintiff to prove that the goods were actually delivered to the carrier. Peele v. R. R., 149 N. C. 390, 393, 63 S. E. 66.

§ 21-23. Liability for nonreceipt or misdescription of goods.—If a bill of lading has been issued by a carrier, or on his behalf by an agent or employee, the scope of whose actual or apparent authority includes the receiving of goods and issuing bills of lading therefor for transportation in commerce among the several states and with foreign nations, the carrier shall be liable to—

1. The owner of goods covered by a straight bill, subject to existing right of stoppage in transit; or

2. The holder of an order bill, who has given value in good faith, relying upon the description therein of the goods, for damages caused by the nonreceipt by the carrier of all or part of the goods or their failure to correspond with the description thereof in the bill at the time of its issue. (1919, c. 65, s. 22; C. S. 304.)

Editor's Note.—This section changes the rule which was laid down in the case cited in the preceding section, Peele v. R. R., 149 N. C. 390, 63 S. E. 66. For other cases which are in accord with the Peele case, supra, see Williams, Black & Co. v. R. R., 93 N. C. 42; Commercial Bank v. R. R., 175 N. C. 415, 95 S. E. 777. These latter cases went to the extent of holding that where the carrier had issued a bill of lading "shippers load and count" the carrier was not liable even to a holder of the bill who had taken it for value and without notice. This old doctrine as laid down in these cases is contrary to the modern theory of the negotiability of order bills of lading.

§ 21-24. Attachment or levy upon goods for which an order bill has been issued.—If goods are delivered to a carrier by the owner or by a person whose act in conveying the title to them to a purchaser for value in good faith would bind the owner, and an order bill is issued for them, they cannot thereafter, while in the possession of the carrier, be attached by garnishment or otherwise or be levied upon under an execution unless the bill be first surrendered to the carrier or its negotiation enjoined. The carrier shall in no such case be compelled to deliver the actual possession of the goods until the bill is surrendered to him or impounded by the court. (1919, c. 65, s. 23; C. S. 305.)

§ 21-25. Creditor's remedy to reach order bills.—A creditor whose debtor is the owner of an order bill shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction and otherwise, in attaching such bill or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process. (1919, c. 65, s. 24; C. S. 306.)

§ 21-26. Liens for charges under order bill.—If an order bill is issued the carrier shall have a lien on the goods therein mentioned for all charges on those goods for freight, storage, demurrage and terminal charges, and expenses necessary for the preservation of the goods or incident to their transportation subsequent to the date of the bill and all other charges incurred in transportation and delivery, unless the bill expressly enumerates other charges for which a lien is claimed. In such case there shall also be a lien for the charges enumerated so far as they are allowed by law and the contract between the consignor and the carrier. (1919, c. 65, s. 25; C. S. 307.)

§ 21-27. Effect of sale.—After goods have been lawfully sold to satisfy a carrier's lien, or because they have not been claimed, or because they are perishable or hazardous, the carrier shall not thereafter be liable for failure to deliver the goods themselves to the consignee or owner of the goods, or to a holder of the bill given for the goods when they were shipped, even if such bill be an order bill. (1919, c. 65, s. 26; C. S. 308.)

Art. 4. Negotiation and Transfer of Bills.

§ 21-28. Negotiation of order bills by delivery.—An order bill may be negotiated by delivery where, by the terms of the bill, the carrier undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of a specified person, and such person or a subsequent indorsee of the bill has indorsed it in blank. (1919, c. 65, s. 27; C. S. 309.)

§ 21-29. Negotiation of order bills by indorsement.—An order bill may be negotiated by the indorsement of the person to whose order the goods are deliverable by the tenor of the bill. Such indorsement may be in blank or to a specified person. If indorsed to a specified person, it may be negotiated again by the indorsement of such person in blank or to another specified person. Subsequent negotiation may be made in like manner. (1919, c. 65, s. 28; C. S. 310.)

§ 21-30. Transfer of bills.—A bill may be transferred by the holder by delivery, accompanied with an agreement, express or implied, to transfer the title to the bill or to the goods represented thereby. A straight bill cannot be negotiated free from existing equities, and the indorsement of such a bill gives the transferee no additional right. (1919, c. 65, s. 29; C. S. 311.)

In General.—The meaning of this section is that a valid transfer of a bill of lading is effected by the holder when he delivers it to a third party with the intention of transferring the title to the property represented thereby. Lawshe v. R. R., 191 N. C. 473, 475, 132 S. E. 160.

§ 21-31. Who may negotiate an order bill.—An order bill may be negotiated by any person in possession of the same, however such possession may have been acquired, if by the terms of the bill the carrier undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of such person, or if at the time of negotiation the bill is in such form that it may be negotiated by delivery. (1919, c. 65, s. 30; C. S. 312.)

§ 21-32. Rights of person to whom an order bill has been negotiated.—A person to whom an order bill has been duly negotiated acquires thereby—

1. Such title to the goods as the person negotiating the bill to him had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and also such title to the goods as the consignee and consignor had or had power to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value; and

2. The direct obligation of the carrier to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the bill as fully as if the carrier had contracted directly with him. (1919, c. 65, s. 31; C. S. 313.)

Editor's Note.—See Editor's Note under section 21-8.

In General.—The person to be notified on shipment to order of consignor has, by this section, title for the purpose of a suit to recover damages and the statutory penalty, as fully as if the carrier had contracted with him direct, upon the presentation of the bill of lading properly endorsed and his tender thereof in good faith to the carrier, the statute being remedial of the common law that there was no contractual relation between him and the carrier that would permit recovery for causes accruing before he had paid the draft, and had the bill of lading assigned to him. Watts v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 183 N. C. 12, 110 S. E. 582.

§ 21-33. Rights of person to whom a bill has been transferred.—A person to whom a bill has been transferred, but not negotiated, acquires thereby as against the transferor the title to the goods, subject to the terms of any agreement with the transferor. If the bill is a straight bill, such person also acquires the right to notify the carrier of the transfer to him of such bill, and thereby to become the direct obligee of whatever obligations the carrier owed to the transferor of the bill immediately before the notification.

Prior to the notification of the carrier by the transferor or transferee of a straight bill, the title of the transferee to the goods and the right to acquire the obligation of the carrier may be defeated by garnishment or by attachment or execution upon the goods by a creditor of the transferor, or by a notification to the carrier by the transferor or a subsequent purchaser from the transferor of a subsequent sale of the goods by the transferor.

A carrier has not received notification within the meaning of this section unless an officer or agent of the carrier, the actual or apparent scope of whose duties includes action upon such a notification, has been notified; and no notification shall be effective until the officer or agent to whom it is given has had time, with the exercise of reasonable diligence, to communicate with the agent or agents having actual possession or control of the goods. (1919, c. 65, s. 32; 1919, c. 290; C. S. 314.)

§ 21-34. Right to compel indorsement of negotiable bill.—Where an order bill is transferred for value by delivery, and the indorsement of the transferor is essential for negotiation, the transferee acquires a right against the transferor to compel him to indorse the bill, unless a contrary intention appears. The negotiation shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. This obligation may be specifically enforced. (1919, c. 65, s. 33; C. S. 315.)

§ 21-35. Warranties on sale of bill.—A person who negotiates or transfers for value a bill by indorsement or delivery, unless a contrary intention appears, warrants—

1. That the bill is genuine;
2. That he has a legal right to transfer it;
3. That he has knowledge of no fact which would impair the validity or worth of the bill;
4. That he has a right to transfer the title to the goods, and that the goods are merchantable or fit for a particular purpose whenever such warranties would have been implied if the contract of the parties had been to transfer without a bill the goods represented thereby. (1919, c. 65, s. 34; C. S. 316.)

§ 21-36. Indorser not a guarantor.—The indorsement of a bill shall not make the indorser liable for any failure on the part of the carrier or previous indorser of the bill to fulfill their respective obligations. (1919, c. 65, s. 35; C. S. 317.)

§ 21-37. No warranty implied from accepting payment of a debt.—A mortgagee or pledgee or other holder of a bill for security who in good faith demands or receives payment of the debt for which such bill is security, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt, or from any other person, shall not be deemed by so doing to represent or warrant the genuineness of such bill or the quantity or quality of the goods therein described. (1919, c. 65, s. 36; C. S. 318.)

Editor's Note.—The rule which this section lays down is stated by the court in Mason v. Cotton Co., 148 N. C. 492, 497, 498, 62 S. E. 625 and the earlier case of Finch v. Gregg, 126 N. C. 176, 35 S. E. 251 was discussed and overruled.

§ 21-38. When negotiation not impaired by fraud, accident, mistake, duress, conversion, etc.—The validity of the negotiation of a bill is not impaired by the fact that such negotiation was a breach of duty on the part of the person making the negotiation, or by the fact that the owner of the bill was deprived of the possession of the same by fraud, accident, mistake, duress, loss, theft or conversion, if the person to whom the bill was negotiated, or a person to whom the bill was subsequently negotiated, gave value therefor in good faith, without notice of the breach of duty, or fraud, accident, mistake, duress, loss, theft, or conversion. (1919, c. 65, s. 37; C. S. 319.)

§ 21-39. Subsequent negotiation.—Where a person, having sold, mortgaged or pledged goods which are in a carrier's possession and for which an order bill has been issued, or having sold, mortgaged, or pledged the order bill representing such goods, continues in possession of the order bill, the subsequent negotiation thereof by that person under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith for value and without notice of the previous sale, shall have the same effect as if the first purchaser of the goods or bill had expressly authorized the subsequent negotiation. (1919, c. 65, s. 38; C. S. 320.)

§ 21-40. Negotiation defeats vendor's lien.—Where an order bill has been issued for goods no seller's lien or right of stoppage in transit shall defeat the rights of any purchaser for value in good faith to whom such bill has been negotiated, whether such negotiation be prior or subsequent to the notification to the carrier who issued such bill of the seller's claim to a lien or right of stoppage in transit. Nor shall the carrier be obliged to deliver or be justified in delivering the goods to an unpaid seller unless such bill is first surrendered for cancellation. (1919, c. 65, s. 39; C. S. 321.)

§ 21-41. When rights and remedies under mortgages and liens are not limited.—Except as provided in § 21-40, nothing in this chapter shall limit the rights and remedies of a mortgagee or lien holder whose mortgage or lien on goods would be valid, apart from this chapter, as against one who for value and in good faith purchased from the owner, immediately prior to the time of their delivery to the carrier, the goods which are subject to the mortgage or lien, and obtained possession of them. (1919, c. 65, s. 40; C. S. 322.)

Art. 5. Criminal Offenses.

§ 21-42. Issuing false bills or violating chapter made felony.—Any person who, knowingly or with intent to defraud, falsely makes, alters, forges, counterfeits, prints or photographs any bill of lading purporting to represent goods received for shipment in this state, or with intent utters or publishes as true and genuine any such falsely altered, forged, counterfeited, falsely printed or photographed bill of lading, knowing it to be falsely altered, forged, counterfeited, falsely printed or photographed, or aids in making, altering, forging, counterfeiting, printing, or photographing, or uttering or publishing the same, or issues or aids in issuing or procuring the issue of, or negotiates or transfers for value a bill which contains a false statement as to the receipt of the goods, or as to any other matter, or who, with intent to defraud, violates or fails to comply with, or aids in any violation of, or failure to comply with any provision of this chapter, shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both. (1919, c. 65, s. 41; 1919, c. 290; C. S. 323.)

Cross Reference.—As to draft attached to bill of lading for intoxicating liquors, etc., see § 18-33.

Chapter 22. Contracts Requiring Writing.

Sec.

- 22-1. Contracts charging representative personally; promise to answer for debt of another.
- 22-2. Contract for sale of land; leases.

§ 22-1. Contracts charging representative personally; promise to answer for debt of another.—No action shall be brought whereby to charge an executor, administrator or collector upon a special promise to answer damages out of his own estate or to charge any defendant upon a special promise to answer the debt, default or miscarriage of another person, unless the agreement upon which such action shall be brought, or some memorandum or note thereof, shall be in writing, and signed by the party charged therewith or some other person thereunto by him lawfully authorized. (Rev., s. 974; Code, s. 1552; R. C., c. 50, s. 15; 1826, c. 10; 29 Charles II, c. 3, s. 4; C. S. 987.)

Cross References.—As to requirement that promise be in writing to be evidence of new or continuing contract from which statutes may run, see § 1-26. As to requirement for written contract to refrain from business in given territory, see § 75-4.

See 13 N. C. Law Rev., 263, for comment on this section.
Editor's Note.—This and the following sections of this chapter are generally known as the "Statute of Frauds," and are based upon the original English Statute entitled "An Act for the Prevention of Frauds and Perjuries." As the name indicates, its object was to prevent fraud and perjury; and it was designated by Lord Campbell as the most important piece of judicial legislation of which England can boast.

Though the scope of the original English Statute was not confined to provisions with regard to necessity of writing for the enforceability of certain contracts, which were embodied in the first four and the seventeenth sections of the Statute, in modern usage the term "Statute of

Sec.

- 22-4. Promise to revive debt of bankrupt.

Frauds" has assumed an exclusive meaning as to the necessity for certain contracts to be in writing.

An oral contract under the old common law was sufficient for all types of transactions. But the tendencies for the perpetration of fraud and perjury arising from the inherently alluring nature of certain transactions, such as contracts for sale of land, contracts to answer for the debt or default of another, necessitated a legislation which would exclude all but written evidence for the establishment and enforcement of such contracts. How far, and whether at all, the accomplishment of the object of its legislators has justified its existence and whether it has not resulted in a tendency opposite to the motive which impregnated it, is a matter of conjecture.

The purpose of the statute of frauds is to prevent fraud upon individuals charged with participation in transactions coming within its purview, and not upon the public at large. Allison v. Steele, 220 N. C. 318, 324, 17 S. E. (2d) 339.

Contracts Within the Statute.—The Supreme Court of the United States has expressed the opinion that the relaxing construction of the Statute of Frauds under which so many cases have been taken out of its operation, which seem to be within its letter, ought not to be extended further than it has already been carried. Grant v. Naylor, 4 Cranch 224, 235, 2 L. Ed., 222.

The clause relating to promise to answer for the debt, default, miscarriage, etc., of another does not apply to a promise in respect to debts created at the instance and for the benefit of the promisor. Davis v. Patrick, 141 U. S. 479, 35 L. Ed. 826, 12 S. Ct. 58. But it applies only to those by which the debt of one party is sought to be charged upon and collected from another. Id.

The question always is what the parties mutually understood by the language, whether they understood it to be a collateral or a direct promise. Id.

A promise is an original promise not coming within the statute of frauds if the extension of credit is made to the promisor or if the contract is made for the benefit of the promisor; but if the contract is made with the third person and the promise constitutes a separate and independent contract under which the promisor agrees to pay upon default of the primary debtor, the promise is a collateral agreement and comes within the statute. Balentine v. Gill, 218 N. C. 496, 11 S. E. (2d) 456.

Contracts Not within the Statute.—One financially interested in a crop induced the landlord to part with his lien, in order that the tenant might retain possession, and to sign an appeal bond of the tenant, and promised to save the landlord from harm thereon. The landlord was required to pay the bond. It was held that the release of the landlord's lien was sufficient consideration for the promise to save from harm, and the transaction was not within this section. Jennings v. Keel, 196 N. C. 675, 146 S. E. 716.

Plaintiff held assignments covering all funds to become due under a building contract, and was entitled to apply such funds to the extinguishment of claims it held for advancements made to carry on the work. Defendant, surety on the contractors' bond, orally agreed that if allowed to use part of the money received by plaintiff, on a payment under the contract, to pay claims for labor and materials so the construction could be carried on without going outside of the funds derived from the work, it would pay the balance due plaintiff from the contractors. It was held that such agreement was not within this section. National Surety Co. v. Jackson County Bank, 20 Fed. (2d) 644.

Where a business run in the name of J. W. J. was in charge of W. P. J., J. W. J.'s son, and J. W. J. being desirous of having goods shipped to W. P. J. permitted them to be shipped in the name of J. W. J. & Son., saying to plaintiff, "you won't lose anything by it," and a payment on account was made by "J. W. J. & Son.," this section was held inapplicable. Noland Co. v. Jones, 211 N. C. 462, 190 S. E. 720.

What Determines Nature of Promise.—Whether a promise is an original one not coming within the provisions of this section, or a superadded one barred by the statute, does not depend altogether on the form of expression, but the situation of the parties, and whether they understood the promise to be direct or collateral, should also be considered. Dozier v. Wood, 208 N. C. 414, 181 S. E. 336.

Oral Agreement of Stockholders to Be Responsible for Merchandise Held to Be an Original Promise.—Defendants agreed orally to be personally responsible for merchandise shipped to a corporation of which they were the main stockholders, and which they later took over. It was held that the agreement was an original promise not coming within the statute of frauds. Brown v. Benton, 209 N. C. 285, 183 S. E. 292.

The Same Being True of Agreement to Furnish Merchandise for Use on Farm.—Evidence of defendant's statements to plaintiff merchant at the time plaintiff agreed to furnish certain merchandise for use on defendant's farm is held susceptible of the interpretation that defendant's promise to pay therefor was an original promise not coming within this section, and not a superadded one barred by the statute, and the question of interpretation should have been submitted to the jury. Dozier v. Wood, 208 N. C. 414, 181 S. E. 336.

Oral Promise by Administrator.—A promise by the administrator that he would see that a debt of his intestate is paid, or that he would pay it, is void under this section, unless made in writing. Smithwick v. Shepherd, 49 N. C. 196.

Out of Representative's Estate.—The agreement, in order not to be enforceable unless in writing, must be to pay out of the representative's own estate. Norton v. Edwards, 66 N. C. 367.

Original Undertakings—New Consideration.—The general rule is that a promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another for which that other remains liable, must be in writing to satisfy this section. It is otherwise when the other does not remain liable. Mason v. Wilson, 84 N. C. 51, 53.

In other words, if the promise is an original undertaking, it need not be in writing. For example, where the debtor places in the hands of the promisor property for the payment of the debt, and he converts it into money and promises to pay the debt. And if the promise is supported by a new and independent consideration, whether the old debt subsists or not, the case does not fall within the statute. See Mason v. Wilson, supra; Cooper v. Chambers, 15 N. C. 261; Whitehurst v. Hyman, 90 N. C. 487; Hickory Novelty Co. v. Andrews, 188 N. C. 59, 123 S. E. 314; Taylor v. Lee, 187 N. C. 393, 121 S. E. 659; Hasty Mercantile Co. v. Bryant, 186 N. C. 551, 120 S. E. 200; Peele

v. Powell, 156 N. C. 553, 73 S. E. 234. And this is true even where the benefit of the consideration for the promise accrues to a person other than the promisor. Gainesville, etc., Hospital Ass'n v. Hobbs, 153 N. C. 188, 69 S. E. 79. But see Stanly v. Hendricks, 35 N. C. 86; Threadgill v. McLendon, 76 N. C. 24, 26, where it is said that a new consideration does not take the promise out of the operation of the Statute. In connection with the rule set out above, see Sharp v. Tatham, 205 N. C. 827, 170 S. E. 654; Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 201, 176 S. E. 275.

In order for the defendant to fall within the protection of the Statute, it must be shown that the debt is that of a third person who still continues liable for the same. If the debt is an original obligation of the defendant, or if the creditor in accepting the promise of the defendant has released a third person who was the original debtor, the Statute has no application. Sheppard v. Newton, 139 N. C. 533, 535, 52 S. E. 143. The Statute does not forbid an oral contract to assume the debt of another who is thereupon discharged of all liability to the creditor, the promisor becoming sole debtor in his stead. Jenkins v. Holley, 140 N. C. 379, 53 S. E. 237.

A promise made at the time or before the debt is created, and where credit is given solely to the promisor, or a promise based on a new consideration between the promisor and the creditor, or a promise for the benefit of the promisor where he has a personal and pecuniary interest in the transaction in which a third party is the original obligor, has been held to be an original promise. Whitehurst v. Padgett, 157 N. C. 424, 73 S. E. 240.

Similarly a direct and unconditional promise by one to pay for goods furnished to a third party, made prior to the delivery of the goods, upon the faith of which the goods are delivered is an original undertaking. Morrison v. Baker, 81 N. C. 76; Garrett Co. v. Hamill, 131 N. C. 57, 42 S. E. 448.

In Hanes Funeral Home v. Spencer, 214 N. C. 702, 200 S. E. 397, evidence was held ample to support finding that undertaking by defendant's ward to pay expenses for the funeral of the wife of a close friend was an original promise not coming within the purview of this section.

Where the party promising to pay a debt receives a new and original consideration from the debtor for his promise, the statute of frauds, this section, does not apply. Daniels v. Duck Island, Inc., 212 N. C. 90, 193 S. E. 7.

What Constitutes Collateral Promise.—Where there is no benefit to the one promising to answer for the debt of another, and the promise does not create an original obligation, but is a collateral promise, merely superadded to the promise of another, the original promisor remaining liable, the collateral promisor is not liable unless there is a writing, whether the promise is made when the debt is created or not. Peele v. Powell, 156 N. C. 553, 73 S. E. 234; Sheppard v. Newton, 139 N. C. 533, 52 S. E. 143.

Where the promisor says to the creditor "collect from him (the debtor) and if he fails to pay, I will," the undertaking is a collateral one, and not enforceable unless in writing. Garrett Co. v. Hamill, 131 N. C. 57, 42 S. E. 448.

Promise Made to Debtor Not within Statute.—It is held that, where a purchaser agrees by parol in consideration of conveyance to him of property to pay certain debts of his vendor due to a third person, the promise is original and not within the statute. Stanly v. Hendricks, 35 N. C. 86; Rice v. Carter, 33 N. C. 298.

Intent of Promisor—How Determined.—The intent of the promisor to become bound may be shown by the surrounding circumstances and other transactions or written communications between the creditor and the promisor. Hickory Novelty Co. v. Andrews, 188 N. C. 59, 123 S. E. 314.

Where a writing or notation is not a continuing guaranty, each order being a separate and independent transaction, the defendant is bound only for the order upon which his guaranty appears. Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 201, 176 S. E. 275.

Goods Furnished to Son on Father's Credit.—If goods are furnished to a son upon the promise and credit of the father, the promise need not be in writing; but if the son was the principal debtor and the father merely a surety, the promise must be in writing. White v. Tripp, 125 N. C. 523, 34 S. E. 686.

Definiteness of Subject Matter of Contract.—The principle that no contract can be enforced unless the subject matter upon which it is intended by the parties to operate can first be definitely ascertained from its terms, either through an explicit description therein or a reference which points to extrinsic means of identification applies to verbal agreements as well as to those required by this section to be in writing. Hemphill v. Annis, 119 N. C. 514, 26 S. E. 152.

Evidence of Guarantor's Obligation.—The obligation of one as guarantor of payment must be evidenced and established by a written agreement, or some written note or memorandum signed by him or some person authorized to sign for him. Supply Co. v. Finch, 147 N. C. 106, 60 S. E. 904; Hickory Novelty Co. v. Andrews, 188 N. C. 59, 123 S. E. 314.

What Amounts to Contract of Guaranty.—A telegram that the debtor is a reliable person and that any justifiable claims will be taken care of is insufficient to establish a contract of guaranty or a promise to answer for the debt, etc., of another, in the absence of a promise to pay the debt if the debtor does not pay. Fain Grocery Co. v. Early, etc., Co., 181 N. C. 459, 107 S. E. 497.

Parol Assumption of Mortgage Debt Not within the Statute.—A promise by a grantee of mortgaged land to assume and pay the amount of the mortgage is not a promise to pay the debt of another required by this section to be in writing, but is a direct obligation of the grantee supported by sufficient consideration. Parlier v. Miller, 186 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

Agreement to Prevent Sale of Land.—An agreement in consideration of the extension of an option that the defendant will pay a certain mortgage note owned by the plaintiff or otherwise prevent the sale of the land is not a promise to answer for the debt, etc., of another, within this section. Whedbee v. Ruffin, 189 N. C. 257, 126 S. E. 616.

Promise to Guarantee Safety of Money.—An oral promise to guarantee the safety of money placed in the promisor's hands for investment is not an agreement to answer for the debt of another within the meaning of this section. Partin v. Prince, 159 N. C. 553, 75 S. E. 1080.

A promise by the president of a bank to become personally liable for a deposit when supported by a new and independent consideration constitutes an original undertaking by him, and the agreement does not come within the provisions of this section. Dillard v. Walker, 204 N. C. 16, 167 S. E. 636.

The guaranty of payment of a deposit made by the vice-president, director and stockholder of the bank was an original promise to answer for the debt, upon sufficient consideration, and does not come within the provisions of this section, and upon the insolvency of the bank and loss to the depositor the plea of the statute of frauds is not a valid defense. Garren v. Youngblood, 207 N. C. 86, 176 S. E. 252.

The president and treasurer of a corporation who has no personal, immediate and pecuniary benefit in the purchase of materials by the corporation is not an original promisor under this section and may not be held personally liable for the purchase price because of verbal promises to answer for the benefit made in his behalf by the secretary for the corporation as his alleged agent. Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 201, 176 S. E. 275.

An oral guarantee of genuineness or validity of a note and the liability of the maker to pay it, made by the holder upon a transfer of it for value, is not a promise contemplated by this section to be in writing. Adcock v. Fleming, 19 N. C. 225; Ashford v. Robinson, 30 N. C. 114; Rowland v. Rorke, 49 N. C. 337.

Statement of Consideration.—Under this section, the consideration for a promise to answer need not be contained in the writing. Standard Supply Co. v. Person, 154 N. C. 456, 70 S. E. 745; Green v. Thornton, 49 N. C. 230.

Question for Jury as to Whether Original Promise Covered Second Transaction.—Where evidence tended to show that defendants ordered two or three cars of lumber, both defendants being present and promising to be personally responsible therefor, and after the first car was shipped, one of defendants went to plaintiff and told him to ship another car under the same arrangements, it was sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question whether the original promise of both defendants, made when both were present, covered the second car as well as the first. Brown v. Benton, 209 N. C. 285, 183 S. E. 292.

§ 22-2. Contract for sale of land; leases.—All contracts to sell or convey any lands, tenements or hereditaments, or any interest in or concerning them, and all leases and contracts for leasing land for the purpose of digging for gold or other minerals, or for mining generally, of whatever duration; and all other leases and contracts for leasing lands exceeding in duration three years from the making thereof, shall be void unless said contract, or some memorandum or note thereof, be put in writing and signed by the party to be charged therewith, or by some other person by him thereto lawfully authorized. (Rev., s. 976; Code, ss. 1554, 1743; R. C., c. 50, s. 11; 29 Ch. II, c. 3, ss. 1, 2, 3; 1819, c. 1016; 1844, c. 44; 1868, c. 156, ss. 2, 33; C. S. 988.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Purpose to Prevent Fraud.—Contracts within the meaning of this section were required to be in writing, to prevent frauds and perjuries. Winberry v. Koonce, 83 N. C. 351, 354.

This section will not prevent an unwritten promise from being the basis for an action to cancel a deed where the promise was merely a device to accomplish fraud, and the relief sought is not to enforce the promise or to recover damages for its breach. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 206 N. C. 546, 174 S. E. 447.

Executory Contracts.—This section applies to executory and not executed contracts. Rogers v. Lumber Co., 154 N. C. 108, 69 S. E. 788; Bailey v. Bishop, 152 N. C. 383, 67 S. E. 968; Choat v. Wright, 13 N. C. 289; Herndon v. Durham, etc., R. Co., 161 N. C. 650, 77 S. E. 683; Bailey v. Bishop, 152 N. C. 383, 67 S. E. 968.

This section applies to executory contracts, and not to those that have been executed. Kieth Bros. v. Kennedy, 194 N. C. 784, 140 S. E. 721.

Where a contract was for the sale of an automobile in consideration of the conveyance of certain realty, and the vendor executed a good and sufficient deed, it was held that the contract was executed as to the conveyance of lands under this section. Keith Bros. v. Kennedy, 194 N. C. 784, 140 S. E. 721.

Parol Trusts.—That section of the English Statute of Frauds which prohibited the establishment of trusts by parol, has never been reenacted in this State. Hence a parol agreement to purchase land and hold it in trust for another is valid and enforceable. Newby v. Atlantic, etc., Realty Co., 182 N. C. 34, 108 S. E. 323.

But a parol agreement to create a trust, entered into after the purchase of property is void under this section. To establish a parol trust the agreement to hold in trust must have been entered into before or at the sale of the property. Kelly v. McNeill, 118 N. C. 349, 24 S. E. 738.

Written Agreement to Adopt Minor.—Where intestate made a written agreement with parents of a minor to adopt minor and make her his sole heir in consideration of the parents agreeing to the adoption, such agreement, being in writing, did not come within the provisions of this section. Chambers v. Byers, 214 N. C. 373, 377, 199 S. E. 398.

Parol Evidence to Establish Contract of Sale.—Under this section, parol evidence is incompetent to establish agreement to pay purchase price, so as to show that contract was one of sale and not an option, since this is an essential element of a contract of sale and purchase, and an essential element of a contract required to be in writing may not be established by parol. Kluttz v. Allison, 214 N. C. 379, 199 S. E. 395.

Effect of Non-Compliance.—The contracts which are not entered into in compliance with this section are not void, but voidable merely at the instance of the party charged. And when such party takes advantage of the provisions of the statute, he repudiates the contract in its entirety and cannot derive any benefit from it. For example a vendee cannot recover the money he has paid the vendor under a parol contract which he has repudiated. Improvement Co. v. Guthrie, 116 N. C. 381, 21 S. E. 952. They are enforceable unless the party to be charged takes advantage of the statute. McCall v. Textile Industrial Inst., 189 N. C. 775, 128 S. E. 349, 353.

Rights of Vendee under Parol Contract.—The vendor, in a parol contract to convey land, will not be permitted to evict a vendee who has entered and made improvements, until the latter has been repaid the purchase money and compensated for betterments. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Cordon, 208 N. C. 723, 182 S. E. 496, 497, citing Vann v. Newsom, 110 N. C. 122, 14 S. E. 519, and Eaton v. Doub, 190 N. C. 14, 22, 128 S. E. 494, 498, 40 A. L. R. 273.

Resulting Trusts.—Resulting trusts, which arise by operation of law, do not come within the statute of frauds, and may be proved by parol evidence. Wilson v. Williams, 215 N. C. 407, 2 S. E. (2d) 19.

Cited in Peele v. Le Roy, 222 N. C. 123, 22 S. E. (2d) 244; Creech v. Creech, 222 N. C. 656, 24 S. E. (2d) 642.

II. WHAT CONSTITUTES AN INTEREST IN OR CONCERNING LAND.

Parol Transfer of Parol Contract.—A parol transfer of the interest of a purchaser of land under a parol contract is invalid. Wilkie v. Womble, 90 N. C. 254, cited in note in 3 L. R. A., N. S., 148.

An agreement to buy and sell land at a profit is not a contract relating to any interest in land which is required to be in writing. It relates only to profits of the land, and is valid even though not in writing. Newby v. Atlantic, etc., Realty Co., 182 N. C. 34, 108 S. E. 323; Brogden v. Gibson, 165 N. C. 16, 80 S. E. 966.

The section contemplates those transactions in which there is a conveyance of land from one party to another; not those as to ventures for profits in realty. Id.

Agreement That Is Not One to Sell or Convey Land.—Where plaintiff alleged that his vendor agreed to procure a release of the land from a prior deed of trust upon the payment by the plaintiff of a note given for the balance of the purchase price of the land, and secured by a deed of trust to his vendor, the agreement is not one to sell or convey land, or any interest in or concerning same, and does not come within the provisions of this section. Hare v. Hare, 208 N. C. 442, 181 S. E. 246.

A dower interest cannot be surrendered by parol. Houston v. Smith, 88 N. C. 312.

Partition.—A contract between tenants in common for the partition in lands is a contract concerning realty, within the meaning of this section. Medlin v. Steele, 75 N. C. 154; Anders v. Anders, 13 N. C. 529; Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 14 S. E. 685; Rhea v. Craig, 141 N. C. 602, 54 S. E. 408.

A contract to devise real property comes within the provisions of this section, and performance of services by the promisee as consideration for the contract does not take the contract out of the provisions of the section, and the promisee cannot successfully maintain an action for specific performance of the contract. Grantham v. Grantham, 205 N. C. 363, 171 S. E. 331.

Crops and Fruit.—Crops which are produced annually are personal chattels, and a sale of them while growing is only a sale of goods, and not a contract or sale of land, or any interest in or concerning land, under this section. Brittain v. McKay, 23 N. C. 265, cited in note in 23 L. R. A., N. S., 1219.

Fruits on trees cannot be reserved by the vendor by a parol agreement. Flynt v. Conrad, 61 N. C. 190.

Standing Timber.—A contract conveying standing timber is a contract concerning realty. Drake v. Howell, 133 N. C. 162, 45 S. E. 539; Ward v. Gay, 137 N. C. 397, 49 S. E. 884; Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 249; Ives v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 131, 55 S. E. 74.

A contract of the owner of land to sell at a stipulated price all logs which the owner should cut from the tract is not a contract affecting realty within the meaning of this section, since the cutting and delivery of the logs would constitute a conversion of the standing timber from real property into personalty. Walston v. Lowry, 212 N. C. 23, 192 S. E. 877.

Guaranty of Acreage.—A vendor's guaranty of the number of acres need not be in writing. Sterne v. Benbow, 151 N. C. 460, 66 S. E. 445; Currie v. Hawkins, 118 N. C. 593, 24 S. E. 476.

Also an agreement between vendor and purchaser that the latter shall have the land surveyed, and that if it falls short the vendor shall refund pro tanto, need not be in writing. Sherrill v. Hagan, 92 N. C. 345.

Equitable Estates.—A parol contract of sale of an equitable estate in land is void. Holmes v. Holmes, 86 N. C. 205.

Parol Release of Mortgage.—An agreement to terminate the relationship of a mortgagor and mortgagee does not fall within the intent and meaning of this section. Hence a parol contract to release a part of the mortgaged property is valid and enforceable. Stevens v. Turlington, 186 N. C. 191, 119 S. E. 210; Hemmings v. Doss, 125 N. C. 400, 402, 34 S. E. 511. This is upon the theory that the mortgagee does not, by the mortgage, acquire an interest in land (but a mere lien in equity), and hence his release does not transfer back an "interest" in land.

Where a mortgagee agreed by parol to release the mortgage to a purchaser of the land from the mortgagor, the mortgagee was held estopped to deny the validity of the agreement under the Statute of Frauds. Stevens v. Turlington, 186 N. C. 191, 119 S. E. 210.

A parol lease for three years is not within the statute. It must be for a term exceeding three years. Smithdeal v. McAdoo, 172 N. C. 700, 704, 90 S. E. 907.

In order to determine whether a lease is for more than three years or not the computation must be made from the time of making the agreement to lease, and not from the time of its going into effect. Hence a parol agreement of lease for three years to commence in futuro is voidable by the lessor and renders the tenant a tenant at will. Mauney v. Norvell, 179 N. C. 628, 103 S. E. 372; Falkner v. Hunt, 73 N. C. 571.

Where the owner of land agrees to erect a certain kind of building thereon for a proposed lessee, and makes a parol lease for the rental of the property for three years to take effect upon the completion of the building, the lease for three years to take effect in the future comes within the provisions of the Statute of Frauds, and where in an action thereon the lessee denies the contract of lease and pleads the statute, he may not be held liable unless it was executed in writing, or some memorandum thereof made and signed by the party to be charged therewith or by some other person by him duly authorized. Sammam Inv. Co. v. Zindel, 198 N. C. 109, 150 S. E. 704.

Assignment of Lease.—A verbal assignment of an unexpired lease to continue more than three years is void under this section. Alexander v. Morris, 145 N. C. 22, 58 S. E. 600.

Negative Easement.—A restriction on the use of land being in effect a negative easement is an interest in land required under this section to be contracted for in writing. Davis v. Robinson, 189 N. C. 589, 127 S. E. 697.

Where land in a development is sold by deeds containing certain restrictive covenants, the covenants are in the nature of an easement, and it would seem that ordinarily such easement may not be released by parol agreement. Moore v. Shore, 206 N. C. 699, 175 S. E. 117.

Party Walls.—The right to contribution for costs of a party wall is implied in law regardless of the promise; and hence enforceable notwithstanding that the agreement was not in writing. Reid v. King, 158 N. C. 85, 73 S. E. 168.

Creation of Mill Dam.—A permanent right to overflow land by the erection and maintenance of a mill dam cannot be created by parol. Bridges v. Purcell, 18 N. C. 492.

Judicial Sales.—Judicial sales were not within the contemplation of the legislature at the time of making this enactment. Tate v. Greenlee, 15 N. C. 149, 150.

Judgment.—The Statute of Frauds does not require that a judgment constituting a lien on land should be assigned by a written instrument. Winberry v. Koonce, 83 N. C. 351.

III. SUFFICIENCY OF COMPLIANCE WITH SECTION.

A. In General.

No special form or instrument is required. A letter, note, bill or draft is sufficient. Neaves v. North State Min. Co., 90 N. C. 412.

But Memorandum Must Show Essential Elements of Valid Contract.—In order to constitute an enforceable contract within the provisions of this section, the written memorandum, though it may be informal, must be sufficiently definite to show the essential elements of a valid contract. It must embody the terms of the contract, names of vendor and vendee, and a description of the land to be conveyed, at least sufficiently definite to be aided by parol. Smith v. Joyce, 214 N. C. 602, 604, 200 S. E. 431.

A promissory note for the purchase price signed and given by the purchaser is not such a contract or memorandum thereof. Burris v. Starr, 165 N. C. 657, 81 S. E. 929.

The memorandum need not be contained in a single document but may consist of several papers properly connected together. Smith v. Joyce, 214 N. C. 602, 604, 200 S. E. 431.

Letters addressed to third party may be used against the writer as a memorandum of it. Such writings are sufficient evidence of the contract to warrant the court in giving effect to it. Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 249, 254; Nicholson v. Dover, 145 N. C. 18, 58 S. E. 444, cited in note in 24 L. R. A., N. S., 316.

Series of Letters Construed Together.—A series of letters, telegrams or other papers, documents, etc., signed as required by this section, will be construed together, and when the contract appears to be complete, the omission in some of the writings will be supplied by the others. Simpson v. Burnett County Lumber Co., 193 N. C. 454, 137 S. E. 311.

As to Seal.—The Statute of Frauds does not require a contract for the sale of land to be under the seal of the party to be charged. Simmons v. Spruill, 56 N. C. 9; Stephens v. Midyette, 161 N. C. 323, 77 S. E. 243.

The admissions of the parties in their pleadings may stand for the writing. Sandlin v. Kearney, 154 N. C. 596, 70 S. E. 942.

Time of Making Memorandum.—The written memorandum required by this section need not necessarily be made at the time of the agreement. Even if made thereafter, if otherwise good, it will be valid. McCall v. Lee, 182 N. C. 114, 108 S. E. 390; McGee v. Blankenship, 95 N. C. 563, cited in note in 22 L. R. A. 273; Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 249; Winslow v. White, 163 N. C. 29, 31, 79 S. E. 258.

Contract Partly Written Partly Oral.—A contract for the sale of land may be partly verbal and partly in writing, unless the writing purports to embrace all the contract. Thus where the vendor upon a conveyance by deed, verbally agreed that he would make good any deficiency in the acreage, it was held that this section did not require the agreement as to the quantity to be embraced by the written contract or deed. McGee v. Craven, 106 N. C. 351, 356, 11 S. E. 375.

What the Writing Must Contain.—In order that a contract falling within the sphere of this section be enforceable it must appear that there is a writing containing expressly or by implication all the material terms of the alleged agreement which must have been signed as required by the section. Hall v. Misenheimer, 137 N. C. 183, 186, 49 S. E. 104; Gwathmey v. Cason, 74 N. C. 5.

Memorandum Inconsistent with Contract.—Where the memorandum of a contract partly in parol was inconsistent with the terms of the contract, it was held that the memorandum not being the contract between the parties, the plaintiff suing under the parol contract is not entitled to recover. Keith v. Bailey, 185 N. C. 262, 116 S. E. 729.

Even though the contract be informally and awkwardly expressed in the writing, yet if its nature, scope and purpose clearly appear from it, there is a sufficient compliance with the requirements of this section. Mayer v. Adrian, 77 N. C. 83; Farmer v. Batts, 83 N. C. 387; Thornburg v. Masten, 88 N. C. 293; Gordon v. Collett, 102 N. C. 532, 537, 9 S. E. 486.

The vendor of lands in substantial conformity with his parol agreement tendered the vendee a deed to the lands, which the latter refused because the amount of the agreed purchase price had been increased, and after the vendor had sold the lands the vendee brought an action for damages. It was held that the deed tendered was a sufficient writing within the statute of frauds to bind the vendor, and the vendee could recover damages sustained by defendant's breach of contract to convey. Oxendine v. Stephenson, 195 N. C. 238, 141 S. E. 572.

Sufficiency of Description.—This section does not render void a contract which contains a defective description merely. It only requires that the contract be in writing and signed by the party to be charged. Improvement Co. v. Guthrie, 116 N. C. 381, 21 S. E. 952.

A written contract to convey the grantor's entire tract of land consisting of 146 acres was, under the circumstances of the case, held to be sufficiently certain as to the land conveyed, so as to admit parol evidence in regard to the identity of the land without violating the Statute of Frauds. Norton v. Smith, 179 N. C. 553, 10 S. E. 14. See Higdon v. Rice, 119 N. C. 623, 625, 26 S. E. 256, where it is said that a defective description cannot be aided by parol testimony because that would mean to substitute by parol an essential portion of a contract required by this section to be in writing; though mistakes can be corrected and ambiguities explained by parol.

Where the calls of a deed are sufficiently definite, the locations cannot be changed by parol agreement unless contemporaneous. Haddock v. Leary, 148 N. C. 378, 62 S. E. 426.

The following memorandum found in the books of the defendant's intestate was held too vague and uncertain to take the contract out of the Statute: "1841, W. P. to H. C. O. Dr. To 4 loads of Rock, one lot at one year's credit, $125." Plummer v. Owens, 45 N. C. 254, 255.

The memorandum of a sale of standing timber must be sufficiently definite in its essential elements to comply with the requirements of the Statute of Frauds to enable the court to decree specific performance; but latent ambiguities may be explained by parol evidence. Camp Mfg. Co. v. Jordan, 292 Fed. 182; see also, Keith v. Bailey, 185 N. C. 262, 116 S. E. 729.

When all the circumstances of possession, ownership, and situation of the parties, and of their relation to each other and the property, as they were when the negotiation took place and the writing was made, are disclosed, if the meaning and application of the writing, read in the light of those circumstances, are certain and plain, the parties will be bound by it as a sufficient written contract or memorandum of their agreement. Gilbert v. Wright, 195 N. C. 165, 168, 141 S. E. 577; Norton v. Smith, 179 N. C. 553, 103 S. E. 14.

Agreement "to buy the vacant lot," from the vendor was held not unenforceable under this section where the evidence showed that it was the only lot owned by the vendor anywhere. Gilbert v. Wright, 195 N. C. 165, 141 S. E. 577.

Deed Held to Be a Sufficient Writing.—A deed duly executed and acknowledged and found among the valuable papers of the grantor after his death is a sufficient writing within the meaning of the statute of frauds of a contract of grantor to convey the lands to the grantees in consideration of grantees' taking care of grantor for the remainder of his life. Austin v. McCollum, 210 N. C. 817, 188 S. E. 646.

B. The Signature.

What constitutes Signing.—The signing of a paper-writing or instrument is the affixing of one's name thereto with the purpose or intent to identify the paper or instrument, or to give it effect as one's act. McCall v. Textile, etc., Co., 189 N. C. 775, 128 S. E. 349, 353.

Actual Signature—Position Immaterial.—Although the place of the signature upon the writing of the party to be charged is immaterial, and such party need not necessarily "subscribe" the writing, yet there must be a writing in which such party must have put his name with the intention of signing it. Thus where the plaintiff, the purchaser, gave for the purchase price a note to the defendant which was filled in by the latter payable to his own name, it was held that the note was not signed by the defendant, since filling in the note with his own name was not equivalent to signing it. Burris v. Starr, 165 N. C. 657, 81 S. E. 929.

This section is satisfied when the writing contains the signature anywhere in the instrument. Flowe v. Hartwick, 167 N. C. 448, 83 S. E. 841.

Subscribing or Signing.—This section does not require that the memorandum of sale be "subscribed," it only requires that it be signed. Hence the signing by the auctioneer of the name of the highest bidder on the side of a printed advertisement is a sufficient signing of the contract. Proctor v. Finley, 119 N. C. 536, 26 S. E. 128; Devereux v. McMahon, 108 N. C. 134, 12 S. E. 902.

Mark Sufficient.—When written by the party to be charged, a mark of an illiterate person is a sufficient signature to fulfill the requirement of the Statute. Devereux v. McMahon, 108 N. C. 134, 142, 12 S. E. 902.

The phrase "the party to be charged" does not necessarily refer to the vendor, it may refer to the vendee. The party to be charged, within the meaning of the section is the defendant in the action, whoever he may be. Hall v. Misenheimer, 137 N. C. 183, 187, 49 S. E. 104.

In a suit for the specific performance of a contract to convey land the "party to be charged" is the vendor, and hence the contract must have been signed by him. The vendee does not fulfill the condition imposed on him to show that the Statute has been complied with, by a writing by which he alone is bound. Clegg v. Bishop, 188 N. C. 564, 125 S. E. 122.

The "party to be charged" under this section is the one against whom the relief is sought; and if the contract is sufficient to bind him, he can be proceeded against, though the others could not be held because, as to them, the Statute is not fully complied with. Lewis v. Murray, 177 N. C. 17, 97 S. E. 750.

Thus a contract in writing to sell land, signed by the vendor is good against him, although the correlative obligation to pay the price is not in writing and cannot be enforced against the purchaser. Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 249.

The Statute requires that the writing be signed by the party to be charged. So, if A contract in writing to sell land to B, the former's promise being in writing and signed, but the latter's not, A would be bound to perform, but B would not. Improvement Co. v. Guthrie, 116 N. C. 381, 384, 21 S. E. 952; Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 249. See also, Durham Consol. Land, etc., Co. v. Guthrie, 116 N. C. 381, 382, 21 S. E. 952.

Member of Corporation or Partner May Sign.—Under the clause "or by some other person by him thereto lawfully authorized" a member of a corporation or a partner is a competent agent to sign for the corporation or partnership. Neaves v. Mining Co., 90 N. C. 412, 415.

Signature of Agent.—If signed by one who is proved or admitted by the principal to have been authorized as agent, it is a sufficient compliance with the Statute if the agent sign his own name instead of that of his principal by him. Hargrove v. Adcock, 111 N. C. 166, 171, 16 S. E. 16.

Where the agent is the one by whom the contract or the memorandum is signed, the authority of the agent to sign it for his principal need not have been given in writing. And even a subsequent ratification of an unauthorized signing will suffice. Johnston v. Sikes, 49 N. C. 70.

It is not necessary that the name of the principal or his relation to the transaction shall appear upon the writing itself or in the form of the signature. Neaves v. Mining Co., 90 N. C. 412, 415.

Ordinance, Resolution or Vote.—An ordinance, resolution or vote of a municipal corporation, accepting a lease or contract tendered, does not constitute a signing within the meaning of the Statute. Wade v. New Bern, 77 N. C. 460.

C. Statement of Consideration.

Whether oral or in writing.—The contract must have a consideration to support it. Draughan v. Bunting, 31 N. C. 10; Stanly v. Hendricks, 35 N. C. 86, 87; Combs v. Harshaw, 63 N. C. 198; Haun v. Burrell, 119 N. C. 544, 547, 26 S. E. 111. But if in writing, the consideration need not appear in the writing, and may be shown by parol. Nichols v. Bell, 46 N. C. 32; Haun v. Burrell, 119 N. C. 544, 547, 26 S. E. 111; Peele v. Powell, 156 N. C. 553, 557, 73 S. E. 234; Bateman v. Hopkins, 157 N. C. 470, 73 S. E. 133; Lewis v. Murray, 177 N. C. 17, 19, 97 S. E. 750.

But see Hall v. Misenheimer, 137 N. C. 183, 49 S. E. 104, where it is said that a memorandum of a contract for the sale of land is not good as against the vendee unless it shows the price to be paid.

IV. PART PERFORMANCE.

In General.—The doctrine which prevails in many states, that a part or even a full performance of the stipulation of an unwritten agreement for the disposition of an interest in land exempts such agreement from the operation of the Statute of Frauds, is not recognized in this state under this section which declares such agreements to be void and of no effect. Kivett v. McKeithan, 90 N. C. 106, 108; Ellis v. Ellis, 16 N. C. 342. In such a case, however, the party who has advanced the purchase price or has made improvements shall be refunded his advances. Kivett v. McKeithan, supra; Barnes v. Brown, 71 N. C. 507; Luton v. Badham, 127 N. C. 96, 37 S. E. 143; Smithdeal v. McAdoo, 172 N. C. 700, 703, 90 S. E. 907. But see the dissenting opinion of Judge Douglas, in Luton v. Badham, supra. See also Dunn v. Moore, 38 N. C. 364; Albee v. Griffin, 22 N. C. 9; Plummer v. Owens, 45 N. C. 254, 255, where cases were held not within statute.

V. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

General Issue or General Denial.—A party may rely on the Statute of Frauds under the general issue or a general denial. Luton v. Badham, 127 N. C. 96, 37 S. E. 143; Winders v. Hill, 144 N. C. 614, 57 S. E. 456.

A denial of the contract as alleged is equivalent to a plea of the Statute. McCall v. Textile Ind. Inst., 189 N. C. 775, 128 S. E. 349, 353.

But see Curtis v. Piedmont, etc., Min. Co., 109 N. C. 401, 13 S. E. 944, where it is held that in an action on a contract for lumber the defendant in order to avail himself of the defense of the Statute of Frauds should plead it specifically. See also, Ebert v. Disher, 216 N. C. 36, 3 S. E. (2d) 301.

Demurrer.—The Statute of Frauds cannot be taken advantage of by demurrer, since that admits the contract. The contract is valid and binding unless the invalidity, by reason of the Statute, is set up by the answer. Hemmings v. Doss, 125 N. C. 400, 402, 34 S. E. 511; Stevens v. Midyette, 161 N. C. 323, 77 S. E. 243.

Record on Appeal.—Where upon appeal, the insufficiency of letters to constitute a valid contract under this section is sought to be raised, the contents of the letters must appear upon the record. Layton v. Godwin, 186 N. C. 312, 119 S. E. 495.

Oral Arbitration.—An oral agreement of arbitration as to real property cannot be enforced. Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 188, 14 S. E. 685.

Issues as to title of land cannot be shown by parol. Cox v. Ward, 107 N. C. 507, 12 S. E. 379; Presnell v. Garrison, 122 N. C. 595, 29 S. E. 839.

Discharge by Matter in Pais.—A written contract for the sale of land can be discharged by matter in pais. Miller v. Pierce, 104 N. C. 389, 10 S. E. 554, cited in note in 19 L. R. A., N. S., 881.

§ 22-3. Contracts with Cherokee Indians.—All contracts and agreements of every description made with any Cherokee Indian, or any person of Cherokee Indian blood within the second degree, for an amount equal to ten dollars or more, shall be void, unless some note or memorandum thereof be made in writing and signed by such Indian or person of Indian blood, or some other person by him authorized, in the presence of two witnesses, who shall also subscribe the same: Provided, that this section shall not apply to any person of Cherokee Indian blood or any Cherokee Indian who understands the English language and who can speak and write the same intelligently. (Rev., s. 975; Code, s. 1553; R. C., c. 50, s. 16; 1907, c. 1004, s. 1; C. S. 989.)

Defense Concluded by Judgment.—While, under this section, there may be defenses available against a contract, if they are not availed before a judgment is rendered, the judgment is res adjudicata. Rogers v. Kimsey, 101 N. C. 560, 563, 8 S. E. 159.

One Party White.—This section applies as well where the contract is between two Indians as where one of the parties is white. Lovingood v. Smith, 52 N. C. 601; State v. Ta-Cha-Na-Tah, 64 N. C. 614, 616.

§ 22-4. Promise to revive debt of bankrupt.—No promise to pay a debt discharged by any decree of a court of competent jurisdiction, in any proceeding in bankruptcy, shall be received in evidence unless such promise is in writing and signed by the party to be charged therewith. (Rev., s. 978; 1899, c. 57; C. S. 990.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 60, for possible construction of this section.

Whether this section is applicable to a promise made subsequent to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy but before the order of discharge is entered, quaere. Westall v. Jackson, 218 N. C. 209, 10 S. E. (2d) 674.

Art. 1. Assignments for Benefit of Creditors.

§ 23-1. Debts mature on execution of assignment; no preferences.—Upon the execution of any voluntary deed of trust or deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors, all debts of the maker thereof shall become due and payable at once, and no such deed of trust or deed of assignment shall contain any preferences of one creditor over another, except as hereinafter stated. (Rev., s. 967; 1893, c. 453; 1909, c. 918, s. 1; C. S. 1609.)

Cross References.—As to homestead and exemptions, see § 1-369 and notes. As to preferences in the absence of assignment, see notes to § 39-15—analysis line, "Rights and Remedies of Creditors."

Definition.—An assignment for the benefit of creditors has been defined by the U. S. Supreme Court as "an assignment whereby a debtor, generally an insolvent, transfers to another his property, in trust to pay his debts or apply the property upon their payment." Black Law Dict.

What Constitutes an Assignment.—The Supreme Court has held that where a person, who is insolvent, makes an assignment of practically all his property to secure a pre-existing debt, there being also other creditors, such instrument will be treated as an assignment for the benefit of creditors and subject to the statutes relating thereto, and neither the omission of a small part of the debtor's property nor a defeasance clause in the instrument will change this result. Bank v. Tobacco Co., 188 N. C. 177, 178, 124 S. E. 158; Powell Brothers v. Lumber Company, 153 N. C. 52, 57, 68 S. E. 926; Nat'l Bank v. Gilmer, 116 N. C. 684, 22 S. E. 2; Nat'l Bank v. Gilmer, 117 N. C. 416, 23 S. E. 333; Glauston v. Jacobs, 117 N. C. 427, 23 S. E. 335; Cooper v. McKinnon, 122 N. C. 447, 29 S. E. 417; Pearre v. Folb, 123 N. C. 239, 31 S. E. 475; Brown v. Nimocks, 124 N. C. 417, 32 S. E. 743; Taylor v. Lauer, 127 N. C. 157, 37 S. E. 197; Odum v. Clark, 146 N. C. 544, 60 S. E. 513.

Same—Deed to Secure Advancements.—Where the purpose of a deed is to secure payment not only of pre-existing debts but also of debts to be contracted for advancements to aid grantors in carrying on their business then said deed is not a voluntary deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors, within the meaning of this and the following section. Commissioner of Banks v. Turnage, 202 N. C. 485, 486, 163 S. E. 451.

Sec.

- 23-34. Where no suggestion of fraud, discharge granted.
 23-35. Continuance granted for cause.
 23-36. Where fraud in issue, discharge only after trial.
 23-37. If fraud found, debtor imprisoned.
 23-38. Effect of order of discharge.

Art. 5. General Provisions under Articles 2, 3, and 4.

- 23-39. Superior court tries issue of fraud.
 23-40. Insolvent released on giving bond.
 23-41. Surety in bond may surrender principal.
 23-42. Creditor liable for jail fees.
 23-43. False swearing; penalty.
 23-44. Powers of trustees hereunder.
 23-45. Jail bounds.

Art. 6. Practice in Insolvency and Certain Other Proceedings.

- 23-46. Unlawful to solicit claims of creditors in proceedings.
 23-47. Violation of preceding section a misdemeanor.

Art. 7. Bankruptcy of Taxing, etc., Districts, Counties, Cities, Towns and Villages.

- 23-48. Local units authorized to avail themselves of provisions of bankruptcy law.

Same—Mortgage.—Where a mortgage is made of the entirety of a large estate for pre-existing debts (omitting only an insignificant remnant of property) the mortgage is in effect an assignment for the benefit of creditors secured therein. National Bank v. Gilmer, 117 N. C. 416, 23 S. E. 333; Nat'l Bank v. Gilmer, 116 N. C. 684, 22 S. E. 2.

Same—Chattel Mortgages.—A chattel mortgage, attempted to be executed by an insolvent corporation owing other creditors, to secure a pre-existing debt on practically all of its property, will be treated as an assignment and void, unless the requirements of the statute have been complied with, and no lien otherwise on the property described therein can be thereby created. Banking, etc., Co. v. Tobacco Co., 188 N. C. 177, 124 S. E. 158.

But a chattel mortgage on a stock of goods, securing the purchase price, cannot be deemed an assignment for the benefit of creditors where the secured debt is contemporaneous with the contract of purchase, as a part of one continuous transaction. Cowan v. Dale, 189 N. C. 684, 128 S. E. 155.

A chattel mortgage of an insolvent corporation, executed and registered before the appointment of a receiver for it, will not be construed under the provisions of this section as in effect an assignment for the benefit of creditors in the absence of the fact that the property covered by the mortgage constitutes practically all of the property of the insolvent. Vanderwal v. Vanco Dairy Co., 200 N. C. 314, 315, 156 S. E. 512.

By Whom Made—Corporations.—The U. S. Supreme Court has held that a corporation, through its proper officers, may make an assignment for the benefit of creditors. Potts v. Wallace, 146 U. S. 689, 13 S. Ct. 196, 36 L. Ed. 1135.

Same—Partnership.—In Tracy v. Tuffly, 134 U. S. 206, 10 S. Ct. 527, 33 L. Ed. 879, it is held that a partnership, whether general or limited, may, through its proper officers, make an assignment for the benefit of creditors.

Same—Trustees.—In accordance with the rule that trustees must unite to pass any title to property jointly held by them, where there are two or more trustees of the property of insolvents, all should join therein. Wilber v. Almy, 12 How. 180, 13 L. Ed. 944.

Applies to Sureties.—The provision that all debts of the maker become due at once applies to the sureties upon a note of the assignor. Pritchard v. Mitchell, 139 N. C. 54, 51 S. E. 783.

Effect of Void Assignment.—If a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors becomes void as to creditors its primary and essential purpose is defeated, and it is totally invalid. The assignee does not take the property for his own benefit, but for the benefit of the creditors, and while he holds the legal title they are really the equitable owners to the extent of their claims. Whatever defeats their interest defeats the object of the trust and, consequently, the trust itself. Cooper v. McKinnon, 122 N. C. 447, 450, 29 S. E. 417.

Same—Fraud Need Not Be Shown.—A voluntary conveyance, declared invalid for not complying with the provisions of this and the following sections, is not only void as to bona fide unsecured creditors, but inter partes; and hence it would be unnecessary for such creditors to show fraud in its procurement in order to set it aside. Powell Brothers v. Lumber Company, 153 N. C. 52, 68 S. E. 926.

What Constitutes a Preference.—No preference is given either at common law or in equity, or by statute, for clerk hire in a store for services rendered prior to the appointment of a receiver for the owner, on application of creditors. Mascot Stove Mfg. Co. v. Turnage, 183 N. C. 137, 110 S. E. 779.

Same—When Certain Creditors Omitted.—An assignment for the benefit of creditors, omitting certain other creditors, is invalid as a preference. Taylor v. Lauer, 127 N. C. 157, 37 S. E. 197.

Effect of Subsequent Bankruptcy.—Where an assignment for the benefit of creditors was made under this section more than four months before the debtor was adjudged a bankrupt under the federal law, the assignment was valid and whatever was done under it was valid. The court of bankruptcy cannot take retroactive cognizance of trusts beyond four months and hence will merely administer the estate as it exists at the time of the adjudication. In re Carver, 113 Fed. 138, 139.

Assignment Irrevocable.—It has been held in Baring v. Dabney, 19 Wall. 1, 22 L. Ed. 90, that a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors, if assented to by the creditors, or a considerable portion of them, becomes irrevocable.

Former Provisions.—This section formerly contained the following paragraph: "A schedule of all preferred debts shall be filed under oath by the assignor in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such assignment is made, stating the names of the preferred creditors, the amount due each, when the debt was made, and the circumstances under which the said debt was contracted, and the said schedule shall be filed within five days of the registration of such deed of assignment."

The object of the act was to give the creditors a convenient opportunity of ascertaining the nature of the preferences, and to put such information, verified by the oath of the assignor, in such form and place as to be equally accessible to all. The provision was construed as mandatory. Brown & Co. v. Nimocks, 124 N. C. 417, 420, 32 S. E. 743; Frank v. Heiner, 117 N. C. 79, 23 S. E. 42; Glanon v. Jacobs, 117 N. C. 427, 23 S. E. 335; National Bank v. Gilmer, 117 N. C. 416, 424, 23 S. E. 333.

For other cases construing this provision, see Cooper v. McKinnon, 122 N. C. 447, 29 S. E. 417; Brannock v. Brannock, 32 N. C. 428, 429.

§ 23-2. Trustee to file schedule of property.—

Upon the execution of such deed of trust, the trustee, whether named therein or appointed as hereafter provided for, shall file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said deed of trust is registered, within ten days after the registration thereof, and inventory under oath, giving a complete, full and perfect account of all property that has come into his hands or to the hands of any person for him, by virtue of such deed of trust, and when further property of any kind not included in any previous return comes to the hands or knowledge of such trustee he shall return the same as hereinbefore prescribed within ten days after the possession or discovery thereof. (Rev., s. 968; 1893, c. 453, s. 2; C. § 1610.)

Section Mandatory.—An assignment for the benefit of creditors is void unless the formalities of this section are complied with as to filing an inventory of the property, and will be set aside at the suit of a creditor whose debt is not therein provided for. Odum v. Clark, 146 N. C. 544, 60 S. E. 513.

If the provisions of this section are not complied with, the deeds of trust are void. Virginia Trust Co. v. Pharr Estates, 206 N. C. 894, 175 S. E. 186.

Cited in Flowers v. American, etc., Chemical Co., 199 N. C. 486, 154 S. E. 736.

§ 23-3. Trustee to recover property conveyed fraudulently or in preference.—It is the duty of the trustee to recover, for the benefit of the estate, property which was conveyed by the grantor or assignor in fraud of his creditors, or which was conveyed or transferred by the grantor or assignor for the purpose of giving a preference. A preference, under this section, shall be deemed to have been given when property has been transferred or conveyed within four months next preceding the registration of the deed of trust or deed of assignment in consideration of the payment of a pre-existing debt, when the grantee or transferee of such property knows or has reasonable ground to believe that the grantor or assignor was insolvent at the time of making such conveyance or transfer. (1909, c. 918, s. 2; C. S. 1611.)

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of preference under the Bankruptcy Act, see Wilson v. Taylor, 154 N. C. 211, 70 S. E. 286.

General Effect of Section.—On proper consideration of this section, its terms and purpose, it is clear that the legislature intended to prohibit and avoid, as a wrongful preference, any and every disposition of real or personal property, absolute or conditional, by which a creditor, in consideration of an existent or antecedent debt and within four months of a general assignment by his debtor, acquires title to such debtor's property or any interest therein or lien thereon, when he knew or had reasonable ground to believe that his grantor or assignor was insolvent at the time the transfer or conveyance was made. Wooten v. Taylor, 159 N. C. 604, 76 S. E. 11; Teague v. Howard Grocery Co., 175 N. C. 195, 198, 95 S. E. 173.

Preferences Valid at Common Law.—A debtor unable to pay his indebtedness in full, has an undoubted right, in the absence of a statute, to make preferences in the distribution of his property among the creditors, when the appropriation is absolute and with no reservation for his own benefit to the injury of creditors unprovided for. Guggenheimer v. Brookfield, 90 N. C. 232, 234.

At common law a debtor may, in the exercise of the power arising from the ownership of property, if acting conscientiously and without collusion, prefer certain of his creditors to the detriment or exclusion of the others. United States Rubber Co. v. American Oak Leather Co., 181 U. S. 434, 21 S. Ct. 670, 45 L. Ed. 938.

Real and Personal Property Included.—This section requiring the trustee in a general assignment for creditors to recover property "conveyed or transferred by the grantor or assignor" in preference, within the four months period, includes within their meaning both real and personal property, and the general methods by which the title is passed or interest therein created and extends to an executed contract of sale. Teague v. Howard Grocery Co., 175 N. C. 195, 95 S. E. 173.

The Four Months' Period.—The four months' period mentioned in this section is to be counted from the time the transfer or conveyance was made, and not from the time of its registration. Wooten v. Taylor, 159 N. C. 604, 76 S. E. 11.

Effect of Preference in Deed.—A deed of general assignment for the benefit of creditors, by expressly making a prior mortgage of the grantor's property, wherein an unlawful preference is given, subject thereto, will not, of itself, prevent a recovery of the property conveyed in the mortgage by the trustee in the deed in trust for the general creditors. Wooten v. Taylor, 159 N. C. 604, 76 S. E. 11.

A chattel mortgage on a stock of goods to secure the purchase price, the mortgagor retaining possession is not a preference within this section. Cowan v. Dale, 189 N. C. 684, 128 S. E. 155.

Judgment Not a Preference Prohibited by This Section.—A judgment duly rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction against a debtor assigning his property to a trustee for the benefit of creditors is not a transfer or conveyance of property by the assignor, although the judgment is rendered within four months prior to the assignment to the trustee, and the judgment is not a preference prohibited by this section, and will not be declared void upon suit of the trustee. Pritchett v. Tolbert, 210 N. C. 644, 188 S. E. 71.

Execution on Personalty Prior to Registration of Deed of Assignment Creates Prior Lien.—Where a valid judgment is rendered within four months prior to an assignment for benefit of creditors by the judgment debtor, and execution is issued thereon and personal property of the debtor levied upon prior to the registration of the deed of assignment, the judgment is a lien upon the personal property levied upon prior to the title of the trustee in the deed of assignment. Pritchett v. Tolbert, 210 N. C. 644, 188 S. E. 71.

Meaning of Insolvent.—Insolvent means unable to meet liabilities after converting all of the property or assets belonging to the person or estate into money, at market prices, and applying the proceeds, with the cash previously on hand, to the payment of them. Silver Valley Mining Company v. North Carolina Smelting Company, 119 N. C. 417, 418, 25 S. E. 954.

Same—Applied to Corporation.—A corporation is not insolvent, so as to render a mortgage of its property fraudulent, so long as it has property sufficient, if converted into money at market prices, to meet its liabilities. Silver Valley Mining Company v. North Carolina Smelting Company, 119 N. C. 417, 25 S. E. 954.

Debtor Whose Assets Exceed His Indebtedness.—Where a solvent debtor conveys practically all of his property to secure a pre-existing debt, having other creditors at the time, it does not create a preference within the intent and meaning of this section. Flowers v. American, etc., Chemical Co., 199 N. C. 456, 154 S. E. 736.

Right and Duty to Defend Suits.—It is the duty of assignees for the benefit of creditors, who have once accepted the trust, not only to appear, but so far as the nature of the transaction and the facts and circumstances of the case will admit or warrant, to defend suits to set aside the assignments. Chittenden v. Brewster, 2 Wall. 191, 17 L. Ed. 839.

§ 23-4. Substitute for incompetent trustee appointed in special proceeding.—When a trustee named in a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors has died or resigned or has in any way become incompetent to execute the trust, the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein said deed of assignment has been registered is authorized and empowered, in a special proceeding in which all persons interested have been made parties, to appoint some discreet and competent person to act as such trustee and to execute all the trusts created in the original deed of assignment, according to its true intent and as fully as if originally appointed trustee therein. (1915, c. 176, s. 1; C. S. 1612.)

Cross Reference.—As to appointment of successor to incompetent trustee, generally, see § 45-9.

§ 23-5. Insolvent trustee removed unless bond given; substitute appointed.—Upon the complaint of any creditor of the assignor or trustee in such deed of trust, alleging under oath that the trustee named therein is insolvent, and asking that he be required to give bond or be removed, it is the duty of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such deed of trust is registered, upon a notice of not more than ten days to such trustee, to hear the complaint. If upon such hearing the clerk is satisfied that such trustee is insolvent, he shall remove such trustee and appoint some competent person to execute the provisions of such deed of trust, unless such insolvent trustee shall file with the clerk a good and sufficient bond, to be approved by him, in a sum double the value of the property in the deed of trust, payable to the state of North Carolina, and conditioned that such trustee shall faithfully execute and carry into effect the provisions of said deed of trust. (Rev., s. 969; 1893, c. 453, s. 3; C. S. 1613.)

In General.—While formerly it was entirely competent for a debtor to assign his property to an insolvent person who was otherwise qualified to execute the provisions of the deed of trust for the benefit of creditors, the policy of the law has since been declared by this section to throw greater safeguards around such transactions by requiring every trustee of this kind to give bond when proper application for that purpose is made to the clerk. Preiss v. Cohen, 112 N. C. 278, 282, 17 S. E. 520.

§ 23-6. Trustee removed on petition of creditors; substitute appointed.—Upon the written petition of one-fourth of the number of the creditors of the grantor or assignor whose claims aggregate more than fifty per cent of the total indebtedness of said grantor or assignor, the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said deed of trust or deed of assignment is registered, upon a notice of not more than ten days to said trustee of said petition, shall remove said trustee and appoint some competent person to execute the provisions of such deed of trust or deed of assignment. (1909, c. 918, s. 3; C. S. 1614.)

§ 23-7. Substituted trustee to give bond.—Upon the removal or resignation of any trustee it is the duty of the clerk to require the person appointed to execute the provisions of such deed of trust, before entering upon his duties, to file with the clerk a good and sufficient bond, to be approved by him in a sum double the value of the property in said deed of trust, payable to the state of North Carolina, and conditioned that such person shall faithfully execute and carry into effect the provisions of said deed of trust. (Rev., s. 970; 1893, c. 453, s. 3; 1909, c. 918, s. 4; 1915, c. 176, s. 2; C. S. 1615.)

§ 23-8. Only perishable property sold within ten days of registration.—It is unlawful for any trustee, whether named in such deed of trust or appointed by a clerk of the superior court, to sell any part of the property described in such deed of trust within ten days from the registration thereof, unless such property or some part thereof be perishable, in which case he may sell such property as is perishable, according to the powers conferred upon him in said deed of trust. (Rev., s. 971; 1893, c. 453, s. 4; C. S. 1616.)

§ 23-9. Creditors to file verified claims with clerk; false swearing misdemeanor.—All creditors of the maker of such deed of trust shall, before receiving payment of any amount from the said trustee, file, with the clerk of the superior court a statement under oath that the amount claimed by him is justly due, after allowing all credits and offsets, to the best of his knowledge and belief. Any creditor who shall knowingly swear falsely in such statement shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., ss. 972, 3617; 1893, c. 453, ss. 6, 7; C. S. 1617.)

Creditors Claiming Estoppel.—Creditors, who claim under a deed of trust and file their claims to share in the proceeds of sale, cannot be heard to impeach its provisions. Chard v. Warren, 122 N. C. 75, 29 S. E. 373.

§ 23-10. Priority of payments by trustee.—The trustee, after paying the necessary costs of the administration of the trust, shall pay as speedily as possible (1) all debts which are a lien upon any of the trust property in his hands, to the extent of the net proceeds of the property upon which such debt is a lien; (2) wages due to workmen, clerks, traveling or city salesmen, or servants, which have been earned within three months before registration of said deed of trust or deed of assignment, and (3) all other debts equally ratable. (1909, c. 918, s. 5; C. S. 1618.)

No Discrimination Except as Provided.—Except for the two classes mentioned in this section all discrimination among creditors is forbidden. Wooten v. Taylor, 159 N. C. 604, 608, 76 S. E. 11.

§ 23-11. Trustee to account quarterly; final account in twelve months.—The trustee, whether named in the deed of trust or appointed by a clerk of a superior court, shall within three months from the registration of such deed of trust, and at each succeeding period of three months, file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the same is registered an account under oath, stating in detail his receipts and disbursements and his action as trustee, and within twelve months he shall file his final account of his administration of his trust. The clerk may upon good cause shown extend the time within which the quarterly and final accounts herein provided for are to be filed. (Rev., s. 973; 1893, c. 453, s. 5; C. S. 1619.)

§ 23-12. Trustee violating duties guilty of misdemeanor.—If any trustee in a deed of trust for the benefit of creditors shall fail to file his inventory as required by law, or shall knowingly make any false statement in such inventory, or shall knowingly fail to include any property therein, or shall sell any part of the property described in the deed of trust within ten days unless such property so sold be perishable, or shall fail to file either of the quarterly accounts or the final accounts as required by law, or shall knowingly make any false statement in such quarterly or final account, or shall knowingly fail to include any property, money or disbursement in such quarterly or final account, he shall, in either case, be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3689; 1893, c. 453, s. 8; C. S. 1620.)

Art. 2. Petition of Insolvent for Assignment for Creditors.

§ 23-13. Petition; schedule; inventory; affidavit.—Every insolvent debtor may present a petition in the superior court, praying that his estate may be assigned for the benefit of all his creditors, and that his person may thereafter be exempt from arrest or imprisonment on account of any judgment previously rendered or of any debts previously contracted. On presenting such petition, every insolvent shall deliver therewith a schedule containing an account of his creditors and an inventory of his estate, which inventory shall contain—

1. A full and true account of his creditors, with the place of residence of each, if known, and the sum owing to each creditor, whether on written security, on account, or otherwise.

2. A full and true inventory of his estate, real and personal, with the encumbrances existing thereon, and all books, vouchers and securities relating thereto.

3. A full and true inventory of all property, real and personal, claimed by him as exempt from sale under execution.

He shall annex to his petition and schedule the following affidavit, which must be taken and subscribed by him before the clerk of the superior court, and must be certified by such officer:

I, do swear (or affirm) that the account of my creditors, with the places of their residence, and the inventory of my estate, which are herewith delivered, are in all respects just and true; that I have not at any time or in any manner disposed of or made over any part of my estate for the future benefit of myself or my family, or in order to defraud any of my creditors; and that I have not paid, secured to be paid, or in any way compounded with any of my creditors, with a view that they, or any of them, should abstain or desist from opposing my discharge: so help me, God. (Rev., s. 1930; Code, ss. 2942, 2943, 2944; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 1, 2, 3; C. S. 1621.)

Cross References.—As to prohibiting imprisonment for debt, see Const., Art. I, §§ 16, 17. As to provisional remedies by arrest and bail, see § 1-409 et seq. See also, § 1-311 as to execution against the person.

Constitutional Provisions.—The Constitution gives, in express terms, to the Legislature the power to regulate the manner in which a debtor shall surrender his property for the use of his creditors, and he must pursue the regulations which may be thus prescribed, in order to secure his person from arrest for his debt. Crain v. Long, 14 N. C. 371.

When Debtor Not under Arrest.—A petitioner not under arrest must show that he has complied with the provisions of this section and obtain an order of discharge under sections 23-14, 23-15. Howie v. Spittle, 156 N. C. 180, 72 S. E. 207.

Facts Set Out.—Defendant having filed the schedule of his property, it was not only proper, but necessary, that he should set out the facts showing what right, title, estate and interest he held in the real estate. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 716, 64 S. E. 898.

Defendant in Alienation Suit.—A suit by one charging the defendant with alienating the affections of his wife, and arresting and holding him for bail under the affidavits required, is one entitling the defendant to the benefit of this section for the relief of insolvent debtors. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 64 S. E. 898.

§ 23-14. Clerk to give notice of petition.—On receiving the petition, schedule and affidavit, the clerk of the superior court shall make an order requiring all the creditors of such insolvent to show cause before said officer, within thirty days after publication of the order, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted, and shall post a notice of the contents of the order at the courthouse door and three other public places in the county where the application is made for four successive weeks; or, in lieu thereof, shall publish the same for three successive weeks in any newspaper published in said county, or in an adjoining county. (Rev., s. 1931; Code, ss. 2945, 2946; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 4, 5; C. S. 1622.)

§ 23-15. Order of discharge and appointment of trustee.—If no creditor oppose the discharge of the insolvent, the clerk of the superior court before whom the hearing of the petition is had shall enter an order of discharge and appoint a trustee of all the estate of such insolvent. (Rev., s. 1932; Code, s. 2947; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 6; C. S. 1623.)

§ 23-16. Terms and effect of order of discharge.—The order of discharge shall declare that the person of such insolvent shall forever thereafter be exempted from arrest or imprisonment on account of any judgment, or by reason of any debt due at the time of such order, or contracted for before that time, though payable afterwards. But no debt, demand, judgment or decree against any insolvent, discharged under this chapter, shall be affected or impaired by such discharge, but the same shall remain valid and effectual against all the property of such insolvent acquired after his discharge and the appointment of a trustee; and the lien of any judgment or decree upon the property of such insolvent shall not be in any manner affected by such discharge. (Rev., s. 1933; Code, s. 2950; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 9; C. S. 1624.)

Cross Reference.—See cross reference note under § 23-13.

Property Subsequently Acquired Liable.—This section protects from future arrests for the same debt such as have surrendered their property; though after-acquired property may be subject to execution and sale, in proper cases. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 439, 13 S. E. 222. See also Brown v. Long, 22 N. C. 138 which holds that the subsequently acquired property of a discharged debtor may be reached in equity.

§ 23-17. Suggestion of fraud by opposing creditor.—Every creditor opposing the discharge of the insolvent may suggest fraud and set forth the particulars thereof in writing, verified by his oath; but the insolvent shall not be compelled to answer the suggestions of fraud in more than one case, though as many creditors as choose may make themselves parties to the issues in such cases. (Rev., s. 1934; Code, s. 2948; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 7; C. S. 1625.)

In Bastardy Proceeding.—A mother of a bastard child, to whom an allowance has been made in bastardy proceedings, is such a creditor of the father of her child as to permit her to oppose the insolvent's discharge by suggesting fraud in answer to his petition. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511.

Same—As to Fine and Costs.—When defendant in bastardy proceedings has been ordered to pay a fine and costs and allowance to the mother, only the State can suggest fraud as to the fine and costs. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511.

Answer Does Not Suggest Fraud.—One who has another arrested and held to bail for alienating the affections of his wife does not raise an issue or suggestion of fraud under this section by answering the petition for discharge, and denying a statement therein made by petitioner that he is advised by counsel that, owing to the condition of the title to certain lands scheduled, an execution could not issue against it, as such statement is surplusage. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 64 S. E. 898.

All Creditors Notified May Be Joined.—Where a debtor is arrested under different ca. sa.'s at the instance of several creditors, if he applies for his discharge as an insolvent debtor, and fraud is suggested in answer to his application, he has a right to require that all the creditors he may notify shall join in the trial of one issue, and the court will so direct. Williams v. Floyd, 27 N. C. 649.

Same—Where Privilege Waived.—But this is for the ease of the debtor, and he may waive the privilege by joining issue with each creditor, and then a verdict in his favor in one case will not discharge him from the responsibility in the case of another creditor. Williams v. Floyd, 27 N. C. 649.

Art. 3. Trustee for Estate of Debtor Imprisoned for Crime.

§ 23-18. Persons who may apply for trustee for imprisoned debtor.—When any debtor is imprisoned in the penitentiary for any term, or in a county jail for any term more than twelve months, application by petition may be made by any creditor, the debtor, or by his wife, or any of his relatives, for the appointment of a trustee to take charge of the estate of such debtor. (Rev., s. 1943; Code, s. 2974; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 40; C. S. 1626.)

§ 23-19. Superior court appoints; copy of sentence to be produced.—The application must be made to the superior court of the county where the debtor was convicted; and upon producing a copy of the sentence of such debtor, duly certified by the clerk of the court, together with an affidavit of the applicant that such debtor is actually imprisoned under such sentence, and is indebted in any sum, the clerk or the judge may immediately appoint a trustee of the estate of such debtor. (Rev., s. 1944; Code, s. 2975; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 41, 42; C. S. 1627.)

§ 23-20. Duties of trustee; accounting; oath.—The trustee of the imprisoned debtor shall pay his debts pro rata. After paying such debts, the trustee shall apply the surplus, from time to time, to the support of the wife and children of the debtor, under the direction of the superior court. When the imprisoned debtor is lawfully discharged from his imprisonment, the trustee shall deliver to him all the estate, real and personal, of such debtor, after retaining a sufficient sum to satisfy the expenses incurred in the execution of the trust and lawful commissions therefor. The trustee shall make his returns and have his accounts audited and settled by the clerk of the superior court of the county where the proceeding was had, in like manner as provided for personal representatives. Before proceeding to the discharge of his duty, the trustee shall take and subscribe an oath, well and truly to execute his trust according to his best skill and understanding. The oath must be filed with the clerk of the superior court. (Rev., ss. 1945, 1946, 1947; Code, ss. 2976, 2978, 2979; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 43, 45, 46; C. S. 1628.)

§ 23-21. Court may appoint several trustees.—The court has power, when deemed necessary, to appoint more than one person trustee under this chapter; but in reference to the rights, authorities and duties conferred herein, all such trustees shall be deemed one person in law. (Rev., s. 1948; Code, s. 2980; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 47; C. S. 1629.)

§ 23-22. Court may remove trustee and appoint successor.—In case of the death, removal, resignation or other disability of a trustee, the court making the appointment may from time to time supply the vacancy; and all proceedings may be continued by the successor in office in like manner as in the first instance. (Rev., s. 1949; Code, s. 2981; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 48; C. S. 1630.)

Art. 4. Discharge of Insolvent Debtors.

§ 23-23. Insolvent debtor's oath.—Prisoners in order to be entitled to discharge from imprisonment under the provisions of this article shall take the following oath:

I,, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I have not the worth of fifty dollars in any worldly substance, in debts, money or otherwise whatsoever, and that I have not at any time since my imprisonment or before, directly or indirectly, sold or assigned, or otherwise disposed of, or made over in trust for myself or my family, any part of my real or personal estate, whereby to have or expect any benefit, or to defraud any of my creditors: so help me, God. (Rev., s. 1918a; Code, s. 2972; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, c. 797, c. 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 31; 1881, c. 76; C. S. 1631.)

Constitutional.—This section does not contravene the constitutional provision in regard to homestead and personal property exemptions as the prisoner can discharge himself from custody by paying the fine and costs or by complying with the provisions of this article and taking the oath prescribed. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 416, 2 S. E. 370.

Liberal Construction.—In Wood v. Wood, 61 N. C. 538, it is stated that ch. 59 of the Rev. Code (the provisions of which are contained in this and the following sections) has always received a liberal interpretation.

Debtor Must Follow Provisions.—The Constitution gives, in express terms, to the Legislature, the power to regulate the manner in which a debtor shall surrender his property for the use of his creditors, and he must pursue the regulations which may be thus prescribed, in order to secure his person from arrest for his debts. Crain v. Long, 14 N. C. 371. Griffin v. Simmons, 50 N. C. 145, 148.

Cited in Moorefield v. Roseman, 198 N. C. 805, 806, 153 S. E. 399.

§ 23-24. Persons imprisoned for nonpayment of costs in criminal cases.—The following persons may be discharged from imprisonment upon complying with this article and § 153-194:

Every person committed for the fine and costs of any criminal prosecution. (Rev., s. 1915; Code, s. 2967; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 26; 1933, c. 228, s. 9; C. S. 1632.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws 1933, c. 228, sec. 9, this section contained a provision which read as follows: "Every putative father of a bastard committed for failure to give bond, or to pay any sum of money ordered to be paid for its maintenance." This provision was omitted by the amendment.

Purpose.—This section was manifestly intended to be construed as permitting a defendant convicted in a criminal proceeding, or found to be the father of a bastard child, to file a petition before the clerk designating the time when he wished to apply for a discharge. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 733, 20 S. E. 511.

Construed with Sections 153-191 and 153-194.—This section does not repeal those enacted much later, (sections 153-191, 153-194,) but the latter modify it. State v. Manuel, 20 N. C. 144, 146. All three sections being reenacted into the Revised at the same time, they must be construed together. State v. Morgan, 141 N. C. 726, 729, 53 S. E. 142.

Where Workhouse Established.—One committed for the fine and costs of a criminal prosecution, after remaining in jail twenty days, may be discharged upon complying with provisions of the next section. State v. Davis, 82 N. C. 610; State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 2 S. E. 370, and this is so, although a workhouse has been established by the county commissioners in accordance with the provisions of sec. 153-209. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 2 S. E. 370.

Where Three Indictments Exist.—There were three indictments against a prisoner to one of which he pleaded guilty, and judgment was suspended on the payment of costs, and he was found guilty on the other two, on one of which he was sentenced to imprisonment for ten days. After remaining in jail for the term of his imprisonment and twenty days additional, the prisoner took the oath prescribed and applied for his discharge; it was held, that he was entitled to his discharge in all three cases. State v. McNeely, 92 N. C. 829.

Placed in Custody of Sheriff.—An order in bastardy proceedings, placing the defendant in custody of the sheriff was, by necessary implication, an order to imprison upon failure to pay the fine, allowance and costs; and the defendant was properly discharged under this section. State v. Burton, 113 N. C. 655, 18 S. E. 657.

§ 23-25. Petition; before whom; notice; service.

—Every such person, having remained in prison for twenty days, may apply by petition to the court where the judgment against him was entered, praying to be brought before such court at a time and place to be named in the petition, and to be discharged upon taking the oath hereinbefore prescribed. The applicant shall cause ten days notice of the time and place of filing the petition to be served on the sheriff or other officer by whom he was committed. In cases of conviction before a justice of the peace the clerk of the superior court of the county where the convicted person confined for costs is, may administer the oath and discharge the prisoner. (Rev., s. 1916; Code, ss. 2968, 2969; 1891, c. 195; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 28; 1874-5, c. 11; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 27; 1873-4, c. 90; C. S. 1633.)

A Proceeding in the Cause.—The application of an insolvent confined for the nonpayment of costs is a proceeding in the cause in which he was convicted, and should be made by petition to the court wherein the judgment against him was entered. State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 1 S. E. 776.

Where Clerk Refuses to Give Oath.—If the clerk should refuse to allow the prisoner to take the oath, the remedy is by an appeal to the judge holding the courts of that district and it is intimated that it is irregular for the judge of an adjoining district to release the prisoner on a writ of habeas corpus. State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 1 S. E. 776.

Twenty Day Provision Mandatory.—Whether a defendant has property or not, he must remain in jail the twenty days, or pay the fine and costs, since the officers could not waive the imprisonment, nor had the judge the power to dispense with it. State v. Davis, 82 N. C. 610, 613.

Neither the judge nor solicitor has the right to allow a defendant in bastardy proceedings to take the insolvent's oath and obtain his discharge without remaining in prison for twenty days. State v. Bryan, 83 N. C. 611.

Effect of Discharge.—The discharge of a debtor from prison, under this section, does not protect the debtor from arrest at the instance of any other creditor than the one at whose suit he was in prison, though such other creditor had notice of the debtor's application to be discharged. Griffin v. Simmons, 50 N. C. 145.

§ 23-26. Warrant issued for prisoner.—The clerk of the superior court, or justice of the peace, before whom such petition is presented shall forthwith issue a warrant to the sheriff, or keeper of the prison, requiring him to bring the prisoner before the court, at the time and place named for the hearing of the case, which warrant every such sheriff or keeper shall obey. (Rev., s. 1917; Code, s. 2970; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 29; C. S. 1634.)

§ 23-27. Proceeding on application.—At the hearing of the petition, if the prisoner has no visible estate, and takes and subscribes the oath or affirmation prescribed in this article, the clerk of the superior court, or justice of the peace, before whom he is brought, shall administer the oath or affirmation to him, and discharge him from imprisonment; of which an entry shall be made in the docket of the court, and, where the proceeding is before a justice of the peace, the justice shall return the petition and orders thereon into the office of the clerk of the superior court to be filed. (Rev., s. 1918; Code, s. 2971; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 30; C. S. 1635.)

Cross Reference.—See generally the annotations under § 23-24.

Improperly Discharged.—Where a debtor arrested and imprisoned for fraud did not tender the oath required by section 23-23, nor surrender his homestead and personal property exemptions, nor file the petition, nor give the notice required by section 23-25, he was improperly discharged upon an affidavit that he had theretofore made an assignment of all his property for the benefit of creditors and that he was at the date of the affidavit insolvent and not worth more than the exemptions allowed him by law as set apart to him. Raisin Fertilizer Co. v. Grubbs, 114 N. C. 470, 19 S. E. 597.

§ 23-28. Suggestion of fraud.—The chairman of the board of commissioners, and every officer interested in the fee bill taxed against such prisoner, may oppose his taking the insolvent debtor's oath above prescribed, and file particulars of the suggestion in writing, in the court where the same shall stand for trial as prescribed in this chapter in other cases of fraud or concealment. (Rev., s. 1919; Code, s. 2973; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 32, C. S. 1636.)

§ 23-29. Persons taken in arrest and bail proceedings, or in execution.—The following persons also are entitled to the benefit of this article as hereinafter provided:

1. Every person taken or charged on any order of arrest for default or bail, or on surrender of bail in any action.

2. Every person taken or charged in execution of arrest for any debt or damages rendered in any action whatever. (Rev., s. 1920; Code, s. 2951; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 10; C. S. 1637.)

Cross Reference.—As to arrest and bail, see §§ 1-409 to 1-439.

Construed with Sections 1-417 and 1-419.—This section should be construed with sections 1-417 and 1-419, and, so construed, the remedies given by this section are in addition to those given by the other sections mentioned. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 64 S. E. 898.

Broad Terms.—The terms of this section are as broad and sweeping as they well can be. They do not, in any view of them as to the purpose intended, imply limitation or discrimination. They plainly embrace "every person" taken or charged to be arrested by virtue of "any order of arrest," not specially for a tort, or for fraud, or other particular cause of action as to which a person may be arrested, but for any cause of action, no matter what may be its nature, if the person is arrested in a case wherein he may lawfully be so arrested. They, in plain, strong terms, embrace any such arrest made or ordered to be made in any action whatever—that is, an action in which a person—a party—may be so arrested. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 492, 13 S. E. 222.

Same—Tort Actions Included.—The benefits of the statute extend as well to those arrested for torts as for debt, and the debt growing out of one is no more a debt and no more entitled to an extraordinary process for its collection than the other. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 13 S. E. 222.

Any Cause Specified in Section 1-410.—The provisions of this section extend to and embrace every person arrested or to be arrested in a civil action on account of any cause of action specified in sec. 1-410. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 496, 13 S. E. 222.

Nonresidents Included.—The benefits of the section are not confined to residents of this State. There is no provision in it, or any other statute, within our knowledge, that in terms or by reasonable implication declares that a nonresident shall not be discharged from arrest in a civil action, if he makes the complete surrender of his estate as prescribed. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 496, 13 S. E. 222.

Where Motion to Vacate Denied.—Where a party is under arrest in a civil action and his motion to vacate the arrest has been denied, he may seek his discharge under the provisions of this section. Wing v. Hooper, 98 N. C. 482, 4 S. E. 463.

Effect on Exemptions.—A judgment debtor against whose person execution has been issued cannot be discharged except by payment, or giving notice and surrender of all property in excess of $50, and the effect of the execution against the person is to deprive him of his homestead and his personal property exemption over and above $50. Oakley v. Lasater, 172 N. C. 96, 89 S. E. 1063.

Meaning of "Debtor and Creditor."—The term "debtor and creditor," employed generally and without precision in the statute as to persons arrested in civil actions, must be taken as meaning and applying to the plaintiff and defendant in the action in which the defendant shall be so arrested. They imply the plaintiff's claiming and suing for damages for which the defendant is liable to him. Such interpretation is allowable and reasonable, with a view to effectuate the intention of the statute as to persons so arrested. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 494, 13 S. E. 222.

§ 23-30. When petition may be filed.—Every person taken or charged as in the preceding section specified may, at any time after his arrest or imprisonment, petition the court from which the process issued on which he is arrested or imprisoned, for his discharge therefrom, on his compliance with this chapter. (Rev., s. 1921; Code, s. 2952; R. C., c. 59, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 11; C. S. 1638.)

Persons Included.—This section in broadest terms embraces "every person taken or charged as in the preceding section specified." Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 493, 13 S. E. 222.

Cause of Action Immaterial.—The debtor is entitled to be discharged upon the honest surrender of his property in the way prescribed, whether the cause of action on account of which he was arrested was a fraudulent debt, or a tort, or of other nature as to which he might be arrested. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 493, 13 S. E. 222.

§ 23-31. Petition; contents; verification.—The petition shall set forth the cause of the imprisonment, with the writ or process and complaint on which the same is founded, and shall have annexed to it a just and true account of all his estate, real and personal, and of all charges affecting such estate, as they exist at the time of filing his petition, together with all deeds, securities, books or writings whatever relating to the estate and the charges thereon; and also what property, real and personal, the petitioner claims as exempt from sale under execution, and shall have annexed to it an oath or affirmation, subscribed by the petitioner and taken before any person authorized by law to administer oaths, to the effect following:

I,, the within named petitioner, do swear (or affirm) that the within petition and account of my estate, and of the charges thereon, are, in all respects, just and true; and that I have not at any time or in any manner disposed of or made over any part of my property, with a view to the future benefit of myself or my family, or with an intent to injure or defraud any of my creditors: so help me, God. (Rev., s. 1922; Code, ss. 2953, 2954; R. C., c. 59, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 12, 13; C. S. 1639.)

§ 23-32. Notice; length of notice and to whom given.—Twenty days notice of the time and place at which the petition will be filed, together with a copy of such petition and the account annexed thereto, shall be personally served by such debtor on the creditor or creditors at whose suit he is arrested or imprisoned, and such other creditors as the debtor may choose, or their personal representatives or attorneys. If the person to be notified reside out of the state, and has no agent or attorney in the state, the notice may be served on the officer having the claim to collect, or by two weekly publications in any newspaper in the state. (Rev., s. 1923; Code, s. 2955; R. C., c. 59, ss. 3, 20; 1773, c. 100, s. 8; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 14; C. S. 1640.)

Effect of Notice.—The party arrested and so seeking relief must notify the creditors or plaintiff at whose suit he is arrested, but he may or may not notify other creditors of his application to surrender his property and be discharged from arrest, and only such creditors as may be so notified will be affected by his discharge. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 492, 13 S. E. 222.

§ 23-33. Who may suggest fraud.—Every creditor upon whom the notice directed in § 23-32 is served may suggest fraud upon the hearing of the petition, and the issues made up respecting the fraud shall stand for trial as in other cases. (Rev., s. 1924; Code, s. 2956; R. C., c. 59, s. 13; 1822, c. 1131, s. 4; 1835, c. 12; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 15; C. S. 1641.)

Petitioner May Demand Oath and Jury Trial.—A petitioner is entitled to insist that suggestions of fraud, made by a creditor, shall be verified by the oath of the creditor and tried by a jury; and it is error in a judge to decide upon such suggestions, without submitting them in an issue to a jury. Purvis v. Robinson & Co., 49 N. C. 96. See also, State v. Carroll, 51 N. C. 458, 459.

§ 23-34. Where no suggestion of fraud, discharge granted.—If no creditor suggests fraud or opposes the discharge of the debtor, the justice of the peace or the clerk of the superior court before whom the petition is heard shall forthwith discharge the debtor, and, if he surrenders any estate for the benefit of his creditors, shall appoint a trustee of such estate. The order of discharge and appointment shall be entered in the docket of the court, and if granted by a justice of the peace a copy thereof shall be certified by him to the clerk of the superior court, where the same shall be recorded, and filed. (Rev., s. 1925; Code, s. 2957; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, c. 797, c. 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, s. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 16; C. S. 1642.)

Proper Remedy to Secure Damages.—The proper remedy of the party seeking to establish and secure his damages for tort is to have a trustee appointed, under this section, to hold and distribute among creditors when and as soon as all debts are ascertained. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 13 S. 22, 222.

§ 23-35. Continuance granted for cause.—When it appears to the court that any debtor, who may have given bond for his appearance under this chapter, is prevented from attending court by sickness or other sufficient cause, the case shall be continued to another day, or to the next term, when the same proceedings shall be had as if the debtor had appeared according to the condition of his bond, and in the event of his death in the meantime, his bond shall be discharged. (Rev., s. 1926; Code, s. 2959; R. C., c. 59, s. 10; 1822, c. 1131, s. 1; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 18; C. S. 1643.)

Cross Reference.—As to the insolvent's bond, see § 23-40 and annotations.

When Sickness Excuses.—The extreme sickness of the principal would excuse his nonappearance, and entitle him and his surety to a continuance if that appeared to the court. But where it was not made to appear, the court could not properly continue it. Buis v. Arnold, 53 N. C. 233, 234.

Sickness of Surety No Excuse.—Under this section the sickness of the surety is no excuse for the default of the principal. Speight v. Wooten, 14 N. C. 327.

§ 23-36. Where fraud in issue, discharge only after trial.—After an issue of fraud or concealment is made up, the debtor shall not discharge himself as to the creditors in that issue, except by trial and verdict in the same, or by a discharge by consent. (Rev., s. 1927; Code, s. 2962; R. C., c. 59, s. 17; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 21; C. S. 1644.)

When Applicable.—The provisions of this section only apply to cases where the defendant is in lawful custody and by virtue of an authority competent to order it. Houston & Co. v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 35, 36.

§ 23-37. If fraud found, debtor imprisoned.—If, on the trial, the jury finds that there is any fraud or concealment, the judgment shall be that the debtor be imprisoned until a full and fair disclosure and account of all his money, property or effects be made by the debtor. (Rev., s. 1928; Code, s. 2961; R. C., c. 59, s. 14; 1822, c. 1131, s. 4; 1835, c. 12; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 20; C. S. 1645.)

Must Surrender Whole Property.—An insolvent debtor included in his schedule "all his interest in certain property assigned to S. C." On an issue found, the jury found the deed assigning such property fraudulent. It was held, that the debtor should be imprisoned until he should make a surrender of the whole of such property. Hutton v. Self, 28 N. C. 285.

Not in Execution as to Others.—A debtor convicted of fraudulent concealment of his effects, upon an issue between him and A, and ordered into custody thereupon, according to this section, is not in execution at the suit of B, another creditor, in whose case no such concealment was found or suggested. Folsom v. Gregory, 12 N. C. 233.

§ 23-38. Effect of order of discharge.—The order of discharge under the last four articles of this chapter, whether granted upon a nonsuggestion of fraud, upon the finding of a jury in favor of the debtor, or otherwise, shall be in like terms and have like effect as prescribed in § 23-16; except that the body of such debtor shall be free from arrest or imprisonment at the suit of every creditor, and as to him only, to whom the notice required may have been given; and the notices, or copies thereof, shall in all cases be filed in the office of the superior court clerk. (Rev., s. 1929; Code, s. 2960; R. C., c. 59, s. 11; 1822, c. 1131, s. 4; 1835, c. 12; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 19; C. S. 1646.)

Debt Not Discharged.—The discharge of the principal, under the insolvent debtor's law, is not a discharge of the debt. Norment v. Alexander, 32 N. C. 71.

Protects against Those Notified.—The discharge of an insolvent protects him from arrest by those creditors only who had notice of his intention to apply for a discharge. Crain v. Long, 14 N. C. 371; Norment v. Alexander, 32 N. C. 71; Rountree v. Waddill, 52 N. C. 309, 312.

Art. 5. General Provisions under Articles 2, 3, and 4.

§ 23-39. Superior court tries issue of fraud.—In every case where an issue of fraud is made up as provided in this chapter, the case shall be entered in the trial docket of the superior court, and stand for trial as other causes; and upon a finding by the jury in favor of the petitioner the judge shall discharge the debtor; if the finding is against the petitioner he shall be committed to jail until he makes full disclosure. (Rev., s. 1935; Code, s. 2949; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 8; C. S. 1647.)

In General.—Upon the suggestion of fraud an issue is raised which should be entered upon the trial docket of the superior court and stand for trial as other causes. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511.

When Issue Can Be Made Up.—When one who applies to take the insolvent debtor's oath, upon rendering a schedule, sets forth in his schedule that he has made a deed in trust of certain property to satisfy certain creditors, and surrenders all his interests in the property mentioned in such deed, it is still competent for the opposing creditor to have an issue made up whether the said deed is not fraudulent, and if found fraudulent by a jury, to cause the debtor to be imprisoned until he surrenders the property itself. Adams v. Alexander, 23 N. C. 501.

When Jury Finds Deed Fraudulent.—Where an insolvent debtor, in filing his schedule, only surrenders his interest in certain property, conveyed by a deed in trust, and the jury, upon an issue, find the deed fraudulent, he must be imprisoned until he makes a surrender of the whole property so conveyed. Hutton v. Self, 28 N. C. 285.

§ 23-40. Insolvent released on giving bond.—Every debtor entitled under the provisions of this chapter to discharge as an insolvent may, at the time of filing his application for a discharge or at any time afterwards, tender to the sheriff or other officer having his body in charge, a bond, with sufficient surety, in double the amount of the sum due any creditor or creditors at whose suit he was taken or charged, conditioned for the appearance of such debtor before the court where his petition is filed, at the hearing thereof, and to stand to and abide by the final order or decree of the court in the case. If such bond be satisfactory to the sheriff, he shall forthwith release such debtor from custody. (Rev., s. 1936; Code, s.

2958; R. C., c. 59, s. 27; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 17; C. S. 1648.)

Cross Reference.—As to giving bond in surety company, see § 109-17.

When Bond May Be Given.—The insolvent may give bond during the pendency of and until the final determination of the proceedings. Howie v. Spittle, 156 N. C. 180, 182, 72 S. E. 207.

Sufficient Compliance.—A condition "to appear and claim the benefit of the act, etc., and not depart without leave," is substantially the same as that prescribed by the act. Mooring v. James, 13 N. C. 254.

Who Prepares Bond.—Whether it is the duty of the officer or the defendant to prepare the bond to be given for the defendant's appearance. Quære? Winslow v. Anderson, 20 N. C. 2.

Return Day Must Be Certain.—The bond for the defendant's appearance, under this section connected with the execution, is in the nature of process to compel an appearance, and the return day thereof must be certain. Winslow v. Anderson, 20 N. C. 2.

Where Date in Bond Erroneous.—Where a bond was conditioned for the defendant's appearance at the next term of court to be held upon a stated day, and, at the next term which sat at a date earlier than that mentioned in the bond, the defendant did not appear, it was error to take a judgment against him and his surety for default since there was no default of appearance according to the bond. Winslow v. Anderson, 20 N. C. 2.

Amount of Bond.—A bond given under this section for the appearance of an insolvent to court, is good if it is for double the original debt, exclusive of interest and costs, and judgment, on motion, may be rendered on it. Williams v. Yarbrough, 13 N. C. 12.

Defendant Cannot Object to Bond.—A defendant who has given bond under this section cannot object to the informality of the bond, and pray a discharge on account thereof. Page v. Winningham, 18 N. C. 113.

Where Ca. Sa. Voidable.—Where a defendant gave bond under the insolvent act, and while he is at large by virtue thereof, he is not entitled to his discharge on account of the fact that the ca. sa. is voidable; nor can he move, under such circumstances, to quash the proceedings on that account. Bryan v. Brooks, 51 N. C. 580.

Defendant Bound to Attend.—The defendant in a ca. sa. bond, given under this section is bound to attend at every term until the cause is finally disposed of. Arrington v. Bass, 14 N. C. 95.

When Condition in Bond Broken.—Where the defendant in the ca. sa. appeared at the return day of the writ, and upon an issue being made up, the cause was continued, and afterwards the defendant made a default; it was held, that the condition of the bond was broken, and the plaintiff entitled to judgment. Mooring v. James, 13 N. C. 254.

§ 23-41. Surety in bond may surrender principal.—The surety in any bond conditioned for the appearance of any person under this chapter may surrender the principal, or such principal may surrender himself, in discharge of the bond, to the sheriff or other officer of any court where such principal is bound to appear, in the manner provided in the chapter entitled Civil Procedure, article Arrest and Bail. (Rev., s. 1937; Code, s. 2963; R. C., c. 59, s. 23; 1793, c. 100, s. 7; 1793, c. 380, s. 1; 1822, c. 1131, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 22; C. S. 1649.)

Cross References.—As to exoneration of bail in arrest and bail, see § 1-433. As to arrest of defendant by bail, see § 1-435. As to surrender of defendant by bail, see § 1-434.

Right of Person Surrendered.—A person who is surrendered in discharge of his bail is entitled to the benefit of this chapter for the relief of insolvent debtors. Smallwood v. Wood, 19 N. C. 356.

Where Surrender to Be Made.—Sureties to a ca. sa. bond taken under this section to protect themselves by a surrender of their principal, must make it in the court to which the ca. sa. is returnable, or to the sheriff of that county; where the writ issues to another county, a surrender to the sheriff of it is a nullity. Mooring v. James, 13 N. C. 254.

Invalid Surrender.—Where a prisoner was brought into open court by his bail, and it was announced, publicly, that he was surrendered, but was unknown to the sheriff, to the plaintiff, and to the plaintiff's counsel, and he was a stranger to all present, except to the bail and the presiding judge, and upon being ordered in custody, he fled from the court-room and escaped, without having been in the custody of the sheriff, it was held that these facts did not amount to a valid surrender. Roundtree v. Waddill, 52 N. C. 309.

Effect of Judgment against Surety.—When the principal obligor in a bond is regularly called at court, and, failing to appear, judgment is rendered against him and his surety, the surety has no right ex debito justicie to come in on a subsequent day of the term and have the judgment set aside, in order to allow him to make a surrender of his principal. Reynolds v. Boyd, 23 N. C. 106.

§ 23-42. Creditor liable for jail fees.—When any debtor is actually confined within the walls of a prison, on an order of arrest in default of bail or otherwise, the jailer must furnish him with necessary food during his confinement, if the prisoner requires it, for which the jailer shall have the same fees as for keeping other prisoners. If the debtor is unable to discharge such fees, the jailer may recover them from the party at whose instance the debtor was confined. And at any time after the arrest, the sheriff or jailer may give notice thereof to the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, and demand security of him for the prison fees that accrue after such notice, and if the plaintiff fails to give such security then the sheriff may discharge the debtor out of custody. (Rev., s. 1938; Code, s. 2965; R. C., c. 69, s. 5; 1773, c. 100, ss. 8, 9; 1821, c. 1103; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 24; C. S. 1650.)

Common Law Provision.—By the common law an imprisoned debtor was obliged to support himself, and, if unable to do so, was dependent upon the humanity of the jailer or of others. Veal v. Flake, 32 N. C. 417, 420.

Effect of Section.—Where a man has been arrested and the issue has been continued from term to term, and his sureties have from time to time surrendered him and the issue has been decided against him and he has been committed to prison in all these cases, at the instance of the creditor, it was held, that under this section the creditor is responsible to the jailer for his fees or allowance for the food furnished to the prisoner during the whole time he was confined in jail. Veal v. Flake, 32 N. C. 417.

Where Prison Bounds Allowed.—When a debtor is committed to prison, and is permitted to take the prison bounds, the jailer is not under any obligation, while he continues in the bounds, to furnish him provisions for his support, nor, of course, can the creditor, at whose suit he is confined, be compelled to reimburse the jailer for any sum so expended. Phillips v. Allen, 35 N. C. 10.

Sheriff Cannot Bring Action.—The action against the creditor for the jail fees of an insolvent debtor, given by this section to the jailer, cannot be maintained by the sheriff as the jailer's principal. Bunting v. McIlhenny, 61 N. C. 579.

§ 23-43. False swearing; penalty.—If any insolvent or imprisoned debtor takes any oath prescribed in this chapter falsely and corruptly, and upon indictment for perjury is convicted thereof, he shall suffer all the pains of perjury, and he shall never after have any of the benefits of this chapter, but may be sued and imprisoned as though he had never been discharged. (Rev., ss. 1940, 3614; Code, s. 2964; R. C., c. 59, s. 25; 1793, c. 100, s. 10; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 23; C. S. 1651.)

Cross Reference.—As to punishment for perjury, see § 14-209.

§ 23-44. Powers of trustees hereunder.—Any trustee appointed under the last four articles of this chapter, as therein contemplated, is hereby declared a trustee of the estate of the debtor, in respect to whose property such trustee is appointed for the benefit of creditors, and is invested from the time of appointment with all the powers and authority, and subject to the control, obligations and responsibilities prescribed by law in relation to personal representatives over the estates of deceased persons; but all debts shall be paid by the trustees pro rata. (Rev., s. 1941; Code, s. 2977; R. C., c. 59, ss. 21, 22; 1773, c. 100, ss. 5, 6; 1827, c. 44; 1830, c. 26, s. 2; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 44; C. S. 1652.)

§ 23-45. Jail bounds.—Any imprisoned debtor may take the benefit of the prison bounds by giving security, as required by law, except as follows:

1. A debtor against whom an issue of fraud is found.

2. Any debtor who, for other cause, is adjudged to be imprisoned until he makes a full and fair disclosure or account of his property. (Rev., s. 1942; Code, s. 2966; R. C., c. 59, s. 27; 1818, c. 964; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 25; C. S. 1653.)

Cross Reference.—As to regulations regarding prison bounds, see § 153-54.

Art. 6. Practice in Insolvency and Certain Other Proceedings.

§ 23-46. Unlawful to solicit claims of creditors in proceedings. — It shall be unlawful for any individual, corporation, or firm or other association of persons, to solicit of any creditor any claim of such creditor in order that such individual, corporation, firm or association may represent such creditor or present or vote such claim, in any bankruptcy or insolvency proceeding, or in any action or proceeding for or growing out of the appointment of a receiver, or in any matter involving an assignment for the benefit of creditors. (1931, c. 208, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to restrictions on appearance for creditor in insolvency proceedings, etc., see § 84-9.

Editor's Note.—See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 348.

§ 23-47. Violation of preceding section a misdemeanor.—Any individual, corporation, or firm or other association of persons violating any provision of § 23-46 shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1931, c. 208, s. 3.)

Art. 7. Bankruptcy of Taxing, etc., Districts, Counties, Cities, Towns and Villages.

§ 23-48. Local units authorized to avail themselves of provisions of bankruptcy law. — With the approval of the local government commission of North Carolina and with the consent of the holders of such percentage or percentages of its indebtedness as may be required by Public Act Number three hundred two of the Seventy-fifth Congress, First Session, entitled "An Act to amend an Act entitled 'An Act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States' approved July first, one thousand eight hundred ninety-eight and Acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto," approved August sixteenth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, as amended, any taxing district, local improvement district, school district, county, city, town or village in the state of North Carolina is authorized to avail itself of the provisions of said act of congress as said act now exists or may be hereafter amended. (1939, c. 203.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 17 N. C. L. Rev. 343.

Chapter 24. Interest.

Sec.

24-1. Legal rate is six per cent.

24-2. Penalty for usury; corporate bonds may be sold below par.

24-3. Time from which interest runs.

24-4. Obligations due guardians to bear compound interest; rate of interest.

Sec.

24-5. Contracts, except penal bonds, and judgments to bear interest; jury to distinguish principal.

24-6. Judgment by default final, clerk ascertains.

24-7. Interest from verdict to judgment added as costs.

§ 24-1. Legal rate is six per cent.—The legal rate of interest shall be six per cent per annum for such time as interest may accrue, and no more. (Rev., s. 1950; Code, s. 3835; 1895, c. 69; 1876-7, c. 91; C. S. 2305.)

Editor's Note.—The distinction between the "legal rate" of interest, and the "lawful rate" of interest, which is maintained in some states, and which appears in some of the older cases of this State, Burwell v. Burgwyn, 100 N. C. 389, 392, 6 S. E. 409, has not been preserved. Legal rate of interest implied the maximum rate at which interest could be charged upon an obligation in the absence of stipulation as to the rate; and a lawful rate of interest implied that rate of interest which could be lawfully stipulated without incurring the penalty of law. The former was six per cent, the latter eight. See Burwell v. Burgwyn, 100 N. C. 389, 392, 6 S. E. 409. This distinction is now abolished; as the maximum rate at which interest may be charged, with or without stipulation of the rate, cannot exceed six per centum per annum, under the provisions of this and the succeeding section.

This section declares the policy of the state with regard to usury. Pinnix v. Maryland Cas. Co., 214 N. C. 760, 767, 200 S. E. 874.

Definition.—Interest is the compensation allowed by law, or fixed by the parties, for the use or forbearance of money, as damages for its detention. Brown v. Hialts, 15 Wall. 177, 185, 21 L. Ed. 128.

Interest is not costs in any sense, and, when allowed, it should be decreed as damages, and be added to the damages awarded. The "Wanata," etc. v. Avery et al., 95 U. S. 600, 615, 24 L. Ed. 461.

Within the Province of Legislature.—It is within the exclusive province of the lawmaking power to prescribe upon what conditions and at what rate interest can be allowed or contracted for, and what shall be a forfeiture of the right to collect it. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 564, 17 S. E. 676.

Where Interest Rate Not Specified.—Where the statute providing for recovery of taxes does not specify the rate of interest to be employed, it is likely that the "legal rate," six per cent per annum, applies. See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 39.

A contract will be declared usurious when it appears that it was the purpose and intent of the lender to charge and receive a greater rate of interest than that allowed by law under this section. Polikoff v. Finance Service Co., 205 N. C. 631, 172 S. E. 356.

Insurance Companies Not Authorized to Charge Interest in Excess of Legal Rate.—Section 58-32 dealing with loans by insurance companies secured by insurance policies does not authorize insurance companies to charge interest in excess of the legal rate prescribed in this section. Cowan v. Security Life, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 18, 188 S. E. 812.

 Applied in Hackney v. Hood, 203 N. C. 486, 166 S. E. 323.

§ 24-2. Penalty for usury; corporate bonds may be sold below par.—The taking, receiving, reserving or charging a greater rate of interest than six per centum per annum, either before or after the interest may accrue, when knowingly done, shall be a forfeiture of the entire interest which the note or other evidence of debt carries with it, or which has been agreed to be paid thereon. And in case a greater rate of interest has been paid, the person or his legal representatives or corporation by whom it has been paid, may recover back twice the amount of interest paid in an action in the nature of action for debt. In any action brought in any court of competent jurisdiction to recover upon any such note or other evidence of debt, it is lawful for the party against whom the action is brought to plead as a counterclaim the penalty above provided for, to wit, twice the amount of interest paid as aforesaid, and also the forfeiture of the entire interest. Nothing contained in this section or in § 24-1, however, shall be held or construed to prohibit private corporations from paying a commission on or for the sale of their coupon bonds, nor from selling such bonds for less than the par value thereof. (Rev., s. 1951; Code, s. 3836; 1895, c. 69; 1903, c. 154; 1876-7, c. 91; C. S. 2306.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Editor's Note.—The former statute (Rev. Code, ch. 114; Rev. Stat., ch. 117) denounced a usurious contract as void as to the whole debt, principal and interest. This section, it will be noted, makes it void, not as to principal, but as to the interest only. Pinnix v. Maryland Cas. Co., 214 N. C. 760, 766, 200 S. E. 874.

See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 279, for note in reference to this section.

At Common Law and in This Country.—At common law the taking of any interest was an indictable offense (11 Am. & Eng. Enc., 379); hence, interest is now purely statutory, being chargeable in such cases and to such extent only as is expressly allowed by statute. The penalties for usury were formerly much severer in this State, and are still so in some other jurisdictions, notably in New York, where in certain cases the charging of interest above six per cent has been recently made indictable. The entire subject of the rate of interest and penalties for usury rests in legislative discretion, and the courts have no power other than to interpret and execute the legislative will. Smith v. Building, etc., Association, 119 N. C. 249, 255, 26 S. E. 41.

Effect of Usury Formerly and Now.—By the former law, the taint of usury made the contract void both as to principal and interest into whose hands it might come, and so likewise any appearance, shift or device whereupon or whereby an illegal rate of interest was received or taken was declared to be void. By the preceding section six per cent. is fixed as the legal rate of interest, and in case more than the rate allowed is taken, received, reserved, or charged, the contract is not invalidated as to the principal, but the entire interest carried by the note or other evidence of debt, or otherwise agreed to be paid thereon, is, under this section, forfeited; and in case such greater rate has been paid, a remedy is given to the party paying the same to recover by action of debt twice the amount of the interest paid. Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531, 532.

The forfeiture provided by this section will be enforced against the usurer, when he seeks to recover upon the usurious contract or transaction. His debt will be stripped of all its interest-bearing quality, and he will be permitted to recover only the principal sum loaned. If a sum in excess of interest at the legal rate has not only been charged by the lender, but has also been paid by the borrower for the use of money, then the person, or his legal representative, or the corporation by whom the same has been paid, may recover twice the amount paid in an action in the nature of action for debt. Sloan v. Ins. Co., 189 N. C. 690, 128 S. E. 2; Waters v. Garriss, 188 N. C. 305, 124 S. E. 334; Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 425, 137 S. E. 156.

In Moore v. Beaman, 111 N. C. 328, 332, 16 S. E. 177, it was said that the provisions of the law forbidding usury are very clear and explicit. No one can possibly misunderstand them. If moved by avarice a party deliberately violates this law, he has no ground to complain that his punishment has been in the very respect which caused him to sin, and that in grasping after illegitimate interest he has lost also the legitimate interest which the law would have given a law-abiding citizen.

A note otherwise valid is not rendered void either as to principal or interest by the taint of usury, but is subject only to the penalties and forfeitures of this section, one of which is the forfeiture of all interest when usury is properly pleaded and proven. Pinnix v. Maryland Cas. Co., 214 N. C. 760, 200 S. E. 874, overruling in this respect, Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 18 S. E. 695, 24 L. R. A. 280; Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 137 S. E. 156, approving Ector v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388, 13 A. L. R. 1207.

Our statute is copied from the national banking act, and has gone into the laws of many states in exactly the same form. Pinnix v. Maryland Cas. Co., 214 N. C. 760, 765, 200 S. E. 874.

The usury statute will be strictly construed, and usury must be pleaded. Dixon v. Smith, 204 N. C. 480, 168 S. E. 683.

Purpose of Statute—Distinction between the New and the Old Statute.—Both the former and the present statutes were enacted in restraint of excessive interest for the same general policy, and especially on the idea of protecting the borrower against the oppression of the lender, the chief difference being that a violation under the old statute invalidated the contract, working a forfeiture of the sum lent as well as of the interest, whereas the present law leaves the contract valid for the principal, but makes the interest forfeitable. Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531, 533.

Created for the Benefit of Borrower.—Statutes prohibiting charging usury or an illegal rate of interest are enacted for the benefit of the borrower. Ector v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388.

Duty of Court to Carry out Legislative Intent.—The forfeiture of the entire unpaid interest and recovery back of twice the interest paid is in the nature of a penalty intended to induce an observance of the statute, and it is the duty of the courts so to expound and apply the law as to carry out the legislative intent. Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531, 533.

Enforceability in the Absence of Penalty.—Even in the absence of a penalty on charging usurious interest, such as contained in this section, a rate of interest above the one prescribed by law would not be enforceable. Hughes v. Boones, 102 N. C. 137, 9 S. E. 286.

Four Requisites of Usurious Transaction.—In order to constitute a usurious transaction, four requisites must appear: (1) there must be a loan, express or implied; (2) there must be an understanding between the parties that the money lent shall be returned; (3) that for such loan a greater rate of interest than is allowed by law shall be paid or agreed to be paid, as the case may be; and (4) there must exist a corrupt intent to take more than the legal rate for the use of the money loaned. * * * A profit greater than the lawful rate of interest, intentionally exacted as a bonus for the loan of money, imposed upon the necessities of the borrower in a transaction where the treaty is for a loan and the money is to be returned at all events, is a violation of the usury laws, it matters not what form or disguise it may assume. Doster v. English, 152 N. C. 339, 341, 67 S. E. 754, approved in Monk v. Goldstein, 172

N. C. 516, 519, 90 S. E. 519; Loan, etc., Co. v. Yokley, 174 N. C. 573, 575, 94 S. E. 102; Ector v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388.

Forbearance of Indebtedness or Loan of Money Essential.—It is universally held that in order that a transaction shall fall within the prohibition of the statutes against usury it is essential that there should be a contract for the forbearance of an existing indebtedness or a loan of money. Struthers v. Drexel, 122 U. S. 487, 7 S. Ct. 1293, 30 L. Ed. 1216. See 29 Am. and Eng. Enc., p. 464, sec. 4, and note 5, where a large number of cases are cited in support of the text. There is no exception to this universal rule, that there must be an extension of credit and an illegal compensation for it, knowingly taken, in order to constitute usury. This is recognized in the earliest cases on the subject up to the present time. Smithwick v. Whitley, 152 N. C. 366, 367, 67 S. E. 914.

Intent to Charge Usurious Interest.—Where the lender of money intentionally charges the borrower a greater rate of interest than the law allows, and his purpose stands clearly revealed on the face of the instrument, a corrupt intent to violate the usury law on the part of the lender is shown. Riley v. Sears, 154 N. C. 509, 70 S. E. 997.

Effect of Charging and Collecting Usury.—Where a usurious rate of interest on money has been paid by the borrower of money, the statutory penalty is double the amount of the usury, but where it is only charged, and not collected, the statute eliminates the usury and forfeits the interest on the amount of the loan. Ragan v. Stephens, 178 N. C. 101, 100 S. E. 196.

Where Person Is Not Entitled to Statutory Penalty.—Where a debtor seeks the aid of a court of equity on the ground that his debt is tainted with usury, he may have the usurious element, if any, eliminated from his debt only upon his paying the principal of his debt, with interest at the legal rate. In such case he is not entitled to the benefit of the statutory penalties for usury. Smith v. Bryant, 209 N. C. 213, 215, 183 S. E. 276.

And where there is no evidence that any holder of the note executed by plaintiffs has charged or received interest thereon in excess of six per cent, in an action on the note plaintiffs may not invoke the forfeiture of interest for usury. Id.

And where the creditors of the mortgagor seek to enjoin the foreclosure of a deed of trust on their creditor's property, and pray for an accounting to ascertain the amount of the debt upon allegations that usurious interest was charged thereon, upon sale of the property under orders of the court, the mortgagee is entitled to the principal amount of his debt, plus six per cent interest thereon, since the plaintiffs, seeking equitable relief, must do equity, and the mortgagee is entitled to the amount of the debt, plus the legal interest, unaffected by the forfeiture or penalty for usury. Kenny Co. v. Hinton Hotel Co., 208 N. C. 295, 180 S. E. 697.

The statutory penalty for usury may not be recovered against the payee of notes secured by deed of trust upon evidence showing that a certain sum was paid the trustee in the deed of trust, but not paid to or received by the payee of the notes. Hunter v. McClung Realty Co., 210 N. C. 91, 185 S. E. 461.

Insurance Companies Subject to Penalty.—An insurance company which charges, retains, or receives interest on a loan made by it in this State, to a policyholder or other person, at a rate in excess of six per centum per annum, is subject to the penalties prescribed by this section notwithstanding the provisions of § 58-32 as to the premiums paid on policies. Cowan v. Security Life, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 18, 22, 188 S. E. 812.

Payment Necessary for Recovery—Payment by Renewal of Note.—Before the plaintiff can maintain the action he must pay the usury in money or money's worth. It is well settled that the penalty is not incurred by the charging of usurious interest; it is by taking the usury that the party incurs the penalty, and no action lies therefor until it is paid. Godfrey v. Leigh, 28 N. C. 390; Stedman v. Bland, 26 N. C. 296; Rushing v. Bivens, 132 N. C. 273, 43 S. E. 798. A renewal of the note does not constitute such payment of the original debt. Ragan v. Stephens, 178 N. C. 101, 100 S. E. 196.

Recovery after Payment—Former Rule.—Formerly, the debtor although he could defeat the claim of the creditor to recover usurious interest, he could not, after having paid it, recover it back. Merchant Bank v. Luterloh, 81 N. C. 143, 149. But this doctrine is now changed by the express terms of this section.

See also, Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 495, 18 S. E. 717.

Recovery of Double the Entire Interest.—Under the clear terms of this section the plaintiff is entitled to recover back double the entire interest paid, not merely double the usurious excess. Taylor v. Parker, 137 N. C. 418, 419, 49 S. E. 921.

Waiver.—The borrower may waive his rights under this section. Ector v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388.

Same—Consent Judgment.—By consent judgment entered in an action upon a note, wherein usury was set up by the defendant, and the parties have agreed upon a compromise in a certain sum, signed and entered by the court, the defendant waives his right under our usury law, and may not thereafter maintain the defense that a note he had given the plaintiff, in the amount of the judgment, was tainted with the usury of the first transaction. Ector v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388.

Entire Interest Declared a Forfeiture.—The statute makes the "taking, receiving, reserving or charging usury," when knowingly done, i.e., intentionally done, and not by a mere error of calculation, a forfeiture (not merely forfeitable) of the entire interest which the note carries with it, or which has been agreed to be paid thereon. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 494, 18 S. E. 717.

All interest is forfeited when usury is knowingly exacted. Guaranty Bond, etc., Co. v. Fair Promise A. M. E. Zion Church, 219 N. C. 395, 14 S. E. (2d) 37.

Mere Entry Does Not Constitute Charging.—The mere entry on account and subsequent presentation of a usurious claim is not a "charging" within the meaning of that statute. Grant v. Morris & Sons, 81 N. C. 150.

Recovery of Penalty Where Plaintiff in Pari Delicto.—A borrower who has paid usurious interest may, under this section recover of the lender twice the amount of usurious interest so paid, notwithstanding that he is in pari delicto in the transaction. Hollowell v. Building, etc., Association, 120 N. C. 286, 26 S. E. 781.

Overpayment by Mistake.—In an action to recover for overpayment of interest, made by mistake, recovery can not be had for the forfeiture of double the interest as a penalty for usury, since, upon the allegation of such overpayment by mistake, no legal implications arise that the plaintiff is suing for the forfeiture. Gillam v. Life Insurance Company, 121 N. C. 369, 28 S. E. 470.

Usurious Interest Accused upon Bonds Other Than the One Sued upon.—In an action of claim and delivery for certain property conveyed by a chattel mortgage, the defendant can set up the defense of usury upon the allegation that the sole consideration of the bond secured by the mortgage was usurious interest, which had accrued upon certain other bonds executed by the defendant to the plaintiff. Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531.

Promise of Interest Void—Note Valid.—A note executed and delivered as evidence of the promise of the maker to pay to the payee or his order a sum of money which has been loaned by the payee to the maker, is not void, although the payee has, knowingly, taken, received, reserved, or charged interest on the note at a greater rate than six per cent per annum, which is the legal rate in this State; only the promise, in such case, to pay interest is void. Federal Reserve Bank v. Jones, 205 N. C. 648, 650, 172 S. E. 185.

Identity with Provisions of National Bank Act.—Our penalties for usury are identical with those prescribed in the National Bank Act, U. S. Rev. St., sec. 5198. Smith v. Building and Loan Association, 119 N. C. 249, 255, 26 S. E. 41.

Effect of Repeal of Old Law.—A contract absolutely void under the old law for being usurious, is not validated by the repeal of that law and the enactment of this section which does not invalidate the principal of a usurious contract. Pond v. Horne, 65 N. C. 84.

Cited in Bundy v. Commercial Credit Company, 198 N. C. 339, 341, 151 S. E. 626; McNeill v. Suggs, 199 N. C. 477, 154 S. E. 729; Fletcher v. Parlier, 206 N. C. 904, 905, 173 S. E. 343.

II. SUBSTANCE CONTROLS NATURE OF TRANSACTION.

A. The General Doctrine.

Form of Transaction Cannot Conceal Its Usurious Nature.—An express or implied loan, upon the understanding that the money shall be returned at a greater interest rate than the statute allows, whatever the form of the transaction, and with corrupt intent on the part of the lender, is usury under this section, the corrupt intent consisting in "taking, receiving, reserving, or charging" a greater rate than that allowed by law. Loan & Trust Co. v. Yokley, 174 N. C. 573, 94 S. E. 102.

Where a transaction is in reality a loan of money, whatever may be its form, and the lender charges for the use of his money a sum in excess of interest at the legal rate, by whatever name the charge may be called, the transaction will be held to be usurious. The law considers the substance and not the mere form or outward appearance of the transaction in order to determine what it in reality is. If this were not so, the usury laws of the State would easily be evaded by lenders of money who would exact from borrowers with impunity compensation for money loaned in excess of interest at the legal rate. Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 424, 137 S. E. 156.

The courts do not hesitate to look beneath the forms of transactions alleged to be usurious in order to determine whether or not such transactions are in truth and in reality usurious. In Bank v. Wysong, 177 N. C. 380, 99 S. E. 199, Justice Walker, speaking of a transaction alleged to be usurious, says: "This kind of usurious agreement has been cast in various forms, but the courts have invariably stripped it of its flimsy disguises, and decided according to its substance, and its tendency and effect, when the purpose and intent of the lender is unmistakable." Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 424, 137 S. E. 156.

Where there is negotiation for a loan of money, and the borrower agrees to return the amount advanced at all events, it is a contract of lending; and however the transaction may be shaped or disguised, if a profit or return beyond the legal rate of interest is intended to be made out of the necessities or improvidence of the borrower, or otherwise, the contract is usurious. McRackan v. Bank, 164 N. C. 24, 26, 80 S. E. 184; Loan Co. v. Yokley, 174 N. C. 573, 576, 94 S. E. 102.

The nature and terms of the contract determine its character and purpose, and if usurious in itself it must be so understood to have been intended by the parties, and they cannot be heard to the contrary. So the parties to a contract usurious upon its face, understandingly entered into, must be deemed to have intended to provide for the payment of a rate of interest in excess of that allowed by law, and that is itself a usurious contract. Burwell v. Burgwyn, 100 N. C. 389, 392, 6 S. E. 409.

In construing a transaction with regard to our usury statutes the courts will look to its substance and not to its form. Pratt v. Mortgage Company, 196 N. C. 294, 145 S. E. 396.

B. Specific Instances.

Between Bank and Its Customer.—Where the bank has followed an arrangement made by its depositor that the latter keep a certain per cent. of the money borrowed upon his own paper and paper of its customers upon which he remains responsible, and which is good and collectible by the bank without trouble to it, and thus collects on the series of transactions a rate of interest in excess of the legal rate, the interest thus received is usurious and comes within the intent and meaning of the statute forbidding it. English Lumber Co. v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 179 N. C. 211, 102 S. E. 205.

Where an association charges a stockholder certain fines under § 54-15, such fines cannot be alleged as interest paid on the loan from the corporation. Moore v. Mutual Building, etc., Ass'n, 203 N. C. 592, 166 S. E. 597.

Sum Deducted Must Be Reserved as Interest.—Where the borrower executed notes for the principal sum borrowed and notes for the interest on the principal notes from the time of their execution until their respective maturities, and the lender paid the borrower the principal sum borrowed less an amount deducted and retained by the lender, in the absence of an agreed fact or a finding by the court that the sum deducted was reserved by the lender as interest, the transaction did not constitute usury, and therefore the notes were not tainted with usury in the hands of the purchaser. Ray v. Atlantic Life Ins. Co., 207 N. C. 654, 178 S. E. 89.

Conditional Sale.—An action to recover alleged usurious interest paid cannot be maintained upon evidence disclosing that the transaction alleged was not a loan but was a sale with deferred payment secured by conditional sale contract. Hendrix v. Harry's Cadillac Co., 220 N. C. 84, 16 S. E. (2d) 456.

Loan by Finance Corporation for Purchase of Automobiles.—Where a finance corporation loans money for the purchase of automobiles sold in this State to be paid for at a greater rate of interest than six per cent., the transaction is a usurious one coming within the inhibition of our statute and the penalty it imposes, though the contract is couched in the language of bargain and sale in order to evade our usury law. Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 137 S. E. 156.

A junior mortgagee enjoining the sale under a senior lien, is entitled to have the senior debt stripped of usury and the amount of the debt ascertained at the amount advanced plus interest thereon at the legal rate of six per cent, this being the relief to which the mortgagor would be entitled, and equity requiring that the same rule should be applicable to the junior lienor. Pinnix v. Maryland Cas. Co., 214 N. C. 760, 200 S. E. 874.

Name of Charge Immaterial.—Any charges made by a building and loan association against a borrowing member, in excess of the legal rate of interest, whether such charges are called "fines," "dues" or "interest," are usurious. Hollowell v. Building, etc., Association, 120 N. C. 286, 26 S. E. 781.

Stipulation That Laws of Another State Should Apply.—Where the court finds that the stipulation in a contract that the laws of another state should apply was made in bad faith for the purpose of evading the usury laws of this State, and that defendant charged and received payment of usurious interest, the findings are sufficient to support a judgment in plaintiff's favor that he recover of defendant twice the amount of usurious interest paid as determined by this section. Polikoff v. Finance Service Co., 205 N. C. 631, 172 S. E. 356.

Usury in Fact Made Payable in This State.—Where in fact a contract for the payment of usurious interest, in violation of section 24-1 was made payable in this State, the fact that it appeared from the face of the contract that it was payable in another state, does not relieve it of its usurious charge of interest contrary to the statute of this State. Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 137 S. E. 156.

Building and Loan Associations.—See section 54-22 and notes thereto.

Sum Paid to Trust Company Held to Be a Reasonable Brokerage Fee.—$2,600 paid to a trust company for its services in handling ninety $1,000 bonds bearing interest at the legal rate was held not to constitute usury, but a reasonable brokerage fee. McCubbins v. Virginia Trust Co., 80 F. (2d) 984.

III. EQUITABLE DOCTRINES AS AFFECTING RIGHTS OF PARTIES.

A. Summary of Law and Conclusions.

Editor's Note.—The operation of the equitable doctrines whose primary purpose is to attenuate the hardships of technical rules of law, among which doctrines the relief granted by the equity courts against the enforcements of forfeitures occupies a foremost ground, and the effect upon the prevailing usury laws of the changes made in the essence of this section, have created no little diversity of opinion as to the determination of the rights of parties to a usurious transaction in proceedings of equitable nature.

The legal situation may be presented from two different angles: (a) where the lender seeks to enforce the usurious contract in an equitable proceeding, as where he seeks to foreclose a mortgage, (1) under the former law which made both the principal and the interest of a usurious transaction absolutely void, (2) under the present law, which declares only the interest void; (b) where the borrower seeks the aid of the court in the nature of an equitable interposition, as where he seeks to prevent the foreclosure of a usurious mortgage, (1) under the former law, (2) under the present law.

Under situation (a), (1) the cases are uniform that the lender can enforce neither the principal nor the interest of his usurious claim. McBrayer v. Roberts, 17 N. C. 75. This it is believed, on the ground that the law invalidating the principal and the interest of a usurious transaction is a positive statutory law which takes precedence over the equitable doctrine of relief against forfeitures, and also on the ground that a court of equity will not give its aid to a person who has exacted an unconscionable usurious bargain.

Situation (a), (2), also presents no difficulty. Here, as in the preceding situation, the court in equitable proceedings follows the exact terms of the statute, and allows the lender the recovery of his principal and disallows that of his interest.

Situation (b) is the one which presents the most difficulty. Under situation (b), (1), the court affected by the established equitable maxim that "he who seeks equity must do equity" declared that a borrower as a condition to the grant to him of equitable relief, must pay not only the principal but also the legal rate of interest thus saving harmless the lender from the terms of a positive statutory penalty. This conclusion has also been reached by many cases under the present law, with the result of abrogating a statutory rule which in no ambiguous terms declares the entire interest void and forfeited, by the operation of a mere equitable maxim. And this is the law in this state at the present. Miller v. Dunn, 183 N. C. 397, 124 S. E. 746, being the latest judicial utterance upon the subject. The justification of the holding seems to lie in the fact that the remedy to recover under this section is an independent action at law. It is submitted, (1) that the whole spirit of code procedure is to prevent unnecessary delays, and a circuitry of action to which the doctrine of the case would lead would frustrate that spirit; (2) that an equitable maxim cannot supersede a statutory rule which, in unequivocal terms, declares that the debtor shall not be compelled to pay any interest when usury has been exacted. These conclusions are supported by adjudicated cases, see Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 564, 17 S. E. 676; Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 18 S. E. 717; and seem sound upon principle and policy.

Under the following headline will appear the state of authorities upon the subject, which will exemplify the classification of situations presented above, and will indicate the diversity of opinions which the court has entertained upon the point at different times.

B. Exposition of Authorities.

Lender Precluded Even in Equity.—A court of equity is bound by the statute of usury, and, although upon the bill of the borrower, aid will be extended only upon the terms of his repaying the sum lent with interest, yet the lender can have no relief whatever, and his bill to foreclose a usurious mortgage will be dismissed. McBrayer v. Roberts, 17 N. C. 75.

Same—Borrower in Equity.—When the borrower comes in equity, he will be made to do equity, by paying the sum borrowed and the lawful interest, as the price of assistance. But when the lender asks aid of equity, he must ask it on a contract not tainted by an unlawful and corrupt ingredient. McBrayer v. Roberts, 17 N. C. 75, 77.

One who goes into a court of equity to seek relief from a usurious contract, will be required to pay legal interest. Cook v. Patterson, 103 N. C. 127, 9 S. E. 402.

It is well settled that the penalty for usury, provided for in this section, is not applicable in injunction proceedings—equitable in nature, the principle being that he who seeks equity must do equity. Jonas v. Home Mtg. Co., 205 N. C. 89, 92, 170 S. E. 127, citing Waters v. Garriss, 188 N. C. 305, 308, 124 S. E. 334.

Where in a legal action the defendant, a borrower of money, seeks an equitable relief and alleges usury, it is required that he pay the principal sum due with the legal rate of interest, the only forfeiture which he can enforce being the interest in excess of the legal interest rate. North Carolina Mtg. Corp. v. Wilson, 205 N. C. 493, 171 S. E. 783.

Equitable Principle Not Applicable in Legal Proceedings.—The principle that a court of equity will eliminate an usurious rate of interest from the debt when the suit is brought by the debtor for the penalty, upon his paying the principal sum and the legal rate of interest, does not apply to an action at law involving no equitable principle. Cuthbertson v. Bank, 170 N. C. 531, 87 S. E. 333; Cheek v. Iron Belt Building, etc., Association, 127 N. C. 121, 37 S. E. 150.

The principle of equity that a debtor, seeking the aid of a court of equity, will have the usurious element eliminated from his debt only upon his paying the principal and legal rate of interest, the only forfeiture enforced against the creditor being the excess of the legal rate (Churchill v. Turnage, 122 N. C. 426, 30 S. E. 122; Owens v. Wright, 161 N. C. 127, 76 S. E. 735; Simonton v. Lanier, 71 N. C. 498), such as in a case to enjoin the foreclosure of a mortgage or to grant other equitable relief, does not apply when the plaintiff is seeking legal relief. Cuthbertson v. Peoples Bank, 170 N. C. 531, 332, 87 S. E. 333.

Tender and Payment of Correct Interest.—Upon the principle that "he who seeks equity must do equity," the plaintiff in his suit to enjoin the foreclosure of a mortgage upon the ground of usury, must tender the correct amount of the mortgage debt with the legal rate of interest thereon, the remedy to recover under the usury statute being an independent action at law. Miller v. Dunn, 188 N. C. 397, 124 S. E. 746.

Where the plaintiff seeks injunctive relief from the foreclosure of a mortgage on his lands on the ground of usury, his remedy being by an action at law under this section, he must, under the rules of equity, offer to repay the principal sum due and the legal rate of interest thereon, under the equitable principle that "he who asks equity must do equity," and he may not resist the foreclosure of the mortgage on the sole ground that he has been charged a usurious rate of interest, contrary to the provisions of the statute on the subject. Waters v. Garriss, 188 N. C. 305, 124 S. E. 334.

A junior mortgagee seeking equitable relief against foreclosure of a senior mortgage because of usury should be required to tender, or at least, offer to pay the principal sum due, with legal interest thereon at six per cent. Pinnix v. Maryland Cas. Co., 214 N. C. 760, 770, 200 S. E. 874.

Equitable Maxim Can Not Change the Statutory Rule.—It is entirely immaterial whether the plaintiff creditor has sought his relief by a proceeding which formerly would have been termed a suit in equity or an action at law. The distinction between these modes of procedure is expressly abolished. The plaintiff can not, by skillfully selecting one prayer for relief instead of another, avoid the penalty which the law imposes upon the transaction, which is the basis of his action. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 560, 17 S. E. 676.

There are some authorities to the effect that when the debtor brings the action and invokes the equitable jurisdiction of the court, as by an injunction to prevent a sale under a mortgage, the court will only grant relief upon payment of the principal with legal interest. This is put upon the principle "who asks equity must do equity," but the principle "he who asks equity must do equity," has no application to a case where the right is conferred by statute, that the debtor shall be compelled to pay no interest when usury has been contracted for. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 565, 17 S. E. 676.

Under the usury act in force up to 1866 whenever usury was reserved the entire contract was void, and neither principal nor interest could be recovered. Ehringhaus v. Ford, 25 N. C. 522. In Ballinger v. Edwards, 39 N. C. 449, this was construed to apply only on the law side of the docket, and when the debtor had to seek the aid of a court of equity he was compelled to pay the principal with legal interest. This section, while reducing the penalty to the loss of interest, seems to have expressly intended to change the doctrine laid down in Ballinger v. Edwards. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 565, 17 S. E. 676.

An usurious contract is regarded by the settled law of every court as an oppression, practiced or attempted by the lender upon the borrower. A court of equity can not therefore be invoked to aid such a contract in whole or in part, or to redress the oppressor, because the meditated injury has, by the artifice of the intended victim, been made to recoil upon himself. Oppression can not demand help even against fraud. The court is not at liberty to array its imagined wisdom against the legislative will, or to defeat public policy by a recourse to the code of honor or morality. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 565, 17 S. E. 676.

That this section may work a hardship in any case gives the courts no authority to disregard the statute or explain it away. When the Legislature has constitutional authority to make the statute and its meaning is plain, with no limitation making it apply only when the action is brought by the creditor, the courts have not the power to restrict it. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 565, 17 S. E. 676.

There is no exception in the statute, and, equity as a separate jurisdiction being abolished, there is no ground upon which the court can interpolate any exception. Indeed, it will be a virtual repeal of the usury law if a creditor, by dexterously securing himself by a mortgage with power of sale, can secure himself against the "forfeiture of all interest" which the statute law visits, without exception, upon every "note or other evidence of debt" which is in any way tainted with usury. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 18 S. E. 717; Smith v. Bldg., etc., Assn., 119 N. C. 249, 253, 26 S. E. 41. It would be an anomaly under this statute for the court to rule that the debtor must pay the principal debt, "with interest," when the statute provides that, if he does, the debtor can immediately sue to "recover back double the interest so paid." Roberts v. Ins. Co., 118 N. C. 429, 24 S. E. 780. Churchill v. Turnage, 122 N. C. 426, 432, 30 S. E. 122.

Where the payee withholds from the borrower a part of the face amount of the note, the same being a device to evade the usury laws, the borrower is entitled in equity to have the note credited with the amount so withheld upon the maturity of the note as against the payee under this section. Federal Reserve Bank v. Jones, 205 N. C. 648, 172 S. E. 185.

IV. RIGHTS OF SUBSEQUENT PURCHASERS.

A. Summary of Law.

Editor's Note.—In this connection two important principles of law clash in the determination of the rights of the bona fide subsequent purchasers for value without notice of a negotiable instrument. The criterion of negotiability of an instrument presupposes that it shall be transferable free from all defenses which may exist between the original parties to the instrument, and is adhered to upon the consideration of promoting mediums of credit, commerce and industry. On the other hand public policy demands that debtors should enjoy full immunity from the imposition of usurious transactions. Should the doctrine of negotiability prevail, that policy and the statute by which it is given expression would be frustrated by a transfer of the obligation to a holder in due course. To this end the impregnability of the incidents of negotiability have been lenified by an exception to the effect that where the evidence of obligation is void in itself or is made so by statute, the defenses which are available against the payee are also available against the holder. And since both the principal and the interest of a usurious obligation were rendered void in this State by the express terms of the former statute, the case presented no difficulty, and the judicial decisions invariably declared that the holder in due course was in no better position than the payee of the obligation, and that his recourse was against the usurious lender. See Faison v. Grandy & Sons, 126 N. C. 827, 829, 36 S. E. 276; Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 492, 18 S. E. 717.

Since the establishment of the rule that usury does not render void the principal of the obligation but merely avoids the interest, there has been some question as to the applicability of the old rule to the new situation. See the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Burwell, in Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 496, 18 S. E. 717. But the holding of the cases, as will be illustrated by the succeeding citations, have been decidedly uniform in declaring that the statute makes void the entire interest, and hence the transferee of the instrument can recover only that which his transferor (the lender) could have recovered, viz., the principal without the interest.

B. Exposition of Authorities.

Holder in Due Course Occupies No Better Position than the Lender.—As to usurious contracts, the law regards the maker, not as in pari delicto, but as acting "in chains" (1 Story Eq. Juris., sec. 302), and to permit his contract, which is deemed exacted under duress, to come under the general rule in favor of innocent holders for value of commercial paper, would be to nullify the protecting statute. The recourse of the holder is against the payee and endorser, who is more likely by far to be able to respond than the maker. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 494, 18 S. E. 717.

Prior to this section, a usurious contract worked a forfeiture of both the interest and the debt, and it was stated in Coor v. Spicer, 65 N. C. 401, that under the operation of such a statute, innocent and meritorious holders were obliged to suffer. Faison v. Grandy & Sons, 126 N. C. 827, 829, 36 S. E. 276.

A note tainted with usury retains the taint in the hands of a subsequent holder. The forfeiture of interest is the decree of the law. Faison v. Grandy, 126 N. C. 827, 36 S. E. 276.

In Glenn v. Farmer's Bank, 70 N. C. 191, 205, Rodman, J., says: "It is admitted law that notes vitiated by an usurious or gaming consideration can not be enforced in the most innocent hands, but are always and under all circumstances void." Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 492, 18 S. E. 717.

Same—Contrary Rule Would Render Statute Nugatory—Remedy of Holder against Lender.—If, by passing the note off before maturity and for value, the endorsee may recover on it, the statute is useless, as the protection intended and the penalty and prohibition are alike rendered nugatory. The victim would have no recourse but to suffer in silence. The usury would be collected in spite of the law which had declared the "entire interest forfeited" ab initio, by the fact of "charging or reserving" it. On the other hand, the innocent endorsee has his recourse against the payee who has endorsed the note to him (Daniel on Neg. Inst., sec. 807), a recourse which would more surely protect him, being against the party who has money to loan, not to borrow. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 493, 18 S. E. 717.

Same—Principle as Applied to Mortgage Obligations.—The only case that seems to mitigate against the otherwise uniform tenor of the decisions on this subject is Coor v. Spicer, 65 N. C. 401, which holds that a mortgage given to secure a usurious bond might be enforced in the hands of an innocent purchaser for value. The case recognizes the general rule, but takes mortgages out of it upon the supposed wording of sec. 39-20. Aside from the fact that this is held expressly otherwise in the later case of Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531, an examination of sec. 39-20 will show that Coor v. Spicer, was a palpable inad-vertence. That statute in fact does not purport to protect the innocent holder of a mortgage note which is tainted with usury but the "purchaser of the estate or property" at sale under the mortgage, who buys without notice of the usurious taint in the debt secured. It would be a fraud for the mortgagor to stand by and let him purchase without giving him notice, but the maker can give no notice usually to the assignee of the note. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 493, 18 S. E. 717.

"Shall Be a Forfeiture" Construed.—The Supreme Court has expressly held that the words, "shall be a forfeiture," in this section makes void the agreement as to interest. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 491, 18 S. E. 717.

But see the dissenting opinion of Judge Burwell, in Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 496, 18 S. E. 717, to the effect that the statute does not render the usurious interest void so as to prevent an innocent purchaser of the obligation from recovering from the obligor the interest at the legal rate.

V. USURY LAWS AS AFFECTING CORPORATIONS.

Corporation Embraced within Usury Laws.—In the absence of special legislation, corporations are embraced in the usury laws just as natural persons are, and there is no special legislation affecting this point. Commissioners v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 77 N. C. 289, 292.

Same—Conflict of Laws.—The statute of the State of New York, forbidding corporations to plead usury as a defense, can not govern a corporation of this State sued in this State, although the bonds in question were delivered in New York and made payable there. Commissioners v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 77 N. C. 289.

Where such bonds express a rate of interest illegal in this State, and also in New York, and were issued in payment of a precedent debt and secured by a mortgage on the corporation's property, they could legally bear no greater rate of interest than that allowed in this State. Commissioners v. Atlantic and N. C. R. R. Co., 77 N. C. 289.

Same—Exception.—In Commissioners v. Atlantic, etc., Co., 77 N. C. 289, it was held that a corporation can not legally sell its bonds, bearing the highest legal rate of interest, at a discount for the purpose of borrowing money. Such a sale is in effect a loan, and is usurious. Ed. Note.—But the doctrine of this case is abrogated by the latter part of this section which allows such a course.

Provisions of Corporate Charter Construed.—In Simonton v. Lanier, 71 N. C. 498, 502, the plaintiff contended that the following language in his alleged act of incorporation, "May discount notes and other evidences of debt, and lend money upon such terms and rates of interest as may be agreed upon," confers the right to exact the rate of interest here agreed upon, although greater than the legal rate. It was held that the statute nowhere confers an express power to exceed the legal rate of interest and that the operative words, "any rate of interest that may be agreed on," mean any rate of interest not greater than the legal rate.

Building and Loan Associations.—See section 54-22 and notes thereto.

VI. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

Definiteness of Allegations.—In an action brought to recover money alleged to be due on a contract entered into between the parties, wherein the plea of usury is set up in the answer and a recovery is sought under this section for double the amount of the interest paid, the recovery sought is in the nature of a penalty; and when the facts are known or readily obtainable the law requires a definite statement in the pleading as to the time and amount, before allegations in such action are held to be sufficient, and when such statement is not made no amendment to the pleadings should be allowed. Riley v. Sears, 154 N. C. 509, 70 S. E. 997.

Borrower May Use Lender as Witness.—To the end that the defense may be ample and complete, if the borrower in his discretion should resort to his remedy under this section he is authorized to examine the lender as a witness. Merchants Bank of Fayetteville v. Lutterloh, 81 N. C. 143, 148.

Statute of Limitations.—An action to recover the penalty for usury, under this section, is barred after the lapse of two years from the accrual of the cause of action in the absence of disability or nonresidence affecting the running of the statute. Smith v. Finance Co., 207 N. C. 367, 177 S. E. 183.

Same—Nonresident Creditor.—An action against a non-resident creditor for the statutory penalty for charging usury, who has no agent here upon whom process may be served, is not barred by the statute of limitations, nor does the fact in this case that one of the plaintiffs is a nonresident and the other has changed his residence affect the matter. Cuthberton v. Peoples Bank, 170 N. C. 531, 87 S. E. 333.

Statute of Limitations a Part of Plaintiff's Case.—Under sec. 1-53, a period of two years is allowed for the exercise of the right of the plaintiff to recover usurious interest paid by him; and under that provision it was held that it was a part of the plaintiff's right to allege and prove that the usury was paid within two years, and that the defendant need not specially plead the limitations as in the case of the ordinary statute of limitation. See Roberts v. Insurance Co., 118 N. C. 429, 24 S. E. 780; Rogers v. Bank, 108 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 245.

When Counterclaim Available.—While a counterclaim for usury may be set up in an action on a note under this section, such counterclaim may not be set up in an action in ejectment based on title to the property under foreclosure of the deed of trust securing the note. North Carolina Mtg. Corp. v. Wilson, 205 N. C. 493, 171 S. E. 783.

Usury Question of Law When Facts Not in Dispute.—What constitutes usury is a question of law to be determined by the court when the facts are not in dispute. Grant v. Morris & Sons, 81 N. C. 150.

When Question for Jury.—Where, in an action upon a note, the defendant pleads the usury statute, and the evidence is sufficient to sustain a verdict that the excess of interest was a proper charge made for negotiating the loan, the question should be submitted to the jury. Loan, etc., Co. v. Yokley, 174 N. C. 573, 574, 94 S. E. 102.

Where the plea of the usury under this section is made by the plaintiff in the action to enjoin the defendant from the sale of land securing a mortgage note, and there is a dispute as to whether the charge made was usurious, and as to the amount due under the mortgage, it is reversible error for the trial judge to assume the correctness of the plaintiff's contentions as a fact, and take the case from the jury accordingly. Miller v. Dunn, 188 N. C. 397, 124 S. E. 746.

The fact that a sum borrowed was made payable to the borrowers and an attorney with allegations and evidence that the attorney under instructions from the lender deducted a certain sum therefrom before the borrowers could obtain the money, together with the "item of expense" set out in the deed of trust securing the loan, is held sufficient to have been submitted to the jury on the question of usury. Jonas v. Home Mtg. Co., 205 N. C. 89, 170 S. E. 127.

Evidence Properly Submitted to Jury.—Where the plaintiff alleged usury and the defendant contended that the transaction was within the commission for the sale of bonds exception to the usury law it was held that as the evidence was conflicting it was properly submitted to the jury, and was sufficient to support its verdict in plaintiff's favor. Sherrill v. Hood, 208 N. C. 472, 181 S. E. 330.

New Note Must Be in the Nature of a Compromise in Order to Constitute a Waiver of Right to Plead Usury.—A usurious contract is not purged of the usury by the execution of renewals or by a change in the form of the contract, or by the giving of a separate note for the usurious charge, and in order for an agreement as to the total debt and the execution of a new note therefor to constitute a waiver of the right to plead usury, the new amount arrived at must be agreed to by the debtor as just and due the creditor, taking into consideration his claim of usury, and be in the nature of a compromise and settlement and be a novation rather than a renewal. Hill v. Lindsay, 210 N. C. 694, 188 S. E. 406.

Thus where it was found that the parties agreed upon the total amount of the debt after an accounting involving the credit of sums obtained from the sale of collateral given for the debt, but not involving the question of usury, and that the debtor executed a new note for the balance thus arrived at, it was held insufficient to support the court's conclusion of law that the debtor waived the right to claim usury, the transaction being a renewal rather than a novation. Id.

By Whom May Be Plead.—The plea of usury is open to the parties and their privies, and may be made when, by the transaction, the debtor's estate is wrongfully depleted, and ordinarily by one having the legal right to protect the estate, as a receiver of an insolvent corporation against which a usurious contract is sought to be enforced. Riley v. Sears, 154 N. C. 509, 70 S. E. 997.

Same—Rights of Trustee in Bankruptcy.—A right of action to recover the penalty for a usury charge is in the nature of an action for debt, and is a wrongful detention of, or injury to, the estate of the bankrupt which passes to his trustee in bankruptcy. Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 137 S. E. 156.

As a Defense.—Where the payee of a promissory note or bond brings action thereon and the defendant sets up a deduction on account of usury, within the plain intent and meaning of this section the plaintiff will not be entitled to recover the usurious charge. Pugh v. Scarboro, 200 N. C. 59, 156 S. E. 149.

A claim of forfeiture of all interest for usury may be properly set up as a defense in the creditor's action on the debt without a tender of the debt with legal interest, tender required only when the debtor seeks affirmative equitable relief such as enjoining the collection of the debt or the foreclosure of the security therefor. Virginia Trust Co. v. Lambeth Realty Corp., 215 N. C. 526, 2 S. E. (2d) 544.

Setting Aside Fraudulent Conveyance.—In a creditor's action to establish its debt and to have a subsequent conveyance by the debtor set aside as fraudulent as to creditors, the fact that plaintiff's debt is tainted with usury entitles defendant debtor to invoke the forfeiture of interest, but does not defeat plaintiff's action, or estop plaintiff from asserting the equitable remedy of setting aside the fraudulent conveyance under the doctrine that he who seeks equity must come into court with clean hands. Virginia Trust Co. v. Lambeth Realty Corp., 215 N. C. 526, 2 S. E. (2d) 544.

Restraining Foreclosure.—The holder of a second mortgage, able and willing to pay the amount of the debt secured by the first mortgage, but alleging usury, under this section, is entitled to have a restraining order against foreclosure continued until determination of the issue of usury. Wilson v. Union Trust Co., 200 N. C. 788, 158 S. E. 479.

Effect of Consent Judgment.—Where a controversy between the parties as to the amount of the debt has been settled by a consent judgment such judgment is conclusive and final as to any matter determined and cannot be impeached collaterally in another proceeding under this section. Rector v. Suncrest Lbr. Co., 52 F. (2d) 946.

Failure to Instruct as to Double Recovery Is Prejudicial.—The plaintiff in his action to recover for usurious rate of interest paid and received by the lender is entitled under this section to recover double the amount of the interest so paid and received, and an instruction to the jury that fails to give him this right is prejudicial to him and is reversible error. Bundy v. Commercial Credit Co., 200 N. C. 511, 512, 157 S. E. 860.

§ 24-3. Time from which interest runs.—Interest is due and payable on instruments, as follows:

1. All bonds, bills, notes, bills of exchange, liquidated and settled accounts shall bear interest from the time they become due, provided such liquidated and settled accounts be signed by the debtor, unless it is specially expressed that interest is not to accrue until a time mentioned in the said writings or securities.

2. All bills, bonds, or notes payable on demand shall be held and deemed to be due when demandable by the creditor, and shall bear interest from the time they are demandable, unless otherwise expressed.

3. All securities for the payment or delivery of specific articles shall bear interest as moneyed contracts; and the articles shall be rated by the jury at the time they become due.

4. Bills of exchange drawn or indorsed in the state, and which have been protested, shall carry interest, not from the date thereof, but from the time of payment therein mentioned. (Rev., s. 1952; Code, ss. 44, 45, 46, 47; R. C., c. 13; 1786, c. 248; 1828, c. 2; C. S. 2307.)

Cross References.—As to negotiable instruments, interest runs from date of instrument in absence of a stipulation to the contrary, see § 25-23, subsec. 2. As to money due as owelty, see § 46-11. As to commission in lieu of interest where advancement has been made as agricultural lien, see § 44-57.

Debts Payable on Demand.—Where money is payable on demand, interest does not accrue until a demand is made; but, when no time is appointed, the money is payable immediately without a demand, and hence interest accrues immediately. Freeland v. Edwards, 3 N. C. 49, 2 Am. Dec. 620; Lewis v. Lewis, 3 N. C. 32.

Same—Interest Payable from Time Principal Demanded.—In the absence of a special agreement as to interest or as to time of payment, interest is payable on a debt from the time the principal is demanded. Crawford v. Bank, 61

N. C. 136; Bank v. Hart, 67 N. C. 264; McRae v. Malloy, 87 N. C. 196.

Same—Necessity of Demand.—A person holding money belonging to another is not liable for interest thereon, except from the date of demand. Hyman v. Gray, 49 N. C. 155; Neal v. Freeman, 85 N. C. 441.

Same—Coupons or Installments of Interest Demand.—Coupons or installments of interest bear interest from the time of a demand of payment made after their maturity. Burroughs v. Commissioners, 65 N. C. 234.

Same—Commencement of Action.—Where interest runs from the date of demand, and no demand has been made, interest will be allowed from the date of commencement of suit. Porter v. Grimsley, 98 N. C. 550, 4 S. E. 529.

Bond Payable without Interest.—Where a note or bond is made payable without interest at a certain date, interest does not run thereon except from the time when it should have been paid. Dowd v. Railroad, 70 N. C. 468.

Coupons, when detached from the bond to which they were annexed, bear interest from the time when they were due and payable. Burroughs v. Commissioners, 65 N. C. 234.

A premium note for life insurance at six per cent. interest draws that rate from its date unless otherwise specified. Owens v. Insurance Co., 173 N. C. 373, 92 S. E. 168.

Order of County Treasurer for Payment of Money.—Where A brought an action upon an order of a county treasurer, signed by the chairman of the board of county commissioners, it was held under this section that he was entitled to recover interest upon the amount of the order from the time of the demand of payment. Yellowly v. Commissioners, 73 N. C. 164.

Unliquidated Demands.—Unliquidated damages as a general rule, and in the absence of special circumstances, do not bear interest until after their amount has been judicially ascertained. Tilghman v. Proctor, 125 U. S. 136, 160, 8 S. Ct. 894, 31 L. Ed. 664.

When interest is recoverable on amount of verdict, it will run from the date of the verdict, unless it can be legally determined before then. Ludford v. Combs, 195 N. C. 851, 141 S. E. 541.

§ 24-4. Obligations due guardians to bear compound interest; rate of interest.—Guardians shall have power to lend any portion of the estate of their wards upon bond with sufficient security, to be repaid with interest annually, and all the bonds, notes or other obligations which he shall take as guardian shall bear compound interest, for which he must account, and he may assign the same to the ward on settlement with him. On loans made out of the estate of their wards, guardians may lend at any rate of interest not less than four per cent per annum and not more than the maximum legal rate. This section shall in no way limit or affect the power of guardians to make other investments which are now or may hereafter be authorized or permitted by the laws, statutory or otherwise, of the state of North Carolina. (Rev., s. 1953; Code, s. 1592; R. C., c. 54, s. 23; 1762, c. 69; 1816, c. 925; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 29; 1943, c. 728; C. S. 2308.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the second and third sentences.

Security in Addition to That of Borrower.—The policy of this section is to require an investment by a guardian to be secured by the bond or note of some person in addition to the borrower. Watson v. Holton, 115 N. C. 36, 20 S. E. 183.

This in Boyett v. Hurst, 54 N. C. 167, where the guardian lends the money of his ward to a trading firm composed of two partners, who both became insolvent at the same time, and from the same causes, no security having been taken besides the names of the two partners, it was held that the guardian was accountable for the money thus loaned, notwithstanding at the time of this loan the partners were considered as entirely solvent and their failure was sudden and unexpected.

A guardian will be held liable for any loss resulting from a loan made without taking any security, however solvent the debtor may have been when the loan was made. Bane v. Nicholson, 203 N. C. 104, 106, 164 S. E. 750.

A guardian's primary duty is to invest the trust fund, and he will be chargeable with interest in the absence of proof that it remained in his hands unemployed without his fault. Wilson v. Lineberger, 88 N. C. 416.

Guardian Accountable for Loss.—A guardian will be held liable for any loss resulting from a loan made without taking any security, however solvent the debtor may have been when the loan was made. Collins v. Gooch, 97 N. C. 186, 1 S. E. 653.

Compound Interest Defined.—Compound interest is interest upon interest, where accrued interest is added to the principal sum, and that whole treated as a new principal, for the calculation of the interest for the next period. Black Law Dict., p. 636.

Calculation of Compound Interest.—The rule for compounding interest on notes due guardians is "to make annual rests," making the aggregate of principal and interest due at the end of a particular year a new principal, bearing interest thenceforward for another year. Little v. Anderson, 71 N. C. 190; Ford v. Vandyke, 33 N. C. 227.

Bonds in Settlement with the Ward.—The bonds, upon which the guardian has lent the ward's money, may be transferred by him to the ward in settlement with him, and the guardian does not have to pay the ward in money. Cobb v. Fountain, 187 N. C. 335, 337, 121 S. E. 614.

Applied in Robinson v. Ham, 215 N. C. 24, 200 S. E. 903.

§ 24-5. Contracts, except penal bonds, and judgments to bear interest; jury to distinguish principal.—All sums of money due by contract of any kind, excepting money due on penal bonds, shall bear interest, and when a jury shall render a verdict therefor they shall distinguish the principal from the sum allowed as interest; and the principal sum due on all such contracts shall bear interest from the time of rendering judgment thereon until it is paid and satisfied. In like manner, the amount of any judgment or decree, except the costs, rendered or adjudged in any kind of action, though not on contract, shall bear interest till paid, and the judgment and decree of the court shall be rendered according to this section. (Rev., s. 1954; Code, s. 530; R. C., c. 31, s. 90; 1786, c. 253; 1789, c. 314, s. 4; 1807, c. 721; C. S. 2309.)

Editor's Note—Correction of Punctuation in the Caption.—The caption of this section was incorrectly punctuated prior to the Consolidated Statutes, and gave rise to at least one litigation. The comma which now appears after the word "bonds" did not then exist, consequently, the excepting clause embraced "judgments" as well as penal bonds. But the court in In re Chisholm's Will, 176 N. C. 211, 96 S. E. 1031, disregarded the error and held that, though the caption of a statute may be called in aid of construction, it can not control the text when it is clear, and gave expression to the contents of the section. This error was subsequently corrected in the Consolidated Statutes.

At common law a judgment did not carry interest when an execution of sci. fa. was issued upon it. In an action upon the judgment the plaintiff could recover interest by way of damages for the detention of the money. The statute was passed for the purpose of amending the law in this respect. Collais v. McLeod, 30 N. C. 221. The intent was that the principal should bear interest because it was just and right that it should, and that the technical rule of the common law should no longer stand in the way. McNeill v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 1, 4, 50 S. E. 458.

This section is not exclusive in prescribing instances in which interest is recoverable, and in proper instances interest may be recovered upon transactions not coming within the statute. Anderson Cotton Mills v. Royal Mfg. Co., 221 N. C. 500, 20 S. E. (2d) 818.

Application to Liquidated Demands Only.—The rule that all moneys due by contract, except those due on penal bonds, shall bear interest applies whenever a recovery is had for the breach of a contract and the amount is ascertained from the terms of the contract itself or from evidence relative to the inquiry, and due by one party to the contract to another; and it does not obtain as a matter of law where the interest sought does not come within the provisions of the statute and is by way of unliquidated damages, and there has been no adequate default on the part of the debtor in reference to withholding the principal sum, or a part of it. Bond v. Pickett Cotton Mills, 166 N. C. 20, 81 S. E. 936.

As to interest on amount awarded for the taking of lands under eminent domain, see Yancey v. North Carolina State Highway, etc., Comm., 221 N. C. 185, 19 S. E. (2d) 439.

Interest from the Time Money Should Have Been Paid.—The theory upon which the plaintiff recovers is that the defendant has received the money wrongfully and the law implies a promise to repay it. The action was originally equitable in its character and founded upon the theory that in good conscience the defendant should repay the money wrongfully received, and from this duty the law implied a promise so to do. We see no reason why the amount should not draw interest. Revisal, sec. 1954 [this section]; Barlow v. Norfleet, 72 N. C. 535; Farmer v. Willard, 75 N. C. 401. The cases cited by defendant were actions in tort, wherein the jury may or may not allow interest, as they see proper. In this lies the distinction." Lumber Co. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 171, 192, 53 S. E. 823, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 225.

From Time Due.—When a real estate man is entitled to recover a reasonable amount for his services rendered in securing a tenant for a building, the sum fixed by the verdict will, as a matter of law, draw interest from the time the same was due and payable. Thomas v. Piedmont Realty, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 591, 143 S. E. 144.

After demand by a depositor or creditor of a bank for the payment of the amount due and refusal of the bank to make payment, the bank is liable for the amount of the claim plus interest at the rate of six per centum per annum. Hackney v. Hood, 203 N. C. 486, 166 S. E. 323.

Purpose of Requiring Jury to Distinguish Principal and Interest.—The evident design of this section is to allow the plaintiff interest on the principal sum recovered in a judgment from the time of its rendition; and the direction to the jury to distinguish between the principal and interest was intended to provide for those cases in which the whole sum is assessed in damages, so as to enable the clerk or the sheriff to compute the interest on the principal sum. But where the principal and interest are discriminated on the record, or it can be collected from an inspection of it what the principal sum was, it is equally within the spirit of the act that interest should be calculated on that. DeLoach v. Worke, 10 N. C. 36, 40.

Judgment Bears Interest from First Day of Term.—Where a consent judgment for a recovery of a certain sum is made a lien on lands, and by its terms payable ninety days from its rendition, it bears interest from the first day of the term, the time given being merely for the purpose of raising the money for its payment; and where the only question submitted to the court is whether interest is chargeable from the date it was payable to a further period beyond, interest for such extended period at the rate of 6 per cent should be allowed. In re Chisholm's Will, 176 N. C. 211, 96 S. E. 1031.

Verdict or Contract—Judgment Should Include Interest.—Where the controversy is made to depend upon whether a written agreement of a certain date to subscribe to plaintiff's enterprise in a sum certain was binding upon the defendant corporation, the affirmative answer of the jury to the issue carries with it interest on the subscription from the date it was due, as a matter of law, and judgment should be rendered accordingly, and not from the date of its rendition as in tort. Chatham v. Mecklenburg Realty Co., 174 N. C. 671, 94 S. E. 447.

Interest on Value of Permanent Improvements on Land.—Where it has been ascertained by the verdict of the jury, upon a trial free from error, that the plaintiff is entitled to recover of the defendant the value of permanent improvements he has put upon the defendant's land under a parol agreement that the latter would convey a part of the lands in consideration thereof, void under the statute of frauds, to the extent that the improvements have enhanced the value of the land, interest is properly allowed in the judgment from the time of the defendant's breach, on the amount ascertained to be due at that time; and objection that the jury may have included the interest in their verdict is untenable when it appears that nothing was said by counsel or court in respect to it, the presumption being to the contrary. Perry v. Norton, 182 N. C. 585, 586, 109 S. E. 641.

Interest on Contracts and Torts Distinguished.—Where a verdict is given in an action on contract in plaintiff's favor for moneys due by the defendant to his intestate, interest is also given the plaintiff on the amount of the recovery as a matter of law, when not incorporated in the verdict. When in tort the matter of interest is awarded or not according as the jury may find. Thomas v. Watkins, 193 N. C. 630, 137 S. E. 818.

In Tort Actions Judgment for Damages Bears Interest.—Although the allowance of interest, in an action for damages for conversion of property, is discretionary with the jury, yet, after the verdict, the judgment for the damages assessed bears interest by virtue of this section, and this is so, although the verdict is for a certain sum "without interest." Stephens v. Koonce, 103 N. C. 266, 9 S. E. 315.

Interest is not allowable as a matter of law in case of tort. Its allowance as damages rests in the discretion of the jury. Lincoln v. Claflin, 7 Wall. 132, 19 L. Ed. 106.

Conversion of Funds.—In an action for damages for conversion, the verdict being for the value of the property at the time of the conversion, interest can only begin from the time of the judgment. However, the jury may allow interest on the amount of the damages from the time of the conversion. Lance v. Butler, 135 N. C. 419, 47 S. E. 483.

The rule in this State is that interest, as interest, is allowed only when expressly given by statute, or by the express or implied agreement of the parties. Devereux v. Burgwin, 33 N. C. 490; Lewis v. Rountree, 79 N. C. 122. The only statute upon the subject is that contained in this section, which provides that all sums of money due by contract of any kind whatsoever, excepting such as may be due on penal bonds, shall bear interest, etc., but there is no provision made for actions of trover or trespass de bonis asportatis. In such cases, in order to compel the wrongdoer to make full compensation to the injured party, the jury may, in their discretion, and as damages, allow interest upon the value of the property from the time of its conversion or seizure, and it has been usual for them to do so. But there is no rule which gives it as a matter of law and right. Patapasco v. Magee, 86 N. C. 350, 355.

Judgment against State Agency.—This section has no application to a judgment against the state highway and public works commission. Yancey v. North Carolina State Highway, etc., Comm., 222 N. C. 106, 22 S. E. (2d) 256.

Judgment Bears Interest Though Nothing Is Said.—By virtue of this section a judgment bears interest from the time of its rendition until paid, though nothing is said therein about interest. McNeill v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 1, 50 S. E. 458.

Statement in Judgment That It Shall Bear Interest.—It is best always that the court in its judgment should state fully the amount to be raised by the execution, both principal and interest; but the plaintiff will not forfeit his right to interest by the failure to do this, when enough appears on the face of the judgment to enable the officer to compute the amount justly due. All he is required to know is the amount of the principal, and then the statute makes that amount bear interest to the time of payment. McNeill v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 1, 3, 50 S. E. 458.

This section was held directory so far as it provided that the judgment must itself state that it shall bear interest from the date of rendition until it is paid. It is perfectly clear that such a statement in the judgment is not essential to effectuate the intent of the Legislature, which is to allow interest on judgments. McNeill v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 1, 3, 50 S. E. 458.

Compromise Judgment in a Will Contest Case.—Where, in a will contest, a compromise judgment was entered whereby legatees named in the will were to receive certain amounts in settlement of their legacies which were ordered to be paid by the administrator cum testamento thereafter to be appointed, the judgment was not such a judgment as, under this section would draw interest from its date. Moore v. Pullen, 116 N. C. 284, 21 S. E. 195.

Interest on Damages in Condemnation Proceedings.—Interest is not allowed on a judgment rendered in the superior court for damages awarded by the jury to the owner for taking his lands in condemnation; for while the jury may award interest in their verdict, the owner may not complain when such has not been done, in the absence of a special request for instructions with relation to it, and the absence of evidence tending to show he is entitled to it. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenburg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 82 S. E. 5.

On Declared Dividend.—Where a receiver declares a dividend which he wrongfully withholds, interest should run from the time the dividend is declared. Armstrong v. American Exchange Nat. Bank, 133 U. S. 433, 470, 10 S. Ct. 450, 33 L. Ed. 747.

Interest on Surety Bond.—The surety bond of a clerk of the Superior Court is fixed as to amount in the sum of five thousand dollars, and to that extent a surety is responsible for the defalcation of his principal, including 6 per cent interest from the time of notice given it, except from judgment thereon, when a different principal applies and the surety is liable for 6 per cent interest on the judgment until it is paid. Lee v. Martin, 188 N. C. 119, 123 S. E. 631.

The measure of the surety's liability is that of the principal, provided such liability does not exceed the penal sum of the bond, and where a bank gives a bond to an agency of the State to protect such agency's deposit, upon the insolvency of the bank with assets insufficient to pay depositors in full, the State agency may not hold the surety liable for interest from the time action on the bond is instituted, since in such circumstances the bank is not liable for interest, but the surety is liable for interest only from date of judgment against it on the bond on the amount for which the bank is liable to the State agency as of that date. State v. United States Guarantee Co., 207 N. C. 725, 178 S. E. 550.

Interest Imposed by Law in Nature of Damages.—A debt draws interest from the date it becomes due, and when interest is not made payable on the face of the instrument, payment of interest will be imposed by law in the nature of damages for the retention of the principal of the debt. Security Nat. Bank v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 209 N. C. 17, 182 S. E. 702.

Under this section money due by contract, except money due on penal bonds, bears interest as a matter of law. Anderson Cotton Mills v. Royal Mfg. Co., 221 N. C. 500, 20 S. E. (2d) 818.

Facts Not Excusing Payment of Interest by Insurance Company.—Where under the terms of a policy of insurance payment is to be made to the beneficiary immediately upon receipt of due proof of death of insured, the failure of the insurer to make payment until more than a year after receipt of such due proof entitles the beneficiaries to interest on the amount from the date of insurer's receipt of due proof, and payment of interest will not be excused because payment by insurer was delayed by reason of the fact that the trust agreement under which the policy was assigned was changed without notice to insurer by adding an individual trustee, and the fact that the corporate trustee became insolvent before payment and a substituted trustee appointed and insurer did not have notice of such substitution until a much later date, insurer having had the use of the money during the period of delay. Security Nat. Bank v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 209 N. C. 17, 182 S. E. 702.

Cited in Bell v. Danzer, 187 N. C. 224, 232, 121 S. E. 448.

§ 24-6. Judgment by default final, clerk ascertains.—When a suit is instituted on a single bond, a covenant for the payment of money, bill of exchange, promissory note, or a signed account, and the defendant does not plead to issue thereon, upon judgment, the clerk of the court shall ascertain the interest due by law, without a writ of inquiry, and the amount shall be included in the final judgment of the court as damages, which judgment shall be rendered therein in the manner prescribed by § 24-5. (Rev., s. 1956; Code, s. 531; R. C., c. 31, s. 91; 1797, c. 475; C. S. 2310.)

This section dispenses with a jury and directs the clerk to compute the interest preparatory to a final judgment by default in suits "instituted on a single bond, a covenant for the payment of money, bill of exchange, promissory note, or a signed account," contemplating the rendition of such judgment upon written instruments which themselves specify the precise sum to be paid, and need only an estimate of accrued interest. Rogers v. Moore, 86 N. C. 86, 87.

Courts' Power to Correct Mistake in Calculation.—A judgment by default upon a speciality, for the want of a plea, entered by the clerk in court, upon his calculation of interest, was held to be an office judgment, and that the court possessed the power to correct a mistake in the clerk's calculation of interest at any time upon motion. Griffin v. Hinson, 51 N. C. 154.

§ 24-7. Interest from verdict to judgment added as costs.—When the judgment is for the recovery of money, interest from the time of the verdict or report until judgment is finally entered shall be computed by the clerk and added to the costs of the party entitled thereto. (Rev., s. 1955; Code, s. 529; C. S. 2311.)

“Issue” means the first delivery of the instrument, complete in form, to a person who takes it as a holder.

“Person” includes a body of persons, whether incorporated or not.

“Value” means valuable consideration.

“Written” includes printed, and “writing” includes print. (Rev., s. 2340; 1899, c. 733, s. 191; C. S. 2976.)

Cross Reference.—As to terms “bearer” and “holder,” see see note to § 25-15.

Editor’s Note.— Especial attention is called to the fact that the purpose in enacting this statute was to bring about, insofar as possible, a uniformity of the law of the various states upon the subject. This being true, if the purpose is to be realized to the fullest extent, uniformity of interpretation is as essential as uniformity in the statutory provisions. Hence, an investigation of the decisions of the other states which interpret the N. I. L. is not only proper but almost indispensable, and such decisions are more persuasive as authority than is usually the case with the decisions of other states. While it would be impossible in a work of this nature to incorporate all the holdings of the courts of other states upon the subject, some of these decisions have been inserted in this chapter where it is thought they may be of great value in construing the law, or where no decision of the Supreme Court of North Carolina covers the special point.

Some of the North Carolina cases herein annotated were decided under the Law Merchant before the N. I. L. was adopted, but should be of aid in construing this law.

§ 25-2. Person primarily liable on instrument.—The person primarily liable on an instrument is the person who by the terms of the instrument is absolutely required to pay the same. All other parties are secondarily liable. (Rev., s. 2342; 1899, c. 733, s. 192; C. S. 2977.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability of parties, see §§ 25-66 to 25-75.

A surety on an instrument comes squarely within the definition of a person whose liability is primary, for he is, by the terms of the instrument, absolutely required to pay the same. Rouse v. Wooten, 140 N. C. 557, 559, 53 S. E. 430. See also Taft v. Covington, 199 N. C. 51, 153 S. E. 597; Dry v. Reynolds, 205 N. C. 571, 172 S. E. 351.

Joint makers upon the face of a negotiable instrument are deemed to be primarily liable thereon, and in an action upon the note the burden is upon the defendants to prove any matter in release, if brought within three years. Roberson Co. v. Spain, 173 N. C. 23, 91 S. E. 361. See also Taft v. Covington, 199 N. C. 51, 153 S. E. 597.

When a promissory note sued on has the signatures of two of the defendants on its face as joint makers and the other defendant's signature on the back as endorser, the statute makes them each liable to the payee and, nothing else appearing, those signing as makers are primarily liable, with the right of contribution among themselves, while the endorser is secondarily liable. Raleigh Trust Co. v. York, 199 N. C. 624, 155 S. E. 263.

Indorser.—If a note, whether negotiable or not, is indorsed at the same time the note itself is made, the indorser ought to be held as original promisor or maker of the note. But where the note is indorsed after its delivery to the payee, the indorser is to be held as an indorser or guarantor depending upon whether the note is negotiable or not. Lily v. Baker, 88 N. C. 151, 154.

A married woman may now make executory contracts as binding as if she were a feme sole, § 52-2, with certain restrictions, § 52-12, and when she has executed a note as co-maker with her husband, a holder in due course for value, may accordingly enforce collection thereof against her as a person primarily liable on the note, and absolutely required to pay it. Taft v. Covington, 199 N. C. 51, 153 S. E. 597.

Parol Evidence as to Character of Signing.—As between the payee of a negotiable note and the signers thereof, a person signing his name on the face of the note may prove by parol evidence that to the knowledge of the payee he signed the same as surety and not maker. Davis v. Alexander, 207 N. C. 417, 177 S. E. 417.

Cited in Mayers v. Bank, 198 N. C. 542, 152 S. E. 628.

§ 25-3. What constitutes reasonable time.—In determining what is reasonable time or an unreasonable time regard is to be had to the nature of the instrument, the usage of trade or business (if any) with respect to such instruments, and the facts of the particular case. (Rev., s. 2343; 1899, c. 733, s. 193; C. S. 2978.)

Cross Reference.—As to failure to present bill for acceptance within a reasonable time, see § 25-48.

As Dependent upon Circumstances.—What constitutes reasonable time will vary under the facts and circumstances of different cases, and this statute expresses as definite a rule as could well be established or considered desirable. Manufacturing Co. v. Summers, 143 N. C. 102, 108, 55 S. E. 522.

Though it be inconvenient to have several rules, applicable to different classes of persons, it is more so to have one applied to all, which is wholly unsuited to the habits, transactions, and experience of the greater number. It is impossible to lay down a rule in the abstract which is equally just in its bearing on all persons to be affected by it; it must depend upon the circumstances of the case, and must be determined by the jury, under the directions of the court. Raines v. Grantham, 205 N. C. 340, 343, 171 S. E. 360, citing Brittain v. Johnson, 12 N. C. 293.

Same—Demand and Notice of Default upon Notes.—Four months, when the parties all resided in the same village, is an unreasonable time in making a demand of the maker of a note and giving notice of non-payment to the indorser. Yancey v. Littlejohn, 9 N. C. 525.

But where a demand note was given to raise money for marketing a crop to be negotiated when needed, a negotiation forty-four days after the date of making was not an unreasonable time. Colona v. Parksley Nat. Bank, 120 Va. 812, 92 S. E. 979.

Same—Presentation of Check.—The holder of a check upon a bank located in the town of his residence may present it for payment on the day after the same is drawn, and his omission to present it sooner is no defense to the drawee bank, unless he had information of its precarious condition. First National Bank v. Alexander, 84 N. C. 30.

§ 25-4. When law merchant governs.—In any case not provided for in this chapter the rules of the law merchant shall govern. (Rev., s. 2344; 1899, c. 733, s. 196; C. S. 2979.)

Cross Reference.—As to common law declared to be in force in North Carolina, see § 4-1.

§ 25-5. Acts to be done on Sunday or holiday.—Where the day, or the last day, for doing any act herein required or permitted to be done falls on Sunday, or on a holiday, the act may be done on the next succeeding secular or business day. (Rev., s. 2839; 1899, c. 733, s. 194; C. S. 2980.)

§ 25-6. Application of chapter.—The provisions of this chapter do not apply to negotiable instruments made and delivered prior to the eighth day of March, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine. (Rev., s. 2345; 1899, c. 733, s. 195; C. S. 2981.)

Applied in Barden v. Hornthal, 151 N. C. 8, 65 S. E. 513.

Art. 2. Form and Interpretation.

§ 25-7. Form of negotiable instrument.—An instrument to be negotiable must conform to the following requirements: (1) It must be in writing and signed by the maker or drawer; (2) must contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money; (3) must be payable on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time; (4) must be payable to the order of a specified person or to bearer; and (5) where the instrument is addressed to a drawee, he must be named, or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty. (Rev., s. 2151; 1899, c. 733, s. 1; C. S. 2982.)

Cross References.—As to certainty of sum, see § 25-8; as to unconditional promise, see § 25-9; as to fixed determinable time, see § 25-10; as to payment to order, see § 25-14; as to payment to bearer, see § 25-15.

Editor's Note.—It is apparent that this section is declaratory of the prior law upon the subject. As to certainty of amount to be paid and time of payment, see First Nat. Bank v. Bynum, 84 N. C. 25; necessity of payment in money, Johnson v. Henderson, 76 N. C. 227.

Effect of Conditions.—A contingent condition has always defeated the negotiability of an instrument. Goodloe v. Taylor, 10 N. C. 458.

Since the passage of this law the court has held that a note, the payment of which was made dependent upon a condition expressed in a separate instrument, a deed, was not negotiable. Pope v. Righter Parey Lumber Co., 162 N. C. 206, 78 S. E. 65.

Necessity for Payment to Order or Bearer.—Subsection four was applied in Johnson v. Lassiter, 155 N. C. 47, 71 S. E. 23.

Where an instrument is expressly made payable to a named person, such a provision clearly imports a lack of negotiability under this section. Bank of United States v. Cuthbertson, 67 F. (2d) 182, 186.

The absence of the words "to bearer" or "to order" does not render the bonds nonassignable, but nonnegotiable. Id.

Form of Instrument.—So long as the requirements of this section are complied with, the form of the instrument is immaterial. Thus it has been held that the fact that the instrument is written in pencil (Gudger v. Fletcher, 29 N. C. 372, although decided prior to section this holding would seem to be applicable), or that it is under seal (First Nat. Bank v. Michael, 96 N. C. 53, 1 S. E. 855, which case was also decided prior to N. I. L. but is apparently applicable, see section 25-12) does not affect the negotiability.

To illustrate further, it has been held that a certificate of deposit containing words of negotiability (Johnson v. Henderson, 76 N. C. 227, though decided prior to N. I. L., this case is applicable under it), or a due bill (Purtel v. Morehead, 19 N. C. 239) or a mortgage note for a specified sum, payable on a certain future day, though it provided that the whole principal sum should become payable at the option of the mortgagee upon a default in an installment, (Thorpe v. Minderman, 123 Wis. 149, 101 N. W. 417, decided under the N. I. L. of Wisconsin, which is identical with this section) is negotiable.

Although county warrants are transferable by indorsement and the indorsee or holder may sue upon them in his own name, they are not negotiable in the sense that the holder in due course is protected by the N. I. L. (Wright v. Kinney, 123 N. C. 618, 619, 31 S. E. 874).

The provisions therein that a bond should be payable to bearer, or if registered to the registered holder only, and provisions for an extension of time, upon application of the maker, in the discretion of trustee in the deed of trust securing it, does not change its negotiable character. (Thomas v. De Moss, 202 N. C. 646, 163 S. E. 759).

A municipal bond payable to bearer, and otherwise complying as to form with the provisions of this section, is a negotiable instrument, and as such when in the hands of a holder in due course as defined by § 25-58 is not subject to defenses which would otherwise ordinarily be available to the municipal corporation by which the bond was issued. (Bankers' Trust Co. v. Statesville, 203 N. C. 399, 407, 166 S. E. 169).

A bond indemnifying a bank from any loss which it might sustain by reason of its taking over the assets and discharging the liabilities of another bank, the bond being payable to the liquidating bank and not to its order, is not a negotiable instrument within the meaning of this section. (North Carolina Bank, etc., Co. v. Williams, 201 N. C. 464, 160 S. E. 484).

Holders of negotiable mortgage notes are necessary parties plaintiff in an equitable action to reform the deed of trust and the notes. (First Nat. Bank v. Thomas, 204 N. C. 599, 169 S. E. 189).

Unsigned Travelers' Cheque.—A travelers' cheque not signed or countersigned by the purchaser or holder is not a negotiable instrument, since it is not an unconditional promise to pay to the order of a specified person or bearer, the promise to pay being conditioned upon the cheque being countersigned with the signature appearing at the top of the cheque. (Venable v. American Exp. Co., 217 N. C. 548, 8 S. E. (2d) 804).

Cited in Peoples Building & Loan Assn. v. Swaim, 198 N. C. 14, 16, 150 S. E. 668; Dixon v. Smith, 204 N. C. 480, 168 S. E. 683; Stein v. Levins, 205 N. C. 302, 305, 171 S. E. 96.

§ 25-8. What constitutes certainty as to sum.

—The sum payable is a sum certain within the meaning of this chapter, although it is to be paid (1) with interest; or (2) by stated installments; or (3) by stated installments with a provision that upon default in payment of any installment the whole shall become due; or (4) with exchange, whether at a fixed rate or at the current rate; or (5) with costs of collection or an attorney's fee in case payment shall not be made at maturity. But a provision incorporated in the instrument to pay counsel fees for collection is not enforceable, but does not affect the other terms of the instrument or the negotiability thereof. (Rev., ss. 2152, 2346; 1899, c. 733, ss. 2, 197; 1905, c. 327; C. S. 2983.)

Editor's Note.—In First Nat'l Bank v. Bynum, 84 N. C. 25, decided before this section was enacted, it was held that a provision for attorneys' fees and exchange made the note non-negotiable because of uncertainty of the amount to be paid. This, according to the specific terms of the section, is, of course, no longer the law.

Although the first sentence of this section appears in the uniform N. I. L., the second sentence was inserted by the legislature of this State so that, in accordance with the uniform law, the stipulation for attorney fees does not destroy the negotiability of the instrument although the provision is not enforceable. It is the evident policy of the legislature to prevent any stipulation permitting "collection fees", as being against public policy. See Turner v. Boger, 126 N. C. 300, 302, 35 S. E. 592, and citations. An application of the operation of this paragraph will be found in Security Finance Co. v. Hendry, 189 N. C. 549, 177 S. E. 629.

Since the provision in an instrument is invalid it does not affect the amount in suit in determining the jurisdiction of a justice court. (Bank v. Appalachian Land, etc., Co., 128 N. C. 193, 38 S. E. 813).

Since attorney fees are not collectible under this section an agent with special authority to pay a note due out of funds held by him is limited to a payment of the principal sum, interests and costs that have accrued at the time of payment. (Hooper v. Trust Co., 190 N. C. 423, 130 S. E. 49).

Same—Foreign Contract for Attorney's Fees.—The validity of a provision in a note for attorneys' fees executed and payable in Georgia, must be determined by the laws of North Carolina Exchange Bank v. Land Co., 128 N. C. 193, 38 S. E. 813. And because of this section, the courts of North Carolina will not enforce such a provision. (Security Finance Co. v. Hendry, 189 N. C. 549, 177 S. E. 629).

§ 25-9. When promise is unconditional.—An unqualified order or promise to pay is unconditional within the meaning of this chapter, though coupled with (1) an indication of a particular fund out of which reimbursement is to be made, or a particular account to be debited with the amount; or (2) a statement of the transaction which gives rise to the instrument. But an order or promise to pay out of a particular fund is not unconditional. (Rev., s. 2153; 1899, c. 733, s. 3; C. S. 2984.)

Cross Reference.—As to draft with bill of lading attached, see § 21-37 and notes.

Editor's Note.—This section is declaratory of the prior law upon the subject except that very early it was held that a statement of the consideration made the instrument conditional. See Mason v. Nelson Cotton Co., 148 N. C. 492, 62 S. E. 625; and Bank v. Hatcher, 151 N. C. 359, 66 S. E. 308, which overruled the early case, Howard v. Kimball, 65 N. C. 175, and held in conformity with this section.

Retention of Title in Seller.—A written unconditional promise to pay a specified sum of money at a designated time is a negotiable instrument, and the negotiability is not affected because the title to goods sold for which the note was given is retained in the seller until payment shall have been made; or stipulations are made in the instrument for application of the proceeds to the obligor's unqualified promise to pay. See Branch Banking, etc., Co. v. Leggett, 185 N. C. 65, 116 S. E. 1.

Particular Fund Provided.—Bonds issued for road building are negotiable, notwithstanding that a fund is provided for their payment. While the specification of a particular fund out of which payment is to be made destroys the negotiability, a fund may be provided for payment, as in this case, without affecting it. (Commissioners v. Bank, 157 N. C. 191, 72 S. E. 996).

§ 25-10. What constitutes determinable future time.—An instrument is payable at a determinable future time, within the meaning of this chapter, which is expressed to be payable (1) at a fixed period after date or sight; or (2) on or before a fixed or determinable future time specified therein; or (3) on or at a fixed period after the occurrence of a specified event which is certain to happen, though the time of happening be uncertain. An instrument payable upon a contingency is not negotiable, and the happening of the event does not cure the defect. An instrument is payable at a determinable future time, within the meaning of this chapter, notwithstanding the fact that it contains a provision waiving notice of protest, notice of dishonor, and an agreement to be bound notwithstanding any extension of time which may be granted. Or, if collaterals have been deposited as security for the payment thereof and the instrument contains a provision that if the value of the securities so deposited has so decreased or declined as to render the holder insecure, the holder may require the maker to deposit other and further collaterals to secure the same, and, upon failure to comply with such demand, to declare the instrument due at once. An instrument payable upon a contingency is not negotiable, and the happening of the event does not cure the defect, but an instrument payable at a determinable future time is negotiable, even though it may mature or be declared due upon a contingency happening before such future time. (Rev., s. 2156; 1899, c. 733, s. 4; 1923, c. 72; C. S. 2985.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment, Public Laws 1923, there was added all that part of the section including and following the third sentence.

In 1 N. C. Law Rev., 299, in an article discussing the statutory changes effected by the Public Laws of 1923, it is said: "C. 72 of the Public Laws of 1923 amends the Negotiable Instruments Law (N. I. L.) s. 4, C. S. s. 2985 [this section] in one important respect in order to conform with banking experience and the recommendation of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. [The Tar Heel Banker, April 1923, p. 14.] There are in common usage today many kinds of provisions in negotiable paper for the purpose of accelerating maturity. Thus the principal amount may be made payable in installments with the provision that upon default in payment of any installment or of interest, the whole shall become due. [sec. 25-8, cl. 3]. Or notes may be issued in a series to fall due on successive dates, and each note stating that if one is dishonored the whole series is payable at once. [Chicago Ry. Equipment Co. v. Merchants Bank, 136 U. S. 268, 10 S. Ct. 999, 34 L. Ed. 349, is an example.] Other examples are found in "chattel notes," [Whitlock v. Lumber Co., 145 N. C. 120, 58 S. E. 909] which contain provisions to protect the seller of goods under a conditional sale. If the note provides that the amount shall be payable at a fixed date, or sooner at the demand of the holder if he deems himself insecure, the courts have generally held that such provisions destroy negotiability. (First Nat'l Bank v. Bynum, 84 N. C. 25.) If the ultimate time of payment can be ascertained from the face of the instrument and payment can be accelerated only by the performance of an act regularly incident to the collection of the paper, it would seem that all these provisions should be upheld. [This is the argument made by Zachariah Chafee, Acceleration Provision in Time Paper, 32 Harv. L. Rev. 746.]

"The amendment makes valid another type of acceleration provision used largely by banks, and which bankers looked upon as valid, although the majority of courts thought otherwise. [Strickland v. National Salt Co., 79 N. J. Eq. 182, 91 Atl. 828; National Salt Co. v. Ingraham, 122 Fed. 40. But see National Salt Co. v. Ingraham (1906) 143 Fed. 805. For further cases see Mr. Chafee's article cited, supra. This article is the best discussion of this subject available, and Mr. Chafee argues for the negotiability of time paper with acceleration provisions.] Suppose that collateral is deposited as security for the payment of a note, which contains a provision that if the value of the securities declines so as to render the holder insecure, the holder may require the maker to deposit other collateral, and upon failure to comply, the holder may declare the instrument due at once. It has been argued that such a provision violates three formal requisites of negotiability, certainty of time, certainty of amount, and the rule against the promise to do anything but pay money. But such a provision makes it more certain that the holder will receive the full face value of the instrument, and under the N. I. L. a note payable "on or before" a certain date is not rendered non-negotiable. [§ 25-10, cl. 2.] Further the purpose of the additional promise is to secure the payment of the money and protect the holder from the risks of the maker's insolvency. The provision makes the note more valuable as a substitute for money, and the amendment brings the law of North Carolina into line with business practice.

"The amendment also provides that provisions waiving notice of protest, notice of dishonor and agreements to be bound notwithstanding any extension of time, shall not affect negotiability. It seems that this merely makes more certain what was already understood to be the law. (Sections 25-116, 25-117, 25-118, 25-166. See First Nat'l Bank v. Johnston (1915) 169 N. C. 526, 86 S. E. 360.)" (The citations which here appear in the brackets are footnotes of the Article as it reads in the Law Review, with changes made to the proper General Statute section numbers where appropriate.)

Acceleration.—Acceleration of the maturity of a note, or of notes in a series, as the result of the failure of the maker to pay interest, or to pay one of the notes of said series, when same becomes due, according to the tenor of the note or notes, by virtue of an agreement to that effect appearing on the face of the note, or notes, does not make the note, or notes of the series, payable upon a contingency, and therefore non-negotiable within the meaning of this section. New Bern Banking, etc., Co. v. Duffy, 153 N. C. 62, 68 S. E. 915; Walter v. Kilpatrick, 191 N. C. 458, 132 S. E. 148.

Section applied as to retaining title to the goods for which the note was given, in Chicago R. Co. v. Merchants' Bank, 136 U. S. 268, 10 S. Ct. 999, 34 L. Ed. 349. See note of Trust Co. v. Legett, under section 25-9.

§ 25-11. Additional provisions as affecting negotiability.—An instrument which contains an order or promise to do any act in addition to the payment of money is not negotiable. But the negotiable character of an instrument otherwise negotiable is not affected by a provision which (1) authorizes the sale of collateral securities in case the instrument be not paid at maturity; or (2) authorizes a confession of judgment if the instrument be not paid at maturity; or (3) waives the benefit of any law intended for the advantage or protection of obligor; or (4) gives the holder an election to require something to be done in lieu of payment of money. But nothing in this section shall validate any provision or stipulation otherwise illegal, nor authorize the enforcement of an authorization to confess judgment or a waiver of homestead and personal property exemptions. (Rev., ss. 2154, 2346; 1899, c. 733, ss. 5, 197; 1905, c. 327; C. S. 2986.)

Editor's Note.—All the provisions after the word "illegal" in the last sentence were inserted by the North Carolina Legislature and do not appear in the proposed Uniform Law.

A Procedure Statute.—In so far as this section relates to the enforcement of an authorization to confess judgment, it is merely procedural. Monarch Refrigerating Co. v. Farmers' Peanut Co., 74 F. (2d) 790, 793.

This section and §§ 1-248, 1-249, are mere procedural statutes, regulating the practice of the courts, and can, of course, have no extraterritorial effect or be looked to as limiting the powers of corporations. Id.

Negotiability Not Affected by Mortgage.—The recital on the face of a note, to wit: "This is one of a series of notes secured by deed of trust or mortgage," does not affect the negotiable character of the notes under this section. Walter v. Kilpatrick, 191 N. C. 458, 461, 132 S. E. 148.

Additional Act Destroying Negotiability.—A bond to pay money, and to do something else, "as to feed and clothe a slave," is not negotiable. Knight v. Wilmington R. Co., 46 N. C. 357.

Enforcement of Foreign Homestead Waiver.—A provision in a note for the waiver of homestead exemption will not be enforced by the courts of this State although the note may have been executed by parties in another state. Exchange Bank v. Land Co., 128 N. C. 193, 38 S. E. 813.

Applied in Branch Banking, etc., Co. v. Legett, 185 N. C. 65, 116 S. E. 1. See note under section 25-9.

§ 25-12. Effect of omissions; seal; designation of particular money.—The validity and negotiable character of an instrument are not affected by the fact that (1) it is not dated; or (2) does not specify the value given, or that any value has been given therefor; or (3) does not specify the place where it is drawn or the place where it is payable; or (4) bears a seal; or (5) designates a particular kind of current money in which payment is to be made. But nothing in this section shall alter or repeal any statute requiring in certain cases the nature of the consideration to be stated in the instrument. (Rev., s. 2155; 1899, c. 733, s. 6; C. S. 2987.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to this section it was held that a negotiable instrument payable in "current funds" was not negotiable. It was also intimated that one paid in "currency" was not, but that one payable in "legal tender notes" was negotiable.

See the note to the following section.

Statement of Transaction.—A negotiable instrument, setting out the transaction for which the instrument is given, cannot be set aside when a holder in due course takes without notice of the infirmity or defect, where there is nothing in such contract to restrict negotiability in the instrument or to indicate fraud or an existent breach. Bank v. Hatcher, 151 N. C. 359, 66 S. E. 308; Bank v. Michael, 96 N. C. 53, 1 S. E. 855.

Bonds under Seal Negotiable.—Bonds for the payment of money only, while they retain in other respects the properties and incidents of obligations under seal, are in this State put upon the footing of promissory notes and both are made negotiable securities under the statute. Pate v. Brown, 85 N. C. 166, 167.

§ 25-13. When payable on demand.—An instrument is payable on demand (1) when it is expressed to be payable on demand, or at sight or on presentation; or (2) in which no time for payment is expressed. Where an instrument is issued, accepted or indorsed when overdue, it is, as regards the person so issuing, accepting or indorsing it, payable on demand. (Rev., s. 2157; 1899, c. 733, s. 7; C. S. 2988.)

Editor's Note.—In Freeman v. Ross, 15 Ga. 252, it was held that a draft in which no time of payment was expressed was due instantly, and after presentment it became an overdue instrument and a holder after that time took with notice of all equities. One who took before presentment took before it was overdue. Rosewell Mfg. Co. v. Hudson, 72 Ga. 24. A note payable "after date" without expressing any time is payable on demand. Morrison v. Morrison, 102 Ga. 170, 27 S. E. 125. A note payable on or before a certain date is payable on that date. The maker may pay before the date if he likes, but if he wishes he may delay payment until the date named. James v. Benjamin, 72 Ga. 185.

Demand Not Necessary.—When an instrument is payable on demand it is not necessary to aver and prove demand, the suit itself is sufficient demand. Dougherty v. Western Bank, 13 Ga. 287.

Statute of Limitations.—A promissory note, payable on demand, is due immediately, and the statute of limitations runs from the date. Caldwell v. Rodman, 50 N. C. 139. The same is true of a bond when no time is specified for payment of it. Ervin v. Brook, 111 N. C. 358, 16 S. E. 240.

§ 25-14. When payable to order.—The instrument is payable to order when it is drawn payable to the order of a specified person, or to him or his order. It may be drawn payable to the order of (1) a payee who is not maker, drawer or drawee; or (2) the drawer or maker; or (3) the drawee; or (4) two or more payees jointly; or (5) one or some of several payees; or (6) the holder of an office for the time being. When the instrument is payable to order, the payee must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty. (Rev., s. 2158; 1899, c. 733, s. 8; C. S. 2989.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 80.

Negotiability.—Unless a note is payable "to the order of a special person or to bearer" it is not negotiable. Johnson v. Lassiter, 155 N. C. 47, 71 S. E. 23. So a note payable to a specific person or his order is negotiable. Insurance Co. v. Jones, 191 N. C. 176, 179, 131 S. E. 587.

§ 25-15. When payable to bearer.—The instrument is payable to bearer (1) when it is expressed to be so payable; or (2) when it is payable to a person named therein or to bearer; or (3) when it is payable to the order of a fictitious or nonexistent person, and such fact was known to the person making it so payable; or (4) when the name of the payee does not purport to be the name of any person; or (5) when the only or last indorsement is an indorsement in blank. (Rev., s. 2159; 1899, c. 733, s. 9; C. S. 2990.)

The terms bearer and holder are of the same import, and where either is employed in an instrument it may be negotiated by delivery. Pryor v. American Trust Co., 15 Ga. App. 822, 84 S. E. 312.

Fictitious Payee.—A negotiable instrument payable to a fictitious payee does not make one whose name is identified as that appearing on the instrument payee, but the intention of the maker in inserting the name governs. Norton v. City Bank (Va.) 294 Fed. 839.

Effect of Indorsement upon Negotiability.—An indorsement in blank of a non-negotiable instrument does not make it negotiable. Johnson v. Lassiter, 155 N. C. 47, 71 S. E. 23.

§ 25-16. No formal language required.—The negotiable instrument need not follow the language of this chapter, but any terms are sufficient which clearly indicate an intention to conform to the requirements hereof. (Rev., s. 2160; 1899, c. 733, s. 10; C. S. 2991.)

§ 25-17. Presumption as to date.—Where the instrument or an acceptance or any indorsement thereon is dated, such date is deemed prima facie to be the true date of the making, drawing, acceptance or indorsement, as the case may be. (Rev., s. 2161; 1899, c. 733, s. 11; C. S. 2992.)

§ 25-18. Antedated and postdated.—The instrument is not invalid for the reason only that it is antedated or postdated, provided that this is not done for an illegal or fraudulent purpose. The person to whom an instrument so dated is delivered acquires the title thereto as of the date of delivery. (Rev., s. 2162; 1899, c. 733, s. 12; C. S. 2993.)

When Postdated Check Subject to Payment.—Since postdated checks are payable at the time of their date and not before, the drawee cannot accept them and charge them against funds of the drawer prior to that time. The drawer does not undertake to have the funds in the drawee's hands until the time it bears date. Smith v. Maddox-Rucker Bkg. Co., 8 Ga. App. 288, 68 S. E. 1092.

Status of Postdated Check before Maturity.—A postdated check is payable on or after the day of its date; but in the meantime it is negotiable, and the drawer cannot be charged by garnishment as debtor of the payee unless it affirmatively appears at the time of the judgment that the check is due and is still the property of the payee. Wilson v. McEachern, 9 Ga. App. 584, 71 S. E. 946.

§ 25-19. When date may be inserted.—When an instrument expressed to be payable at a fixed period after date is issued undated, or where the acceptance of an instrument payable at a fixed period after sight is undated, any holder may insert therein the true date of issue or acceptance, and the instrument shall be payable accordingly. The insertion of a wrong date does not avoid the instrument in the hands of a subsequent holder in due course; but as to him the date so inserted is to be regarded as the true date. (Rev., s. 2163; 1899, c. 733, s. 13; C. S. 2994.)

§ 25-20. When blanks may be filled.—Where the instrument is wanting in any material particular, the person in possession thereof has a prima facie authority to complete it by filling up the blanks therein. And a signature on a blank paper delivered by the person making the signature in order that the paper may be converted into a negotiable instrument operates as a prima facie authority to fill it up as such for any amount. In order, however, that any such instrument when completed may be enforced against any person who became a party thereto prior to its completion, it must be filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given and within a reasonable time. But if any such instrument after completion be negotiated to a holder in due course, it is valid and effectual for all purposes in his hands, and he may enforce it as if it had been filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given and within a reasonable time. (Rev., s. 2164; 1899, c. 733, s. 14; C. S. 2995.)

When a principal verbally authorizes an agent to fill up with a specific sum a blank in a bond, left with him for that purpose, and then to deliver it in its completed form and obtain money on it, and another person, acting in good faith and with no knowledge of these facts, advances money on such bond, such principal is estopped from setting up the defense of want of authority in the agent and denying his liability on the bond.

Liability Where Amount Left Blank.—Humphreys v. Finch, 97 N. C. 303, 1 S. E. 870; Phillips v. Hensley, 175 N. C. 23, 94 S. E. 673; McArthur v. McLeod, 51 N. C. 476.

Who May Fill Blank.—A bill of exchange drawn and issued in blank for the name of the payee may be filled up by a bona fide holder with his own name, and will bind the drawer. Lawrence v. Mabry, 13 N. C. 473, 475.

One taking before the blanks are filled takes with notice, and must at his peril ascertain the real authority of the person intrusted to complete the instrument. Guerrant v. Guerrant, 7 Va. Law Reg. 639.

Must Be Filled in Reasonable Time.—The blanks in a negotiable instrument must be filled in in a reasonable time. Brown v. Thomas, 120 Va. 763, 92 S. E. 977.

§ 25-21. Incomplete instrument not delivered.—Where an incomplete instrument has not been delivered it will not, if completed and negotiated without authority, be a valid contract in the hands of any holder as against any person whose signature was placed thereon before delivery. (Rev., s. 2165; 1899, c. 733, s. 15; C. S. 2996.)

Acknowledgment after Completion.—If the maker of a sealed note, blank as to the payee's name, acknowledges it to be his bond after the insertion of the payee's name, and delivery, it is valid and its maker is liable thereon. Wester v. Bailey, 118 N. C. 193, 24 S. E. 9.

§ 25-22. Delivery necessary; when effectual; when presumed.—Every contract on a negotiable instrument is incomplete and revocable until delivery of the instrument for the purpose of giving effect thereto. As between immediate parties, and as regards a remote party other than a holder in due course, the delivery in order to be effectual must be made either by or under the authority of the party making, drawing or indorsing, as the case may be; and in such case the delivery may be shown to have been conditional or for a special purpose only, and not for the purpose of transferring the property in the instrument. But where the instrument is in the hands of a holder in due course a valid delivery thereof by all parties prior to him, so as to make them liable to him, is conclusively presumed. And where the instrument is no longer in possession of a party whose signature appears thereon, a valid and intentional delivery by him is presumed until the contrary is proved. (Rev., s. 2166; 1899, c. 733, s. 16; C. S. 2997.)

Cross Reference.—As to necessity of delivery in negotiation, see § 25-35.

Presumption of Delivery to Holder in Due Course.—Where a negotiable municipal bond is in the hands of a holder in due course, it is conclusively presumed that a valid delivery of the bonds had been made so far as the rights of the holder are concerned. Bankers' Trust Co. v. Statesville, 203 N. C. 399, 166 S. E. 107.

Presumption of Delivery to Payee.—Whenever a bill or note is found in the hands of the payee it will be presumed that it was delivered to him, but the presumption may be rebutted. Pate v. Brown, 85 N. C. 166, 167.

Delivery to Other than Payee.—It is not necessary that delivery be made to the payee. If the delivery is made to another but shows that the maker intended to part with control, and that it was for the payee's benefit, such delivery is sufficient to bind the maker. Irvin v. Harris, 182 N. C. 647, 109 S. E. 867.

Parol Proof of Conditional Delivery—Contemporaneous Parol Agreements.—It seems to be the rule that as against any person not a holder in due course a contemporaneous parol agreement may be shown to prove that the delivery was conditional, and that there was no contract on the failure of the condition. The instrument cannot be varied by such agreements. See, Robertson v. Virginia Nat. Bank, 135 Va. 166, 115 S. E. 536. Ed. Note.

Therefore it is competent to prove a collateral agreement, as between the immediate parties, making a note non-payable upon a contingency which would deprive the note of all consideration even though the note is under seal. Farrington v. McNeill, 174 N. C. 420, 422, 93 S. E. 957.

But in an action upon a note the defendants were not permitted to set up the defense that as a part of the contemporaneous parol agreement they were given further time, until certain lands had been sold, for such would be in contradiction of the written instrument. Cherokee County v. Meroney, 173 N. C. 653, 92 S. E. 616.

§ 25-23. Construction, where instrument is ambiguous.—Where the language of the instrument is ambiguous or there are omissions therein, the following rules of construction apply:

1. Where the sum payable is expressed in words and also in figures and there is a discrepancy between the two, the sum denoted by the words is the sum payable; but if the words are ambiguous or uncertain, reference may be had to the figures to fix the amount.

2. Where the instrument provides for the payment of interest, without specifying the date from which interest is to run, the interest runs from the date of the instrument, and if the instrument is undated, from the issue thereof.

3. Where the instrument is not dated it will be considered to be dated as of the time it was issued.

4. Where there is conflict between the written and printed provisions of the instrument the written provisions prevail.

5. Where the instrument is so ambiguous that there is doubt whether it is a bill or a note the holder may treat it as either at his election.

6. Where a signature is so placed upon the instrument that it is not clear in what capacity the person making the same intended to sign, he is to be deemed an indorser.

7. Where an instrument containing the words "I promise to pay" is signed by two or more persons, they are deemed to be jointly and severally liable thereon. (Rev., ss. 1952, 2341; 1899, c. 733, s. 17; C. S. 2998.)

Cross Reference.—As to how indorsement made, see § 25-36; as to liability of indorser, see §§ 25-69, 25-70.

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 81.

Note without Interest.—A note given for a specified amount "without interest" will be construed to bear interest after maturity. Dowd v. Railroad, 70 N. C. 468.

Figures Not Material.—The figures are not a material part of an instrument as the words control. State v. Lott, 62 W. Va. 310, 58 S. E. 621.

The indorsement may be on any part of the note, even the face or under the maker's name. Colona v. Parksley Nat. Bank, 120 Va. 812, 92 S. E. 979.

§ 25-24. Signature must appear; trade or assumed name.—No person is liable on the instrument whose signature does not appear thereon, except as herein otherwise expressly provided. But one who signs in a trade or assumed name will be liable to the same extent as if he had signed in his own name. (Rev., s. 2167; 1899, c. 733, s. 18; C. S. 2999.)

Name in Body of Instrument Not Necessary.—It is not necessary that the name of the obligor appear in the note, it is sufficient that he sign it. Howell v. Parsons, 89 N. C. 230.

Maker Must Show Lack of Consideration.—Where, between the original parties, the maker sets up the want of consideration for a note he has made to the payee, as a defense in an action thereon, the burden is upon him to introduce evidence to establish his defense, and his failure to do so will entitle the payee to a judgment in his favor. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Andrews, 179 N. C. 341, 102 S. E. 500; Piner v. Brittain, 165 N. C. 401, 81 S. E. 462.

Instruments under Seal.—The lack of consideration cannot benefit a maker of a bond under seal because the law conclusively presumes that it was made upon good and sufficient consideration. Angier v. Howard, 94 N. C. 27; Wester v. Bailey, 118 N. C. 193, 194, 24 S. E. 9.

§ 25-25. Signature by agent; how authority shown.—The signature of any party may be made by a duly authorized agent. No particular form of appointment is necessary for this purpose, and the authority of the agent may be established as in other cases of agency. (Rev., s. 2168; 1899, c. 733, s. 19; C. S. 3000.)

In General.—This provision is an expression and affirmation of the better considered decisions on the subject. Midgett v. Basnight, 172 N. C. 18, 91 S. E. 353.

Authority of Agent Necessary.—The power to bind the principal by the making of negotiable paper is an important one, and not lightly to be inferred. It should be conferred directly, unless by necessary implication the duties of the agent cannot be performed without the exercise of the power, or where, as otherwise expressed, the power is practically indispensable to accomplish the object of the agency, and the person dealing with the agent must, subject to the principals heretofore stated, see to it that his authority is adequate. Bank v. Hay, 143 N. C. 326, 337, 55 S. E. 811.

Extent of Power.—Power to make restricted indorsements will not authorize a general indorsement in blank. Exchange Bank v. Thrower, 118 Ga. 433, 45 S. E. 316.

A general power to discount bills of exchange confers on the agent power to indorse. Merchants Bank v. Central Bank, 1 Ga. 418.

Agent by Implication.—The indorsement by an agent is valid although the power to indorse was conferred in a vague way, and the agency is one by implication. Midgett v. Basnight, 173 N. C. 18, 91 S. E. 353.

Written Authority Not Necessary.—Authority to indorse a promissory note for another may be orally conferred. Conner v. Hodges, 7 Ga. App. 153, 66 S. E. 546; Taylor v. Johnson, 18 Ga. App. 161, 89 S. E. 77.

Necessity for Proof.—The fact that a signature is by a duly authorized agent does not prove itself, but the facts must be established by proper testimony. Midgett v. Basnight, 173 N. C. 18, 91 S. E. 353.

§ 25-26. Liability of person signing as agent.—Where the instrument contains, or a person adds to his signature, words indicating that he signed for or on behalf of the principal or in a representative capacity, he is not liable on the instrument if he was duly authorized; but the mere addition of words describing him as an agent or as filling a representative character, without disclosing his principal, does not exempt him from personal liability. (Rev., s. 2169; 1899, c. 733, s. 20; C. S. 3001.)

Sufficient Disclosure of Principal.—Where a negotiable instrument is made by an agent for its principal, the agent, in order to exempt himself from liability, must not only name the principal, but must sufficiently show that the signature is that of the principal though done by an agent. A mere description of the relation is not sufficient to relieve the agent of liability. Graham v. Campbell, 56 Ga. 258; Lester v. McIntosh, 101 Ga. 675, 29 S. E. 7.

If the principal is distinctly indicated and the contract is in his name, the agent is not liable if he has the power to bind the principal. No form is indicated, all that is required is that the parties and intent be made plain. Merchants Bank v. Central Bank, 1 Ga. 418; Rawlings v. Robson, 70 Ga. 595.

Agreement as to Personal Liability.—Where an administrator signs a note in the name of the estate and thereunder writes his name as administrator, and at the time of the execution of the note the parties agree that he should not be personally liable thereon, the payee may not hold the administrator personally liable thereon, in view of this section. Bank of Spruce Pines v. Vance, 205 N. C. 103, 170 S. E. 119.

Proof of Principal by Parol.—As between themselves it may be shown that it was the intent of the parties that the principal and not the agent be bound, and that the instrument was given and accepted as such. Metcalf v. Williams, 104 U. S. 93, 26 L. Ed. 665; Ocilla Southern R. Co. v. Morton, 13 Ga. App. 504, 79 S. E. 480.

But where the principal is not sufficiently described parol evidence cannot be introduced to charge him. The reason for this rule is that for a party to be bound his name must appear on the instrument. Burkhalter v. Perry, 127 Ga. 438, 56 S. E. 631; Bedell v. Scarlett, 75 Ga. 56.

Applicability to Fiduciaries.—See 9 N. C. L. Rev. 444.

§ 25-27. Effect of signature by procuration.—A signature by procuration operates as notice that the agent has but a limited authority to sign, and the principal is bound only in case the agent so signing acted within the actual limits of his authority. (Rev., s. 2170; 1899, c. 733, s. 21; C. S. 3002.)

Signature of Attorney.—An attorney to whom a note is sent for collection has, prima facie, no authority to indorse the same in the name of his client, and the purchaser should inquire as to the extent of the attorney's authority. Sherrill v. Weisiger Clothing Co., 114 N. C. 436, 438, 19 S. E. 365.

§ 25-28. Effect of forged signature.—When a signature is forged or made without the authority of the person whose signature it purports to be, it is wholly inoperative, and no right to retain the instrument or to give a discharge therefor or to enforce payment thereof against any party thereto can be acquired through or under such signature, unless the party against whom it is sought to enforce such right is precluded from setting up the forgery or want of authority. (Rev., s. 2171; 1899, c. 733, s. 23; C. S. 3003.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability of acceptor in case of forged signature, see § 25-68.

Editor's Note.—When a signature is forged no title can be acquired through it. Hillman v. Cornett, 137 Va. 200, 119 S. E. 74. Such infirmity inheres in the factum of the instrument and by the terms of the statute renders it inoperative; and this is true even where the instrument is in the hands of a bona fide holder for value. Pettyjohn v. National Exch. Bank, 101 Va. 111, 43 S. E. 203. The same rule applies whether it is the signature of the maker or the indorser that is attacked.

Where the name of the maker of the instrument is forged, the instrument is neither a bill nor a check, since the statute provides that a forged signature is wholly inoperative. Seymour v. Peoples Bank, 212 N. C. 707, 194 S. E. 464, 116 A. L. R. 682.

A bank is presumed to know the signature of its customers and if it pays a forged check it cannot charge the amount to the account of the depositor, unless the depositor is negligent. Yarborough v. Trust Co., 142 N. C. 377, 55 S. E. 296.

In case of drafts presented for payment by an agent, the bank must be assured of the agency to hold another as principal. Letters of instruction to the agent are not sufficient to show power to draw drafts on the principal. Bank v. Hay, 143 N. C. 326, 55 S. E. 811.

Where the clerk of the superior court executed a check to the person named in a court order, and the brother of the payee of the check, by fraudulently representing himself to be the payee, took the check to plaintiff and endorsed it in plaintiff's presence by forging the name of his brother, whereupon plaintiff endorsed the check by writing "O. K." and signing his name, plaintiff is not entitled to recover the amount of the check from the clerk individually or in his official capacity, plaintiff's negligence in endorsing the check without attempting to ascertain the identity of the person representing himself to be the payee barring any right to recover. Keel v. Wynne, 210 N. C. 426, 187 S. E. 571.

In the case of McKaughan v. Trust Co., 182 N. C. 543, 109 S. E. 355, it is held that when one forges a deed and under the forgery obtains a check payable to a third party and he indorses the check in the name of the third party, paying an outstanding debt to the drawer with a part of the funds so obtained, in an action against the bank the drawer can only recover the difference between the amount of the check and the amount paid to the drawer. This case is discussed and criticised in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 40, where it is suggested that the check was payable to a fictitious person in which case the bank would not be liable, for the funds went into the hands of the person intended by the drawer, still it is said that if the drawer should recover at all he should recover all, for the funds that were paid him were for a prior debt and he became purchaser for value without notice.

The defense of forgery is personal, and an indorser cannot plead the forgery of the signature of the maker nor can he plead forgery of signatures of subsequent indorsers. Produce Co. v. Bieberback, 176 Mass. 577, 58 N. E. 162. Nor can a maker avoid liability because of forgery of the signature of a co-maker. Bum v. Farrell, 135 Iowa, 670, 113 N. W. 539.

There seems to be a conflict of authority as to whether or not a forgery may be ratified, see 36 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1006 (notes). The doctrine of estoppel seems to be generally applied, see 36 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1017 (notes), also 8 C. J. p. 763, sec. 1030. That North Carolina will apply the doctrine that a forgery may be ratified is indicated in Yarborough v. Trust Co., 142 N. C. 377, 55 S. E. 296.

Cited in United States v. National City Bank, 28 F. Supp. 144.

Art. 3. Consideration.

§ 25-29. Presumption of consideration.—Every negotiable instrument is deemed prima facie to have been issued for a valuable consideration, and every person whose signature appears thereon to have become a party thereto for value. (Rev., s. 2172; 1899, c. 733, s. 24; C. S. 3004.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 52.

In Planter's Bank v. Yelverton, 185 N. C. 314, 117 S. E. 299, this section is construed with §§ 25-35 and 25-55 and it is held that one taking without indorsement takes subject to equities between the original parties, and the presumption of consideration may be rebutted.

Maker Must Show Lack of Consideration.—Where, between the original parties, the maker sets up the want of consideration for a note he has made to the payee as a defense, in an action thereon the burden is upon him to introduce evidence to establish his defense, and his failure to do so will entitle the payee to a judgment in his favor. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Andrews, 179 N. C. 341, 102 S. E. 500. Piner v. Brittain, 165 N. C. 401, 81 S. E. 462. See also Bank of Lewiston v. Harrington, 205 N. C. 244, 170 S. E. 916.

Where there is evidence tending to show that the president of a bank had received from the defendant an exchange of notes for the former's benefit, and that the defendant in the bank's action on the note admits its execution and delivery, it is prima facie evidence that the note was given for a consideration and defendant must show failure of consideration when relied upon by him. American Trust Co. v. Anagnos, 196 N. C. 327, 145 S. E. 619.

When Holder Must Show Consideration.—While a valuable consideration is essential to the support of negotiable instruments it is not necessary in an action upon them for the plaintiff to aver and prove such consideration; yet when evidence has been introduced by the defendant to rebut the presumption which they raise, the burden is thrown upon the plaintiff to satisfy the jury by a preponderance of evidence that there was a consideration. Campbell v. McCormac, 90 N. C. 491. Hunt v. Eure, 188 N. C. 716, 718, 125 S. E. 484.

Instruments under Seal.—The lack of consideration cannot benefit a maker of a bond under seal because the law conclusively presumes that it was made upon good and sufficient consideration. Angier v. Howard, 94 N. C. 27. Wester v. Bailey, 118 N. C. 193, 194, 24 S. E. 9.

Presumption of Sanity of Maker.—There is a rebuttable presumption that a promisor was sane at the time of the execution of a note, and on that question the burden of showing the contrary, as a general rule, is upon the defendant or the person alleging it. Jones v. Winstead, 186 N. C. 536, 538, 120 S. E. 89.

Burden of Proof.—Whenever a prima facie case is made out as provided by this section, in favor of the plaintiff, it is upon the defendant to go forward with his proof, or take the risk before the jury of an adverse verdict, but the burden of proof and the burden of the issue remains upon the plaintiff throughout the trial. Stein v. Levins, 205 N. C. 302, 305, 171 S. E. 96.

Quoted in White v. Johnson & Sons, 205 N. C. 773, 774, 172 S. E. 370.

§ 25-30. What constitutes consideration.—Value is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or preëxisting debt constitutes value, and is deemed such whether the instrument is payable on demand or at a future time. (Rev., s. 2173; 1899, c. 733, s. 25; C. S. 3005.)

Rule Prior to This Act.—Many of the courts have heretofore denied that an indebtedness was sufficient consideration to constitute one a holder for value within the meaning of the law merchant. This statute on this question, however, changes the rule. Manufacturing Co. v. Summers, 143 N. C. 102, 107, 55 S. E. 522.

Necessity for Adequate Consideration.—When the parties are competent to contract, relief will not be given on grounds of inadequacy of consideration unless the inequality is so gross as to amount to fraud. Jones v. Degge, 84 Va. 685, 5 S. E. 799; Mathews v. Crockett, 82 Va. 394.

Pre-Existing Debt.—An extension of time by a creditor to his principal debtor is a sufficient consideration to support the indorsement of a note renewing the original debt. Hollingshead v. Bank, 104 Ga. 250, 30 S. E. 728; Colley v. Summers Parrot Helve Co., 119 Va. 439, 89 S. E. 906.

The provisions of this section that a preëxisting debt is sufficient consideration for a promissory note does not apply when the note in question is not negotiable within the meaning of the negotiable instrument law, and the debt was not contracted by the maker, and where the nonnegotiable note is given by a widow for the defalcation of her husband without consideration, it must be alleged and shown that she knowingly accepted profit, advantage or benefit from the transaction. Peoples Building and Loan Association v. Swaim, 198 N. C. 14, 150 S. E. 668.

Dower.—The relinquishment of a right of dower is a valid consideration for a promissory note. Trust Co. v. Benbow, 135 N. C. 303, 47 S. E. 435.

Note to Secure Mortgage.—A note given by incorporators of a land company to secure the holder of a mortgage for the purchase price carries sufficient consideration. Johnson v. Rodeger, 119 N. C. 446, 25 S. E. 1021.

Assignment of Contract for Carrying Mail.—See note under § 25-33.

Cited in New Bern Oil. etc., Co. v. National Bank, 28 Fed. (2d) 554; American Trust Co. v. Anagnos, 196 N. C. 327, 145 S. E. 619; Pridgen v. Baugh & Sons Co., 30 Fed. (2d) 353.

§ 25-31. What constitutes a holder for value.—Where value has at any time been given for the instrument the holder is deemed a holder for value in respect to all parties who became such prior to that time. (Rev., s. 2174; 1899, c. 733, s. 26; C. S. 3006.)

Drafts with Bill of Lading Attached.—Where a bank for a valuable consideration takes an assignment of a bill of lading with draft attached, the consignee of the goods takes them subject to the rights of the holder of the bill of lading for the amount of the draft, and he cannot retain the price of the goods on account of a debt due him from the consignor. Willard Mfg. Co. v. Tierney, 133 N. C. 630, 631, 45 S. E. 1026.

Deposit of Draft for Collection.—If drafts, deposited by the customer for his credit, returned unpaid, are charged back to the customer's account, and returned to him, this constitutes only an agency for collection. Davis v. Lumber Co., 130 N. C. 174, 176, 41 S. E. 95; Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452, 40 S. E. 218. But if the drawer was in debt to the bank, and the draft was discounted by it and the proceeds applied in discharge of such balance, the bank became the owner of the draft, and a purchaser for value to the extent of the goods described in the bills of lading. Latham v. Spragins, 162 N. C. 404, 408, 78 S. E. 282.

Transfer to a Creditor.—The transfer of a negotiable note by the holder to his creditor before maturity for an antecedent debt constitutes the transferee a holder for value. American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Seagroves, 166 N. C. 608, 82 S. E. 947.

Held as Collateral.—One who holds a negotiable note as collateral for the payment of a debt may maintain an action thereon in his own name, but not one who holds "for collection," for the latter is not "the party in interest." Third National Bank v. Exum, 163 N. C. 199, 79 S. E. 498.

Possession is prima facie evidence that the holder is a holder for value, and the burden of proof is on one seeking to impeach the title. Fent v. Miller, 17 Gratt. (58 Va.) 47, 82; Wilson v. Fagin, 11 Gratt. (56 Va.) 477; Duerson v. Alsop, 27 Gratt. (63 Va.) 229; Board v. Randolph, 89 Va. 619, 16 S. E. 722; Piedmont Bank v. Hatcher, 94 Va. 229, 26 S. E. 505.

§ 25-32. When lien on instrument constitutes holder for value.—Where the holder has a lien on the instrument arising either from contract or by implication of law he is deemed a holder for value to the extent of his lien. (Rev., s. 2175; 1899, c. 733, s. 27; C. S. 3007.)

Assignment to Secure Debt.—When a negotiable note is transferred before maturity as collateral security for a pre-existing debt, the assignee is such holder for value that he takes free from equities of which he had no notice, to the extent of the debt secured. See Brooks v. Sullivan, 129 N. C. 190, 39 S. E. 822. The law was previously otherwise. Holderby v. Blum, 22 N. C. 51; Harris v. Horner, 21 N. C. 455, 30 Am. Dec. 182; Potts v. Blackwell, 56 N. C. 449.

Holder as Collateral Security.—An interpleader, where a note has been attached, who claims as a holder in due course, and makes it appear that the note was taken as collateral security to another note, is a holder in due course only to the extent of his lien. The balance is subject to attachment. Sugg v. St. Mary's Oil Engine Co., 193 N. C. 815, 138 S. E. 169.

A bank taking a warehouse receipt as collateral security is a holder in due course to the extent of its lien. Lacy v. Indemnity Co., 189 N. C. 24, 126 S. E. 316.

Same—Payment of Original Debt.—If a promissory note, before its maturity, is pledged as collateral security for a particular debt, and such debt is afterward paid, the holder of the collateral note has no right to collect it, but so long as any part of the secured debt remains unpaid the holder of the security note may collect enough to pay his claims thereby secured. Bank v. Tuck, 96 Ga. 456, 23 S. E. 467.

Fertilizer Notes Where Grade Misrepresented.—A note given for the purchase price of fertilizer reciting that there is no warranty is subject to the defense of lack of consideration, and if it appears that the fertilizer was not the grade as shown by the analysis on the sack, the plaintiff is not entitled to recover on the note. Swift v. Etheridge, 190 N. C. 162, 129 S. E. 453.

Against Holder in Due Course.—A total absence of consideration is a matter of defense by the maker against the original payee. Swift & Co. v. Aydtlett, 192 N. C. 330, 135 S. E. 141.

Burden to Show Want of Consideration.—In Conservatory v. Dickerson, 158 N. C. 207, 73 S. E. 990, it is said that although notes, as simple contracts, require a consideration to support them, it has been long settled that they import a consideration, prima facie, so as to throw on the maker the burden to show a want of consideration. McArthur v. McLeod, 51 N. C. 476; Campbell v. McCormac, 90 N. C. 491. In the latter case it was said that "It is wholly unnecessary to establish that a promissory note was given upon a consideration; and the burden of proof rests upon the other party to establish the contrary and to rebut the presumption of validity and value which the law raises." Piner v. Brittain, 165 N. C. 401, 81 S. E. 462.

Not Applicable to Non-negotiable Paper.—Whether the provisions of this section should be extended to non-negotiable instruments so as to make the rule uniform is a matter which is addressed to the legislative discretion. Hunt v. Eure, 188 N. C. 716, 125 S. E. 484.

Stated in Hardy v. Mitchell, 156 N. C. 76, 72 S. E. 95.

Cited in New Bern Oil, etc., Co. v. National Bank, 28 Fed. (2d) 554.

§ 25-33. Effect of want of consideration.—Absence or failure of consideration is matter of defense as against any person not a holder in due course, and partial failure of consideration is a defense pro tanto, whether the failure is an ascertained and liquidated amount or otherwise. (Rev. s. 2176; 1899, c. 733, s. 28; C. S. 3008.)

A contract for carrying mail is not assignable, and in an action on a note given in part consideration of such assignment this may be shown as a failure of consideration, except as against a holder for value, in due course, without notice. Peoples Bank, etc., Co. v. Duncan, 194 N. C. 692, 140 S. E. 610.

Presumption of Consideration May Be Rebutted.—While the execution and delivery of a note under seal raises the presumption of consideration, such presumption, in view of this section, is rebuttable as against any person not a holder in due course. Lentz v. Johnson & Sons, 207 N. C. 614, 178 S. E. 226.

Parol Evidence Rule Not Violated.—The rule which prohibits the introduction of parol evidence to vary, modify or contradict the terms of a written instrument, is not violated by showing failure of consideration. Virginia Trust Co. v. Asheville, 207 N. C. 164, 166, 176 S. E. 257.

Failure of consideration is a valid defense to a note under seal by reason of the fact the presumption arising from a seal upon a negotiable instrument is rebuttable. Patterson v. Fuller, 203 N. C. 788, 791, 167 S. E. 74.

Quoted in White v. Johnson & Sons, 205 N. C. 773, 774, 172 S. E. 370.

§ 25-34. Liability of accommodation party.—An accommodation party is one who has signed the instrument as maker, drawer, acceptor or indorser without receiving value therefor, and for the purpose of lending his name to some other person. Such a person is liable on the instrument to a holder for value, notwithstanding such holder at the time of taking the instrument knew him to be only an accommodation party. (Rev., s. 2177; 1899, c. 733, s. 29; C. S. 3009.)

Failure of Maker to Conform to Agreement.—An accommodation indorser is not relieved from liability upon the ground that the maker agreed in parol to negotiate the note at a certain bank which he failed to do, but negotiated to the plaintiff instead who had notice of the agreement. Parker v. Sutton, 103 N. C. 191, 9 S. E. 283; Parker v. McDowell, 95 N. C. 219.

Order of Liability on Instrument.—A note, indorsed for the makers accommodation, signed by the principal and surety is a joint and several obligation, and the owner may sue all or either of the obligors, without joining all as defendants. Bank v. Carr, 121 N. C. 113, 28 S. E. 186. Norfolk Nat. Bank v. Griffin, 107 N. C. 173, 11 S. E. 1049.

Right to Recover from Principal and Prior Parties.—An accommodation indorser of a negotiable note who pays the note has only the right of a surety to be fully indemnified for his payment on account of his principal. Burton v. Slaughter, 26 Gratt. (67 Va.) 914; Call v. Scott, 4 Call (8 Va.) 402.

Agreements for Equal Liability.—Unless agreed among themselves to be held equally liable, accommodation indorsers are held prima facie liable in the inverse order of the indorsement. Plumely v. First Nat. Bank, 76 W. Va. 635, 87 S. E. 94.

Indorser for Member of a Partnership.—A note executed by a member of a partnership to a third party who, as surety and for the accommodation of the maker, indorses it and receives no benefit from it, cannot be the subject of an action at law against the indorser by the firm, nor in case of the death of the maker of the note can the surviving partner maintain an action on the note against the accommodation indorser unless the firm be insolvent. Pafton v. Carr, 117 N. C. 176, 23 S. E. 182.

Sufficient Interest to Defeat Accommodation Character Illustrated.—Factors to whom the drawee of a draft for the purchase money of a steam engine for ginning cotton was in debt, and who agreed to accept it in order to facilitate their collection from the drawer out of his cotton, did not stand on the footing of accommodation acceptors, but were original contractors. Saulsbury Co. v. Blandys, 65 Ga. 45.

Cited in Mayers v. Bank, 198 N. C. 542, 152 S. E. 628; Taft v. Covington, 199 N. C. 51, 56, 153 S. E. 597.

Art. 4. Negotiation.

§ 25-35. What constitutes negotiation.—An instrument is negotiated when it is transferred from one person to another in such manner as to constitute the transferee the holder thereof. If payable to bearer, it is negotiated by delivery; if payable to order, it is negotiated by the indorsement of the holder, and completed by delivery. (Rev., s. 2178; 1899, c. 733, s. 30; C. S. 3010.)

Form Immaterial.—No form of indorsement is necessary to negotiate an instrument. In case of a corporation the seal is not necessary. Sheffield v. Johnson County Sav. Bank, 2 Ga. App. 221, 58 S. E. 386.

Endorsement Must Be Proven.—A note being made payable to X or order, indorsement by him was necessary to transfer the title and give the plaintiffs, as the holder, the benefit of the presumptions of the negotiable instrument act; and proof of such indorsement by the payee was necessary. Tyson v. Joyner, 139 N. C. 69, 51 S. E. 803; Mayers v. McRimmon, 140 N. C. 640, 53 S. E. 447; Myers v. Petty, 153 N. C. 462, 464, 69 S. E. 417.

Delivery May Be Actual or Constructive.—Where a negotiable instrument is payable to order, its transfer from one person to another is by indorsement, completed by delivery, actual or constructive. Cartwright v. Coppersmith, 222 N. C. 573, 24 S. E. (2d) 246.

A constructive delivery will be held sufficient if made with the intention of transferring the title, but there must be some unequivocal act, more than the mere expression of an intention or desire. Id.

Purchaser without Indorsement.—A purchaser of a negotiable instrument for value before maturity, but without indorsement, becomes the holder of the equitable title only, and takes subject to any defense the maker may have against the original payee. Steinhilper v. Basnight, 153 N. C. 293, 69 S. E. 220; Whitman v. York, 192 N. C. 87, 88, 133 S. E. 427; Bressee v. Crumpton, 121 N. C. 122, 28 S. E. 351; Planters Bank v. Yelverton, 185 N. C. 314, 117 S. E. 299; Foxman v. Hanes, 218 N. C. 722, 12 S. E. (2d) 258.

The introduction of a note in evidence without indorsement raises the presumption of equitable ownership and assignment, and without proof of indorsement the holder is not one in due course. Woods v. Finley, 153 N. C. 497, 69 S. E. 502.

Warehouse receipts, indorsed by the owner of the cotton and by the superintendent of the warehouse are negotiable by delivery, and when taken as collateral confer upon the holder the position of a bona fide holder for value. Lacy v. Globe Indemnity Co., 189 N. C. 24, 126 S. E. 316.

Stated in Tyson v. Joyner, 139 N. C. 69, 51 S. E. 803.

Cited in Insurance Co. v. Jones, 191 N. C. 176, 131 S. E. 587; Dawson v. Bank, 197 N. C. 499, 150 S. E. 38; Dixon v. Smith, 204 N. C. 480, 168 S. E. 683.

§ 25-36. How indorsement made.—The indorsement must be written on the instrument itself or upon a paper attached thereto. The signature of the indorser, without additional words, is a sufficient indorsement. (Rev., s. 2179; 1899, c. 733, s. 31; C. S. 3011.)

Cross Reference.—As to indorsement by agent, see § 25-25.

In General.—The position of the indorsement is immaterial, it may be on the face or the back of the instrument so long as the intention of the parties can be ascertained. Quinn v. Sterne, 26 Ga. 223; First Nat. Bank v. Messer, 136 Ga. 226, 71 S. E. 148.

Prerequisite to Indorsement on Additional Paper.—While a lack of room for further indorsements is not a prerequisite to attaching a paper, an essential requirement is that the paper be physically attached or that it should have been when the indorsement was made, and that an assignment or transfer on a separate paper will not suffice. Midgett v. Basnight, 173 N. C. 18, 91 S. E. 353; Commercial Security Co. v. Main St. Pharmacy, 174 N. C. 655, 94 S. E. 298.

Indorsement by Letter Attached to Note.—Where a note was sent to a bank as security and attached to a letter, in which it is stated that the holder did assign the note to the bank as collateral security, it was held that the signature on the letter was sufficient indorsement. Colona v. Parkasley Nat. Bank, 120 Va. 812, 92 S. E. 979.

Indorsement with Rubber Stamp.—Where the name of the drawee is stamped on the back of a draft with a rubber stamp, by one having authority to do so and with intent to indorse it, it is a valid indorsement, but does not prove itself. Mayers v. McRimmon, 140 N. C. 640, 53 S. E. 447.

§ 25-37. Effect of indorsement by infant or corporation.—The indorsement or assignment of the instrument by a corporation, an infant, or married woman passes the property therein, notwithstanding that from want of capacity the corporation, infant, or married woman may incur no liability thereon. (Rev., s. 2180; 1899, c. 733, s. 32; C. S. 3012.)

Editor's Note—Married Women.—In the case of Vann v. Edwards, 128 N. C. 425, 39 S. E. 66; 130 N. C. 70, 72, 40 S. E. 853; 135 N. C. 661, 47 S. E. 784, which was decided under the prior law, and was before the Supreme Court three times, it was held that a married woman may dispose of her property without the assent of her husband except in those cases where a written instrument or conveyance is required for that purpose.

The delivery of a note to the indorsee after it has been indorsed in blank by the wife, the owner and the husband, is a sufficient conveyance. But the indorsement may be explained as between the immediate parties. Coffin v. Smith, 128 N. C. 252, 38 S. E. 864.

Corporations.—If a corporation indorses a negotiable instrument when it has no power to do so it cannot be bound by subsequent holders. Savannah Ice Co. v. Canal-Louisiana Bank, etc., Co., 12 Ga. App. 818, 79 S. E. 45; but see Towers Co. v. Inman, 96 Ga. 506, 23 S. E. 418; Jacobs Pharmacy Co. v. Southern Banking, etc., Co., 97 Ga. 573, 25 S. E. 171, where the corporation receives value.

Infants.—“In stipulating that the indorsement of the instrument by an infant ‘passes the property therein,’ it was meant to provide that the contract of indorsement is not void, and that his indorsee has the right to enforce payment from all parties prior to the infant indorser. The incapacity of the minor cannot be availed of by prior parties. It was not intended to provide that the indorsee should become the owner of the instrument by title indefeasible as against the infant, or to make the act of indorsement an irrevocable one. The act does not concern the right of such an indorser to disaffirm under the rules of the law of infancy. The words ‘passes the property therein,’ if given a meaning that would deny that right in respect of a contract of indorsement, would deprive the infant of the right to reinvest in himself the title to the instrument against a holder who had knowledge of the indorser’s infancy. The quoted words are not qualified so as to save his rights in such an assumed case. It must be admitted that the Legislature did not intend any such radical and grossly inequitable departure from a settled and salutary rule of law.” Murray v. Thompson, 136 Tenn. (9 Thomp.) 118, 188 S. W. 578.

§ 25-38. Indorsement must be of entire instrument.—An indorsement must be an indorsement of the entire instrument. An indorsement which purports to transfer to the indorsee a part only of the amount payable or which purports to transfer the instrument to two or more indorsees severally, does not operate as a negotiation of the instrument. But where the instrument has been paid in part it may be indorsed as to the residue. (Rev., s. 2181; 1899, c. 733, s. 32; C. S. 3013.)

In General.—An assignment of a note, to enable the assignee to sue thereon, must be made by the payee, and must be for the whole, and not for a part of the sum mentioned in the note. Martin v. Hayes, 44 N. C. 423.

§ 25-39. Kinds of indorsement.—An indorsement may be either in blank or special, and it may also be either restrictive or qualified or conditional. (Rev., s. 2182; 1899, c. 733, s. 33; C. S. 3014.)

§ 25-40. Special indorsement; indorsement in blank.—A special indorsement specifies the person to whom or to whose order the instrument is to be payable; and the indorsement of such indorsee is necessary to the further negotiation of the instrument. An indorsement in blank specifies no indorsee, and an instrument so indorsed is payable to bearer and may be negotiated by delivery. (Rev., s. 2183; 1899, c. 733, s. 34; C. S. 3015.)

Cross References.—As to right of holder to change blank

indorsement to special. see § 25-41; as to right of holder without indorsement when payable to order, see § 25-55 and annotations.

Indorsement Where Note Payable to Bearer.—Although a note payable to bearer may be transferred by delivery, it may also be transferred by indorsement of the holder, and in such case the indorser incurs the same obligation and liability as an indorser of a note payable to order. Lilly v. Baker, 88 N. C. 151.

Right of Indorser in Blank When Instrument Subsequently Acquired by Delivery.—An indorsement "without recourse," but not saying to whom the bill was indorsed was an indorsement in blank, and the bill became payable to bearer; and notwithstanding that subsequent holders afterwards indorsed it in full or specially, yet when it came again to C. by delivery, he had a right to demand payment of the bill from any prior indorser. French v. Barney, 23 N. C. 219.

Transfer by Blank Indorsement Presumed.—An indorsement in blank by the payee of a note is presumed to have been intended as a transfer thereof. Davis v. Morgan, 64 N. C. 570. And nothing else appearing such indorsement constitutes a transfer of the note. Coffin v. Smith, 128 N. C. 252, 38 S. E. 864; but as between the immediate parties parcel evidence is admissible to show a qualified or special contract. Hoffman v. Moore, 82 N. C. 313; Bank v. Pegram, 118 N. C. 671, 24 S. E. 487; Mendenhall v. Davis, 72 N. C. 150; Hill v. Shields, 81 N. C. 251.

Title of Attorney Holding for Collection.—A bond indorsed in blank and given to an attorney for collection amounts to an assignment of title, and conveys authority to the attorney to dispose of it as his own. Parker v. Stallings, 61 N. C. 590; Bradford v. Williams, 91 N. C. 7.

Indorsement to Particular Class Is Special.—The designation of a particular class is sufficient to render an endorsement special, and therefore an indorsement to "any bank, banker or trust company" is a special indorsement precluding the further negotiation of the instrument without the endorsement of one of the class specified. Edgecombe Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Security Nat. Bank, 216 N. C. 246, 4 S. E. (2d) 863.

§ 25-41. How blank indorsement changed to special indorsement.—The holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement by writing over the signature of the indorser in blank any contract consistent with the character of the indorsement. (Rev., s. 2184; 1899, c. 733, s. 35; C. S. 3016.)

Changing Liability by Filling Blank.—In case of an indorsement in blank any holder may fill in the blank over the signature thus making it payable to himself or some other person. But by filling in over the indorsement the holder cannot change the indorser's liability. Lilly v. Baker, 88 N. C. 151.

Time of Filling Blank.—Where a note is indorsed in blank, the holder has the authority to make it payable to himself or to any other person by filling up the blank over the signature, and this may be done at or before the trial. Johnson v. Hooker, 47 N. C. 29; Lilly v. Baker, 88 N. C. 151. It then becomes a special indorsement. Tyson v. Joyner, 139 N. C. 70, 74, 51 S. E. 803.

§ 25-42. When indorsement restrictive.—An indorsement is restrictive which either (1) prohibits the further negotiation of the instrument; or (2) constitutes the indorsee the agent of the indorser; or (3) vests the title in the indorsee in trust for, or to the use of, some other person. But the mere absence of words implying power to negotiate does not make an indorsement restrictive. (Rev., s. 2185; 1899, c. 733, s. 36; C. S. 3017.)

Cross Reference.—See notes to § 25-43.

§ 25-43. Effect of restrictive indorsement; rights of indorsee.—A restrictive indorsement confers upon the indorsee the right (1) to receive payment of the instrument; (2) to bring any action thereon that the indorser could bring; (3) to transfer his rights as such indorsee, where the form of the indorsement authorizes him to do so. But all subsequent indorsees acquire only the title of the first indorsee under the restrictive indorsement. (Rev., s. 2186; 1899, c. 733, s. 37; C. S. 3018.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the passage of this and the preceding section it was uniformly held in this State that a bank holding a note under a restricted indorsement for collection could not bring suit in its own name, but must bring suit in the name of the indorser. In Bank v. Exum, 163 N. C. 199, 79 S. E. 498, decided after this section, the same rule was followed, the court citing prior cases and not referring to this and the preceding section. The case of Bank v. Rochamora, 193 N. C. 1, 136 S. E. 259, decided the same question and follows the prior ruling.

In 5 N. C. Law Rev. 369, there appears a discussion and criticism of these cases, citing cases of other states where this section has been adopted with the Negotiable Instrument Law, showing that in most jurisdictions it is held that a bank as endorsee for collection can bring suit in its own name, as it has legal title although holding in trust.

Construing this section of the N. I. L. with the section under civil procedure, which provides that every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, we think section 1-57 is mandatory and compelling. We think the decision of Bank v. Exum, 163 N. C. 199, 79 S. E. 498, correct in principle and founded on a just and reasonable interpretation of the statutes applicable and cognate. To say a collecting agency, because it is a bank, can sue in its own name would be to say that any attorney or any kind of collecting agent can likewise enter suit by reason of the agency. We do not think our statute allows this construction as to favoritism. The contrary construction would permit the real owner of the instrument to defeat all equities of the maker by simply turning it over to an agent for collection. Bank v. Rochamora, 193 N. C. 1, 136 S. E. 259; Federal Reserve Bank v. Whitford, 207 N. C. 267, 176 S. E. 584.

In General.—There are general and restrictive indorsements. In case of restrictive indorsement the indorsee can not indorse to one, who will become a holder in due course, and have a right to sue either indorser. A restrictive indorsement restricts the rights of the indorsee to specified steps. Drew v. Jacobs, 6 N. C. 138.

Indorsed as Collateral Security.—A note indorsed to a bank is restrictive where the indorsement is unrestricted, if it appears that the note is only indorsed as collateral security, and for collection, or it appears that the indorser had been given depositor's credit for the amount of the note with the right to charge back in case of dishonor. Packing Co. v. Davis, 118 N. C. 548, 24 S. E. 365.

Rights of Restricted Endorsee.—A draft or bill which is transferred to a bank by restrictive indorsement, as for deposit or for collection, is taken and held by the bank as agent of the indorser, and for the purpose indicated, and subject to the right of the indorser to arrest payment or divert the proceeds in the hands of any intermediate or subagent who has taken the paper for a like purpose and affected by the restriction. Boykin v. Bank, 118 N. C. 566, 24 S. E. 357; Bank v. Hubble, 117 N. Y. 384; Balback v. Frelinghyser, 15 Fed. 675; Tyson & Rawles v. Bank, 77 Md. 412; Murchinson Nat. Bank v. Oil Mills, 150 N. C. 718, 721, 64 S. E. 885.

Indorsement Enlarging Liability.—"Demand, notice and protest waived, payment guaranteed by the undersigned" is an indorsement with an enlarged liability. The language makes the holder one in due course and the instrument is taken free from equities and defenses which the maker has against the payee. Richmond Guano Co. v. Walston, 191 N. C. 797, 801, 133 S. E. 196.

§ 25-44. Qualified indorsement.—A qualified indorsement constitutes the indorser a mere assignor of the title to the instrument. It may be made by adding to the indorser's signature the words "without recourse" or any words of similar import. Such an indorsement does not impair the negotiable character of the instrument. (Rev., s. 2187; 1899, c. 733, s. 38; C. S. 3019.)

Cross Reference.—As to instrument with indorsement enlarging liability, see notes to § 25-43.

Effect of Indorsement without Recourse.—Notes indorsed by the payee named therein, who wrote above his signature on the back of each note the words, "without recourse," is a qualified indorsement. Its effect is to constitute the indorser a mere assignor of the title to the note, which he held at the date of the indorsement. It does not impair the negotiable character of the note so indorsed. Bank v. Hatcher, 151 N. C. 359, 66 S. E. 308; Evans v. Freeman, 142

N. C. 61, 54 S. E. 847; Walter v. Kilpatrick, 191 N. C. 458, 462, 132 S. E. 148.

Alone, a qualified indorsement is not sufficient notice as to discredit a negotiable instrument, but when combined with other suspicious facts it may become evidence to show infirmities. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Branson, 165 N. C. 344, 81 S. E. 410.

Qualifying Words May Precede or Follow Signature.—The words qualifying an endorsement of a negotiable instrument, such as "without recourse" and words of like effect, may either precede or follow the signature of the transferor of title. Medlin v. Miles, 201 N. C. 683, 161 S. E. 207.

Qualified Indorser May Be Liable on Warranties.—A negotiable instrument transferred by an endorsement reading "for value received I hereby sell, transfer and assign all my right, title and interest to within note to M." assigns title to the instrument by qualified endorsement, exempting the transferor from all liability as a general endorser, except that he is still chargeable with implied warranties as a seller. Medlin v. Miles, 201 N. C. 683, 161 S. E. 207.

§ 25-45. Conditional indorsement.—Where an indorsement is conditional, a party required to pay the instrument may disregard the condition and make payment to the indorsee or his transferee, whether the condition has been fulfilled or not. But any person to whom an instrument so indorsed is negotiated will hold the same or the proceeds thereof subject to the rights of the person indorsing conditionally. (Rev., s. 2188; 1899, c. 733, s. 39; C. S. 3020.)

Cross Reference.—As to indorsement with enlarged liability, see notes to § 25-43.

In General.—An indorsement to "A. B. for sixty days," if conditional is only a guaranty for sixty days, if unconditional it is only to be in force for a limited time. Johnson v. Olive, 60 N. C. 213.

§ 25-46. Indorsement of instrument payable to bearer.—Where an instrument payable to bearer is indorsed specially, it may nevertheless be further negotiated by delivery; but the person indorsing specially is liable as indorser to only such holders as make title through his indorsement. (Rev., s. 2189; 1899, c. 733, s. 40; C. S. 3021.)

Cross References.—As to special indorsee indorsing in blank, see notes to § 25-40; as to who is bearer, see § 25-15.

§ 25-47. Indorsement of instrument payable to two or more persons.—Where an instrument is payable to the order of two or more payees or indorsees who are not partners, all must indorse unless the one indorsing has authority to indorse for the others. (Rev., s. 2190; 1899, c. 733, s. 41; C. S. 3022.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 92.

§ 25-48. Effect of instrument drawn or indorsed to a person as cashier.—Where an instrument is drawn or indorsed to a person as cashier or other fiscal officer of a bank or corporation it is deemed prima facie to be payable to the bank or corporation of which he is such officer, and may be negotiated by either the indorsement of the bank or corporation or the indorsement of the officer. (Rev., s. 2191; 1899, c. 733, s. 42; C. S. 3023.)

§ 25-49. Indorsement, where payee's name misspelled.—Where the name of a payee or indorsee is wrongly designated or misspelled he may indorse the instrument as there described, adding, if he think fit, his proper signature. (Rev., s. 2192; 1899, c. 733, s. 43; C. S. 3024.)

§ 25-50. Indorsement in representative capacity.—Where any person is under obligation to indorse in a representative capacity he may indorse in such terms as to negative personal liability. (Rev., s. 2193; 1899, c. 733, s. 44; C. S. 3025.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability of person signing as agent, see § 25-26.

§ 25-51. Presumption as to time of indorsement.—Except where an indorsement bears date after the maturity of the instrument, every negotiation is deemed prima facie to have been effected before the instrument was overdue. (Rev., s. 2194; 1899, c. 733, s. 45; C. S. 3026.)

In General.—Indorsements in blank upon negotiable instruments are presumed to be made contemporaneously with the execution of such instrument. Southerland v. Freemont, 107 N. C. 565, 12 S. E. 237.

Indorsement to a Deceased Person.—Where a negotiable instrument has been indorsed to a decedent, and it is found among his papers, the indorsement not bearing a date, he is prima facie presumed to have acquired it in due course.

Cited in Mansfield v. Wade, 208 N. C. 790, 182 S. E. 475.

§ 25-52. Presumption as to place of indorsement.—Except where the contrary appears, every indorsement is presumed prima facie to have been made at the place where the instrument is dated. (Rev., s. 2195; 1899, c. 733, s. 46; C. S. 3027.)

§ 25-53. Continuation of negotiable character.—An instrument negotiable in its origin continues to be negotiable until it has been restrictively indorsed or discharged by payment or otherwise. (Rev., s. 2196; 1899, c. 733, s. 47; C. S. 3028.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations under § 25-43.

Applied in Dunlap v. London Guaranty, etc., Co., 202 N. C. 651, 163 S. E. 750.

§ 25-54. Striking out indorsement.—The holder may at any time strike out any indorsement which is not necessary to his title. The indorser whose indorsement is struck out and all indorsers subsequent to him are thereby relieved from liability on the instrument. (Rev., s. 2197; 1899, c. 733, s. 48; C. S. 3029.)

Cross Reference.—As to negotiation by prior party, see note to § 25-56.

In General.—An indorser in full, who takes up a bill, is remitted to his former title, and may strike out his indorsement and sue as indorsee those standing before him on the bill, although he may have once made a restrictive indorsement. French v. Barney, 23 N. C. 219, 221.

Suit without Striking Subsequent Indorsees.—An indorser of a note may strike out the subsequent indorsers and bring suit, or he may bring suit without striking the subsequent indorsers, as possession is prima facie evidence of payment to the indorsee. Smith v. St. Lawrence, 2 N. C. 174.

§ 25-55. Effect of transfer without indorsement.—Where the holder of an instrument payable to his order transfers it for value without indorsing it, the transfer vests in the transferee such title as the transferor had therein, and the transferee acquires in addition the right to have the indorsement of the transferor. But for the purpose of determining whether the transferee is a holder in due course, the negotiation takes effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. (Rev., s. 2198; 1899, c. 733, s. 49; C. S. 3030.)

Cross Reference.—As to indorsement in blank, see § 25-40.

In General.—Where a note is payable to order and not to bearer, the indorsement of the payee is necessary to transfer the legal title; and where this is not done, a subsequent holder is not one in due course, though the instrument may have been indorsed to him for value by an intermediate holder. Elgin City Banking Co. v. McEachern, 163 N. C. 333, 79 S. E. 680; Steinhilper v. Basnight, 153 N. C. 293, 69 S. E. 220; Tyson v. Joyner, 139 N. C. 69, 51 S. E. 803. See also, Foxman v. Hanes, 218 N. C. 722, 12 S. E. (2d) 258.

Endorsement is not the only mode by which an interest in notes may be assigned in view of this section. Dozier v. Leary, 196 N. C. 12, 144 S. E. 368, applied this rule in a case where a husband transferred his interest in a note executed by him and his wife by a registered paper writing, which was held competent evidence in an action by the transferee for one-half the proceeds of the note.

Payable to Order of Maker.—One making a note payable to her own order and delivering it to another without indorsement does not make the holder a holder in due course. Planters Bank v. Yelverton, 185 N. C. 314, 117 S. E. 299.

When Indorsement Must Be Proven.—Where the plaintiff at the trial presented the draft sued on, with the name of the drawee stamped on the back and testified that the draft had been discounted to him by the drawee before maturity for value and without notice, he is only the equitable owner, in the absence of proof that the instrument had been indorsed, and he holds it subject to any valid defense open to the maker, and it was error to exclude evidence tending to show fraud. Mayers v. McRimmon, 140 N. C. 640, 53 S. E. 447.

Indorsing Two Notes Folded Together.—Where two notes are folded together and only one of them is indorsed, the indorsement is operative only to the one indorsed though the intention of the parties was otherwise. National Bank v. Leonard, 91 Ga. 805, 18 S. E. 32.

Where Assignee Is Not Holder in Due Course of a Collateral Note.—Where a note is assigned as collateral security for another note, and the assignee holds the collateral note without procuring the endorsement of the assignor until after the collateral note is past due, the assignee is not a holder in due course of the collateral note, and takes same subject to all equities existing in favor of the maker of the collateral note as against the payee who assigned same. Hare v. Hare, 208 N. C. 442, 181 S. E. 246.

§ 25-56. When prior party may negotiate instrument.—Where an instrument is negotiated back to a prior party, such party may, subject to the provisions of this chapter, reissue and further negotiate the same. But he is not entitled to enforce payment thereof against any intervening party to whom he was personally liable. (Rev., s. 2199; 1899, c. 733, s. 50; C. S. 3031.)

Editor's Note.—In 1 N. C. Law Rev. 187 there is a discussion of the N. I. L. which includes this and section 25-64. The rule seems to be as laid down in Adrian v. McCaskill, 103 N. C. 182, 9 S. E. 284, that one who obtains possession of a negotiable instrument after having formerly indorsed it is restored to his former position and cannot hold indorsers subsequent to his first indorsement. The reason for this rule is clearly to avoid circuitry of action for the subsequent indorsers would eventually hold him liable under his first indorsement.

One who obtains possession of a note or bill after endorsing it is restored to his original position and cannot hold intermediate parties; and one who acquires possession of the instrument from such person, with notice of the fact, cannot hold the intermediate endorser. Ray v. Livingston, 204 N. C. 1, 4, 167 S. E. 496.

Art. 5. Rights of Holder.

§ 25-57. Right of holder to sue; payment.—The holder of a negotiable instrument may sue thereon in his own name, and payment to him in due course discharges the instrument. (Rev., s. 2200; 1899, c. 733, s. 51; C. S. 3032.)

Cross References.—As to right of bank, holding for collection, to sue, see § 25-43; as to definition of holder, see § 25-1; as to presumption that holder is holder in due course, see § 25-65.

Holder May Sue without Proof of Endorsing Signatures.—Possession of a note raises the presumption that the possessor is a holder thereof and he may sue thereon without proof of the signatures of the endorsers, since a mere holder of a negotiable instrument may sue thereon in his own name. Dillingham v. Gardner, 219 N. C. 227, 13 S. E. (2d) 478.

§ 25-58. What constitutes holder in due course.—A holder in due course is a holder who has taken the instrument under the following conditions: (1) That the instrument is complete and regular upon its face; (2) that he became the holder of it before it was overdue and without notice that it has been previously dishonored, if such was the fact; (3) that he took it for good faith and value; (4) that at the time it was negotiated to him he had no notice of any infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating it. (Rev., s. 2201; 1899, c. 733, s. 52; C. S. 3033.)

Cross References.—As to defenses which may or may not be set up against a holder in due course, see § 25-63 and notes; as to defective title, see § 25-61; as to presumption in favor of holder, see § 25-65; as to defenses which are good as against a holder in due course, see note to § 25-61.

Indorsement Necessary.—To constitute a holder in due course it is required that the instrument be indorsed. Bank v. Yelverton, 185 N. C. 314, 117 S. E. 299; Mayers v. McRimmon, 140 N. C. 640, 53 S. E. 447. See also Keith v. Henderson County, 204 N. C. 21, 24, 167 S. E. 481.

Same—Taking Without Notice.—A holder of a note not indorsed to him is not a holder in due course, and it makes no difference if he had no notice of the equities of the parties, he is subject to them nevertheless. Steinhilper v. Basnight, 153 N. C. 293, 69 S. E. 220.

Indorsement Implies "Due Course."—The holder of a negotiable instrument duly indorsed is, prima facie, a purchaser for value, in good faith, before maturity, and without notice of any defect in the title of the person negotiating it. Worth Co. v. International Feed Co., 172 N. C. 335, 342, 90 S. E. 295; Smathers v. Toxaway Hotel Co., 163 N. C. 69, 84 S. E. 47.

Admission of Indorsement to Holder.—The admission by the maker of a promissory note that it had been indorsed to the plaintiff in due course raises the presumption prima facie that he is a holder in due course, and the prima facie case is not rebutted by a denial in the pleadings. Gulf States Steel Co. v. Ford, 173 N. C. 195, 91 S. E. 844.

The transfer by endorsement to another of a bond indemnifying a bank from any loss which it might sustain by reason of its taking over the assets and discharging the liabilities of another bank, is an assignment of a chose in action, and the assignee is not a holder in due course. North Carolina Bank, etc., Co. v. Williams, 201 N. C. 464, 160 S. E. 484.

Defective Title Rebutts Presumption.—The presumption that every holder is a holder in due course does not apply when it is alleged and shown that the negotiable instrument was indorsed by one whose title was defective. Whitman v. York, 192 N. C. 87, 93, 133 S. E. 427; American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Seagraves, 166 N. C. 608, 82 S. E. 947.

Fraud as Preventing Party from Being Holder in Due Course.—Where the endorser alleged in his answer that he signed the note upon representations made by the maker that the payee was lending the money to the maker to finance the equipment of a law office, that in fact the note was given to cover funds of the payee on deposit in a bank which had been wrongfully converted by the maker, and that the payee had full knowledge of, agreed to, and participated in, the fraudulent scheme to procure the endorser to sign the note by such false representations, the answer was sufficiently broad to allege fraud, and the payee was not a holder in due course under this section. Mitchell v. Strickland, 207 N. C. 141, 176 S. E. 468.

Wrongful Procurement by Agent of Holder.—Defendant's evidence tended to show that he executed the note in suit to be used to pay for shares of stock of the corporate payee, that the stock was never delivered to him and consequently the note was never delivered by him, but that the note was procured from his office without his knowledge or consent by the president of the payee who was also a collecting agent for a bank, and who turned the note over to the bank as collateral security for his company's note. Held: If in procuring the note the president of the company was acting as an agent of the company, knowledge of the infirmity, nothing else appearing, would not be imputed to the bank and it would be a holder in due course, while if, in procuring the note, he was acting as agent of the bank it would have imputed knowledge of the infirmity and would not be a holder in due course, and therefore, it being admitted that he was an agent of the bank, an instruction that the maker could not be held liable if the note had been taken by an agent of the bank, without further elaboration, is error. National Bank v. Marshburn, 217 N. C. 688, 9 S. E. (2d) 372.

When Burden Shifts to Holder.—A holder of a note to show that he is a holder in due course without notice must do so by the greater weight of evidence when the maker pleads and shows fraud, infirmity or defective title. Discount Co. v. Baker, 176 N. C. 546, 97 S. E. 495; Myers v. Petty, 153 N. C. 462, 69 S. E. 417; Bank v. Branson, 165 N. C. 344, 81 S. E. 410; Hooker v. Hardee, 192 N. C. 229, 134 S. E. 485; Bank v. Fountain, 148 N. C. 590, 595, 62 S. E. 738; Smathers v. Toxaway Hotel Co., 168 N. C. 69, 84 S. E. 47.

When a holder of a note admits certain infirmities in the note, in an action to recover on the note, the burden is upon him to show that he is a holder in due course. Whitman v. York, 192 N. C. 87, 133 S. E. 427.

The holder of a negotiable note is presumed to be a holder in due course, but, when its execution is proved to have been obtained by fraud, the burden then shifts to him to prove that he took it before maturity, for value and without notice. Williams v. Green, 23 Fed. (2d) 796.

Enlarged Liability of Indorser Does Not Affect Negotiability.—A negotiable note indorsed to a holder, bearing an enlarged liability—a guaranty of payment, makes the holder a holder in due course in spite of the enlarged liability of the indorser. Richmond Guano Co. v. Walston, 191 N. C. 797, 133 S. E. 196.

Renewal Note after Notice.—A bank purchasing a note after maturity takes it subject to the equities of the parties. A subsequent note taken as a renewal of the first will not cure the defect and such holder cannot enforce payment. Grace & Co. v. Strickland, 188 N. C. 369, 124 S. E. 856; Merchants Nat. Bank v. Howard, 188 N. C. 543, 125 S. E. 126.

Holder for Collection.—A bank taking a note for collection is not a holder in due course. Insurance Co. v. Cotton Mill Co., 187 N. C. 233, 121 S. E. 439; Bank v. Rochamora, 193 N. C. 1, 136 S. E. 259.

Town as Holder in Due Course of Bonds.—Where a bank pledged certain bonds to secure the deposit of a town, the town acquired the bonds for value as security for a pre-existing indebtedness which is sufficient to constitute it a holder in due course within the meaning of this section. Standard Inv. Co. v. Snow Hill, 78 F. (2d) 33.

Holder of Note Obtaining Same by Indorsement after Maturity Is Not Holder in Due Course.—Mansfield v. Wade, 208 N. C. 790, 182 S. E. 475.

Drafts Charged Back.—The fact that there is a custom among banks to take drafts for collection, and charge them back if they are unpaid, is not sufficient evidence to show that a bank holding a draft is not a holder in due course. Lumber Co. v. Childerhose, 167 N. C. 34, 83 S. E. 22; nor will the charging back of a check which is unpaid, make the holder bank a holder for collection, if the back charge was against an account that consisted of deposited checks that were later returned unpaid. Standard Trust Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 240 Fed. 303.

Question for Jury.—Whether the execution of notes were induced by fraudulent representations, held, a question for jury. Clark v. Laurel Park Estates, 196 N. C. 624, 146 S. E. 584.

Same—Duty to Instruct.—Where there is evidence that the holder of a negotiable instrument had notice of its infirmity, the question is for the jury, and a failure to instruct thereon is reversible error. Peoples Bank, etc., Co. v. Duncan, 194 N. C. 692, 140 S. E. 610.

Applied in Wellons v. Warren, 203 N. C. 178, 165 S. E. 545; Bankers' Trust Co. v. Statesville, 203 N. C. 399, 166 S. E. 169; Dyer v. Bray, 208 N. C. 248, 180 S. E. 83.

§ 25-59. When person not deemed holder in due course.—Where an instrument payable on demand is negotiated an unreasonable length of time after its issue, the holder is not deemed a holder in due course. (Rev., s. 2202; 1899, c. 733, s. 53; C. S. 3034.)

Cross Reference.—As to what is reasonable time, see § 25-3 and note.

In General.—A cashier's check negotiated to a holder in another state within five days is negotiated in a reasonable time. Manufacturing Co. v. Summers, 143 N. C. 102, 55 S. E. 522.

Cited in State, etc., Trust Co. v. Hedrick, 198 N. C. 374, 151 S. E. 723.

Cross Reference.—As to what constitutes notice, see § 25-62.

In General.—The title passes to one who takes a negotiable paper without notice of any defect or equities no matter how little he paid, in the absence of fraud. If there is fraud he is only entitled to what he has paid before receiving notice of the fraud. Bank v. McNair, 116 N. C. 550, 21 S. E. 389.

Taken as Collateral Security.—Where the original consideration of the paper is illegal or fraudulent, or it is taken as collateral security, the right of recovery is restricted to the consideration actually paid by the indorsee before notice of the fraud. Dresser v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 93 U. S. 92, 95, 23 L. Ed. 815, or the amount of the debt to which it is collateral. Kerr v. Cowen, 17 N. C. 356; United States Nat. Bank v. McNair, 116 N. C. 550, 551, 554, 21 S. E. 389.

§ 25-61. When title defective.—The title of a person who negotiates an instrument is defective within the meaning of this chapter when he obtained the instrument, or any signature thereto, by fraud, duress or force and fear or other unlawful means, or for an illegal consideration, or when he negotiates it in breach of faith or under such circumstances as amount to a fraud. (Rev., s. 2204; 1899, c. 733, s. 55; C. S. 3036.)

Cross Reference.—As to burden of proof when title defective, see § 25-65.

Editor's Note.—A careful reading of this section will reveal that it applies to "the title of a person who negotiates" and thus has full knowledge of or the means of knowing the circumstances. The question of whether or not fraud, duress, usury, illegality of consideration, etc., will render the instrument unenforceable in the hands of a person in due course without notice presents itself.

In the case of the fraud which is sufficient to avoid an instrument as to such holder there is a considerable amount of conflict. See 8 C. J. sections 1048, 1049, pp. 789, 790. However, it would seem that the better rule is that fraud ordinarily renders the instrument voidable only, and therefore, in accordance with the general rule is not a good defense as against a holder in due course where he proves himself to be such in accordance with section 25-65. See Discount Co. v. Baker, 176 N. C. 546, 97 S. E. 495, and citations.

Of course, it might be that upon principle, the rule should be that where one who has been induced through fraud to sign an instrument the actual terms of which he has no knowledge and signs thinking he is signing a different instrument, as for example, where he cannot read and he depended upon the payee to read the terms to him correctly, which the payee did not do, should be allowed to defend against holders in due course, because in such cases the instrument is in fact no more the maker's than if it were forged or altered and this should be placed in the same category. But, be this as it may, where the maker has proved such fraud or deception the burden of proving that the holder is one in due course is upon the holder and he cannot recover if he fails to sustain the burden. See section 25-65; Discount Co. v. Baker, supra; Duncan v. Carson, 127 Va. 306, 103 S. E. 665, 105 S. E. 62.

As to duress as a defense, see 8 C. J. section 1027, p. 761; illegality of consideration, 8 C. J. sections 1031, 1032, p. 766, gambling transactions, 8 C. J. section 1031, p. 769.

Rights of Holders of Notes Tainted with Usury or Illegality.—The exceptions to the rule of section 25-65 are: (1) When by statute the paper is void in whole or in part from its inception, as for usury or for gaming or immoral contracts. In such cases it is void to the same extent into whose hands it may pass, even if acquired before maturity, for value and without notice, and the sole remedy of the holder for the deficiency is against the indorser. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 18 S. E. 717, and cases there cited. (2)

[Where the original consideration of the paper is illegal or fraudulent, or it is taken as collateral security, the right of recovery is restricted to the consideration actually paid by the indorsee before notice of the fraud. Dresser v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 93 U. S. 92, 23 L. Ed. 815, or the amount of the debt to which it is collateral. Kerr v. Cowen, 17 N. C. 356. But the exception does not extend further, not even to cases where the note was issued without any consideration, though it may be purchased by the indorsee for less than its face value. United States Nat. Bank v. McNair, 116 N. C. 550, 21 S. E. 389, 390.

In the case of an instrument tainted with usury it is void to the extent declared by statute, see § 24-2 and note, and the bona fide holder cannot recover upon the portion which is void.

When Title Subject to Question.—In the absence of an allegation of fraud the intervener's title is not subject to question when suit is brought by a holder in due course. Moon v. Simpson, 170 N. C. 335, 87 S. E. 118, 172 N. C. 576, 90 S. E. 578; Worth Co. v. Feed Co., 172 N. C. 335, 90 S. E. 295.

Burden of Proof.—When it is shown or admitted that the title of the person who negotiated the instrument is defective, or there is evidence of the fact, it is necessary for a recovery by one claiming to be the holder in due course to show by the greater weight of the evidence that he is such a holder according to the terms of section 25-58. Manufacturing Co. v. Summers, 143 N. C. 102, 108, 55 S. E. 522; Smathers & Co. v. Toxaway Hotel Co., 168 N. C. 69, 84 S. E. 47; Bank v. Fountain, 148 N. C. 590, 62 S. E. 738; Bank v. Branson, 165 N. C. 344, 81 S. E. 410; First Nat. Bank v. Warsaw Drug Co., 166 N. C. 99, 100, 81 S. E. 993; Whitman v. York, 192 N. C. 87, 133 S. E. 427; Hooker v. Hardee, 192 N. C. 229, 134 S. E. 485; Moon v. Simpson, 170 N. C. 335, 337, 87 S. E. 118.

Cited in Bank v. Rochamora, 193 N. C. 1, 136 S. E. 259; Clark v. Laurel Park Estates, 196 N. C. 624, 638, 146 S. E. 584.

§ 25-62. What constitutes notice of defect.—To constitute a notice of an infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating the same the person to whom it is negotiated must have had actual knowledge of the infirmity or defect or knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounted to bad faith. (Rev., s. 2205; 1899, c. 733, s. 56; C. S. 3037.)

In General.—Observable irregularities on the face of the instrument will no longer suffice to affect the rights of a holder in due course. It is necessary that circumstances set out in this section should occur in order to charge the holder with notice. Holleman v. Trust Co., 185 N. C. 49, 115 S. E. 825; Critchler v. Ballard, 180 N. C. 111, 112, 104 S. E. 134; Smathers & Co. v. Toxaway Hotel Co., 162 N. C. 346, 78 S. E. 224; Lacy v. Globe Indemnity Co., 189 N. C. 24, 32, 126 S. E. 316; Smathers & Co. v. Toxaway Co., 167 N. C. 469, 470, 83 S. E. 844.

In Hotchkiss v. National Banks, 88 U. S. (21 Wall.) 354, 22 L. Ed. 645 it is said: "A suspicion that there is a defect of title in the holder, or a knowledge of circumstances that might excite such suspicion in the mind of a cautious person, or even gross negligence at the time, will not defeat the title of the purchaser." Piedmont Carolina R. Co. v. Shaw, 223 Fed. 973, 977.

The fact that a note is negotiated by a stranger at a discount and one of the alternative places of payment was not known to the holder, is not sufficient to put him on notice of the defects. Farthing v. Dark, 111 N. C. 243, 16 S. E. 337. This case was reported in Farthing v. Dark, 109 N. C. 291, 13 S. E. 918, but at that time the court was not advertent to the fact that there was an alternative place of payment.

When a note is signed through fraud of another, and discounted with an indorsee that had notice of this fraud, the indorsee is subject to the equities between the parties. Grace & Co. v. Strickland, 188 N. C. 369, 124 S. E. 856.

Notice to Bank Through Officers.—A note payable to an officer of a bank and discounted at the bank through the discount committee does not make the bank subject to the principle of imputed knowledge when the officer is not a member of the discount committee. Bank v. Howard, 188 N. C. 543, 125 S. E. 126.

A bank taking a note indorsed to it by its president takes with notice of all equities between the parties, when the president and cashier constitute the discount committee, as notice to the president constitutes notice to the bank. Le Duc v. Moore, 111 N. C. 516, 15 S. E. 888.

Duty to Inquire.—When a person has knowledge of such facts and circumstances which make it incumbent on him to inquire as to the character of the note which he purchased, he will be affected with knowledge of all that the inquiry would disclose. Bunting v. Ricks, 22 N. C. 130, 32 Am. Dec. 699; Hulbert v. Douglas, 94 N. C. 122. Loftin v. Hill, 131 N. C. 105, 110, 42 S. E. 548. But knowledge of the crookedness in business matters of the assignee does not defeat the title of the assignee or make it his duty to inquire relative to the note. Setzer v. Deal, 135 N. C. 428, 47 S. E. 466.

Same—Interest Past Due.—The fact that interest is past due does not of itself constitute notice of equities between the parties, but it may be considered by the jury in passing on the issue. Trust Co. v. Whitehead, 165 N. C. 74, 80 S. E. 1065.

Statement of Transaction.—A note containing on its face an express statement of the transaction for which it was given, in the absence of further evidence, is not notice of the equities between the parties. Bank v. Hatcher, 151 N. C. 359, 66 S. E. 308. See sec. 25-9 and the notes thereto.

Question for the Jury.—Where there is conflicting evidence as to notice the holder had of equities between the parties, issue should be submitted to a jury. Loftis v. Hill, 131 N. C. 105, 42 S. E. 548.

Applied in Standard Inv. Co. v. Snow Hill, 78 F. (2d) 33. Cited in New Bern Oil, etc., Co. v. National Bank, 28 Fed. (2d) 554.

§ 25-63. Rights of holder in due course.—A holder in due course holds the instrument free from any defect of title of prior parties, and free from defenses available to prior parties among themselves, and may enforce payment of the instrument for the full amount thereof against all parties liable thereon. (Rev., s. 2206; 1899, c. 733, s. 57; C. S. 3038.)

Cross Reference.—For discussion of rights of holder taking through a holder in due course, see note to § 25-64.

In General.—One taking a note as a holder in due course can, under this section, enforce his right against all prior parties, except in case of a defective title as provided in section 25-61. Bank v. McNair, 116 N. C. 550, 21 S. E. 389; Davidson v. Powell, 114 N. C. 575, 19 S. E. 601; Bank v. Griffin, 153 N. C. 72, 68 S. E. 919; Standing Stone Nat. Bank v. Walser, 162 N. C. 53, 54, 77 S. E. 1006. But see section 25-65 as to burden of proof where defect is shown.

The maker of a note may not set up defenses he may have against the payee of the note in an action by a holder in due course, but where the holder is not a holder in due course without notice, the maker may set up all defenses which he may have as against the payee. Federal Reserve Bank v. Atmore, 200 N. C. 437, 157 S. E. 129.

Where the answer sufficiently alleges that the holder was not a holder in due course for value without notice, all defenses which the defendant may have are presentable under the pleadings. Id.

Relief from Scheme to Evade Usury Laws.—Where a borrower is entitled to enforce an equity against the payee because of a device to evade the usury laws, this equity cannot be enforced against a holder in due course. Federal Reserve Bank v. Jones, 205 N. C. 648, 650, 172 S. E. 185.

Stated in Standard Inv. Co. v. Snow Hill, 78 F. (2d) 33. Cited in Dixon v. Smith, 204 N. C. 480, 168 S. E. 683; Mansfield v. Wade, 208 N. C. 790, 182 S. E. 475.

§ 25-64. When subject to original defenses.—In the hands of any holder other than a holder in due course a negotiable instrument is subject to the same defenses as if it were nonnegotiable. But a holder who derives his title through a holder in due course and who is not himself a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the instrument has all the rights of such former holder in respect of all parties prior to the latter. (Rev., s. 2207; 1899, c. 733, s. 58; C. S. 3039.)

Editor's Note.—The dictum in Pierce v. Carlton, 184 N. C. 175, 114 S. E. 13, is to the effect that one who is not a party to the fraud in procuring an instrument but who takes with notice, and then passes the instrument on to a holder in due course, will take a good title and hold as a holder in due course when he reacquires the instrument from the holder in due course. The court cites Calverts on Negotiable In- struments, sec. 805, which recognizes only one exception to the rule that one taking from a holder in due course takes good title, and that is a taking by a fraudulent payee from a holder in due course. Such fraudulent payee can't take as a holder in due course. In 1 N. C. Law Rev. 187 this dictum is criticized and it is contended that one who takes with notice of an infirmity should not be allowed to clear his title by passing it through a holder in due course, for such would open the door to fraud.

In General.—If plaintiff failed to prove that he was a holder in due course, the notes, although in his hands as a holder, other than a holder in due course, are subject to the same defenses as if they were non-negotiable. Whitman v. York, 192 N. C. 87, 90, 133 S. E. 427. A past due instrument, lodged with bank as security, is subject to all defenses. Bank v. Loughran, 126 N. C. 814, 36 S. E. 281. The transferee of an unindorsed instrument not payable to bearer also takes subject to defenses. Bresce v. Crumpton, 121 N. C. 122, 28 S. E. 351.

A holder in due course may transfer a complete title to a third person although the latter when he takes the paper has knowledge of facts which would defeat recovery by the payee. Wellons v. Warren, 203 N. C. 178, 181, 165 S. E. 545.

"But this rule is subject to the single exception that if the note were invalid as between the maker and the payee, the payee could not himself, by purchase from a bona fide holder, become successor to his rights, it not being essential to such bona fide holder's protection to extend the principle so far." Ray v. Livingston, 204 N. C. 1, 4, 157 S. E. 496.

Holder of Note after Maturity Takes Subject to Equities.—Where the holder of a negotiable note obtained same by endorsement after maturity, he takes same subject to equities, and the maker of the note may establish as against such holder that the note was paid before it was endorsed to and acquired by the holder. Mansfield v. Wade, 208 N. C. 790, 182 S. E. 475.

Purchaser after Maturity Takes Free of Agreement of Third Person to Pay Note.—A purchaser for value after maturity takes the note free from an agreement by a third person to pay the note when such third person was never a purchaser or holder of the note and the purchaser has no knowledge of such agreement between the maker and the third person. Pickett v. Fulford, 211 N. C. 160, 189 S. E. 488.

Cited in Merchants Nat. Bank v. Howard, 188 N. C. 543, 548, 125 S. E. 126.

§ 25-65. Who deemed holder in due course.—Every holder is deemed prima facie to be a holder in due course; but when it is shown that the title of any person who has negotiated the instrument was defective, the burden is on the holder to prove that he or some person under whom he claims acquired the title as a holder in due course. But the last mentioned rule does not apply in favor of a party who became bound on the instrument prior to the acquisition of such defective title. (Rev., s. 2208; 1899, c. 733, s. 59; C. S. 3040.)

Cross References.—As to what constitutes holder in due course, see § 25-58, as to exceptions to this section, see note to § 25-61.

Editor's Note.—There are several exceptions to this section, see note to section 25-61.

Holders to Whom Applicable.—The presumption that the holder is one in due course exists in favor of the holder of a draft payable to order with bill of lading attached. Manufacturing Co. v. Tierney, 133 N. C. 630, 635, 45 S. E. 1026; Mangum v. Mutual Grain Co., 184 N. C. 181, 182, 114 S. E. 2.

This presumption does not exist in favor of a holder of an unindorsed note not payable to bearer. Harlan, J., in Osgood v. Artt, 17 Fed. 575, says: "... it is ... well settled that the purchaser, if the paper be delivered to him without indorsement, takes by the law merchant only the rights which the payee has, and therefore takes subject to any defense the payor may rightfully assert as against the payee. The purchaser in such case becomes only the equitable owner of the claim or debt evidenced by the negotiable security" Tyson v. Joyner, 139 N. C. 69, 72, 51 S. E. 803.

But when a properly negotiated note is found among the papers of a deceased person that is prima facie evidence that the holder is a holder in due course, and until it is alleged and shown by a party liable on the note that it is defective, the evidence is sufficient for the administrator of the holder to recover thereon. Insurance Co. v. Jones, 191 N. C. 176, 131 S. E. 587.

When Presumption Becomes Operative—Proof of Indorsement.—The presumption becomes operative as a matter of course where there is neither allegation nor proof that the title to a negotiable instrument is defective. The holder by indorsement is only required to prove the indorsement in order for him to be deemed prima facie a holder in due course. Moon v. Simpson, 170 N. C. 335, 87 S. E. 118.

Rebuttal of Presumption.—The prima facie case is not rebutted by a mere denial in the answer of the ownership of the plaintiff. Causey v. Snow, 120 N. C. 279, 26 S. E. 775; Gulf States Steel Co. v. Ford, 173 N. C. 195, 196, 91 S. E. 844.

Defective Title—Holder's Burden of Proof.—Where fraud on the part of the payee in the procurement and issuance of the instrument is shown, the burden of proving due course is shifted to the holder. Myers v. Petty, 153 N. C. 462, 69 S. E. 417; Hooker v. Hardee, 192 N. C. 229, 134 S. E. 485; Bank v. Sherron, 186 N. C. 297, 119 S. E. 497; Bank v. Exum, 163 N. C. 199, 79 S. E. 498; Bank v. Branson, 165 N. C. 344, 349, 81 S. E. 410; American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Seagroves, 166 N. C. 608, 610, 82 S. E. 947.

This rule also applies where the holder admits infirmities in the instrument. Whitman v. York, 192 N. C. 87, 133 S. E. 427.

The burden rests upon the holder, when the title of a prior holder is shown to be defective, to show lack of knowledge of the defect. Standard Inv. Co. v. Snow Hill, 78 F. (2d) 33, 37.

The holder by indorsement must show that the instrument was indorsed before maturity. An indorsement by a rubber stamp is a valid indorsement but does not prove itself. Mayers v. McRimmon, 140 N. C. 640, 53 S. E. 447.

It was competent for the defendant to introduce evidence as to the quality of goods for which a draft was accepted in order that he might show fraud and deception and where such proof was admitted the burden of proving holding in due course devolved upon holder. Campbell v. Patton, 113 N. C. 481, 18 S. E. 687; Manufacturing Co. v. Summers, 143 N. C. 102, 109, 55 S. E. 522; Bank v. Fountain, 148 N. C. 590, 62 S. E. 738; Park v. Exum, 156 N. C. 228, 72 S. E. 309; Standing Stone Nat. Bank v. Walser, 162 N. C. 53, 62, 77 S. E. 1006; Fidelity Trust Co. v. Ellen, 163 N. C. 45, 46, 79 S. E. 263; Smathers & Co. v. Toxaway Hotel Co., 168 N. C. 69, 72, 84 S. E. 47; Bank v. Branson, 165 N. C. 344; 81 S. E. 510; Discount Co. v. Baker, 176 N. C. 546, 97 S. E. 495.

The credibility of the plaintiff's evidence that he is a holder in due course is for the jury. Manufacturing Co. v. Summers, 143 N. C. 102, 55 S. E. 522; Bank v. Fountain, 148 N. C. 590, 62 S. E. 738; Park v. Exum, 156 N. C. 228, 72 S. E. 309; Standing Stone Nat. Bank v. Walser, 162 N. C. 53, 63, 77 S. E. 1006; Fidelity Trust Co. v. Ellen, 163 N. C. 45, 46, 79 S. E. 263.

Rule applied in Merchants Nat. Bank v. Howard, 188 N. C. 543, 550, 125 S. E. 126.

Interveners Assume Burden of Proving Title.—Where a forwarding bank intervenes and claims title to a draft of a nonresident debtor attached in the hands of a local bank, the burden is on the intervener to show its title to the property attached. Sterling Mills v. Milling Co., 184 N. C. 461, 114 S. E. 756.

Renewal Note Subject to Defenses against the Original.—If a note is negotiated after maturity and then taken up by a renewal note, the renewal note is subject to all the equities the original note was subject to. Grace v. Strickland, 188 N. C. 369, 124 S. E. 856.

Section applied in Manufacturing Co. v. Summers, 143 N. C. 102, 109, 55 S. E. 522; Dyer v. Bray, 208 N. C. 248, 180 S. E. 83.

Art. 6. Liabilities of Parties.

§ 25-66. Liability of maker.—The maker of a negotiable instrument by making it engages that he will pay it according to its tenor, and admits the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse. (Rev., s. 2209; 1899, c. 733, s. 60; C. S. 3041.)

§ 25-67. Liability of drawer.—The drawer by drawing the instrument admits the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse, and engages that on due presentment the instrument will be accepted or paid, or both, according to its tenor, and that if it be dishonored and the necessary proceedings on dishonor be duly taken, he will pay the amount thereof to the holder or to any subsequent indorser who may be compelled to pay it. But the drawer may insert in the instrument an express stipulation negating or limiting his own liability to the holder. (Rev., s. 2210; 1899, c. 733, s. 61; C. S. 3042.)

Cross Reference.—See note under § 53-71.

Right of Drawer to Arrest Payment.—A drawer of a draft, ordinarily standing towards subsequent parties as a general endorser, may, by appropriate words appearing on the paper, or by agreement dehors the instrument as to persons affected with notice, retain the right to arrest payment. Murchison Nat. Bank v. Dunn Oil Mills Co., 150 N. C. 718, 64 S. E. 885.

Where a draft or bill is transferred to a bank by restrictive indorsement, as for deposit or for collection, the instrument is taken and held by the bank as agent for the indorser, and for the purpose indicated, and subject to the right of the indorser to arrest payment or divert the proceeds in the hands of any intermediate or subagent who has taken the paper for like purpose and affected by the restriction. Boykin v. Bank, 118 N. C. 566, 24 S. E. 357; Bank v. Hubble, 117 N. Y. 384; Balbach v. Frelinghuysen, 15 Fed. 675; Tyson & Rawles v. Bank, 77 Md. 412; Murchison Nat. Bank v. Dunn Oil Mills Co., 150 N. C. 718, 721, 64 S. E. 885.

Rights of Holder without Notice of Restrictions.—When a bank to which a draft, appearing on its face to be negotiable, is forwarded by another bank, purchases it for value, without notice of an agreement restricting its negotiation, the drawer may not stop payment of the draft as against the rights of the bank so holding the paper. Murchison Nat. Bank v. Dunn Oil Mills Co., 150 N. C. 718, 64 S. E. 885.

Cited in Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 262, 148 S. E. 253.

§ 25-68. Liability of acceptor.—The acceptor by accepting the instrument engages that he will pay it according to the tenor of his acceptance; and admits (1) existence of the drawer, the genuineness of his signature and his capacity and authority to draw the instrument; and (2) the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse. (Rev., s. 2211; 1899, c. 733, s. 62; C. S. 3043.)

Cross Reference.—As to unlawfulness of bank to handle draft connected with receipt for liquor the sale of which is unauthorized, see § 18-33.

Burden on Acceptor to Prove Signature of Drawer.—When a check drawn against a depositor of a bank is paid by the bank, in an action to recover deposits, the burden is on the bank to show that the check was signed by the depositor as maker. Yarborough v. Trust Co., 142 N. C. 377, 55 S. E. 296.

Where the cashing bank acts in good faith, the drawee cannot recover the amount which it has paid on the forged check. The drawee should know the signature of the drawer, its own depositor, better than the holder. The drawee cannot plead a custom that would entitle it to pay such draft without the signature being genuine. The fact that the cashing bank stamped the check "all prior indorsements guaranteed" makes no difference to the drawee, as that guarantee is only applicable to subsequent holders in due course. State Bank v. Savings etc., Co., 168 N. C. 605, 608, 85 S. E. 5.

When Forgery Known to Drawee.—Where a depositor is aware of forgery and indorses the check, and it is accordingly credited to him without knowledge of such facts on the part of the bank, the bank may return the check to such depositor and rightfully charge his account therewith, without reference to any fraudulent intent on his part. Woodward v. Savings, etc., Co., 178 N. C. 184, 100 S. E. 304.

Mistake Not Grounds for Repudiating Acceptance.—When a bank credits a depositor with the amount of a check drawn upon it by another customer, and there is no want of good faith on the part of the depositor, the act of crediting is equivalent to a payment in money, and the bank cannot recall or repudiate the payment because later it is ascertained that the drawer was without funds to meet the check, though when the payment was made the officials labored under the mistake that there were funds sufficient. Woodward v. Savings, etc., Co., 178 N. C. 184, 186, 100 S. E. 304.

Cited in Seymour v. Peoples Bank, 212 N. C. 707, 194 S. E. 464, 116 A. L. R. 682.

§ 25-69. When person deemed indorser.—A person placing his signature upon an instrument otherwise than as maker, drawer or acceptor is deemed to be an indorser, unless he clearly indicates by appropriate words his intention to be bound in some other capacity. (Rev., s. 2212; 1899, c. 733, s. 63; C. S. 3044.)

In General.—A person indorsing a note at the time it is made should be held as original promisor. If the note is indorsed after delivery to the payee and negotiated, the indorsement binds the indorser as indorser only, but if it is not negotiated he is liable as guarantor. Lilly v. Baker, 88 N. C. 151.

Persons placing their names on the back of the note are, therefore, nothing else appearing, indorsers and liable on the note only as indorsers. Perry v. Taylor, 148 N. C. 362, 62 S. E. 423; Houser v. Fayssoux, 168 N. C. 1, 83 S. E. 692; Bank v. Wilson, 168 N. C. 557, 84 S. E. 866; Meyers v. Battle, 170 N. C. 168, 86 S. E. 1034; Barber v. Absher Co., 175 N. C. 602, 96 S. E. 43; Gillam v. Walker, 189 N. C. 189; 126 S. E. 424. Dillard v. Farmers Mercantile Co., 190 N. C. 225, 227, 129 S. E. 598.

Such "appropriate words" as provided by this section, must appear upon the instrument itself or in some sufficient writing attached thereto and becoming an essential and integral part thereof, and parol evidence is not admissible to show that one signing as endorser is primarily liable on the note. Waddell v. Hood, 207 N. C. 250, 176 S. E. 558.

Indorsement as Surety.—When it is set out in the body of a note that indorsers on the back are sureties, they will be held liable as sureties and not as indorsers. Dillard v. Mercantile Co., 190 N. C. 225, 129 S. E. 598.

When Parol Evidence Admissible.—Parol evidence is admissible as between the parties to explain the instrument. For example, "the surety on the face of a note, and an accommodation indorser, may, as between themselves, be shown by parol to be co-sureties by virtue of a verbal understanding to that effect. So, several successive accommodation indorsers of a negotiable instrument may be shown by parol to be co-sureties." Brandt Suretyship Guaranty, Vol. 1 (3 ed.), pp. 562-3; Sykes v. Everett, 167 N. C. 600, 83 S. E. 585; Gillam v. Walker, 189 N. C. 189, 126 S. E. 424.

But it is not competent to show that the liability of one whose name is written on the back of a note as an indorser is primary, and not secondary, for the purpose of sustaining the contention that notice of dishonor by nonpayment is dispensed with. Busbee v. Creech, 192 N. C. 499, 500, 135 S. E. 326; Fourth Nat. Bank v. Wilson, 168 N. C. 557, 84 S. E. 866.

Where the directors of a corporation sign a negotiable instrument on the back thereof as endorsers, the holder may not show by parol that they signed as co-makers, or guarantors, or sureties. Wrenn v. Lawrence Cotton Mills, 198 N. C. 89, 150 S. E. 676.

Testimony in direct contradiction of the written agreement as expressed in the indorsement to "guarantee payment of this note . . . with full knowledge of this contract," should be excluded under this section. Carr v. Clark, 205 N. C. 265, 266, 171 S. E. 88.

Applied in Corporation Commission v. Wilkinson, 201 N. C. 344, 160 S. E. 292; Hyde v. Tatham, 204 N. C. 160, 167 S. E. 626.

Cited in Nance v. Hulin, 192 N. C. 665, 135 S. E. 774; Howell v. Robertson, 197 N. C. 572, 150 S. E. 32.

§ 25-70. Liability of irregular indorser.—Where a person not otherwise a party to an instrument places thereon his signature in blank before delivery he is liable as indorser in accordance with the following rules: (1) If the instrument is payable to the order of a third person he is liable to the payee and to all subsequent parties; (2) if the instrument is payable to the order of the maker or drawer, or is payable to bearer, he is liable to all parties subsequent to the maker or drawer; (3) if he signs for the accommodation of the payee he is liable to all parties subsequent to the payee. (Rev., s. 2213; 1899, c. 733, s. 64; C. S. 3045.)

Cited in Perry v. Taylor, 148 N. C. 362, 62 S. E. 423; Meyers v. Battle, 170 N. C. 168, 86 S. E. 1034; Rouse v. Wooten, 140 N. C. 557, 53 S. E. 430, and held not applicable to that case; Wrenn v. Lawrence Cotton Mills, 198 N. C. 89, 90, 150 S. E. 676.

§ 25-71. Warranty, where negotiation by delivery.—Every person negotiating an instrument by delivery or by a qualified indorsement warrants (1) that the instrument is genuine and in all respects what it purports to be; (2) that he has a good title to it; (3) that all prior parties had capacity to contract; (4) that he has no knowledge of any fact which would impair the validity of the instrument or render it valueless. But when the negotiation is by delivery only the warranty extends in favor of no holder other than the immediate transferee. The provisions of subdivision three of this section do not apply to persons negotiating public or corporate securities other than bills and notes. (Rev., s. 2214; 1899, c. 733, s. 65; C. S. 3046.)

Cross Reference.—As to qualified indorsement, see § 25-44.

§ 25-72. Liability of general indorser.—Every indorser who indorses without qualification warrants to all subsequent holders in due course (1) the matters and things mentioned in subdivisions one, two and three of § 25-71; and (2) that the instrument is at the time of his indorsement valid and subsisting. And in addition he engages that on due presentment it shall be accepted or paid, or both, as the case may be, according to its tenor, and that if it be dishonored and the necessary proceedings on dishonor be duly taken he will pay the amount thereof to the holder or to any subsequent indorser who may be compelled to pay it. (Rev., s. 2215; 1899, c. 733, s. 66; C. S. 3047.)

Cross Reference.—As to words which exempt transferor from liability as general endorser, see § 25-44 and note.

Considered with Other Sections.—This section, which restricts the warranty to subsequent holders in due course, must be considered in connection with other sections of the Negotiable Instruments Law. Ray v. Livingston, 204 N. C. 1, 4, 167 S. E. 496.

Contract of Indorsement Is a Separate Contract.—A contract of indorsement is a substantive contract, separable and independent of the instrument on which it appears, and where it has been made without qualification and for value it guarantees to a holder in due course among other things that the instrument, at the time of the indorsement, is a valid and subsisting obligation. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Grafton, 181 N. C. 404, 405, 107 S. E. 316.

Indorsement after Maturity.—An indorsee taking after maturity takes the title to whatever interest his indorsee had, and by the indorsement the indorser makes such warranties as are provided by statute. Smith v. Godwin, 145 N. C. 242, 58 S. E. 1089.

An indorsement "without recourse" does not impair the negotiability of the instrument, but qualifies the indorsement and where one has acquired a negotiable instrument by an indorsement by a holder without recourse, there is no implied warranty on the part of such indorser. Walter v. Kilpatrick, 191 N. C. 458, 132 S. E. 148; Evans v. Freeman, 142 N. C. 61, 54 S. E. 847.

Signature Not Explained by Parol.—When a payee or regular indorsee thereof writes his name on the back of a note, as between him and a bona fide holder for value and without notice, the law implies that he intended to assume the well-known liability of an indorser, and he will not be permitted to contradict this implication. But this rule does not apply between the original parties to a contract which is not in writing, although there may be the signature of one or more parties to authenticate that some contract was made. Sykes v. Everett, 167 N. C. 600, 604, 83 S. E. 585.

Liability of Substituted Indorser.—Where an endorser as originally appearing on a negotiable note has his name stricken from the instrument by the payee and another person signs in substitution for him, the liability of the substituted endorser to the payee remains as a general endorser, unaffected by the cancellation and substitution, when his signature is not obtained by misrepresentation that the other endorser had consented to the substitution and remained bound by the instrument. Ehrl v. Little, 205 N. C. 583, 172 S. E. 198.

Set-off of Deposits against Note.—Where a depositor in an insolvent national bank had indorsed a note on which he was in fact primarily liable, and procured the bank to discount it for his benefit, he was entitled in a suit by the bank's receiver to recover the amount of the note, to set off his deposit in the bank against his liability on the note. Williams v. Rose, 218 Fed. 898; Yardley v. Clothier, 51 Fed. 506, 17 L. R. A. 462; Scott v. Armstrong, 146 U. S. 499, 36 L. Ed. 1, 1059; Yardley v. Philler, 167 U. S. 344, 346, 42 L. Ed. 192; Williams v. Coleman, 190 N. C. 368, 371, 129 S. E. 818.

Not Applicable to Usury.—The provisions made as to warranties which prevail in case of unqualified indorsements refer to lawful transactions, and do not relate to transactions coming within the meaning of our usury laws. Sedbury v. Duffy, 158 N. C. 432, 74 S. E. 355.

Parol Evidence.—Where an unqualified indorsement is supported by a valuable consideration and the maker seeks to enforce the endorser's liability the endorser may introduce parol evidence of an agreement entered into by the parties contemporaneously with the execution of the note that payment was to be made out of a particular fund, but he may not introduce parol evidence in contradiction of the written terms of the note that he was not to be held liable in any event. Kindler v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 204 N. C. 198, 167 S. E. 811.

Applied in Hyde v. Tatham, 204 N. C. 160, 167 S. E. 626.

§ 25-73. Liability of indorser, where paper negotiable by delivery.—Where a person places his indorsement on an instrument negotiable by delivery he incurs all the liabilities of an indorser. (Rev., s. 2216; 1899, c. 733, s. 67; C. S. 3048.)

§ 25-74. Order in which indorsers are liable.—As respects one another, indorsers are liable prima facie in the order in which they indorse; but evidence is admissible to show that as between or among themselves they have agreed otherwise. Joint payees or joint indorsees who indorse are deemed to indorse jointly and severally. (Rev., s. 2217; 1899, c. 733, s. 68; C. S. 3049.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability of subsequent holder when instrument is negotiated back to prior holder, see § 25-56.

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 82, 87.

Contribution between Indorsers.—An indorser of a negotiable instrument is not subject to contribution among all others who may have indorsed the same, but only liable to those who are subsequent in date to his indorsement, to the full amount of their payment as an indemnitor. Lancaster v. Stanfield, 191 N. C. 340, 132 S. E. 21.

An indorser of a negotiable instrument who had paid a judgment obtained thereon in an action against him and the insolvent makers, cannot, nothing else appearing, recover the amount in his action therefor against a subsequent indorser. Lynch v. Loftin, 153 N. C. 270, 69 S. E. 143.

Parol Evidence between Immediate Parties.—Parol evidence is admissible to show that as between or among themselves parties to a negotiable instrument are liable otherwise than appears prima facie. Bank v. Burch, 145 N. C. 316, 59 S. E. 71; Sykes v. Everett, 167 N. C. 600, 83 S. E. 585; Gillam v. Walker, 189 N. C. 189, 126 S. E. 424; Dillard v. Mercantile Co., 190 N. C. 225, 129 S. E. 598; Lancaster v. Stanfield, 191 N. C. 340, 343, 132 S. E. 21.

Parol Evidence against Remote Indorsee.—In an action upon a note by a remote indorsee, who purchased bona fide for full value and without notice, against the payee, who indorsed the note in blank, evidence of an agreement between the payee and his immediate indorsee that he should not be held liable on his indorsement is not admissible. Hill v. Shields, 81 N. C. 250.

Cited in Howell v. Robertson, 197 N. C. 572, 574, 150 S. E. 32.

§ 25-75. Liability of agent or broker.—Where a broker or other agent negotiates an instrument without indorsement he incurs all the liabilities prescribed by § 25-71, unless he discloses the name of his principal and the fact that he is acting only as agent. (Rev., s. 2218; 1899, c. 733, s. 69; C. S. 3050.)

Cross Reference.—See also §§ 25-26 and 25-50.

Art. 7. Presentment for Payment.

§ 25-76. Effect of want of demand on principal debtor.—Presentment for payment is not necessary in order to charge the person primarily liable on the instrument; but if the instrument is by its terms payable at a special place, and he is able and willing to pay it there at maturity, such ability and willingness are equivalent to a tender of payment upon his part. But, except as herein otherwise provided, presentment for payment is necessary in order to charge the drawer and indorsers. (Rev., s. 2219; 1899, c. 733, s. 70; C. S. 3051.)

Cross References.—As to when presentment is not necessary in order to charge drawer and indorsers, see §§ 25-85, 25-86; as to place of presentment, see § 25-79; as to notice to those secondarily liable, see § 25-96 et seq.

Presentment Necessary to Hold Drawer.—When a draft on a third person is given in settlement of an antecedent debt, it is the duty of the holder to present it, and a failure to do so will discharge the debt. Mauney & Son v. Coit, 80 N. C. 300.

Presentment Must Be Made in a Reasonable Time to Hold Drawer.—A drawer of a bill, having funds in the hands of the drawee has a right that the bill be presented for payment, and he cannot be charged unless the bill was presented in a reasonable time, although he knew at the time of drawing the bill that the drawee was insolvent. Cedar Falls Co. v. Wallace, 83 N. C. 225; Long v. Stephenson, 72 N. C. 569.

Effect of Guaranteeing Prior Indorsements.—A certificate of deposit forwarded to another bank by the drawer bank must be presented in a reasonable time, and if not presented the drawer is not liable, although it stamped the certificate "Prior indorsements guaranteed." Bank v. Trust Co., 159 N. C. 85, 74 S. E. 747.

Presentment of Checks.—A postdated check, like any other check need not be presented on the day of its date, but may be presented within a reasonable time thereafter, and the fact that the drawee had money on deposit to meet it on that date, but did not have it when the check was presented, is not equivalent to a "tender of payment." Philadelphia Life Ins. Co. v. Hayworth, 296 Fed. Rep. 339.

Sufficient Funds on Deposit May Amount to Tender.—The fact that the maker of a negotiable note payable at a certain bank kept a deposit sufficient to pay the note at the bank on the due date may amount to a tender of payment under this section, but such tender would discharge only persons secondarily liable on the note, and would not discharge the liability of the maker and surety on the note. Dry v. Reynolds, 205 N. C. 571, 172 S. E. 351.

Surety's Liability.—When one is a surety on a note, as to all holders he stands on the same basis as the principal, and presentment for payment is not necessary to make him liable thereon. Rouse v. Wooten, 140 N. C. 557, 53 S. E. 430. See also Dry v. Reynolds, 205 N. C. 571, 172 S. E. 351.

Guarantor's Liability.—One who is a guarantor on a note is not primarily liable, and presentment is necessary to hold him liable thereon. Rouse v. Wooten, 140 N. C. 557, 53 S. E. 430.

When Failure to Make Demand Available as Defense—Proof.—If a note be payable at a particular time and place, a demand at the time and place need not be averred or proven in an action by the holder against the maker. A failure to make such demand can only be used in defense if the money was ready at the time and place. Nichols v. Pool, 47 N. C. 23.

Cited in Perry v. Taylor, 148 N. C. 362, 62 S. E. 423.

§ 25-77. Presentment.—Where the instrument is not payable on demand, presentment must be made on the day it falls due. Where it is payable on demand, presentment must be made within a reasonable time after its issue, except that in the case of a bill of exchange presentment for payment will be sufficient if made within a reasonable time after the last negotiation thereof. (Rev., s. 2220; 1899, c. 733, s. 71; C. S. 3052.)

In General.—Where a negotiable paper is assigned, the transaction is to be regulated according to the laws of merchants, by which the assignee is bound to apply for payment within a reasonable time. Plummer v. Christmas, 1 N. C. 145, 146.

Presentment of Checks Must Be within Reasonable Time.—Section 192 of the Negotiable Instruments Act (G. S. § 25-192) says that "a check is a bill of exchange drawn on a bank payable on demand". Instruments payable on demand may be presented within a reasonable time after their issue. In this respect there is no difference between a postdated check and any other. In either case it should be presented within a reasonable time after its issue, but the only effect of a failure to present it within such time is to discharge the drawer from liability to the extent of the loss caused by the delay. Philadelphia Life Ins. Co. v. Hayworth, 296 Fed. 339, 342.

§ 25-78. What constitutes a sufficient presentment.—Presentment for payment to be sufficient must be made (1) by the holder or by some person authorized to receive payment on his behalf; (2) at a reasonable hour on a business day; (3) at a proper place as herein defined; (4) to the person primarily liable on the instrument, or, if he is absent or inaccessible, to any person found at the place where the presentment is made. (Rev., s. 2221; 1899, c. 733, s. 72; C. S. 3053.)

In General.—The presentment of a bill of exchange or draft must be made to the drawee or acceptor, or to an authorized agent. A personal demand is not always necessary, and it is sufficient to make the demand at the residence or usual places of business of the drawee, where the presentment is for payment. It is the duty of the bank collector to be careful, not only to present the draft at the usual place of business, but, if the plaintiff was not in, to assure himself that the person to whom he presented the draft for acceptance was the authorized agent of the plaintiff. Burrus v. Life Ins. Co., 124 N. C. 9, 12, 32 S. E. 323.

§ 25-79. Place of presentment.—Presentment for payment is made at the proper place (1) where a place of payment is specified in the instrument and it is there presented; (2) where no place of payment is specified, but the address of the person to make the payment is given in the instrument, and it is there presented; (3) where no place of payment is specified and no address is given and the instrument is presented at the usual place of business or residence of the person to make payment; (4) in any other case if presented to the person to make payment wherever he can be found, or if presented at his last known place of business or residence. (Rev., s. 2222; 1899, c. 733, s. 73; C. S. 3054.)

Place of Payment Specified.—Whenever a bill of exchange or note is made payable at a particular place, a demand at that place is sufficient, and a personal one is not necessary whether the maker lives at the same place or a different one. Sullivan v. Mitchell, 4 N. C. 93. But the maker is not bound to pay it until it is presented at the place where it is expressed to be payable. Bank v. Bank, 35 N. C. 75.

Presentment of a draft for payment at the place of its date is sufficient, no other place of presentment appearing. Wittkowski v. Smith, 84 N. C. 671.

§ 25-80. Instrument must be exhibited.—The instrument must be exhibited to the person from whom payment is demanded, and, when it is paid, must be delivered up to the party paying it. (Rev., s. 2223; 1899, c. 733, s. 74; C. S. 3055.)

Lost or Destroyed Note.—The provisions of this section that upon payment of a note it must be delivered up to the party paying it, does not apply where the note has been lost or destroyed, and, under the facts of this case, there was no error in not requiring a bond for the protection of the maker where there was no request made therefor. Wooten v. Bell, 196 N. C. 654, 146 S. E. 705.

§ 25-81. Presentment where instrument payable at bank.—Where the instrument is payable at a bank presentment for payment must be made during banking hours, unless the person to make payment has no funds there to meet it at any time during the day, in which case presentment at any hour before the bank is closed on that day is sufficient. (Rev., s. 2224; 1899, c. 733, s. 75; C. S. 3056.)

§ 25-82. Presentment where principal debtor is dead.—Where the person primarily liable on the instrument is dead, and no place of payment is specified, presentment for payment must be made to his personal representative, if such there be, and if with the exercise of reasonable diligence he can be found. (Rev., s. 2225; 1899, c. 733, s. 76; C. S. 3057.)

§ 25-83. Presentment to persons liable as partners.—Where the persons primarily liable on the instrument are liable as partners and no place of payment is specified, presentment for payment may be made to any one of them, even though there has been a dissolution of the firm. (Rev., s. 2226; 1899, c. 733, s. 77; C. S. 3058.)

In General.—Where the protest of a notary public stated that he presented a bill, which purported to be drawn on a firm, to A, one of the members thereof, it was held to be evidence that A was a member of that firm, and that the presentment was properly made. Elliott v. White, 51 N. C. 98.

§ 25-84. Presentment to joint debtors.—Where there are several persons not parties primarily liable on the instrument and no place of payment is specified, presentment must be made to them all. (Rev., s. 2227; 1899, c. 733, s. 78; C. S. 3059.)

§ 25-85. When presentment not required to charge the drawer.—Presentment for payment is not required in order to charge the drawer where he has no right to expect or require that the drawee or acceptor will pay the instrument. (Rev., s. 2228; 1899, c. 733, s. 79; C. S. 3060.)

In General.—The drawers, having funds in the hands of the drawee, had the right to expect their bill to be honored by them, and they were entitled to presentment of their bill in a reasonable time and strict notice if dishonored on the part of the plaintiff, although the defendants at the time they drew the bill may have believed the drawees were insolvent and had been so notified by them and requested not to draw on them. Cedar Falls Co. v. Wallace Bros., 83 N. C. 225, 228.

§ 25-86. When presentment not required to charge the indorser.—Presentment for payment is not required in order to charge an indorser where the instrument was made or accepted for his accommodation, and he has no reason to expect that the instrument will be paid if presented. (Rev., s. 2229; 1899, c. 733, s. 80; C. S. 3061.)

This section is not applicable where holder testifies endorser was not accommodation endorser. Hyde v. Tatham, 204 N. C. 160, 167 S. E. 626.

Lack of Funds with Which to Pay.—Where the treasurer of a corporation indorses the corporate note, payable at a certain bank, and at its maturity the corporation has no funds at the bank, it is not necessary that the note should have been presented to the bank for payment. Meyers Co. v. Battle, 170 N. C. 168, 86 S. E. 1034.

Burden of Proof on Holder.—If it is in fact an accommodation paper, then, notwithstanding the form of the paper, the drawer would be primarily liable and not entitled to notice, but the burden to show this is on the holder, and there being no evidence to that fact, the form of the paper governs and the drawer is entitled to notice. National Bank v. Bradley, 117 N. C. 526, 530, 23 S. E. 455.

§ 25-87. When delay in presentment is excused.—Delay in making presentment for payment is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate presentment must be made with reasonable diligence. (Rev., s. 2230; 1899, c. 733, s. 81; C. S. 3062.)

Delay Caused by One Liable.—Where an agent has incurred a personal liability on a negotiable instrument given in behalf of his principal, he may not avoid payment on the ground of delay in presenting it for payment, when the delay was at his own request and by his own conduct. Caldwell Co. v. George, 176 N. C. 602, 97 S. E. 507.

§ 25-88. When presentment may be dispensed with.—Presentment for payment is dispensed with (1) where after the exercise of reasonable diligence presentment as required by this chapter cannot be made; (2) where the drawee is a fictitious person; (3) by waiver of presentment, express or implied. (Rev., s. 2231; 1899, c. 733, s. 82; C. S. 3063.)

Where Presentment Cannot Be Made.—Where the maker is a seaman, without any domicile in the State, and goes on a voyage about the time the note falls due, no demand on him is necessary in order to charge the indorser. Moore v. Coffield, 12 N. C. 247.

Implied Waiver of Presentments.—Where a check was given for county bonds and the bonds could not be issued at once, and the drawer cooperated with the county to get the bond issue, there is a sufficient implied waiver of immediate presentment, and a presentment within a reasonable time after the bond issue was sufficient to bind the drawer. Caldwell County v. George, 176 N. C. 602, 97 S. E. 507.

§ 25-89. When instrument dishonored by non-payment.—The instrument is dishonored by non-payment when (1) it is duly presented for payment and payment is refused or cannot be obtained; or (2) presentment is excused and the instrument is overdue and unpaid. (Rev., s. 2232; 1899, c. 733, s. 83; C. S. 3064.)

§ 25-90. Liability of persons secondarily liable when instrument dishonored.—Subject to the provisions of this chapter, when the instrument is dishonored by nonpayment, an immediate right of recourse to all parties secondarily liable thereon accrues to the holder. (Rev., s. 2233; 1899, c. 733, s. 84; C. S. 3065.)

Cross Reference.—As to right of surety to demand payee or holder to bring suit when he considers himself in danger of loss, see § 26-7.

§ 25-91. Time of maturity.—Every negotiable instrument is payable at the time fixed therein without grace, except as allowed by the succeeding section. When the day of maturity falls upon Sunday or a holiday the instrument is payable on the next succeeding business day. (Rev., s. 2234; 1899, c. 733, s. 85; 1907, c. 897; 1909, c. 800, s. 1; C. S. 3066.)

§ 25-92. When days of grace allowed.—All bills of exchange payable within the state, at sight, in which there is an express stipulation to that effect and not otherwise, shall be entitled to days of grace as the same are allowed by the custom of merchants on foreign bills of exchange payable at the expiration of a certain period after date or sight, but no days of grace shall be allowed on any bill of exchange, promissory note, or draft payable on demand. (Rev., s. 2235; Code, s. 43; 1905, c. 327; 1907, c. 861; C. S. 3067.)

§ 25-93. How time is computed.—Where the instrument is payable at a fixed period after date, after sight, or after the happening of a specified event, the time of payment is determined by excluding the day from which the time is to begin to run and by including the date of payment. (Rev., s. 2236; 1899, c. 733, s. 86; C. S. 3068.)

§ 25-94. Rule where instrument is payable at bank.—Where the instrument is made payable at a bank it is equivalent to an order to the bank to pay the same for the account of the principal debtor thereon. (Rev., s. 2237; 1899, c. 733, s. 87; C. S. 3069.)

Where a note is made payable at a certain bank it amounts to an order to the bank to pay same out of the maker's deposit upon presentment when due. Dry v. Reynolds, 205 N. C. 571, 172 S. E. 351.

Liability Where Bank Fails to Pay out of Deposits.—Where the bank of deposit of the maker of a note is the one specified as the place of its payment, and also the one to which the note is sent at maturity for collection, the maker's written order on the note to the bank to pay it from his deposits is sufficient; and where the bank accepts this order and retains the note without entry on its books for twelve days, then its doors are closed and a receiver appointed, the payee of the note is held responsible for the acts of its agency for collection, and a plea of payment is good. Peaslee-Gaulbert Co. v. Dixon, 172 N. C. 411, 90 S. E. 421.

Cited in Standard Trust Co. v. Bank, 166 N. C. 112, 81 S. E. 1074.

§ 25-95. What constitutes payment in due course.—Payment is made in due course when it is made at or after the maturity of the instrument to the holder thereof in good faith and without notice that his title is defective. (Rev., s. 2238; 1899, c. 733, s. 88; C. S. 3070.)

Art. 8. Notice of Dishonor.

§ 25-96. To whom notice of dishonor must be given.—Except as herein otherwise provided, when a negotiable instrument has been dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment, notice of dishonor must be given to the drawer and to each indorser, and any drawer or indorser to whom such notice is not given is discharged. (Rev., s. 2239; 1899, c. 733, s. 89; C. S. 3071.)

Cross Reference.—As to notice to principal, see § 25-76.

In General.—The draft having been accepted, the drawee became primarily liable, and in the event of dishonor notice must be given to all those who are secondarily liable as drawer and indorsers. Denny v. Palmer, 27 N. C. 610; Tiedman Com. Paper, sec. 336; 3 Randolph Com. Paper, sec. 1238; 2 Daniel Neg. Inst., sec. 995; Brown v. Teague, 52 N. C. 573; National Bank v. Bradley, 117 N. C. 526, 530, 23 S. E. 455.

Following the statute it was held in Perry Co. v. Taylor Bros., 148 N. C. 362, 62 S. E. 423, that failure to give notice of dishonor discharged the indorser from further liability. Barber v. Absher, 175 N. C. 602, 604, 96 S. E. 43.

Notice to Surety.—A surety on a note is not discharged from liability by reason of the fact that he was not given notice of its dishonor. Rouse v. Wooten, 140 N. C. 557, 53 S. E. 430.

Notice to Forwarding Bank.—When a bank forwards a check to another bank to be collected, and the drawee bank is negligent in notifying the forwarding bank of nonpayment, the right of the forwarding bank to recover will be determined by whether or not it would have prevented loss by notice, and it can recover such loss only as was occasioned by the delay. Bank v. Trust Co., 177 N. C. 254, 98 S. E. 595.

Waiver of Notice.—Notice of dishonor may be waived by an indorser of a negotiable paper before or after maturity thereof by express words or by necessary implication, and when so waived, notice of dishonor need not be given. National Bank v. Johnson, 159 N. C. 526, 86 S. E. 360.

Burden on Holder to Show Primary Liability.—The burden is on the holder of a note, seeking to hold an indorser, to whom notice of dishonor has not been given, liable thereon upon the contention that notice was not required, to prove that the note was given for his accommodation. Parol evidence is not admissible to show primary liability to sustain the contention that notice of dishonor is dispensed with. Busbee v. Creech, 192 N. C. 499, 135 S. E. 326.

Effect of Endorser's Consent to Extension of Time.—It cannot be determined as a matter of law that an endorser is not entitled to notice of dishonor as provided in this section, by reason of his consent to an extension of time of payment granted the principal. Davis v. Royall, 204 N. C. 147, 167 S. E. 559.

§ 25-97. By whom notice given.—The notice may be given by or on behalf of the holder or by or on behalf of any party to the instrument who might be compelled to pay to the holder, and who upon taking it up would have a right to reimbursement from the party to whom notice is given. (Rev., s. 2240; 1899, c. 733, s. 90; C. S. 3072.)

In General.—The notice required by law to be given to an indorser is good if it be sufficient to put the indorser on inquiry; no particular form is required and any person through whose hands a bill or note has passed may give notice to the drawer or his prior indorser of the dishonor of the bill, although the bill or note may not have been taken up by him at that time. Bank v. Seawell, 9 N. C. 560.

Verbal Notice.—Where a bank holding a note for collection gave verbal notice of dishonor to one of the indorsers, and all of the indorsers discussed the matter among themselves and determined to refuse payment, the notice was sufficient, as the indorsers notified each other, and this notice inured to the benefit of the holders. Piedmont Carolina Ry. Co. v. Shaw, 223 Fed. 973, 974.

Verbal notice is good if sufficient to put endorsers upon inquiry. Bank v. Seawell, 9 N. C. 560.

§ 25-98. Notice given by agent.—Notice of dishonor may be given by an agent either in his own name or in the name of any party entitled to give notice, whether that party be his principal or not. (Rev., s. 2241; 1899, c. 733, s. 91; C. S. 3073.)

§ 25-99. Effect of notice given on behalf of holder.—Where notice is given by or on behalf of the holder, it inures to the benefit of all subsequent holders and all prior parties who have a right of recourse against the party to whom it is given. (Rev., s. 2242; 1899, c. 733, s. 92; C. S. 3074.)

§ 25-100. Effect, where notice is given by party entitled thereto.—Where notice is given by or on behalf of a party entitled to give notice it inures to the benefit of the holder and all parties subsequent to the party by whom notice is given. (Rev., s. 2243; 1899, c. 733, s. 93; C. S. 3075.)

§ 25-101. When agent may give notice.—Where the instrument has been dishonored in the hands of an agent he may either himself give notice to the parties liable thereon or he may give notice to his principal. If he give notice to his principal he must do so within the same time as if he were the holder, and the principal upon the receipt of such notice has himself the same time for giving notice as if the agent had been an independent holder. (Rev., s. 2244; 1899, c. 733, s. 94; C. S. 3076.)

§ 25-102. When notice sufficient.—A written notice need not be signed and an insufficient written notice may be supplemented and validated by verbal communication. A misdescription of the instrument does not vitiate it unless the party to whom the notice is given is in fact misled thereby. (Rev., s. 2245; 1899, c. 733, s. 95; C. S. 3077.)

Prior Law.—There was no necessity for signing under the prior law. Bank v. Seawell, 9 N. C. 560.

§ 25-103. Form of notice.—The notice may be in writing or merely oral, and may be given in any terms which sufficiently identify the instrument and indicate that it has been dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment. It may in all cases be given by delivering it personally or through the mails. (Rev., s. 2246; 1899, c. 733, s. 96; C. S. 3078.)

§ 25-104. To whom notice may be given.—Notice of dishonor may be given either to the party himself or to his agent in that behalf. (Rev., s. 2247; 1899, c. 733, s. 97; C. S. 3079.)

§ 25-105. Notice when party is dead.—When any party is dead and his death is known to the party giving notice, the notice must be given to a personal representative if there be one, and if with reasonable diligence he can be found. If there is no personal representative, notice may be sent to the last residence or last place of business of the deceased. (Rev., s. 2248; 1899, c. 733, s. 98; C. S. 3080.)

§ 25-106. Notice to partners.—When the parties to be notified are partners, notice to any one partner is notice to the firm, even though there has been a dissolution. (Rev., s. 2249; 1899, c. 733, s. 99; C. S. 3081.)

§ 25-107. Notice to persons jointly liable.—Notice to joint parties who are not partners must be given to each of them unless one of them has authority to receive such notice for the others. (Rev., s. 2250; 1899, c. 733, s. 100; C. S. 3082.)

§ 25-108. Notice to bankrupt.—Where a party has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, notice may be given either to the party himself or to his trustee or assignee. (Rev., s. 2251; 1899, c. 733, s. 101; C. S. 3083.)

§ 25-109. Time within which notice must be given.—Notice may be given as soon as the instrument is dishonored, and, unless delay is excused as hereinafter provided, must be given within the times fixed by this chapter. (Rev., s. 2252; 1899, c. 733, s. 102; C. S. 3084.)

Notice, Burden.—The burden is on the holder of a negotiable note to show that notice of nonpayment was given the endorsers, and in the absence of evidence of such notice to an endorser, or to his personal representative after his death, the holder is not entitled to recover on the endorsement. Williams v. Fowler Automobile Co., 207 N. C. 309, 176 S. E. 567.

§ 25-110. Notice where parties reside in the same place.—When the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in same place notice must be given within the following times: (1) If given at the place of business of the person to receive notice it must be given before the close of business hours on the day following; (2) if given at his residence it must be given before the usual hours of rest on the day following; (3) if sent by mail it must be deposited in the post office in time to reach him in the usual course

§ 25-111. Notice where parties reside in different places.—Where the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in different places the notice must be given within the following times: (1) If sent by mail it must be deposited in the post office in time to go by mail the day following the day of dishonor, or if there be no mail at a convenient hour on that day, by the next mail thereafter; (2) if given otherwise than through the post office, then within the time that notice would have been received in due course of mail if it had been deposited in the post office within the time specified in the last subdivision. (Rev., s. 2254; 1899, c. 733, s. 104; C. S. 3086.)

In General.—As to what was a reasonable notice under varying circumstances, it has now been long settled that a reasonable notice is one which is sent by the first post after the day of dishonor, and when there is a daily mail, this necessarily means the next day, if the next day's mail does not leave before business hours. National Bank v. Bradley, 117 N. C. 526, 530, 23 S. E. 455; Hubbard v. Troy, 24 N. C. 134; Denny v. Palmer, 27 N. C. 610.

Sufficient Proof of Notice.—It was unanimously held by the Supreme Court of the United States, in Lindenberger v. Beal, 6 Wheat. 104, that the evidence of the letter containing notice, put into the post office, directed to the defendant at his place of residence, was sufficient proof of the notice to be left to the jury, and that it was unnecessary to give notice to the defendant to produce the letter before parol evidence could be admitted. Faribault v. Ely, 13 N. C. 67.

§ 25-112. When sender deemed to have given due notice.—Where notice of dishonor is duly addressed and deposited in the post office the sender is deemed to have given due notice, notwithstanding any miscarriage in the mails. (Rev., s. 2255; 1899, c. 733, s. 105; C. S. 3087.)

§ 25-113. What constitutes deposit in postoffice.—Notice is deemed to have been deposited in the post office when deposited in any branch post office or in any letter-box under the control of the postoffice department. (Rev., s. 2256; 1899, c. 733, s. 106; C. S. 3088.)

§ 25-114. Time of notice to antecedent parties.—Where a party receives notice of dishonor he has, after the receipt of such notice, the same time for giving notice to antecedent parties that the holder has after the dishonor. (Rev., s. 2257; 1899, c. 733, s. 107; C. S. 3089.)

§ 25-115. Where notice must be sent.—Where a party has added an address to his signature, notice of dishonor must be sent to that address; but if he has not given such address, then the notice must be sent as follows: (1) Either to the postoffice nearest to his place of residence or to the postoffice where he is accustomed to receive his letters; or (2) if he lives in one place and has his place of business in another, notice may be sent to either place; or (3) if he be sojourning in another place notice may be sent to the place where he is sojourning. But where the notice is actually received by the party within the time specified in this chapter it will be sufficient, though not sent in accordance with requirements of this section. (Rev., s. 2258; 1899, c. 733, s. 108; C. S. 3090.)

Diligent Attempt to Notify Necessary.—A holder of a dishonored bill must give notice to all indorsers, or make a diligent attempt to give this notice, if he does not know where the indorser resides. Runyon v. Montfort, 44 N. C. 371.

Nearest Post Office.—The rule that notice to a distant indorser should be sent to the post office nearest to his residence was founded on the presumption that the information would most speedily be given in such way; but the rule is subject to modification, and the true inquiry is, was the notice directed to that post office which was most likely to impart to the indorser the earliest intelligence, though it may not be the nearest; if it was, it is sufficient. Bank v. Lane, 10 N. C. 453.

Notice sent to the place where the bill was drawn is not sufficient. Denny v. Palmer, 27 N. C. 610.

§ 25-116. Waiver of notice.—Notice of dishonor may be waived either before the time of giving notice has arrived or after the omission to give due notice, and the waiver may be express or implied. (Rev., s. 2259; 1899, c. 733, s. 109; C. S. 3091.)

Mistake.—When one, thinking there has been a presentment for payment, makes promises that would amount to a waiver, had there been a presentment, he is not liable on the grounds of waiver of notice if there had been no presentment for payment. Lilly v. Petteway, 73 N. C. 358.

Extension of Time.—The authorities seem to hold that where the indorser consents in advance of maturity to extensions of the time of payment of the note, he thereby waives his right to receive notice of dishonor and presentment for payment. Worley v. Johnson, 33 L. R. A. 641, notes. National Bank v. Johnston, 169 N. C. 526, 529, 86 S. E. 360.

Promise to Pay after Failure to Be Notified.—A promise to pay generally, or a promise to pay a part, or a part payment made, with a full knowledge that he had been fully released from liability on the bill by the neglect of the holder to give notice, will operate as a waiver and bind the party who makes it for the payment of the whole bill. Dixon v. Elliot, 5 Car. & P., 437; Margetson v. Atkins, 3 Car. & P., 388; Harvey v. Thorpe, 23 Miss., 538; Shaw Bros. v. McNeill, 95 N. C. 535, 538.

Where, upon the dishonor of a bill of exchange or promissory note, the indorsee has neglected to give the proper notice, the drawer or indorser of the bill or indorser of the note will still be liable, if, after a knowledge of all the facts which in law would have discharged him, he promises to pay the bill or note. Moore v. Tucker, 25 N. C. 347.

§ 25-117. Who affected by waiver.—Where the waiver is embodied in the instrument itself it is binding upon all parties, but where it is written above the signature of an indorser it binds him only. (Rev., s. 2260; 1899, c. 733, s. 110; C. S. 3092.)

In General.—Where upon the face of a negotiable note there is an agreement to waive notice of dishonor or an extension of time, etc., one placing his name on the back thereof is deemed to be an indorser without indication of other liability therein, and is bound by the agreement expressed on the face of the instrument waiving notice, etc. Gillam v. Walker, 189 N. C. 189, 126 S. E. 424.

Endorser Is a "Party" to the Note.—An extension of time for payment of a note will not discharge an endorser when the note provides on its face that extension of time for payment is waived by all parties to the note, the endorser being a "party" to the note. Vannoy v. Stafford, 209 N. C. 748, 184 S. E. 482.

Applied in Fidelity Bank v. Hessee, 207 N. C. 71, 175 S. E. 826.

Cited in National Bank v. Johnston, 169 N. C. 526, 86 S. E. 360.

§ 25-118. Waiver of protest.—A waiver of protest, whether in the case of a foreign bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument, is deemed to be a waiver not only of a formal protest, but also of a presentment and notice of dishonor. (Rev., s. 2261; 1899, c. 733, s. 111; C. S. 3093.)

Waiver Binding Partnership.—Where a partner, after the dissolution of the firm, gives a draft in payment of a partnership debt, he cannot waive protest so as to bind his former copartner, especially when the latter has been a dormant member. Mauney & Son v. Coit, 80 N. C. 300.

Inland Bills.—Although protest is not necessary on an inland bill, yet its waiver in such a case is construed to signify as much as when applied to foreign bills. Shaw Bros. v. McNeill, 95 N. C. 535.

Foreign Bills.—A protest is necessary only in case of foreign bills. A waiver of protest on a foreign bill is also a waiver of presentment and notice. Shaw Bros. v. McNeill, 90 N. C. 535.

Cited in National Bank v. Johnston, 169 N. C. 526, 86 S. E. 360.

§ 25-119. When notice is dispensed with.—Notice of dishonor is dispensed with when, after the exercise of reasonable diligence, it cannot be given to or does not reach the parties sought to be charged. (Rev., s. 2262; 1899, c. 733, s. 112; C. S. 3094.)

§ 25-120. Delay in giving notice.—Delay in giving notice of dishonor is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, notice must be given with reasonable diligence. (Rev., s. 2263; 1899, c. 733, s. 113; C. S. 3095.)

§ 25-121. When notice need not be given to drawer.—Notice of dishonor is not required to be given to the drawer in either of the following cases: (1) Where the drawer and the drawee are the same person; (2) Where the drawee is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract; (3) where the drawer is the person to whom the instrument is presented for payment; (4) where the drawer has no right to expect or require that the drawee or acceptor will honor the instrument; (5) where the drawer has countermanded payment. (Rev., s. 2264; 1899, c. 733, s. 114; C. S. 3096.)

Cross Reference.—As to notice, see note to § 25-85.

§ 25-122. When notice need not be given to indorser.—Notice of dishonor is not required to be given to an indorser in either of the following cases: (1) Where the drawee is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract, and the indorser was aware of the fact at the time he indorsed the instrument; (2) where the indorser is the person to whom the instrument is presented for payment; (3) where the instrument was made or accepted for his accommodation. (Rev., s. 2265; 1899, c. 733, s. 115; C. S. 3097.)

In General.—Although, at the time of the indorsement of a note, the indorsers had reason to believe, and did believe, that the note would not be paid by the maker, this circumstance does not dispense with the necessity of a due notice. Denny v. Palmer, 27 N. C. 610.

Cited in Busbee v. Creech, 192 N. C. 499, 135 S. E. 326.

§ 25-123. Notice of nonpayment where acceptance refused.—Where due notice of dishonor by nonacceptance has been given, notice of a subsequent dishonor by nonpayment is not necessary unless in the meantime the instrument has been accepted. (Rev., s. 2266; 1899, c. 733, s. 116; C. S. 3098.)

§ 25-124. Effect of omission to give notice of nonacceptance.—An omission to give notice of dishonor by nonacceptance does not prejudice the rights of a holder in due course subsequent to the omission. (Rev., s. 2267; 1899, c. 733, s. 117; C. S. 3099.)

§ 25-125. When protest need not be made; when it must be made.—Where any negotiable instrument has been dishonored it may be protested for nonacceptance or nonpayment as the case may be, but protest is not required except in the case of foreign bills of exchange. (Rev., s. 2268; 1899, c. 733, s. 118; C. S. 3100.)

In General.—Protest is not necessary to fix the drawee and indorsers of inland bills of exchange with liability, although it is necessary in the case of foreign bills. Shaw Bros. v. McNeill, 95 N. C. 535.

Art. 9. Discharge.

§ 25-126. How instrument discharged.—A negotiable instrument is discharged (1) by payment in due course by or on behalf of the principal debtor; (2) by payment in due course by the party accommodated, where the instrument is made or accepted for accommodation; (3) by the intentional cancellation thereof by the holder; (4) by any other act which will discharge a simple contract for the payment of money; (5) when the principal debtor becomes the holder of the instrument at or after maturity in his own right. (Rev., s. 2269; 1899, c. 733, s. 119; C. S. 3101.)

In an action on a note the maker and sureties may rely on the discharge of the note by the payee's acceptance of the note of another party in the sum due, and the payee's delivery to them of the papers on which defendants were bound, since this is an intentional cancellation by the payee, under this section, which is not required to be in writing. Hood System Industrial Bank v. Dixie Oil Co., 205 N. C. 778, 172 S. E. 360.

An instruction that a negotiable instrument may be discharged by an act which would discharge a simple contract for the payment of money is not error under this section. Id.

Compromise Payment by Surety.—When the liability of a surety or accommodation endorser is discharged by compromise and settlement, the maker is entitled to credit only for the amount actually paid. First, etc., Nat. Bank v. Hinton, 216 N. C. 159, 4 S. E. (2d) 332.

Cited in Virginia Trust Co. v. Dunlop, 214 N. C. 196, 198 S. E. 645.

§ 25-127. Discharge of person secondarily liable.—A person secondarily liable on the instrument is discharged (1) by any act which discharges the instrument; (2) by the intentional cancellation of his signature by the holder; (3) by the discharge of a prior party; (4) by a valid tender of payment made by a prior party; (5) by a release of the principal debtor, unless the holder's right of recourse against the party secondarily liable is expressly reserved; (6) by any agreement binding upon the holder to extend the time of payment or to postpone the holder's right to enforce the instrument, unless made with the assent of the party secondarily liable or unless the right of recourse against such party is expressly reserved. (Rev., s. 2270; 1899, c. 733, s. 120; C. S. 3102.)

Release of Maker Discharges Indorser.—Where the holder of a negotiable instrument releases the maker from liability thereon, he thereby discharges from liability his indorser from whom he acquired the instrument. Lumber Co. v. Buchanan, 192 N. C. 771, 136 S. E. 129.

A tender of payment under § 25-76 would discharge only persons secondarily liable on the note, as provided by this section, and would not discharge the liability of the maker and surety on the note. Dry v. Reynolds, 205 N. C. 571, 172 S. E. 351.

Extension of Payment.—In an action upon a negotiable instrument the defendants on its face being joint makers, the mere fact that the plaintiff had told one of the defendants, without the knowledge of the other, "that he would take up and carry the note until fall," is not an extension of payment for a "fixed and definite" period, which would operate as a release to such other from liability. Roberson v. Spain, 173 N. C. 23, 91 S. E. 361.

Where the face of a note contains an agreement that the parties should remain bound notwithstanding any extension of time granted the maker, upon payment of interest by him, the endorsers remain liable although ignorant of such extensions and payments of interest by the maker, they being bound by their agreement in the note and the extension being supported by the necessary elements of certainty, mutuality and consideration. Fidelity Bank v. Hessee, 207 N. C. 71, 175 S. E. 826.

Applied in Corporation Commission v. Wilkinson, 201 N. C. 344, 349, 160 S. E. 292.

Cited in National Bank v. Johnston, 169 N. C. 526, 86 S. E. 360.

§ 25-128. Right of party paying instrument.—When the instrument is paid by a party secondarily liable thereon it is not discharged; but the party so paying it is remitted to his former rights as regards all prior parties, and he may strike out his own and all subsequent indorsements, and again negotiate the instrument, except (1) where it is payable to the order of the third person and has been paid by the drawer; and (2) where it was made or accepted for accommodation and has been paid by the party accommodated. (Rev., s. 2271; 1899, c. 733, s. 121; C. S. 3103.)

Right to Put into Circulation.—When a bill of exchange made payable to a third person is protested and taken up by the drawer, the latter cannot again put it in circulation. Price v. Sharp, 24 N. C. 417.

Liability of Principal.—An indorser who pays off and discharges the note of his principal can only recover from the latter the amount actually paid by him. Pace v. Robertson, 65 N. C. 550.

Cited in Roberson v. Spain, 173 N. C. 23, 91 S. E. 361.

§ 25-129. Renunciation by holder.—The holder may expressly renounce his rights against any party to the instrument before, at or after its maturity. An absolute and unconditional renunciation of his rights against the principal debtor made at or after the maturity of the instrument discharges the instrument. But a renunciation does not affect the rights of a holder in due course without notice. A renunciation must be in writing, unless the instrument is delivered up to the person primarily liable thereon. (Rev., s. 2272; 1899, c. 733, s. 122; C. S. 3104.)

In General.—The right of an obligor to defend an action against himself on a negotiable note, under the provisions of this section may be done by virtue thereof only as therein expressed when the release is in writing, and may not be shown when resting only by parol. Manly v. Beam, 190 N. C. 659, 130 S. E. 633.

A parol agreement between an official of a bank that the bank would release the endorsers or sureties on a note upon the maker confessing judgment thereon is not enforceable, a verbal renunciation being ineffectual under the provisions of this section. Page Trust Co. v. Lewis, 200 N. C. 286, 287, 156 S. E. 504.

No writing is necessary if "the instrument is delivered to the person primarily liable thereon." Hood System Industrial Bank v. Dixie Oil Co., 205 N. C. 778, 779, 172 S. E. 360.

§ 25-130. Unintentional cancellation; burden of proof.—A cancellation made unintentionally or under a mistake or without the authority of the holder is inoperative, but where an instrument or any signature thereon appears to have been canceled the burden of proof lies on the party who alleges that the cancellation was made unintentionally or under a mistake or without authority. (Rev., s. 2273; 1899, c. 733, s. 123; C. S. 3105.)

§ 25-131. Effect of alteration of instrument.—Where a negotiable instrument is materially altered without the assent of all parties liable thereon, it is avoided except as against a party who has himself made, authorized or assented to the alteration, and subsequent indorsers. But when an instrument has been materially altered and is in the hands of a holder in due course not a party to the alteration he may enforce payment thereof according to its original tenor. (Rev., s. 2274; 1899, c. 733, s. 124; C. S. 3106.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations to § 25-132.

In General.—It is familiar learning that if the payee of a bond alters it in any material part, without the consent of the obligor, the bond is avoided and may be defeated on the plea of non est factum. Mathis v. Mathis, 20 N. C. 55; Dunn v. Clements, 52 N. C. 58; Darwin v. Rippey, 63 N. C. 319; Davis v. Coleman, 29 N. C. 424.

Liability on Raised Checks.—Where the maker of a check, whether a bank or other corporation, or an individual, fills out the blank spaces by writing in ink and delivers it to the payee as a complete instrument, there is no question of implied agency of the payee to do anything further regarding the negotiation of the instrument as the agent for the maker, and where the payee has fraudulently raised the amount of the check, indorses it to another, and receives the money thereon, the maker is not liable to the indorsee except in an action for the original or true amount of the check. Broad St. Bank v. Nat. Bank, 183 N. C. 463, 112 S. E. 11.

§ 25-132. What constitutes a material alteration.—Any alteration which changes (1) the date; (2) the sum payable either for principal or interest; (3) the time or place of payment; (4) the number or the relation of the parties; (5) the medium or currency in which payment is to be made; or which adds a place of payment where no place of payment is specified, or any other change or addition which alters the effect of the instrument in any respect, is a material alteration. (Rev., s. 2275; 1899, c. 733, s. 125; C. S. 3107.)

In General.—Adding the words "in specie" after the word "dollars" in a note is a material alteration. Darwin v. Rippey, 63 N. C. 319.

The cutting of the name of one of the makers of a promissory note and substituting that of another was a material alteration of the note, and vitiated it. Davis v. Coleman, 29 N. C. 424, 427.

Striking Out Endorser's Name and Substituting Another Is Material.—Where the payee of a negotiable instrument acquires it with certain endorsers thereon and subsequently strikes out the name of one endorser and another signs as endorser in lieu of the endorser whose name was stricken out, the change is a material one under this section, and will release the endorsers who had not consented to the substitution, but will not release those endorsers whose consent had been procured, as provided in § 25-131. Efrid v. Little, 205 N. C. 583, 172 S. E. 198.

Immaterial Alterations.—The addition that does not vary the terms of the contract, and adds nothing more than is already implied by law is not sufficient to be construed as a material alteration. Houston v. Potts, 64 N. C. 33.

Art. 10. Bills of Exchange.

§ 25-133. Bill of exchange defined.—A bill of exchange is an unconditional order in writing, addressed by one person to another, signed by the person giving it, requiring the person to whom it is addressed to pay on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time a sum certain in money to order or to bearer. (Rev., s. 2276; 1899, c. 733, s. 126; C. S. 3108.)

Cross Reference.—See note under § 53-71.

In General.—Where a draft drawn to the maker's order and, having been indorsed by another, is accepted at a bank, and then purchased in due course before maturity by an innocent purchaser for value, the bank may not resist payment upon the ground that the transaction was ultra vires, and not within the authority of its charter, authorizing it to accept bills, notes, commercial paper, etc., for it comes within the statutory definition of an inland bill of exchange, and may be treated as a bill or note, at the option of the holder. Sherrill v. American Trust Co., 176 N. C. 591, 97 S. E. 471.

Trust Co. v. Bank, 166 N. C. 112, 81 S. E. 1074; Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 262, 148 S. E. 253.

§ 25-134. Bill not an assignment of funds in hands of drawee.—A bill of itself does not operate as an assignment of the funds in the hands of the drawee available for the payment thereof, and the drawee is not liable on the bill unless and until he accepts the same. (Rev., s. 2277; 1899, c. 733, s. 127; C. S. 3109.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 131, as to what orders constitute an assignment.

Cited in Trust Co. v. Bank, 166 N. C. 112, 81 S. E. 1074.

§ 25-135. Bill addressed to more than one drawee.—A bill may be addressed to two or more drawees jointly, whether they are partners or not, but not to two or more drawees in the alternative or in succession. (Rev., s. 2278; 1899, c. 733, s. 128; C. S. 3110.)

§ 25-136. Inland and foreign bills of exchange.—An inland bill of exchange is a bill which is or on its face purports to be both drawn and payable within this state. Any other bill is a foreign bill. Unless the contrary appears on the face of the bill the holder may treat it as an inland bill. (Rev., s. 2279; 1899, c. 733, s. 129; C. S. 3111.)

§ 25-137. When bill may be treated as promissory note.—Where in a bill drawer and drawee are the same person, or where the drawee is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract, the holder may treat the instrument, at his option, either as a bill of exchange or a promissory note. (Rev., s. 2280; 1899, c. 733, s. 130; C. S. 3112.)

In General.—A paper coming directly within the definition of an inland bill of exchange can be treated as a bill or note at the option of the holder, the drawer and drawee being the same person. Sherrill v. American Trust Co., 176 N. C. 591, 592, 97 S. E. 471.

§ 25-138. Referee in case of need.—The drawer of a bill and any indorser may insert thereon the name of a person to whom the holder may resort in case of need: that is to say, in case the bill is dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment. Such person is called the referee in case of need. It is in the option of the holder to resort to the referee in case of need or not, as he may see fit. (Rev., s. 2281; 1899, c. 733, s. 131; C. S. 3113.)

Art. 11. Acceptance.

§ 25-139. Acceptance defined; how made.—The acceptance of a bill is the signification by the drawee of his assent to the order of the drawer. The acceptance must be in writing and signed by the drawee. It must not express that the drawee will perform his promise by any other means than the payment of money. (Rev., s. 2282; 1899, c. 733, s. 132; C. S. 3114.)

Acceptance by Agent.—The authority to draw, accept or indorse bills, notes and checks will not readily be implied as an incident to the express authority of an agent. It must ordinarily be conferred expressly, but it may be implied if the execution of the paper is a necessary incident to the business, that is, if the purpose of the agency cannot otherwise be accomplished. Bank v. Hay, 143 N. C. 326, 55 S. E. 811.

Cited in Seymour v. Peoples Bank, 212 N. C. 707, 194 S. E. 464, 116 A. L. R. 682.

§ 25-140. Holder entitled to acceptance on face of bill.—The holder of a bill presenting the same for acceptance may require that the acceptance be written on the bill, and if such request is refused, may treat the bill as dishonored. (Rev., s. 2283; 1899, c. 733, s. 133; C. S. 3115.)

Cited in Commercial Investment Trust v. Windsor, 197 N. C. 208, 148 S. E. 42.

§ 25-141. Acceptance by separate instrument.—Where an acceptance is written on a paper other than the bill itself it does not bind the acceptor except in favor of a person to whom it is shown and who, on the faith thereof, receives the bill for value. (Rev., s. 2284; 1899, c. 733, s. 134; C. S. 3116.)

Letters of Acceptance.—A letter written to a drawer within a reasonable time before or after the date of a bill of exchange, describing it in terms not to be mistaken, and promising to accept it, is, if shown to the person who takes the bill on the credit of the letter, a virtual acceptance, and binds the person who makes the promise, even though there are no funds in his hands belonging to the drawer, if the bill is drawn payable at a fixed time, and not at or after sight. Nimock v. Woody, 97 N. C. 1, 2 S. E. 249.

Where the letters, upon which the plaintiff bank relied as authority to an agent to make the draft which it cashed, show that the alleged authority to draw was nothing more than private instructions by the principal to his agent as to how he should conduct this part of the business, and were not to be used as a basis of credit to the agent, the court properly nonsuited the plaintiff. Bank v. Hay, 143 N. C. 326, 55 S. E. 811.

§ 25-142. When promise to accept equivalent to acceptance.—An unconditional promise in writing to accept a bill before it is drawn is deemed an actual acceptance in favor of every person who, upon the faith thereof, receives the bill for value. (Rev., s. 2285; 1899, c. 733, s. 135; C. S. 3117.)

§ 25-143. Time allowed drawee to accept.—The drawee is allowed twenty-four hours after presentment in which to decide whether or not he will accept the bill, but the acceptance, if given, dates as of the day of presentation. (Rev., s. 2286; 1899, c. 733, s. 136; C. S. 3118.)

Cited in Standard Trust Co. v. Bank, 166 N. C. 112, 81 S. E. 1074; Lamb v. Hood, 205 N. C. 409, 410, 171 S. E. 359; Seymour v. Peoples Bank, 212 N. C. 707, 194 S. E. 464, 116 A. L. R. 682.

§ 25-144. Liability of drawee retaining or destroying bill.—Where a drawee to whom a bill is delivered for acceptance destroys the same or refuses within twenty-four hours after such delivery, or within such other period as the holder may allow, to return the bill accepted or nonaccepted to the holder, he will be deemed to have accepted the same. (Rev., s. 2287; 1899, c. 733, s. 137; C. S. 3119.)

Cited in Standard Trust Co. v. Bank, 166 N. C. 112, 81 S. E. 1074; Lamb v. Hood, 205 N. C. 409, 410, 171 S. E. 359; Seymour v. Peoples Bank, 212 N. C. 707, 194 S. E. 464, 116 A. L. R. 682.

§ 25-145. Acceptance of incomplete bill.—A bill may be accepted before it has been signed by the drawer or while otherwise incomplete, or when it is overdue, or after it has been dishonored by a previous refusal to accept, or by nonpayment. But when a bill payable after sight is dishonored by nonacceptance and the drawee subsequently accepts it, the holder, in the absence of any different agreement, is entitled to have the bill accepted as of the date of the first presentment. (Rev., s. 2288; 1899, c. 733, s. 138; C. S. 3120.)

§ 25-146. Kinds of acceptances.—An acceptance is either general or qualified. A general acceptance assents without qualification to the order of the drawer. A qualified acceptance in express terms varies the effect of the bill as drawn. (Rev., s. 2289; 1899, c. 733, s. 139; C. S. 3121.)

§ 25-147. What constitutes a general acceptance.—An acceptance to pay at a particular place is a general acceptance unless it expressly states that the bill is to be paid there only, and not elsewhere. (Rev., s. 2290; 1899, c. 733, s. 140; C. S. 3122.)

§ 25-148. What constitutes a qualified acceptance.—An acceptance is qualified which is (1) conditional; that is to say, which makes payment by the acceptor dependent on the fulfillment of a condition therein stated; (2) partial; that is to say, an acceptance to pay part only of the amount for which the bill is drawn; (3) local; that is to say, an acceptance to pay only at a particular place; (4) qualified as to time; (5) the acceptance of some one or more of the drawees, but not of all. (Rev., s. 2291; 1899, c. 733, s. 141; C. S. 3123.)

Qualified as to Time.—Where one accepted a draft on him "payable when I receive funds to the use of the drawer," he became liable when the moneys were placed to his credit though he had not taken manual possession thereof. Wallace Brothers v. Douglas, 116 N. C. 659, 21 S. E. 387.

§ 25-149. Rights of parties as to qualified acceptance.—The holder may refuse to take a qualified acceptance, and if he does not obtain an unqualified acceptance he may treat the bill as dishonored by nonacceptance. When a qualified acceptance is taken the drawer and indorsers are discharged from liability on the bill unless they have expressly or impliedly authorized the holder to take a qualified acceptance or subsequently assent thereto. When the drawer or an indorser receives notice of a qualified acceptance he must, within a reasonable time, express his dissent to the holder or he will be deemed to have assented thereto. (Rev., s. 2292; 1899, c. 733, s. 142; C. S. 3124.)

Art. 12. Presentment for Acceptance.

§ 25-150. When presentment for acceptance must be made.—Presentment for acceptance must be made (1) where the bill is payable after sight, or in any other case where presentment for acceptance is necessary in order to fix the maturity of the instrument; or (2) where the bill expressly stipulates that it shall be presented for acceptance; or (3) where the bill is drawn payable elsewhere than at the residence or place of business of the drawee. In no other case is presentment for acceptance necessary in order to render any party to the bill liable. (Rev., s. 2293; 1899, c. 733, s. 143; C. S. 3125.)

§ 25-151. Failure to present in reasonable time discharges drawer and indorsers.—Except as herein otherwise provided the holder of a bill which is required by § 25-71 to be presented for acceptance must either present it for acceptance or negotiate it within a reasonable time. If he fail to do so the drawer and all indorsers are discharged. (Rev., s. 2294; 1899, c. 733, s. 144; C. S. 3126.)

§ 25-152. How presentment made.—Present-

ment for acceptance must be made by or on behalf of the holder, at a reasonable hour on a business day and before the bill is overdue, to the drawee or some person authorized to accept or refuse acceptance on his behalf; and (1) where a bill is addressed to two or more drawees who are not partners, presentment must be made to them all, unless one has authority to accept or refuse acceptance for all, in which case presentment may be made to him only; (2) where the drawee is dead, presentment may be made to his personal representative; (3) where the drawee has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, presentment may be made to him or to his trustee or assignee. (Rev., s. 2295; 1899, c. 733, s. 145; C. S. 3127.)

In General.—A draft payable at no definite place in a city or town, must be presented at the maker's residence or place of business, if he has such, at its maturity, and if he has none, then the presence of the instrument in the city is a sufficient presentation. Peoples Nat. Bank v. Lutterloh, 95 N. C. 495, 499.

§ 25-153. On what days presentment may be made.—A bill may be presented for acceptance on any day on which negotiable instruments may be presented for payment under the provisions of this chapter. (Rev., s. 2296; 1899, c. 733, s. 146; 1909, c. 800, s. 1; C. S. 3128.)

§ 25-154. Presentment where time is insufficient.—Where the holder of a bill drawn payable elsewhere than at the place of business or the residence of the drawee has not time with the exercise of reasonable diligence to present the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment on the day that it falls due, the delay caused by presenting the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment is excused and does not discharge the drawers and indorsers. (Rev., s. 2297; 1899, c. 733, s. 147; C. S. 3129.)

§ 25-155. Where presentment is excused.—Presentment for acceptance is excused and a bill may be treated as dishonored by nonacceptance in either of the following cases: (1) Where the drawee is dead or has absconded or is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract by bill; (2) where after the exercise of reasonable diligence presentment cannot be made; (3) where, although presentment has been irregular, acceptance has been refused on some other ground. (Rev., s. 2298; 1899, c. 733, s. 148; C. S. 3130.)

§ 25-156. When dishonored by nonacceptance.—A bill is dishonored by nonacceptance (1) when it is duly presented for acceptance and such an acceptance as is prescribed in this chapter is refused or cannot be obtained; or (2) when a presentment for acceptance is excused and the bill is not accepted. (Rev., s. 2299; 1899, c. 733, s. 149; C. S. 3131.)

§ 25-157. Duty of holder, where bill not accepted.—Where a bill is duly presented for acceptance and is not accepted within the prescribed time, the person presenting it must treat the bill as dishonored by nonacceptance or he loses the right of recourse against the drawer and indorsers. (Rev., s. 2300; 1899, c. 733, s. 150; C. S. 3132.)

§ 25-158. Rights of holder, where bill not accepted.—When a bill is dishonored by nonacceptance an immediate right of recourse against the drawers and indorsers accrues to the holder, and no presentment for payment is necessary. (Rev., s. 2301; 1899, c. 733, s. 151; C. S. 3133.)

Art. 13. Protest.

§ 25-159. In what cases protest necessary.—Where a foreign bill appearing on its face to be such is dishonored by nonacceptance, it must be duly protested for nonacceptance; and where such a bill which had not previously been dishonored by nonacceptance is dishonored by nonpayment, it must be duly protested for nonpayment. If it is not so protested the drawer and indorsers are discharged. Where a bill does not appear on its face to be a foreign bill, protest in case of dishonor is unnecessary. (Rev., s. 2302; 1899, c. 733, s. 152; C. S. 3134.)

Waiver of Protest.—In foreign bills the protest may be waived; the words, "I waive protest," or "waiving protest," or any similar words, infer that the protest is waived, and when applied to foreign bills, are universally regarded as expressly waiving presentment and notice, the protest being, according to the law-merchant, the formal and necessary evidence of the dishonor of such an instrument. Shaw Bros. v. McNeill, 95 N. C. 535, 539.

Protest in Another State.—A promissory note made in another state need not be protested before the owner may sue an indorser, there being no evidence that this is required in the state where the note was executed. Bank v. Carr, 130 N. C. 479, 41 S. E. 876.

How Protested.—By the law merchant a protest of a bill by a public notary is, in itself, evidence. And by our statute such protest is prima facie evidence. Gordon v. Price, 32 N. C. 385.

Protest of Inland Bills.—Protest of an order or inland bill is not necessary to enable the holder to recover the principal and interest. Notice in due time of non-acceptance or non-payment is all that is required for that purpose. Hubbard v. Troy, 24 N. C. 134; National Bank v. Brady, 117 N. C. 526, 23 S. E. 455; Peoples Nat. Bank v. Lutterloh, 95 N. C. 495.

§ 25-160. How protest made.—The protest must be annexed to the bill or must contain a copy thereof, and must be under the hand and seal of the notary making it, and must specify (1) the time and place of presentment; (2) the fact that presentment was made and the manner thereof; (3) the cause or reason for protesting the bill; (4) the demand made and the answer given, if any, or the fact that the drawee or acceptor could not be found. (Rev., s. 2303; 1899, c. 733, s. 153; C. S. 3135.)

§ 25-161. By whom protest made.—Protest may be made by (1) a notary public; or (2) by any respectable resident of the place where the bill is dishonored, in the presence of two or more credible witnesses. Rev., s. 2304; 1899, c. 733, s. 154; C. S. 3136.)

§ 25-162. When protest to be made.—When a bill is protested, such protest must be made on the day of its dishonor, unless delay is excused as herein provided. When a bill has been duly noted the protest may be subsequently extended as of the date of the noting. (Rev., s. 2305; 1899, c. 733, s. 155; C. S. 3137.)

§ 25-163. Where protest made.—A bill must be protested at the place where it is dishonored, except that when a bill drawn payable at the place of business or residence of some person other than the drawee has been dishonored by nonacceptance it must be protested for nonpayment at the place where it is expressed to be payable, and no further presentment for the payment to or demand on the drawee is necessary. (Rev., s. 2306; 1899, c. 733, s. 156; C. S. 3138.)

§ 25-164. Protest both for nonacceptance and nonpayment.—A bill which has been protested for nonacceptance may be subsequently protested for nonpayment. (Rev., s. 2307; 1899, c. 733, s. 157; C. S. 3139.)

§ 25-165. Protest before maturity, where acceptor insolvent.—Where the acceptor has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors before the bill matures, the holder may cause the bill to be protested for better security against the drawer and indorsers. (Rev., s. 2308; 1899, c. 733, s. 158; C. S. 3140.)

§ 25-166. When protest dispensed with.—Protest is dispensed with by any circumstances which would dispense with notice of dishonor. Delay in noting or protesting is excused when delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, the bill must be noted or protested with reasonable diligence. (Rev., s. 2309; 1899, c. 733, s. 159; C. S. 3141.)

§ 25-167. Protest where bill is lost.—Where a bill is lost or destroyed or is wrongly detained from the person entitled to hold it, protest may be made on a copy or written particulars thereof. (Rev., s. 2310; 1899, c. 733, s. 160; C. S. 3142.)

Art. 14. Acceptance for Honor.

§ 25-168. When a bill may be accepted for honor.—Where a bill of exchange has been protested for dishonor by nonacceptance or protested for better security, and is not overdue, any person not being a party already liable thereon may, with the consent of the holder, intervene and accept the bill supra protest for the honor of any party liable thereon or for the honor of the person for whose account the bill is drawn. The acceptance for honor may be part only of the sum for which the bill is drawn, and where there has been an acceptance for honor for one party there may be a further acceptance by a different person for the honor of another party. (Rev., s. 2311; 1899, c. 733, s. 161; C. S. 3143.)

§ 25-169. How acceptance for honor made.—An acceptance for honor supra protest must be in writing and indicate that it is an acceptance for honor, and must be signed by the acceptor for honor. (Rev., s. 2312; 1899, c. 733, s. 162; C. S. 3144.)

§ 25-170. When deemed an acceptance for honor of drawer.—Where an acceptance for honor does not expressly state for whose honor it is made, it is deemed to be an acceptance for the honor of the drawer. (Rev., s. 2313; 1899, c. 733, s. 163; C. S. 3145.)

§ 25-171. Liability of acceptor for honor.—The acceptor for honor is liable to the holder and to all parties to the bill subsequent to the party for whose honor he has accepted. (Rev., s. 2314; 1899, c. 733, s. 164; C. S. 3146.)

§ 25-172. Agreement of acceptor for honor.—The acceptor for honor by such acceptance engages that he will on due presentment pay the bill according to the terms of his acceptance, provided it shall not have been paid by the drawee; and provided, also, that it shall have been duly presented for payment and protested for nonpayment and notice of dishonor given to him. (Rev., s. 2315; 1899, c. 733, s. 165; C. S. 3147.)

§ 25-173. Maturity of bill payable after sight accepted for honor.—Where a bill payable after sight is accepted for honor its maturity is calculated from the date of the noting for nonacceptance and not from the date of the acceptance for honor. (Rev., s. 2316; 1899, c. 733, s. 166; C. S. 3148.)

§ 25-174. Protest of bill accepted for honor.—Where a dishonored bill has been accepted for honor supra protest or contains a reference in case of need, it must be protested for nonpayment before it is presented for payment to the acceptor for honor or referee in case of need. (Rev., s. 2317; 1899, c. 733, s. 167; C. S. 3149.)

§ 25-175. How presentment for payment to acceptor for honor made.—Presentment for payment to the acceptor for honor must be made as follows: (1) If it is to be presented in the place where the protest for nonpayment was made it must be presented not later than the day following its maturity; (2) if it is to be presented in some other place than the place where it was protested, then it must be forwarded within the time in this chapter specified. (Rev., s. 2318; 1899, c. 733, s. 168; C. S. 3150.)

§ 25-176. When delay in making presentment excused.—The provisions of § 25-87 apply where there is delay in making presentment to the acceptor for honor or referee in case of need. (Rev., s. 2319; 1899, c. 733, s. 169; C. S. 3151.)

§ 25-177. Dishonor of bill by acceptor for honor.—When the bill is dishonored by the acceptor for honor it must be protested for nonpayment by him. (Rev., s. 2320; 1899, c. 733, s. 170; C. S. 3152.)

Art. 15. Payment for Honor.

§ 25-178. Who may make payment for honor.—Where a bill has been protested for nonpayment any person may intervene and pay it supra protest for the honor of any person liable thereon or for the honor of the person for whose account it was drawn. (Rev., s. 2321; 1899, c. 733, s. 171; C. S. 3153.)

§ 25-179. How payment for honor must be made.—The payment for honor supra protest in order to operate as such and not as a mere voluntary payment must be attested by a notarial act of honor, which may be appended to the protest or form an extension to it. (Rev., s. 2322; 1899, c. 733, s. 172; C. S. 3154.)

§ 25-180. Declaration before payment for honor.—The notarial act of honor must be founded on a declaration made by the payer for honor or by his agent in that behalf declaring his intention to pay the bill for honor and for whose honor he pays. (Rev., s. 2323; 1899, c. 733, s. 173; C. S. 3155.)

§ 25-181. Preference of parties offering to pay for honor.—Where two or more persons offer to pay a bill for the honor of different parties the person whose payment will discharge most parties to the bill is to be given the preference. (Rev., s. 2324; 1899, c. 733, s. 174; C. S. 3156.)

§ 25-182. Effect on subsequent parties, where bill is paid for honor.—Where a bill has been paid for honor all parties subsequent to the party for whose honor it is paid are discharged, but the payer for honor is subrogated for and succeeds to both the rights and duties of the holder as regards the party for whose honor he pays and all parties liable to the latter. (Rev., s. 2325; 1899, c. 733, s. 175; C. S. 3157.)

§ 25-183. Where holder refuses to receive payment supra protest.—Where the holder of a bill refuses to receive payment supra protest he loses his right of recourse against any party who would have been discharged by such payment. (Rev., s. 2326; 1899, c. 733, s. 176; C. S. 3158.)

§ 25-184. Rights of payer for honor.—The payer for honor on paying to the holder the amount of the bill and the notarial expenses incidental to its dishonor is entitled to receive both the bill itself and the protest. (Rev., s. 2327; 1899, c. 733, s. 177; C. S. 3159.)

Art. 16. Bills in a Set.

§ 25-185. Bills in a set constitute one bill.—Where a bill is drawn in a set, each part of the set being numbered and containing a reference to the other parts, the whole of the parts constitute one bill. (Rev., s. 2328; 1899, c. 733, s. 178; C. S. 3160.)

§ 25-186. Rights of holders, where different parts are negotiated.—Where two or more parts of a set are negotiated to different holders in due course the holder whose title first accrues is, as between such holders, the true owner of the bill. But nothing in this section affects the rights of a person who in due course accepts or pays the part first presented to him. (Rev., s. 2329; 1899, c. 733, s. 179; C. S. 3161.)

§ 25-187. Liability of holder who indorses two or more parts of a set to different persons.—Where the holder of a set indorses two or more parts to different persons he is liable on every such part, and every indorser subsequent to him is liable on the part he has himself indorsed as is such parts were separate bills. (Rev., s. 2330; 1899, c. 733, s. 180; C. S. 3162.)

§ 25-188. Acceptance of bills drawn in sets.—The acceptance may be written on any part, and it must be written on one part only. If the drawee accepts more than one part, and such accepted parts are negotiated to different holders in due course, he is liable on every such part as if it were a separate bill. (Rev., s. 2331; 1899, c. 733, s. 181; C. S. 3163.)

§ 25-189. Payment by acceptor of bills drawn in sets.—When the acceptor of a bill drawn in a set pays it without requiring the part bearing his acceptance to be delivered up to him, and that part at maturity is outstanding in the hands of a holder in due course, he is liable to the holder thereon. (Rev., s. 2332; 1899, c. 733, s. 182; C. S. 3164.)

§ 25-190. Effect of discharging one of a set.—Except as herein otherwise provided where any one part of a bill drawn in a set is discharged by payment or otherwise the whole bill is discharged. (Rev., s. 2333; 1899, c. 733, s. 183; C. S. 3165.)

Art. 17. Promissory Notes and Checks.

§ 25-191. Negotiable promissory note defined.—A negotiable promissory note within the meaning of this chapter is an unconditional promise in writing made by one person to another, signed by the maker, engaging to pay on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time a sum certain in money to order or to bearer. Where a note is drawn to the maker's own order it is not complete until indorsed by him. (Rev., s. 2334; 1899, c. 733, s. 184; C. S. 3166.)

Cross Reference.—As to form of negotiable instrument, see § 25-7 et seq.

In General.—To render a note non-negotiable it must show on its face that the promise to pay is conditional, or render the amount to be paid uncertain. First National Bank v. Michael, 96 N. C. 53, 1 S. E. 855. A note not payable to order or bearer is not a negotiable paper. Newland v. Moore, 173 N. C. 728, 92 S. E. 367.

Bond Treated as Promissory Note under Seal.—A bond is in form negotiable, and when indorsed for value and without notice before maturity it is to be regarded, so far as its negotiability is concerned and its liability to be governed by the commercial law applicable to promissory notes, as if it were a promissory note not under seal. Miller v. Tharel, 75 N. C. 148; Spence v. Tapscott, 93 N. C. 246. The principle was applied in Lewis v. Long, 102 N. C. 206, 9 S. E. 637, in which it was decided that an obligor on a bond could not, as against an indorsee for value, before maturity and without notice, set up the defense that he executed the same as a surety only. Christian v. Parrott, 114 N. C. 215, 218, 19 S. E. 151.

Note under Seal.—A written instrument, whereby a party promises to pay the party therein named a sum certain at a time specified therein, is a promissory note in this State, although it be under seal. First Nat. Bank v. Michael, 96 N. C. 53, 1 S. E. 855.

Cited in Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. v. Black, 198 N. C. 219, 151 S. E. 269; Taft v. Covington, 199 N. C. 51, 55, 153 S. E. 597.

§ 25-192. Check defined.—A check is a bill of exchange drawn on a bank payable on demand. Except as herein otherwise provided the provisions of this chapter that are applicable to a bill of exchange payable on demand apply to a check. (Rev., s. 2335; 1899, c. 733, s. 185; C. S. 3167.)

Cross Reference.—See note under § 53-71.

A check is further defined as a written order on a bank or banker, purporting to be drawn against a deposit of funds, for the payment at all events of a sum of money to a certain person therein named, or to him or his order, or to bearer, and payable on demand. Woody v. First Nat. Bank, 194 N. C. 549, 140 S. E. 150.

Restrictions as to Payments.—A stipulation stamped on the face of a check, that it will positively not be paid to a certain company or its agents, is a valid restriction and binding on the holder. Commercial Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 118 N. C. 783, 24 S. E. 524.

Time of Presentation.—A "check" is a bill of exchange drawn on a bank, payable on demand, and instruments payable on demand may be presented within a reasonable time after their issue. Philadelphia Life Ins. Co. v. Hayworth, 296 Fed. 339.

Cited in Standard Trust Co. v. Bank, 166 N. C. 112, 81 S. E. 1074; Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 262, 148 S. E. 253; State v. Crawford, 198 N. C. 522, 524, 152 S. E. 504; Seymour v. Peoples Bank, 212 N. C. 707, 194 S. E. 464, 116 A. L. R. 682.

§ 25-193. Within what time a check must be presented.—A check must be presented for payment within a reasonable time after its issue or the drawer will be discharged from liability thereon to the extent of the loss caused by the delay. (Rev., s. 2336; 1899, c. 733, s. 186; C. S. 3168.)

Cross Reference.—As to what is reasonable time, see § 25-3.

In General.—Cashier's checks, whether certified or otherwise, are classed with bills of exchange payable on demand; and if negotiated by indorsement for value without notice and within a reasonable time, a holder can maintain the position of a holder in due course. Manufacturing Co. v. Summers, 143 N. C. 102, 55 S. E. 522.

A check is only conditional payment, but the payee must exercise due diligence in presenting it for payment, and where his failure to exercise such diligence causes loss he must suffer it, due diligence being determined in accordance with the facts and circumstances of each particular case. Henderson Chevrolet Co. v. Ingle, 202 N. C. 153, 162 S. E. 219.

Facts to Be Considered.—In determining what is a reasonable time for the presentment of a check for payment regard must be had to the nature of the instrument, the customs and usages of trade in regard to such instrument, and the facts of the particular case. Raines v. Grantham, 205 N. C. 340, 171 S. E. 360.

Cited in Standard Trust Co. v. Bank, 166 N. C. 112, 81 S. E. 1074.

§ 25-194. Bank may refuse to honor check more than six months old in the absence of contrary instructions.—Where a check or other instrument payable on demand at any bank or trust company doing business in this State is presented for payment more than six months from its date, such bank or trust company, may, unless expressly instructed by the drawer or maker to pay the same, refuse payment thereof and no liability shall thereby be incurred to the drawer or maker for dishonoring the instrument by non-payment. (1929, c. 341, s. 3; C. S. 3168.)

§ 25-195. Effect of certification of check.—Where a check is certified by the bank on which it is drawn the certification is equivalent to an acceptance. (Rev., s. 2337; 1899, c. 733, s. 187; C. S. 3169.)

In General.—The certification of a check by the bank on which it is drawn is equivalent to the acceptance, and the bank then becomes the debtor to the holder, against whom he may maintain his action. It does not affect the enforcement of an agreement between the original parties, made before certification of the check, by which the debtor had agreed to waive or withdraw a condition annexed to the acceptance of his check that it was to be received by the payee, his creditor, in full compromise of his debt in a larger amount. Drewry-Hughes Co. v. Davis, 151 N. C. 295, 66 S. E. 139.

Whether Certified at Instance of Drawer or Payee.—A drawer of a check by having the drawee bank certify it before delivering it to the payee of the check does not change the status of his liability thereon, the effect being to add the credit of the bank to that of his own; but it is otherwise if the payee of the check accepts it uncertified and then has it certified by the drawee bank instead of presenting it for payment, for then the credit of the bank is substituted for that of the drawer of the check and the liability of the latter on the check he has issued ceases. Commercial Investment Trust v. Windsor, 197 N. C. 208, 148 S. E. 42.

it to be certified.—Where the holder of a check procures it to be accepted or certified the drawer and all indorsers are discharged from liability thereon. (Rev., s. 2338; 1899, c. 733, s. 188; C. S. 3170.)

Cited in Seymour v. Peoples Bank, 212 N. C. 707, 194 S. E. 464, 116 A. L. R. 682.

§ 25-197. Check not assignment of funds.—A check of itself does not operate as an assignment of any part of the funds to the credit of the drawer with the bank, and the bank is not liable to the holder unless and until it accepts or certifies the check. (Rev., s. 2339; 1899, c. 733, s. 189; C. S. 3171.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 131.

In General.—A depositor is a creditor of a bank, his deposit becoming a part of the general fund, the property of the bank, and subject to assignment by the owners of the bank and a check-holder is, to the extent of his check, the assignee of the depositor's debt due him by the bank, but he has no lien upon the deposit for the amount of this check and a payee or holder of a check has an interest in the deposit as against the drawer, subject to the bank's right to pay outstanding checks before notice. Hawes v. Blackwell, 107 N. C. 196, 12 S. E. 245.

The giving of a check passes no title, legal or equitable, to money on deposit in a bank. Perry v. Bank, 131 N. C. 117, 42 S. E. 551.

An action cannot be sustained against a bank by the payee of a negotiable check, though the drawer has funds on deposit sufficient for its payment against which the bank has no claim, Perry v. Bank, 131 N. C. 117, 42 S. E. 551, until after its acceptance by the bank, Commercial Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 118 N. C. 783, 24 S. E. 524. See also Brantley v. Collie, 205 N. C. 229, 171 S. E. 88.

Acceptance under this section may be evidenced in various ways, as where the bank pays the check without endorsement to some person unauthorized by the payee to receive it and charges the amount to the depositor's account, and where evidence on this point is conflicting an issue is raised for the jury, and a judgment as of nonsuit should be denied. Dawson v. National Bank, 196 N. C. 134, 144 S. E. 833.

Cited in Standard Trust Co. v. Bank, 166 N. C. 112, 81 S. E. 1074; Dawson v. National Bank, 197 N. C. 499, 150 S. E. 38.

§ 25-198. When stop-payment order given to bank expires.—No revocation, countermand or stop-payment order relating to the payment of any check or draft against an account of a depositor in any bank or trust company doing business in this State shall remain in effect for more than six months after the service thereof on the bank, unless the same be renewed, which renewals shall be in writing and which renewals shall be in effect for not more six months from date of service thereof on the bank or trust company, but such renewals may be made from time to time. (1929, c. 341, s. 1.)

§ 25-199. Application to present orders.—No notice affecting a check upon which revocation, countermand or stop-payment order has been made prior to March 19, 1929, shall be deemed to continue for a period of more than six months thereafter. (1929, c. 341, s. 2.)

Chapter 26. Suretyship.

Sec.

- 26-1. Surety and principal distinguished in judgment and execution.
- 26-2. Principal liable on execution before surety.
- 26-3. Summary remedy of surety against principal.
- 26-4. Subrogation of surety paying debt of deceased principal.
- 26-5. Contribution among sureties.

Sec.

- 26-6. Dissenting surety not liable to surety on stay of execution.
- 26-7. Surety may notify creditor to sue.
- 26-8. How notice served.
- 26-9. Failure of creditor to sue discharges surety; exceptions.
- 26-10. [Repealed.]
- 26-11. Cancellation of judgment as to surety.

§ 26-1. Surety and principal distinguished in judgment and execution.—In the trial of actions upon contracts either of the defendants may show in evidence that he is surety, and if it be satisfactorily shown, the jury in their verdict, or the justice of the peace in his judgment, shall distinguish the principal and surety, which shall be indorsed on the execution by the clerk or justice of the peace issuing it. (Rev., s. 2840; Code, s. 2100; R. C., c. 31, s. 124; 1826, c. 31, s. 1; C. S. 3961.)

Cross Reference.—As to right of surety to subrogation, see notes to § 26-3.

In General.—A surety is bound with his principal as an original promisor. Baylies' Sureties and Guarantors, 4 Coleman v. Fuller, 105 N. C. 328, 329, 11 S. E. 175.

The surety's promise is to pay a debt, which becomes his own debt when the principal fails to pay it. 2 Parsons' Notes and Bills, 117-118. Coleman v. Fuller, 105 N. C. 328, 330, 11 S. E. 175.

Construed Strictly.—The liability of a surety cannot be enlarged by construction. Shoe Co. v. Peacock, 150 N. C. 545, 64 S. E. 437.

Order of Liability.—The order in which parties to a security are liable at law, is the order in which, independently of contract, they will be held bound in equity. Smith v. Smith, 16 N. C. 173.

Where it appeared that a negotiable instrument was signed by three persons other than the principal obligor, and it also appeared from a writing executed some time thereafter by one to indemnify the other two that they (the other two) "signed as co-sureties" of the third, it was held, that the character of suretyship in which all three signed was sufficiently established. Southerland v. Fremont, 107 N. C. 565, 12 S. E. 237.

Same—Parol Evidence to Show Coprincipals.—In Williams v. Glenn, 92 N. C. 253, the note (under seal) was made with W. "as principal" and B. and G. "as sureties," yet as between the obligors the court held that parol evidence was admissible to show that Boyden and Glenn were coprincipals, and that the rule of contribution obtained among them. Smith v. Carr, 128 N. C. 150, 153, 38 S. E. 732.

While all of the makers may appear as principals upon the face of the paper, or some principals and some sureties, yet it may be shown that while appearing as principals they were in fact sureties, or some principals and others sureties; and upon the establishment of the fact of cosuretyship, the right of contribution follows. Smith v. Carr, 128 N. C. 150, 153, 38 S. E. 732.

Same—Issue Submitted.—In an action against the maker and indorsers of a note, an issue should be submitted as to whether or not the endorsers were cosureties, or whether one was a supplemental surety to the other. Parish v. Graham, 129 N. C. 230, 39 S. E. 825.

May Allege and Prove Suretyship.—When sued, either of the defendants may allege that he is surety, and, if the allegation be proven, the jury in their verdict and the court in the judgment shall distinguish the principal and surety, and it shall be so indorsed on the execution issued for the collection of the judgment. Bank v. McArthur, 261 Fed. 97, 101.

In Gatewood v. Leak, 99 N. C. 357, 6 S. E. 635, 637, it was said: "If the appellee was surety, as he alleges, he might, as allowed by the statute, (this section) have shown, by proper evidence on the trial in the actions in which the judgments were obtained by the appellant, that he was such surety, and the jury in their verdict, or the justice of the peace in his judgment, would have distinguished him as surety, and the executions would have been issued with a proper indorsement to that effect; and in that case the sheriff would have levied the sum required to be collected, first, out of the property of the principal if he had sufficient for that purpose."

Same—Practice of Courts.—It is not the practice of the courts to see that evidence of suretyship is produced and such fact inserted in the judgment, in the absence of the defendants and without any averment or request on their part. Morehead Banking Co. v. Duke, 121 N. C. 110, 28 S. E. 191.

Effect of Not Alleging Suretyship.—In Bank v. McArthur, 261 Fed. 97, 103, it was said that "It would not seem that, by failing to set up his suretyship in the action brought by the American National Bank on the note, McArthur lost any equitable rights against McBryde to which he was entitled as surety. It is true, as held in Gatewood v. Leak, 99 N. C. 357, 6 S. E. 635, that the surety, who has failed to set up the fact and have it found as provided by the statute, cannot enjoin the plaintiff in the judgment from proceeding to sell his land for its satisfaction. Neither McArthur nor plaintiffs may enjoin the bank from enforcing its judgment against himself until it has exhausted McBryde's property."

The magistrate is not bound to discriminate except upon the application of, and due proof by, the surety. Stewart v. Ray, 26 N. C. 269.

Effect of Finding of Jury.—Where a suit is brought at law against two persons, a finding of the jury, that one of the defendants is principal, and the other surety, if binding at all between the parties, does not in equity establish the relation of suretyship. Lowder v. Noding, 43 N. C. 208.

When Execution Does Not Distinguish.—Where an execution against two does not distinguish which is principal and which surety, the sheriff has a right to collect it from either; and the sheriff may collect it from the surety, though the plaintiff in the execution directed him to collect it from the other. Shuford v. Cline, 35 N. C. 463.

Right of Surety to Subrogation.—See notes to § 26-3.

Right of Surety to Assign Judgment.—It was stated by the Supreme Court of this state in Barringer v. Boyden, 52 N. C. 187: "The right of a surety to keep alive a judgment, which he has paid, by having an assignment made to a stranger for his benefit, is unquestionable. When he advances the money, he has a clear equity (if he desires it) to be subrogated to the rights of the creditor, and to use the creditor's judgment for the purpose of coercing payment against the principal. Whether money advanced in such a way be an extinguishment or a purchase seems to be a question of intention. If it be paid, and nothing be said or done to show a contrary intentment, an extinguishment will be presumed; but if an assignment be made to one not a party, so as to show a purpose to keep it alive, it is sufficient. That a party defendant furnishes the money, and that the assignment is made on a day subsequent to the advancement of the money, can make no difference, provided it was intended, at the time it was advanced, as a purchase and not as a payment." Bank v. McArthur, 261 Fed. 97, 103.

Signing on Faith of Creditors Representations.—Persons signing a note as surety upon faith in the creditor's representation that another will sign as co-surety, leaving the note with the creditor for that purpose, are not bound thereon to such creditor upon the failure of the fulfillment of the representation. Bank v. Hunt, 124 N. C. 171, 32 S. E. 546, cited and distinguished. Bank v. Jones, 147 N. C. 419, 61 S. E. 193.

Bond Joint and Several on Face.—Although the bond is joint and several on its face it can be shown by parol that a party thereto is a surety. Brandt on Surety, secs. 29 and 30. Coffey v. Reinhardt, 114 N. C. 509, 510, 19 S. E. 370.

Statute of Limitations.—If the purchaser of a note before maturity, for value and without notice, subsequently receives notice that a party thereto is a surety and delays action for three years after maturity the surety will be protected by the three years' statute of limitations. Coffey v. Reinhardt, 114 N. C. 509, 19 S. E. 370.

§ 26-2. Principal liable on execution before surety.—When an execution, indorsed as aforesaid, shall come to the hands of any officer for collection, he shall levy on all the property of the principal, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to satisfy the execution, and, for want of sufficient property of the principal, also on the property of the surety, and make sale of all the property of the principal levied on before that of the surety. (Rev., s. 2841; Code, s. 2101; R. C., c. 31, s. 125; 1826, c. 31, s. 2; C. S. 3962.)

Surety's Interest in Collateral.—The principle is stated by Ruffin, C. J., in these words: "The surety is entitled to the benefit of every additional or collateral security which the creditor gets into his hands for the debt for which the surety is bound, as soon as such a security is created, and by whatever means the surety's interest in it arises; and the creditor cannot himself, nor by any collusion with the debtor, do any act to impair the security or destroy the surety's interest." Nelson v. Williams, 2 Dev. & B. Eq. 118. See also Smith v. McLeod, 3 Ired. Eq. 390; Cooper v. Wilcox, 2 Dev. & B. Eq. 90; Bank v. Homesley, 99 N. C. 531, 6 S. E. 797.

§ 26-3. Summary remedy of surety against principal.—Any person who may have paid money for and on account of those for whom he became surety, upon producing to the superior court, or any justice of the peace having jurisdiction of the same, a receipt, and showing that an execution has issued, and he has satisfied the same, and making it appear by sufficient testimony that he has laid out and expended any sum of money as the surety of such person, may move the court or justice of the peace, as the case may be, for judgment against his principal for the amount which he has actually paid; a citation having previously issued against the principal to show cause why execution should not be awarded; and should the principal not show sufficient cause, the court or justice shall award execution against the estate of the principal. (Rev., s. 2842; Code, s. 2093; R. C., c. 110, s. 1; 1797, c. 487, s. 1; C. S. 3963.)

- II. Subrogation.
- III. Assignments.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 116.

The words "Superior Court" used in this section mean the clerk of the Superior Court. Bank v. Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 S. E. 570.

Cannot Sue in Tort.—A surety who has paid money for his principal cannot sue him in an action of tort. Ledbetter v. Torney, 33 N. C. 294.

Citation Issued to Principal.—The section providing that a surety who shows that he has paid out money upon a judgment against his principal and himself may have a citation issued to the principal by the clerk to show cause why execution should not be awarded him therefor, is constitutional. Bank v. Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 S. E. 570.

Notice to Corporation to Show Cause.—A notice issued by a court of competent jurisdiction, served upon the secretary and treasurer of a corporation, to show cause why an execution should not be awarded in favor of a surety who has paid a judgment against the corporation and himself, which sets out the date and amount of the judgment, the relation of the parties, that the surety has actually expended money in payment of said judgment, and that the principal has not reimbursed him, is a compliance with the section. Bank v. Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 S. E. 570.

Validity of Order.—While, under the section the court may not revive a dormant judgment against the principal and the surety, an order otherwise valid is not rendered void by the addition of the words "that the judgment heretofore rendered is hereby revived, to the end that execution may be issued." The last sentence will be regarded as surplusage. Bank v. Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 S. E. 570.

When Surety Entitled to Action for Money Paid.—A judgment against a surety will not entitle him to maintain an action for money paid to the use of the defendant, until it has been satisfied. Hodges v. Armstrong, 14 N. C. 253.

To enable a surety to recover for money paid to the use of his principal, he must prove an actual payment in satisfaction of the debt. Hodges v. Armstrong, 14 N. C. 253.

Right of Surety When Funds Misapplied.—Where a surety prays a judgment against his principal he may recover any funds wrongfully converted or misapplied by the principal. Fidelity Co. v. Jordan, 134 N. C. 236, 46 S. E. 496.

Surety Cannot Trace Property.—A surety who has to pay the debt, has no equity to follow the specific property which the principal debtor purchased with the borrowed money. Carlton v. Simonton, 94 N. C. 401.

Same-Bank Deposits.—Where the principal debtor borrowed a sum of money, which he deposited in a bank which soon afterwards became insolvent, and the surety had to pay the debt, the surety has no equity to enjoin the principal debtor from collecting the dividends from the insolvent bank, until he can recover a judgment. Carlton v. Simonton, 94 N. C. 401.

Right against Partnership.—Where a writ is issued against two copartners for partnership debt, and one of them is arrested and gives bail, such bail, upon being afterwards compelled by due course of law to pay the debt, has no remedy except against the individual for whom he became bail. He has no claim upon the other partner. The case of Osborne v. Cunningham, 4 Dev. & Bat., 423, cited and approved. Foley v. Robards, 25 N. C. 177.

Where one endorsed a note at the request of a member of a firm for the purpose of obtaining money for the use of the firm, and the proceeds were so used, the endorser, upon payment of the note, can recover therefor against the firm, though no member of such firm signed the note. Springs v. McCoy, 122 N. C. 628, 29 S. E. 903.

When Surety's Liability Barred by Limitations.—Property mortgaged by an administrator to a surety to secure him against loss may be subjected to payment of estate debts, though the personal liability of the surety is barred. Hooker v. Yellowley, 128 N. C. 297, 38 S. E. 889.

The obligation of a bond for the forthcoming of property is only that the property shall be delivered to the officer at the time designated, and not that the execution shall be delivered to the officer at the time designated and not that the execution shall be satisfied; and therefore, if a surety to the forthcoming bond before it is forfeited discharges the execution without the request of his principal, such surety cannot maintain an action against his principal for money expended for the latter's use, although by the payment of the money in satisfaction of the execution the bond was discharged. Gray v. Bowls, 18 N. C. 437.

When Mortgage Inures to Benefit of Creditors.—A mortgage given by an administrator to a surety on his bond to secure the latter against loss inures to the benefit of the creditors of the estate. Hooker v. Yellowley, 128 N. C. 297, 38 S. E. 889.

Bond of Guardian in Suit on Behalf of Ward.—Where a guardian, having given a bond for the prosecution of a suit by him on behalf of his ward and signed the same individually, was compelled to pay the costs of the suit out of his individual estate, he cannot recover the same under the provisions of this section, which gives a summary method for reimbursement of a surety who has paid money for another. Green v. Burgess, 117 N. C. 495, 23 S. E. 439.

II. SUBROGATION.

Subrogation Explained.—Subrogation is the substitution of another person in the place of a creditor, so that the former can succeed to the rights of the latter in relation to the debt, and to entitle one to such equitable relief, he must have paid the money upon request or as surety or under some compulsion made necessary by the adequate protection of his own rights. Liles v. Rogers, 113 N. C. 197, 18 S. E. 104.

Legal subrogation is based upon payment and exists where one who has an interest to protect or is secondarily liable makes payment, while conventional subrogation, so named from the convention or agreement of the civil law, is founded upon the agreement of the parties, which really amounts to an equitable assignment. Liles v. Rogers, 113 N. C. 197, 18 S. E. 104; Bank v. Bank, 158 N. C. 250, 73 S. E. 157; Pub. Co. v. Barber, 165 N. C. 478, 488, 81 S. E. 694; Joyner v. Reflector Co., 176 N. C. 274, 278, 97 S. E. 44.

The doctrine of equity, upon which subsequent cases have been ruled, was announced in Deering v. Earl of Winchelsea (1787) White & Tudor's L. C. Eq. 784, and Pomeroy, Eq. (3d Ed.) 1419, in which it is said: "By the fact of payment the surety becomes an equitable assignee of all such securities, and is entitled to have them assigned and delivered up to him by the creditor, in order that he may enforce them for his own reimbursement and exoneration. If, therefore, the creditor refuses to surrender up such securities, the surety may maintain an equitable suit to compel their assignment and surrender. Bank v. McArthur, 261 Fed. 97, 103.

It is held that an indorser on a note may pay it and demand its delivery, and if the contract has been merged into a judgment, his right is to an assignment of the judgment and enforce it for his own benefit. Eno v. Crook, 10 N. Y. 66; Freeman on Judgments, 471; Lennox v. Prout, 3 Wheat. 521, 4 L. Ed. 449. The principle is clearly stated by Prof. Langdell: "If payment of a debt be secured by a pledge of the debtor's property, and also by the obligation of a personal surety, and the surety pay the debt, equity will compel the creditor to deliver the pledge to him and not to the debtor, though the latter has a clear legal right to receive it, the debt being paid and extinguished; i. e., equity destroys the legal right of the debtor, and converts the creditor into a trustee for surety. This is done upon the theory that the debt is not paid by the surety, but is purchased by him, and that he is therefore entitled to the pledge as an incident of the debt. This, however, is only a fiction—a fiction, moreover, which is contrary to law, for the payment by the surety extinguishes the debt. Equity does this under the name of subrogation, and perhaps her best justification is that she borrowed both the name and the thing from the civil law." Bank v. McArthur, 261 Fed. 97, 103.

A surety paying the debt of his principal is entitled to be subrogated to all the rights of the creditors, against a co-surety as well as against the principal, and this includes the right to have a judgment which he has paid assigned to a trustee for his benefit, so as to compel his co-surety to pay his pro rata part. Peebles v. Gay, 115 N. C. 38, 20 S. E. 173.

In Brandt on Suretyship, sec. 347, quoted in Tripp v. Harris, 154 N. C. 296, 299, 70 S. E. 470, it is said: "A surety who pays the debt of his principal is entitled to subrogation to a mortgage given by the principal to the creditor for the security of the debt, and he may, with or without a formal assignment thereof, have the same foreclosed in his own name, for his benefit."

Where a surety, as such, paid the whole of a debt, then the section gives him a right of action against co-sureties at law, and also such priority as the creditor would have had as a claimant against his principal's estate. Holden v. Strickland, 116 N. C. 185, 195, 21 S. E. 684.

Rights Acquired.—The party for whose benefit the doctrine of subrogation is invoked and exercised can acquire no greater rights than those of the party for whom he is substituted, and if the latter had not a right of recovery the former can acquire none. Sheldon on Subrogation, sec. 6; Clark v. Williams, 70 N. C. 679; Liles v. Rogers, 113 N. C. 197, 201, 18 S. E. 104.

An endorser or surety who pays the indebtedness is subrogated to the rights of the creditor as against the property of the debtor. Ex parte Pittinger, 142 N. C. 85, 54 S. E. 845.

A surety to an administration bond who paid one-half of a debt recovered against the insolvent administrator is not subrogated to the rights of the creditor whose debt he paid, but to the right of the administrator for whom he paid it. Clark v. Williams, 70 N. C. 679.

Same—Liens and Securities.—A surety who pays the debt, is subrogated to all the specific liens and securities which the creditor has against the principal debtor. Carlton v. Simonton, 94 N. C. 401.

When Doctrine Cannot Be Invoked.—If a surety pays a judgment and has it entered "satisfied," without having it assigned to a trustee for his benefit, the remedy of subrogation is lost. Peebles v. Gay, 115 N. C. 38, 20 S. E. 173.

Where several or successive obligations of suretyship be not in substance and nature for the same thing, and have no relation to or operation upon each other, the doctrine of subrogation can not be invoked. Liles v. Rogers, 113 N. C. 197, 18 S. E. 104.

Same—Corporation Note.—The endorsers on a note of a corporation secured by mortgage on its property are not entitled to subrogation, either legal or conventional, when it is ascertained that the note was paid by the corporation, and not the endorsers, and where there is evidence that the latter had paid it, the question should be submitted to the jury. Joyner v. Reflector Co., 176 N. C. 274, 97 S. E. 44.

Rights of Surety against Party Receiving Money with Full Knowledge.—A surety company which has been called upon to pay a devastavit committed by its principal, an administrator, is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the creditor against a party who received the money with knowledge of its wrongful appropriation, and his rights are exactly those of the creditor. Caviness v. Fidelity Co., 140 N. C. 58, 52 S. E. 265.

A surety, omitted in the deed in trust to secure the sureties, is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of his co-sureties pro tanto, if he has paid the debts, and the payees in the notes have a superior equitable right of subrogation to the benefit of any security given by the principal debtor to his sureties. Ijames v. Gaither, 93 N. C. 358, 362; Sherroa v. Dixon, 120 N. C. 60, 63, 26 S. E. 770; Harrison v. Styres, 74 N. C. 290; Wiswall v. Potts, 58 N. C. 184, 189. And this is true whether they knew of it or not. Matthews v. Joyce, 85 N. C. 258, 266; Brandt on Suretyship, sec. 282; Blanton & Co. v. Bostic, 126 N. C. 418, 420, 35 S. E. 1035.

III. ASSIGNMENTS.

Preservation of Lien by Assignment.—A surety may preserve the lien of judgment against the principal and himself by paying the judgment creditor and having the judgment assigned to a third person for his own benefit; and this also applies to a judgment against his co-sureties and himself in enforcing an equality of obligation between them. Fowle v. McLean, 168 N. C. 537, 84 S. E. 852.

A surety who pays the amount recovered against him and his principal, or co-sureties, may have the judgment assigned to another in trust for his use, and it will continue in force for his benefit; and he may, upon motion in the cause, have satisfaction of the judgment entered, even against the consent of the assignee. State v. Hearn, 109 N. C. 150, 13 S. E. 895.

Assignment of Right by Surety.—Where one of two defendants has paid a joint judgment upon a note against them both, and has the judgment assigned to another for his use, who brings action to recover against the other judgment debtor, he may, as between themselves, show that the defendant in the second action was the principal payee, and that he, the plaintiff, was an indorser, though not pleaded in the original action, and recover the full amount of the judgment he has paid, the action being, in substance, one by the surety on the note to recover against the principal thereon. Haywood v. Russell, 182 N. C. 711, 110 S. E. 81.

When One-half of Judgment Paid and Other Assigned.—Where a surety who paid and had satisfaction entered as to one-half of a judgment against himself, his principal and a co-surety, and procured the judgment as to the other half to be assigned to a trustee for his benefit, it was in effect the same as if he had procured the whole judgment to be so assigned. Peebles v. Gay, 115 N. C. 38, 20 S. E. 173.

When Assignment of Security Taken.—If an assignment of the security is taken, the surety may have his redress upon it immediately in the name of the creditor but while it is not in force, the surety can not maintain an action for the money paid for the assignment. Hodges v. Armstrong, 14 N. C. 253.

When Person Charged with Notice of Assignment.—Where a judgment against a principal and the sureties on a note is paid by the sureties, and an assignment thereof is made to a trustee for the benefit of the sureties, but by a mistake payment is entered on the judgment record, which is afterwards corrected by the entry thereon of the assignment, a person taking a mortgage on the property of the judgment debtor, after the assignment is entered on the record, takes with notice of the assignment. Patton v. Cooper, 132 N. C. 791, 44 S. E. 676.

§ 26-4. Subrogation of surety paying debt of deceased principal.—Whenever a surety, or his representative, shall pay the debt of his deceased principal, the claim thus accruing shall have such priority in the administration of the assets of the principal as had the debt before its payment. (Rev., s. 2843; Code, s. 2096; R. C., c. 110, s. 4; 1829, c. 23; C. S. 3964.)

Scope.—This section which confers on the claim of a surety, paying the debt for which he is surety, the dignity, in the administration of the assets of the principal, which the debt, if unpaid would have had, applies to a judgment whether the payment be made before or after the death of the principal. Drake v. Coltrane, 44 N. C. 300.

When Co-surety Deemed Bond Creditor.—A co-surety, who pays the bond debt for which the other surety is equally bound, shall be deemed a bond creditor in the administration of the estate of the deceased co-surety, under the act of 1828 as construed in Drake v. Coltrane, 44 N. C. 300; Howell v. Reams, 73 N. C. 391.

When a plaintiff, a co-surety, discharged the bond debt, for the payment of which the defendant's intestate was equally bound, he becomes a bond creditor as to the assets of the intestate; and when, pending an action for contribution, the administrator paid off the bonds voluntarily, of equal dignity with said surety debt, having previously paid an open account, he committed a devastavit to the extent of the plaintiff's claim for contribution, such claim being for a sum smaller than the bonds so preferred and the open account. Howell v. Reams, 73 N. C. 391.

Applied, in subrogating widow to rights of mortgagee where policy in which she is named beneficiary is assigned to and paid to mortgagee, in Russel v. Owen, 203 N. C. 262, 165 S. E. 687.

Cited in Brown v. McLean, 217 N. C. 555, 8 S. E. (2d) 807.

§ 26-5. Contribution among sureties. — Where there are two or more sureties for the performance of a contract, and one or more of them may have been compelled to perform and satisfy the same, or any part thereof, and the principal shall be insolvent, or out of the state, such surety may have and maintain an action against every other surety for a just and ratable proportion of the sum which may have been paid as aforesaid, whether of principal, interest or cost. (Rev., s. 2844; Code, s. 2094; R. C., c. 110, s. 2; 1807, c. 722; C. S. 3965.)

III. Contribution Enforced.

A. In General.

B. Actions and Incidents Thereof.

I. THE RIGHT TO CONTRIBUTION GENERALLY.

Editor's Note.—Atwater v. Farthing, 118 N. C. 388, 24 S. E. 736, was a case where A endorsed a note for the maker, and subsequently, but before it was discounted, F endorsed it. The principal became insolvent and left the state. A paid the note. The court held that F was a co-surety, and that the doctrine of contribution was applicable for A's benefit. Mr. Justice Furches, who delivered the opinion of the Court, said that the decision was governed by Daniel v. McRae, 9 N. C. 590 and Dawson v. Pettway, 20 N. C. 531. There are a number of other cases to the same effect, but these two seem to be the leading ones. The learned Justice concluded the opinion by saying: "It was admitted by the learned counsel who argued for the defendant that Daniel v. McRae, supra, was against him. But he contended that this opinion was not supported by principle and was in conflict with the adjudged cases of nearly every State of the Union, and that it had been severely criticised by this Court. But whether it was put on sound business principles or not (and we do not say that it was not), and whether it has been criticised or not (and we must admit that it has been), it has stood for itself since 1823; and although it was criticised by Gaston, J., delivering the opinion of the Court in Dawson v. Pettway, supra, in 1839, he then said it has been too long the recognized law of the State to be reversed, even admitting that the reasoning upon which it was founded was not sound. And if it had been the recognized law in 1839 for too great length of time to be changed, how much greater is that reason now, after a period of more than fifty years since that opinion was rendered? According to this opinion, the defendants were co-sureties and subject to the doctrine of contribution. We can add nothing to the argument contained in these cases, and we do not propose to re-occupy this field of discussion, exhausted by Judge Henderson and Judge Gaston more than fifty years ago."

Rule of Contribution.—The rule of contribution is founded upon the maxim that "equality is equity," and not upon contract. It is a rule of common justice whereby parties who undertake to account for the default or miscarriage of another, should equally bear the burden imposed by a failure of their principal. As between them, there is no agreement implied, but an equitable presumption raised by the fact of the payment by one, that the others will equalize the burden thus borne by him, by paying to him such sum as will make the loss equal upon each, which can be rebutted by showing that there was an agreement, whether verbal or written, to the contrary. 1 Brandt Suretyship and Guaranty, Sec. 261. Smith v. Carr, 128 N. C. 150, 153, 38 S. E. 732; Allen v. Wood, 38 N. C. 386.

This maxim can only be applied to those whose situations are equal; otherwise equality is not equity, and hence if one surety stipulate for a separate indemnity, the equality of situation between him and his co-surety ceases, and the maxim does not apply. Moore v. Moore, 11 N. C. 358.

It is broadly stated in 2 Brandt Suretyship 309, that "A surety who pays his principal's debt is entitled to be subrogated to all the rights and remedies of the creditor against his co-surety in the same manner as against the principal." This is founded in reason and justice, and up to the adoption of our present Constitution was enforced in the courts of equity. Art IV, sec. 1, of the Constitution abolished the distinction between actions at law and suits in equity, leaving such rights and remedies to be enforced in the one court, which theretofore had administered simply legal rights. Peebles v. Gay, 115 N. C. 38, 41, 20 S. E. 173.

The liability of sureties among themselves is controlled by the equitable principle of equality arising out of a common risk, and in case of insolvency or nonresidence these rights are adjusted by reference to the number of sureties who are solvent or who have property available to process within the jurisdiction of the court. Fowle v. McLean, 168 N. C. 537, 84 S. E. 852.

Same—Primary and Conditional Liability. — The equitable doctrine of contribution is enforced upon the principle that those engaged in a common hazard in the same degree or relation should bear the loss equally, but where one is surety and the others indorsers, the liability of the former is primary and of the latter a conditional one, and not being in the same situation with regard to the hazard, the surety is not entitled to contribution from the indorsers. Edwards v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 173 N. C. 614, 92 S. E. 695.

Presumption of Equity.—Co-principals and co-sureties are presumed to assume equal liability, but this presumption may be rebutted by parol evidence. Smith v. Carr, 128 N. C. 150, 38 S. E. 732.

Surety for Other Sureties.—It is entirely competent for one person to become surety for other sureties, or to limit the extent of his liability with respect to other sureties. The test of liability is the intent of the parties as indicated by their agreement. Citizens Nat. Bank v. Burch, 145 N. C. 316, 317, 318, 59 S. E. 71.

Sureties on Successive Guardianship Bonds.—The sureties to the successive bonds of a guardian stand in the relation of co-sureties, one bond to the other or others, and are liable, in case of insolvency of the guardian, to contribution in proportion to the amount of the several penalties of the bonds. The risk they take is a joint risk, and there is an implied engagement or obligation, each set of sureties with the other, to bear any loss which may fall on them proportionally, as above stated; or, if it is borne by one class, to contribute by way of reimbursement. Bell v. Jasper, 37 N. C. 597; Jones v. Hays, 38 N. C. 502; Bright v. Lennon, 83 N. C. 184.

Where a guardian gives several successive bonds for the faithful discharge of his trust, the sureties on each bond stand in the relation of co-sureties to the sureties on every other bond; the only qualification to the rule being that the sureties are bound to contribution only according to the amount of the penalty of the bond in which each class is bound. Jones v. Hays, 38 N. C. 502.

All the bonds given by a guardian are but securities for the same thing, and the sureties on each are bound to contribution, but their liabilities are in proportion to the amount of their respective bonds. Jones v. Blanton, 41 N. C. 115.

When Surety Should Answer for Default and Stop Costs. —As a general rule, upon the default and insolvency of a principal, a surety should answer for the default, and not unnecessarily let cost be run up where the liability and amount thereof is clear. But where, as in the instant case, the guardian claimed to have settled with and paid the wards, it was prudent in plaintiff in regard to his own interests and as an act of justice to his co-sureties on other bonds, to incur costs to the point of developing how the fact of alleged settlement was, and to this effect are the authorities. Brandt Suretyship, sec. 248; McKinson v. George, 2 Rich. (S. C.) Eq., 15; Fletcher v. Jackson, 23 Vt. 593; Bright v. Lennon, 83 N. C. 184, 188.

The costs incurred by one surety, or one set of sureties, are not always to be regarded as a loss borne to which in equity contribution may be had, but it would seem to depend on the prudence and bona fides of the defense by which they were incurred. Bright v. Lennon, 83 N. C. 184, 188.

Assets Given Up by Mistake of Law.—Where A and B were co-sureties on an administration bond, and being sued upon the same by one of the next of kin, and while the suit was pending compromised the same under the advice of counsel and from an honest belief that both were liable to a larger sum on account of the devastavit and insolvency of their principal, and it is afterwards discovered that B, who had administered on the estate of the principal, had, by a misapprehension of law, but acting under legal counsel, and in good faith, erroneously given up assets of their principal to another claim, which, if they had been held by him, would have saved them both from loss by this suretyship, yet it was held that A could not sustain a bill to throw the whole loss on B, there being no evidence that B had concealed from A the fact of having thus parted with the assets and not making any allegation of fraud or imposition on the part of B. Brandon v. Medley, 54 N. C. 313.

Release of Principal.—A surety who seeks to recover from a co-surety a ratable part of money paid must take care to do no act which will prevent the co-surety from having recourse against the principal. If, therefore, he release the principal, it is a discharge of the co-surety. Draughan v. Bunting, 31 N. C. 10.

Sureties on Sheriff's Tax Bond.—The right of contribution does not exist between sureties of the different bonds of a sheriff as tax collector. McGuire v. Williams, 123 N. C. 349, 357, 31 S. E. 627.

When One Surety in Fact Surety for Co-surety.—Where A. and B. signed a negotiable note apparently as joint principals, when, in fact, the latter was surety for the former and the appellant signed the note by writing his name across the back, with the word "surety" underneath, it was held that in the absence of any evidence that appellant knew of the relation between the makers, he was surety for the two, and that surety B. could not compel contribution. Citizens Nat. Bank v. Burch, 145 N. C. 316, 317, 59 S. E. 71.

Released by Securing Part of Debt.—If there be several sureties for the same principal, and one of them be fixed with the payment of the whole debt, or of more than his ratable part thereof, the others, who are solvent, shall be compelled to contribute, in order to equalize the loss. But if by any agreement between the sureties, one of them is released by the creditor, upon his securing the payment of a certain part of the debt, he shall not afterwards be called upon to contribute to one or more of the remaining sureties, for a loss arising from the deficiency of another to them. Moore v. Isley, 22 N. C. 372.

Agreement between Sureties.—There can be no doubt that after two persons have become sureties for a common principal they may, by agreement between themselves, renounce their right to take benefit from any securities they may respectively obtain, and each look out for himself exclusively for an indemnity from the principal or for contribution from another co-surety. Long v. Barnett, 38 N. C. 631; Commissioners v. Nichols, 131 N. C. 501, 505, 42 S. E. 938.

Where the land of one of two sureties of a third person was sold under execution for the debt, and the other surety and a third person bid it off, it was held that an agreement by the surety who owned the land to take the whole debt upon himself and satisfy the execution in return for an assignment of the bid to him, was a promise to pay his own debt and not affected by the statute of frauds; and in such case the surety who paid could not obtain contribution from his co-surety. Hockaday v. Parker, 53 N. C. 16.

II. WHEN SURETY OBTAINS ADVANTAGE OVER CO-SURETIES.

Property Advanced by Principal to One of Sureties.—Where money is advanced by the principal to one of the sureties, to discharge the debt, before the debt is actually discharged, the co-surety may file his bill in equity for an account and for relief but if the money is paid by the principal after the debt has been discharged by the sureties, to one of two sureties, to reimburse both, then the co-surety has his remedy against the surety receiving the money, by an action at law for money had and received, and, therefore, can not support a suit in equity. Allen v. Wood, 38 N. C. 386.

An indemnity obtained from a principal by one of two co-sureties, after the risk is incurred, inures equally to the benefit of both. Pool v. Williams, 30 N. C. 286.

Where the principal placed property in the hands of a surety sufficient to satisfy the debt, and then left the State, it was held that a third person, also bound for the debt as surety, having been compelled to pay it, might recover its amount from the person who had received the property without making a previous demand. Parham v. Green, 64 N. C. 436, citing with approval Draughan v. Bunting, 31 N. C. 10, 12; Hall v. Robinson, 30 N. C. 56, 58; Sherrod v. Woodward, 15 N. C. 360; Norfleet v. Cromwell, 64 N. C. 1.

When two persons engage in a common risk as sureties for a third and one of them subsequently takes an indemnity from the principal debtor it inures to the benefit of both. Fagan v. Jacobs, 15 N. C. 263; Gregory v. Murrell, 37 N. C. 233, 236; Hall v. Robinson, 30 N. C. 56.

Separate Indemnity.—In Long v. Barnett, 38 N. C. 631, Ruffin, C. J., speaking for the court said: "As one, when he is about to become a surety with others, may stipulate for a separate indemnity from the principal to him, and the co-sureties would be only entitled to a surplus after his reimbursement. Moore v. Moore, 11 N. C. 358; 15 Am. Dec. 523." Commissioners v. Nichols, 131 N. C. 501, 505, 42 S. E. 938.

When Indemnity May Be Reached.—The indemnity taken by one surety can be reached by the other only in two cases, either when it was taken in fraud, or for the benefit of the other. Moore v. Moore, 11 N. C. 358.

Before and after Severance of Relationship.—While the relation of joint sureties exists, funds received by one of them (except under special circumstances) for the discharge of, or as an indemnity against, his liability, are to be applied for the common benefit of the sureties. But after that connection has been severed by an agreement among the sureties, each of them has his distinct and several claim to prosecute, because of what he has paid for his principal, or for an insolvent joint surety; and the others have no right to demand participation in what his diligence may enable him to procure, while thus prosecuting his several claims. Moore v. Isley, 22 N. C. 372.

When Advantage Lost by Laches.—Where the surety merely had a deed of trust for certain property, as an indemnity, executed by the principal, and neglected to have it registered, so that the property was sold by other creditors, the co-surety is not entitled, on account of this laches, to make him responsible for the value of the property. Pool v. Williams, 30 N. C. 286.

Supplementary Surety.—Where one of two sureties claims to be a supplemental surety by agreement, the burden is upon him to show the agreement. Carr v. Smith, 129 N. C. 232, 39 S. E. 831.

Parties.—One of three joint solvent sureties cannot sustain a bill against either of his co-sureties for contribution out of a fund alleged to have been received by that surety for his indemnity from the estate of an insolvent co-surety, without making the other a party. Moore v. Isley, 22 N. C. 372.

III. CONTRIBUTION ENFORCED.

A. In General.

Accommodation Maker and Endorser.—An accommodation maker who pays a note may recover contribution from an accommodation endorser of the note where they intended to become co-sureties. Gilliam v. Walker, 189 N. C. 189, 126 S. E. 424.

Co-surety Paying Bond Debt Deemed Bond Creditor.—In Howell v. Reams, 73 N. C. 391 it was held that a co-surety who pays the bond debt, for which the other surety is equally bound, shall be deemed a bond creditor in the administration of the estate of the deceased co-surety. Peebles v. Gay, 115 N. C. 38, 41, 20 S. E. 173.

Liable for Ratable Part of Debt Only.—The section provides that where one or more sureties have been compelled to satisfy the contract of their principal, they may sue their co-sureties for their ratable part of the debt paid for the principal. Peebles v. Gay, 115 N. C. 38, 41, 20 S. E. 173.

There was a judgment against the principal and two sureties, and an execution levied on the property of one of the sureties. A bought this property from this surety, pending the levy, and afterwards obtained an assignment of the judgment to enable him to have the whole amount satisfied out of the property of the co-surety, and issued an execution for that purpose. It was held that he was restrained from collecting out of the co-surety more than the fair proportion which the latter owed, whether A had actual notice of the lien of the execution or not. Dobson v. Prather, 41 N. C. 31, citing with approval the cases of Gilkey v. Dickerson, 2 Hawks, 341; Brassfield v. Whitaker, 4 Hawks, 309; Bell v. Hill, 1 Hay, 72; Ricks v. Blount, 4 Dev., 128; and Jones v. Judkins, 4 Dev. & Bat., 454.

Rights of Surety Paying Entire Debt.—Under the act of 1807, now this section, one surety may recover at law from another his ratable proportion of the debt of the principal, but the rights of the surety who pays the debt are not enlarged nor is the co-surety deprived of any just grounds of defense which would before have been available to him in equity. Hall v. Robinson, 30 N. C. 56.

In Case of Absent Co-surety.—A co-surety must make contribution, without regard to the share of contribution, which the absent co-surety would have had to pay, had he been within the reach of the process of our courts. Jones v. Blanton, 41 N. C. 115.

Accommodation Endorser Not Liable as Co-surety.—Where A, as surety, signed the note of B, payable to C, and it was endorsed by C, at the request and for the accommodation of B, there being no contract between A and C whereby they agree to become co-sureties of B, it was held that A had no right to contribution from C. Smith v. Smith, 16 N. C. 173.

Liability Need Not Be Fixed by Judgment.—It is not necessary, to entitle a surety to maintain an action for contribution, that the amount of his liability which was paid by him should be fixed by a judgment. Bright v. Lennon, 83 N. C. 184.

Statute of Limitations.—In the case of a surety's payment and action for contribution against the co-surety, the statute of limitations runs only from the payment. Sherrod v. Woodward, 15 N. C. 360; Craven v. Freeman, 82 N. C. 351, 363.

A surety who pays money for his principal, may maintain an action against his co-surety for his ratable part, without first making a demand, and the statute of limitations therefore begins to run from the time of the payment of the money. Sherrod v. Woodward, 15 N. C. 360.

Same—Failure to Plead Limitations When Sued.—A surety when sued is not bound to plead the statute of limitations, but may or may not according to his discretion. Jones v. Blanton, 41 N. C. 115; Street v. Comrs., 70 N. C. 644; Craven v. Freeman, 82 N. C. 361. And if so, the withdrawal of such a plea or a waiver of it ought not to affect and does not affect the right to contribution. The design of that plea is to protect against a false and unjust claim or one of whose discharge the evidence is lost, but it is not obligatory in morals or law to use it to defeat a just debt. Bright v. Lennon, 83 N. C. 184, 189.

A surety to a guardian bond, when sued by the wards, is not bound to avail himself of the statute of limitations and a failure to do so does not release co-sureties. Jones v. Blanton, 41 N. C. 115.

B. Actions and Incidents Thereto.

Action at Law for Aliquot Parts.—An action at law by a surety for contribution lies only against the co-sureties, severally, for the aliquot part due from each. Adams v. Hayes, 120 N. C. 383, 27 S. E. 47.

Where two sureties on a note to a bank agreed, after the insolvency of their principal, to employ a broker to buy notes of the bank to an amount sufficient to pay the debt, and one of them paid the broker for notes purchased by him, and discharged the debt, it was held that he could maintain an action on the case against his co-surety for contribution. DeRossett v. Bradley, 63 N. C. 17.

Surety Should Allege Principal's Insolvency.—When one surety brings a bill for contribution against a co-surety, he should at least allege that the principal is insolvent, so that he can have no redress against him. For the equity of a plaintiff, seeking contribution from a co-surety, lies in the insolvency of the principal. Allen v. Wood, 38 N. C. 386.

A surety has no right to call upon his co-surety in equity for contribution, without showing that he could not obtain satisfaction for the amount he has paid from their common principal. Rainey v. Yarborough, 37 N. C. 249.

When Insolvency Not Alleged and Improper Relief Asked.—Where a complaint in an action by a surety for contribution, joined the principals as parties, and alleged the contract of suretyship, payment by the plaintiff and demand of the co-sureties "for their contributive shares," and asked judgment against all, but did not allege insolvency of the principal except by the averment that plaintiff was compelled to pay the debt, it was held that, though the proper relief was not asked, and the insolvency of the principals was imperfectly alleged, the cause of action will be construed, on demurrer, as equitable rather than legal, in order to confer jurisdiction below. Adams v. Hayes, 120 N. C. 383, 27 S. E. 47.

Costs Paid by Plaintiff.—In an action by a surety of an insolvent guardian for contribution against other sureties, it is proper to include in the sum adjudged to be raised by contribution costs which were paid by plaintiff in an action against him as a condition for leave to plead the statute of limitations. Bright v. Lennon, 83 N. C. 184.

When Surety Must Show Actual Money Payment.—Where a surety brings an action of assumpsit, for money paid for the use and at the request of the defendant, against his co-surety, to obtain contribution, it is not sufficient for him to show that he has given his note for the debt due by the principal, and that the same has been accepted by the creditor as a payment and discharge of the debt. To entitle him to recover in this action, he must prove an actual payment in money, or in money's worth, such as bank notes, the note of a third person, or a horse or the like, which is valuable in itself to the surety who parts with it. Brisendine v. Martin, 23 N. C. 286.

Notice.—In an action for contribution by a surety against four different guardian bonds, with different penalties and different sureties, some solvent and some otherwise, it is not necessary that notice should be given before the action is brought. Bright v. Lennon, 83 N. C. 184.

Right to Demand Waived.—Where the plaintiff brings suit for contribution against a co-surety on a note, alleging his liability as such, and that he had failed or refused reimbursement to the extent of his liability to the plaintiff, who had paid the same, and the defendant answers, denying liability, and there is no averment that demand had been previously made on the defendant, the right to a demand is waived by the answer, and the statement of the cause of action, being only defective, is cured. Shuford v. Cook, 164 N. C. 46, 80 S. E. 61.

What Co-sureties Must Be Made Parties.—A surety, who has been compelled to pay the debt of his principal, must make all his co-sureties parties to a bill for contribution, if they are in this State and solvent. But where one is out of the jurisdiction of the court, and others are within it, the plaintiff, by stating the fact in his bill, is at liberty to proceed against the latter alone. Jones v. Blanton, 41 N. C. 115.

Principal or Executor Party Defendant.—To a bill brought by one surety against his co-surety for contribution, their common principal, or, if he be dead, his executor or administrator should be made a party defendant. Rainey v. Yarborough, 37 N. C. 249.

Bankruptcy of Principal.—Where it appears that the principal on a note has secured his discharge in bankruptcy from his obligations, including a note paid at maturity by one of two sureties thereon, and that a few months thereafter the surety who paid the note brought his action for contribution against his co-surety, who has paid nothing, the right of action given by Revisal, sec. 2844, now this section, will not, without more, be denied upon the ground that it requires the insolvency of the principal, in such cases, to be shown at the institution of the action. Shuford v. Cook, 164 N. C. 46, 80 S. E. 61.

Interest on Collaterals.—In an action against an alleged co-surety to recover money paid in settlement of their joint liability, the amount received by the plaintiff as interest on collaterals deposited, should be deducted from the amount paid by plaintiff. Carr v. Smith, 129 N. C. 232, 39 S. E. 831.

Discharge of Levy by Co-surety.—A, having a judgment against B, as principal, and C, as surety, C, without the consent of A, has an execution issued and levied upon B's property. A, has a right to withdraw the execution and discharge the levy, without making herself liable to C. Forbes v. Smith, 40 N. C. 369.

Principal's Reputation to Show Insolvency.—In an action for contribution by a surety against his co-surety, the plaintiff may offer evidence of their principal's insolvency by showing his general reputation, and this even after direct evidence of the said principal's insolvency. Leak v. Covington, 99 N. C. 559, 6 S. E. 241.

Record of Judgment in Evidence.—A surety seeking contribution from a co-surety can offer in evidence the record of a judgment against the surety as such, which, in the absence of any suggestion of fraud or collusion in procuring the same, is prima facie proof of the damages suffered by the said surety. Leak v. Covington, 99 N. C. 559, 6 S. E. 241.

Operation of Parol Evidence Rule.—The rule that parol evidence cannot be admitted to contradict a written contract, applies to actions on the contract itself, but not to such as arise collaterally out of it. So, where it appeared on the face of a note that certain parties thereto were sureties, in an action for contribution, parol evidence is admissible to show that they were really principals. Williams v. Glenn, 92 N. C. 253.

§ 26-6. Dissenting surety not liable to surety on stay of execution.—Whenever any judgment shall be obtained before a justice against a principal and his surety, and the principal debtor shall desire to stay the execution thereon, but the surety is unwilling that such stay shall be had, the surety may cause his dissent thereto to be entered by the justice, which shall absolve him from all liability to the surety who may stay the same. And the constable or other officer, who may have the collection of the debt, shall make the money out of the property of the principal debtor, and that of the surety for the stay of execution, if he can, before he shall sell the property of the surety before judgment. (Rev., s. 2845; Code, s. 2095; R. C. c. 110, s. 3; 1829, c. 6, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 3966.)

§ 26-7. Surety may notify creditor to sue.—In all cases where any surety or indorser on any note, bill, bond, or other written obligation shall consider himself in danger of loss in consequence of his contingent liability, either from the insolvency or misconduct of the principal, in the note, bill, bond, or other written obligation, or from the negligence of the payee or holder of any such instrument, it shall be lawful for such surety or indorser, at any time after such note, bill, bond, or other written obligation becomes due and payable, to cause written notice to be given to the payee or holder of any such paper or obligation, requiring him to bring suit on such obligation, and to use all reasonable diligence to save harmless such surety or indorser: Provided, nothing herein contained shall apply to official bonds, or bonds given by any person acting in a fiduciary capacity. (Rev., s. 2846; Code, s. 2097; 1868-9, c. 232, s. 1; C. S. 3967.)

Cross Reference.—As to statute of limitations, see subdivisions 1 and 6 of § 1-52.

Reasonable Compliance.—The requirements of this section are reasonably complied with when the holder of a negotiable note, after receiving notice in accordance with this section, within thirty days causes the maker to be a party defendant, and it is made to appear that he is a non-resident. Taylor v. Bridger, 185 N. C. 85, 116 S. E. 94.

Protection Secured.—In Moore v. Goodwin, 109 N. C. 218, 13 S. E. 772, which was a case holding that payment made by a principal upon a bond, before the cause of action thereon is barred against the sureties, arrests the operation of the statute of limitations, Mr. Justice Davis, who delivered the opinion of the court, said in reference to this section: "Counsel says that if several co-obligors owe a debt of $1,000 under this ruling, if a note or bond shall be credited with the pitiful sum of ten cents within every three years, the debt may be kept in force against the sureties for a century. The hardship and injustice, so eloquently portrayed by counsel are without force, in view of the facts that the payment must be honestly made, and the credit not falsely or fraudulently given, and the surety or indorser, if he shall consider himself in danger of being held liable for a century, or for a longer time than he may wish, he can easily and safely protect himself against such hardship by giving the notice prescribed in section 2097 of the Code (now this section)."

This section affords relief to securities in cases not provided for in the pre-existing law, by requiring the creditor, at the instance of the surety who considers himself in danger of loss from his contingent liability, to bring suit, and use reasonable diligence in making his money from the principal, and saving harmless the surety, at the hazard of losing his claim upon the latter, if negligent in doing so. But official bonds or securities held as collateral are excepted from the operation of the act; nor does it reach the present case, since the requirement of the sureties was verbal only, if in other aspects applicable to the present case. There is no error, and the judgment is affirmed. Bank v. Homesley, 99 N. C. 531, 6 S. E. 797, 798.

Where an action was brought upon a negotiable instrument the defendants on its face being joint makers, the mere fact that the plaintiff had told one of the defendants, without the knowledge of the other, "that he would take up and carry the note until fall," was held to constitute an extension of payment for a "fixed and definite" period, which would operate as a release to such other from liability but his remedy is by quia timet notice under this section. Roderson-Ruffin Co. v. Spain, 173 N. C. 23, 91 S. E. 361.

Same—Endorser in Blank of Non-Negotiable Paper.—The rights of an endorser in blank upon a non-negotiable note are sufficiently protected under the section which provides that a surety or endorser on any note, bill, bond or written obligation, except those held in trust or as collateral, may notify, in writing, the payee or holder, requiring him to bring suit and use all diligence to collect, and if the payee or holder refuses to bring action within thirty days, the surety or holder giving notice is discharged. Johnson v. Lassiter, 155 N. C. 77, 71 S. E. 23.

Surety Released after Thirty Days.—The surety can give the holder written notice quia timet to bring suit under this section, and if the holder does not do so within thirty days the surety will be released. Cole v. Fox, 83 N. C. 463; Coffey v. Reinhardt, 144 N. C. 509, 512, 19 S. E. 370.

Legal Duty of Principal.—Except when required by written notice under the section it is not the legal duty of the principal to institute a suit against the debtor, or to pursue such a suit with diligence and to call to his aid all of the remedies provided by the law. Bell v. Howerton, 111 N. C. 69, 70, 15 S. E. 891.

When Inapplicable.—Where there is an agreement in a negotiable note that the endorser will continue to be bound notwithstanding an extension of time granted to the maker, the endorser cannot avail themselves of the provisions of this section, when the maker is a nonresident, demand for payment after dishonor has been made upon the resident endorser, defendants in the action, and they have delayed to give the statutory notice until after action commenced. Taylor v. Bridger, 185 N. C. 85, 116 S. E. 94.

§ 26-8. How notice served.—Such notice shall be served by the sheriff or his deputy, who shall return it to the party for whose benefit the notice was issued, which shall be evidence of the fact in all courts. (Rev., s. 2848; Code, s. 2099; 1868-9, c. 232, s. 3; C. S. 3968.)

To have the benefit of the next preceding section and that there may be no controversy as to whether the demand is sufficient to have this effect, it must be a notice in writing given to the creditor; and its benefits are secured to such only as give the notice if there be more than one surety. Bank v. Homesley, 99 N. C. 531, 6 S. E. 797, 798.

§ 26-9. Failure of creditor to sue discharges surety; exceptions.—Should the payee or holder of any such note, bond, bill, or other written obligation refuse or fail, within thirty days from the service of such notice, to bring suit in the appropriate court in an effort to save harmless such surety or indorser, such refusal or failure to sue shall operate as a discharge of such surety or indorser, from all liability whatever, on any such note, bond, bill, or other written obligation: Provided, that this notice shall not have the effect to discharge from liability any cosurety who does not join in such notice, or who has not given a separate notice: Provided further, that this and § 26-8 shall not apply to holders of such note, bond, bill, or obligation, who hold the same as collateral security or in trust. (Rev., s. 2847; Code, s. 2098; 1868-9, c. 232, s. 2; C. S. 3969.)

Extension of Time.—Where a creditor enters into a binding contract with his principal debtor for an extension of time, without consent of sureties, ipso facto discharges them, and also any security given for the debt. Flemming v. Borden, 127 N. C. 214, 37 S. E. 219, 53 L. R. A. 316; Jenkins v. Daniel, 125 N. C. 161, 34 S. E. 239, 74 Am. St. Rep. 632; Smith v. Building & Loan Ass'n, 119 N. C. 257, 26 S. E. 40; Hinton v. Greenleaf, 113 N. C. 6, 18 S. E. 56. Receipt of interest in advance is prima facie evidence of a binding contract of forbearance. Scott v. Fisher, 110 N. C. 311, 14 S. E. 799, 28 Am. St. Rep. 688; Hollingsworth v. Tomlinson, 108 N. C. 245, 12 S. E. 989; Smith v. Parker, 131 N. C. 470, 42 S. E. 910.

Where a plaintiff creditor made a parol contract with principal to extend the time of payment of bond beyond the date of the commencement of a suit thereon, without the knowledge or consent of the surety, it was held that such contract has the effect of suspending the plaintiff's right of action and of exonerating the surety from liability. Carrier v. Duncan, 84 N. C. 676.

Reservation of Right against Surety.—An agreement with a principal on a sufficient consideration to forbear to sue for a fixed period, without reserving the right to proceed against the surety and made without his assent, will exonerate him from liability. Forbes v. Sheppard, 98 N. C. 111, 3 S. E. 817.

The exoneration grows out of the agreement to forbear and is not affected by the creditor's breach of it. Forbes v. Sheppard, 98 N. C. 111, 3 S. E. 817.

§ 26-10: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

§ 26-11. Cancellation of judgment as to surety.—Whenever a judgment shall be rendered in any court in accordance with the provisions of § 26-1 and the surety, endorser or other person shown in said judgment to be secondarily liable thereon and having the rights as by this chapter prescribed against the person or persons primarily liable, and the surety, endorser or other person so shown in the judgment to be secondarily liable, shall pay the said judgment or shall be compelled to pay an execution issued thereon and such fact shall appear to the satisfaction of the clerk of the Superior Court of the county in which the said judgment is rendered and docketed, such judgment shall be canceled as to said surety, endorser or other person secondarily liable and shall cease to be a lien upon his real estate and other property, but such cancellation shall not have the force and effect nor operate as a cancellation and discharge of the judgment as to any other person against whom the said judgment shall be rendered and the person so paying the said judgment shall have all the rights given to a surety who has been compelled to pay a judgment against the principal debtor and cosureties which are given in this chapter, notwithstanding the cancellation of the said judgment as herein provided for. (1925, c. 38.)

Cross Reference.—As to public warehouses in general, see §§ 66-35 to 66-40.

What Constitutes Warehousemen. — It matters not if a concern is a person or partnership. If the concern is engaged in the business and goods are stored for profit, this section applies. It matters not if the concern stores its own and also the goods of others. The receipt issued by the concern under consideration terms itself "warehouse receipt" and shows on the face that the goods are stored for profit; it gives the "storage rates." Webb & Co. v. Friedberg, 189 N. C. 166, 126 S. E. 508.

§ 27-3. Uniform construction. — This chapter shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (1917, c. 37, s. 57; C. S. 4038.)

§ 27-4. General law applied.—In any case not provided for in this chapter, the rules of law and equity, including the law merchant, and in particular the rules relating to the law of principal and agent and to the effect of fraud, misrepresentation, duress or coercion, mistake, bankruptcy, or other invalidating cause, shall govern. (1917, c. 37, s. 56; C. S. 4039.)

Art. 2. Issue of Warehouse Receipts.

§ 27-5. Who may issue receipts. — Warehouse receipts may be issued by any warehouseman. (1917, c. 37, s. 1; C. S. 4041.)

§ 27-6. What receipt must contain. — Warehouse receipts need not be in any particular form, but every such receipt must embody within its written or printed terms—

1. The location of the warehouse where the goods are stored.
2. The date of issue of the receipt.
3. The consecutive number of the receipt.
4. A statement whether the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, to a specified person, or to a specified person or his order.
5. The rate of storage charges.
6. A description of the goods or of the packages containing them.
7. The signature of the warehouseman, which may be made by his authorized agent.
8. If the receipt is issued for goods of which the warehouseman is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, the fact of such ownership; and
9. A statement of the amount of advances made and of liabilities incurred for which the warehouseman claims a lien. If the precise amount of such advances made or of such liabilities incurred is at the time of the issue of the receipt unknown to the warehouseman or to his agent who issues it, a statement of the fact that advances have been made or liabilities incurred, and the purpose thereof, is sufficient. A warehouseman shall be liable to any person injured thereby, for all damage caused by the omission from a negotiable receipt of any of the terms herein required. (Rev., s. 3032; 1917, c. 37, s. 2; C. S. 4042.)

§ 27-7. Other terms inserted; exceptions. — A warehouseman may insert in a receipt issued by him any other terms and conditions, provided that such terms and conditions shall not—

1. Be contrary to the provisions of this chapter.
2. In anywise impair his obligation to exercise that degree of care in the safekeeping of the goods entrusted to him which a reasonably careful man would exercise in regard to similar goods of his own. (1917, c. 37, s. 3; C. S. 4043.)

§ 27-8. Nonnegotiable receipts. — A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the depositor, or to any other specified person, is a nonnegotiable receipt. (1917, c. 37, s. 4; C. S. 4044.)

§ 27-9. Nonnegotiable receipts marked. — A nonnegotiable receipt shall have plainly placed upon its face by the warehouseman issuing it "nonnegotiable," or "not negotiable." In case of the warehouseman's failure so to do, a holder of the receipt who purchased it for value supposing it to be negotiable may, at his option, treat such receipt as imposing upon the warehouseman the same liabilities he would have incurred had the receipt been negotiable. This section shall not apply, however, to letters, memoranda, or written acknowledgments of an informal character. (Rev., s. 3032; 1917, c. 37, s. 7; C. S. 4045.)

§ 27-10. Negotiable receipts. — A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, or to the order of any person named in such receipt, is a negotiable receipt. No provisions shall be inserted in a negotiable receipt that it is nonnegotiable. Such provision, if inserted, shall be void. (Rev., s. 3032; 1917, c. 37, s. 5; C. S. 4046.)

§ 27-11. Duplicate negotiable receipts.—When more than one negotiable receipt is issued for the same goods, the word "duplicate" shall be plainly placed upon the face of every such receipt, except the one first issued. A warehouseman shall be liable for all damage caused by his failure so to do to any one who purchased the subsequent receipt for value supposing it to be an original, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman to the holder of the original receipt. (1917, c. 37, s. 6; C. S. 4047.)

Art. 3. Obligations and Rights of Warehousemen on Receipts.

§ 27-12. Delivery of goods on proper demand.—A warehouseman, in the absence of some lawful excuse provided by this chapter, is bound to deliver the goods upon a demand made either by the holder of a receipt for the goods or by the depositor, if such demand is accompanied with—

1. An offer to satisfy the warehouseman's lien;
2. An offer to surrender the receipt if negotiable, with such indorsements as would be necessary for the negotiation of the receipt; and

3. A readiness and willingness to sign, when the goods are delivered, an acknowledgment that they have been delivered, if such signature is requested by the warehouseman. In case the warehouseman refuses or fails to deliver the goods in compliance with a demand by the holder or depositor so accompanied, the burden shall be upon the warehouseman to establish the existence of a lawful excuse for such refusal. (1917, c. 37, s. 8; C. S. 4048.)

§ 27-13. To whom goods may be delivered.—A warehouseman is justified in delivering the goods, subject to the provisions of §§ 27-14, 27-15, and 27-16, to one who is—

1. The person lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods, or his agent;

2. A person who is either himself entitled to delivery by the terms of a non-negotiable receipt issued for the goods or who has written authority from the person so entitled, either indorsed upon the receipt or written upon another paper; or

3. A person in possession of a negotiable receipt by the terms of which the goods are deliverable to him or order or to bearer, or which has been indorsed to him or in blank by the person to whom delivery was promised by the terms of the receipt or by his mediate or immediate indorsee. (1917, c. 37, s. 9; C. S. 4049.)

Cross Reference.—As to right of person injured to bring action on warehouseman's bond, see § 66-37.

§ 27-14. Liability for wrong delivery.—Where a warehouseman delivers the goods to one who is not in fact lawfully entitled to the possession of them, the warehouseman shall be liable as for conversion to all having a right of property or possession in the goods if he delivered the goods otherwise than as authorized by subdivisions (2) and (3) of the preceding section, and though he delivered the goods as authorized by said subdivisions, he shall be so liable if prior to such delivery he had either—

1. Been requested, by or on behalf of the person lawfully entitled to a right of property or possession in the goods, not to make such delivery, or

2. Had information that the delivery about to be made was to one not lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods. (1917, c. 37, s. 10; C. S. 4050.)

§ 27-15. Liability on receipt not taken up on delivery.—Except as hereafter provided in this article, when the goods may have been sold to satisfy warehouseman's charges or because of their perishable or hazardous nature, where a warehouseman delivers goods for which he had issued a negotiable receipt, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods, and fails to take up and cancel the receipt, he shall be liable, to any one who purchases for value and in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver the goods to him, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman. (1917, c. 37, s. 11; C. S. 4051.)

§ 27-16. Liability on receipt for partial delivery.

—Except when goods may have been sold to satisfy warehouseman's lien or because of their perishable or hazardous nature, as hereafter provided in this article, where a warehouseman delivers a part of the goods for which he had issued a negotiable receipt and fails either to take up and cancel the receipt or to place plainly upon it a statement of what goods or packages have been delivered, he shall be liable, to any one who purchases for value in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver all the goods specified in the receipt, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the warehouseman. (1917, c. 37, s. 12; C. S. 4052.)

§ 27-17. Effect of alteration of receipt.—The alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from any liability if such alteration was—

1. Immaterial,

2. Authorized, or

3. Made without fraudulent intent.

If the alteration was authorized, the warehouseman shall be liable according to the terms of the receipt as altered. If the alteration was unauthorized, but made without fraudulent intent, the warehouseman shall be liable according to the terms of the receipt as they were before alteration. Material and fraudulent alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from liability to deliver, according to the terms of the receipt as originally issued, the goods for which it was issued, but shall excuse him from any other liability to the person who made the alteration and to any person who took with notice of the alteration. Any purchaser of the receipt for value without notice of the alteration shall acquire the same rights against the warehouseman which such purchaser would have acquired if the receipt had not been altered at the time of the purchase. (1917, c. 37, s. 13; C. S. 4053.)

§ 27-18. Delivery in case of lost receipt.—Where a negotiable receipt has been lost or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss or destruction and upon the giving of a bond with sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court, to protect the warehouseman from any liability or expense which he or any person injured by such delivery may incur by reason of the original receipt remaining outstanding. The court may also, in its discretion, order the payment of the warehouseman's reasonable costs. The delivery of the goods under an order of the court as provided in this section shall not relieve the warehouseman from liability to a person to whom the negotiable receipt has been or shall be negotiated for value without notice of the proceedings or of the delivery of the goods. (1917, c. 37, s. 14; C. S. 4054.)

§ 27-19. Effect of issuing duplicate receipt.—A receipt upon the face of which the word "duplicate" is plainly placed is a representation and warranty by the warehouseman that such receipt is an accurate copy of an original receipt properly issued and uncanceled at the date of the issue of the duplicate, but shall impose upon him no other liability. (1917, c. 37, s. 15; C. S. 4055.)

§ 27-20. Claim of title no defense for nondelivery; exceptions.—No title or right to the possession of the goods, on the part of the warehouseman, unless such title or right is derived directly or indirectly from a transfer made by the depositor at the time of or subsequent to the deposit for storage, or from the warehouseman's lien, shall excuse the warehouseman from liability for refusing to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt. (1917, c. 37, s. 16; C. S. 4056.)

§ 27-21. Interpleader in conflicting claims.—If more than one person claims the title or possession of the goods, the warehouseman may, either as a defense to an action brought against him for nondelivery of the goods or as an original suit, whichever is appropriate, require all known claimants to interplead. (1917, c. 37, s. 17; C. S. 4057.)

§ 27-22. Reasonable time to investigate conflicting claims.—If some one other than the depositor or person claiming under him has a claim to the title or possession of the goods, and the warehouseman has information of such claim, the warehouseman shall be excused from liability for refusing to deliver the goods, either to the depositor or person claiming under him or to the adverse claimant, until the warehouseman has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claim or to bring legal proceedings to compel all claimants to interplead. (1917, c. 37, s. 18; C. S. 4058.)

§ 27-23. Title in third person no defense; exceptions.—Except as provided in §§ 27-21 and 27-22 and except when the goods may have been delivered to the person authorized to have such delivery, as heretofore provided in this article, or when the goods may have been sold to satisfy the warehouseman's lien or because of their perishable or hazardous nature, as hereafter provided in this article, no right or title of a third person shall be a defense to an action brought by the depositor or person claiming under him against the warehouseman for failure to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt. (1917, c. 37, s. 19; C. S. 4059.)

§ 27-24. Failure to deliver goods as described.—A warehouseman shall be liable to the holder of a receipt issued by him or on his behalf by an agent or employee the scope of whose actual or apparent authority includes the issuing of warehouse receipts, for damages caused by the nonexistence of the goods or by the failure of the goods to correspond with the description thereof in the receipt at the time of its issue. If, however, the goods are described in a receipt merely by a statement of marks or labels upon them or upon packages containing them, or by a statement that the goods are said to be goods of a certain kind, or that the packages containing the goods are said to contain goods of a certain kind, or by words of like purport, such statements, if true, shall not make liable the warehouseman issuing the receipt, although the goods are not of the kind which the marks or labels upon them indicate, or of the kind they were said to be by the depositor. (1917, c. 37, s. 20; 1931, c. 358, s. 1; C. S. 4060.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931, inapplicable to litigation pending May 4, 1931, added the words "issued by him or on his behalf by an agent or employee the scope of whose actual or apparent authority includes the issuing of warehouse receipts," in the first sentence of this section.

§ 27-25. Liability for negligence.—A warehouseman shall be liable for any loss or injury to the goods caused by his failure to exercise such care in regard to them as a reasonably careful owner of similar goods would exercise; but he shall not be liable, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, for any loss or injury to the goods which could not have been avoided by the exercise of such care. (1917, c. 37, s. 21; C. S. 4061.)

§ 27-26. Goods kept separate.—Except as provided in § 27-27, a warehouseman shall keep the goods so far separate from goods of other depositors, and from other goods of the same depositor for which a separate receipt has been issued, as to permit at all times the identification and redelivery of the goods deposited. (1917, c. 37, s. 22; C. S. 4062.)

§ 27-27. Effect of confusion of goods.—If authorized by agreement or by custom, a warehouseman may mingle fungible goods with other goods of the same kind and grade. In such case the various depositors of the mingled goods shall own the entire mass in common and each depositor shall be entitled to such portion thereof as the amount deposited by him bears to the whole. (Rev., s. 3034; 1917, c. 37, s. 23; C. S. 4063.)

§ 27-28. Liability of warehouseman when goods confused.—The warehouseman shall be severally liable to each depositor for the care and redelivery of his share of such mass to the same extent and under the same circumstances as if the goods had been kept separate. (1917, c. 37, s. 24; C. S. 4064.)

§ 27-29. Goods not subject to attachment or execution.—If goods are delivered to a warehouseman by the owner or by a person whose act in conveying the title to them to a purchaser in good faith for value would bind the owner, and a negotiable receipt is issued for them, they cannot thereafter, while in the possession of the warehouseman, be attached by garnishment or otherwise, or be levied upon under an execution, unless the receipt be first surrendered to the warehouseman or its negotiation enjoined. The warehouseman shall in no case be compelled to deliver up the actual possession of the goods until the receipt is surrendered to him or impounded by the court. (1917, c. 37, s. 25; C. S. 4065.)

Order Constituting Injunction.—In view of § 1-490, an order of the judge operating to prevent the holder of warehouse certificates from disposing of them except under order of the court, is a sufficient compliance with this section constituting it an injunction. Standard Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Cooper, 30 Fed. (2d) 842, 845.

§ 27-30. Creditor's remedy against receipt.—A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a negotiable receipt shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction and otherwise, in attaching such receipt or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process. (1917, c. 37, s. 26; C. S. 4066.)

§ 27-31. Warehouseman's lien.—Subject to the subsequent provisions of this article specifying what liens may be enforced against a negotiable receipt, a warehouseman shall have a lien on goods deposited or on the proceeds thereof in his hands, for all lawful charges for storage and preservation of the goods; also for all lawful claims for money advanced, interest, insurance, transportation, labor, weighing, cooping, and other charges and expenses in relation to such goods; also for all reasonable charges and expenses for notice and advertisements of sale, and for sale of the goods where default has been made in satisfying the warehouseman's lien. (1917, c. 37, s. 27; C. S. 4067.)

Cited in Champion Shoe Machinery Co. v. Sellers, 197 N. C. 30, 32, 147 S. E. 674; Standard Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Cooper, 30 Fed. (2d) 842.

§ 27-32. Against what goods lien enforced.—Subject to the subsequent provisions of this article specifying what liens may be enforced against a negotiable receipt, a warehouseman's lien may be enforced—

1. Against all goods, whenever deposited, belonging to the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted; and

2. Against all goods belonging to others which have been deposited at any time by the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted, if such person has been so entrusted with the possession of the goods that a pledge of the same by him at the time of the deposit to one who took the goods in good faith for value would have been valid. (1917, c. 37, s. 28; C. S. 4068.)

§ 27-33. Loss of lien.—A warehouseman loses his lien upon goods—

1. By surrendering possession thereof, or

2. By refusing to deliver the goods when a demand is made with which he is bound to comply under the provisions of this chapter. (1917, c. 37, s. 29; C. S. 4069.)

§ 27-34. What liens enforced against negotiable receipts.—If a negotiable receipt is issued for goods, the warehouseman shall have no lien thereon, except for charges for storage of those goods subsequent to the date of the receipt, unless the receipt expressly enumerate other charges for which a lien is claimed. In such case there shall be a lien for the charges enumerated so far as they are within the terms for a warehouseman's lien as heretofore provided in this article, although the amount of the charges so enumerated is not stated in the receipt. (1917, c. 37, s. 30; C. S. 4070.)

§ 27-35. Right to retain until liens satisfied.—A warehouseman having a lien valid against the person demanding the goods may refuse to deliver the goods to him until the lien is satisfied. (1917, c. 37, s. 31; C. S. 4071.)

§ 27-36. Other legal remedies for warehouseman.—Whether a warehouseman has or has not a lien upon the goods, he is entitled to all remedies allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor for the collection from the depositor of all charges and advances which the depositor has expressly or impliedly contracted with the warehouseman to pay. (1917, c. 37, s. 32; C. S. 4072.)

§ 27-37. Enforcement of liens.—A warehouseman's lien for a claim which has become due may be satisfied as follows:

1. Notice given. The warehouseman shall give a written notice to the person on whose account the goods are held, and to any other person known by the warehouseman to claim an interest in the goods. Such notice shall be given by delivery in person or by registered letter addressed to the last known place of business or abode of the person to be notified. The notice shall contain—

a. An itemized statement of the warehouseman's claim, showing the sum due at the time of the notice and the date or dates when it became due;

b. A brief description of the goods against which the lien exists;

c. A demand that the amount of the claim as stated in the notice, and of such further claim as shall accrue, shall be paid on or before a day mentioned, not less than ten days from the delivery of the notice if it is personally delivered or from the time when the notice should reach its destination according to the due course of post if the notice is sent by mail; and

d. A statement that unless the claims are paid within the time specified the goods will be advertised for sale and sold by auction at a specified time and place.

2. Sale of goods. In accordance with the terms of a notice so given, a sale of the goods by auction may be had to satisfy any valid claim of the warehouseman for which he has a lien on the goods. The sale shall be had in the place where the lien was acquired, or, if such place is manifestly unsuitable for the purpose, at the nearest suitable place. After the time for the payment of the claim specified in the notice to the depositor has elapsed, an advertisement of the sale, describing the goods to be sold, and stating the name of the owner or person on whose account the goods are held, and the time and place of the sale, shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the place where such sale is to be held. The sale shall not be held less than fifteen days from the time of the first publication. If there is no newspaper published in such place, the advertisement shall be posted at least ten days before such sale in not less than six conspicuous places therein. From the proceeds of such sale the warehouseman shall satisfy his lien, including the reasonable charges of notice, advertisement, and sale. The balance, if any, of such proceeds shall be held by the warehouseman, and delivered on demand to the person to whom he would have been bound to deliver or justified in delivering the goods.

3. Right of claimant to pay charges. At any time before the goods are so sold any person claiming a right of property or possession therein may pay the warehouseman the amount necessary to satisfy his lien and to pay the reasonable expenses and liabilities incurred in serving notices and advertising and preparing for the sale up to the time of such payment. The warehouseman shall deliver the goods to the person making such payment if he is a person entitled, under the provisions of this chapter, to the possession of the goods on payment of charges thereon. Otherwise, the warehouseman shall retain possession of the goods according to the terms of the original contract of deposit. (Rev., ss. 3036, 3037, 3038; 1917, c. 37, s. 33; C. S. 4073.)

§ 27-38. Sale of perishable goods.—If goods are of a perishable nature, or by keeping will deteriorate greatly in value, or by their odor, leakage, inflammability, or explosive nature will be liable to injure other property, the warehouseman may give such notice to the owner, or to the person in whose name the goods are stored, as is reasonable and possible under the circumstances, to satisfy the lien upon such goods and to remove them from the warehouse; and in the event of the failure of such person to satisfy the lien and to remove the goods within the time so specified, the warehouseman may sell the goods at public or private sale without advertising. If the warehouseman after a reasonable effort is unable to sell such goods, he may dispose of them in any lawful manner, and shall incur no liability by reason thereof. The proceeds of any sale made under the terms of this section shall be disposed of in the same way as the proceeds of sales made under the terms of § 27-37. (Rev., ss. 3039, 3040; 1917, c. 37, s. 34; C. S. 4074.)

§ 27-39. Other remedies not excluded.—The remedy for enforcing a lien herein provided does not preclude any other remedies allowed by law for the enforcement of a lien against personal property nor bar the right to recover so much of the warehouseman's claim as shall not be paid by the proceeds of the sale of the property. (Rev., s. 3041; 1917, c. 37, s. 35; C. S. 4075.)

Cited in Standard Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Cooper, 30 Fed. (2d) 842.

§ 27-40. Liability discharged by sale for liens.—After goods have been lawfully sold to satisfy a warehouseman's lien, or have been lawfully sold or disposed of because of their perishable or hazardous nature, the warehouseman shall not thereafter be liable for failure to deliver the goods to the depositor or owner of the goods, or to a holder of the receipt given for the goods when they were deposited, even if such receipt be negotiable. (1917, c. 37, s. 36; C. S. 4076.)

Art. 4. Negotiation and Transfer of Receipts.

§ 27-41. Negotiation by delivery.—A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by delivery—

1. Where by the terms of the receipt the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the bearer; or

2. Where by the terms of the receipt the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of a specified person, and such person or a subsequent indorsee of the receipt has indorsed it in blank or to bearer.

Where by the terms of a negotiable receipt the goods are deliverable to bearer, or where a negotiable receipt has been indorsed in blank or to bearer, any holder may indorse the same to himself or to any other specified person, and in such case the receipt shall thereafter be negotiated only by the indorsement of such indorsee. (1917, c. 37, s. 37; C. S. 4077.)

Cited in Standard Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Cooper, 30 Fed. (2d) 842.

§ 27-42. Negotiation by indorsement.—A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by the indorsement of the person to whose order the goods are by the terms of the receipt deliverable. Such indorsement may be in blank, to bearer, or to a specified person. If indorsed to a specified person, it may be again negotiated by the indorsement of such person in blank, to bearer, or to another specified person. Subsequent negotiation may be made in like manner. (1917, c. 37, s. 38; C. S. 4078.)

§ 27-43. Transfer of nonnegotiable receipts.—A receipt which is not in such form that it can be negotiated by delivery may be transferred by the holder by delivery to a purchaser or donee.

A nonnegotiable receipt cannot be negotiated, and the indorsement of such a receipt gives the transferee no additional right. (1917, c. 37, s. 39; C. S. 4079.)

§ 27-44. Who may negotiate a receipt.—A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by any person in possession of the same however such possession may have been acquired, if, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of such person or if at the time of negotiation the receipt is in such form that it may be negotiated by delivery. (1917, c. 37, s. 40; 1931, c. 358, s. 2; C. S. 4080.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 struck out the former section and inserted the above in lieu thereof. It provided that the act should not affect litigation pending May 4, 1931.

See 9 N. C. L. Rev. 404.

§ 27-45. Rights acquired by negotiation.—A person to whom a negotiable receipt has been duly negotiated acquires thereby—

1. Such title to the goods as the person negotiating the receipt to him had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and also such title to the goods as the depositor or person to whose order the goods were to be delivered by the terms of the receipt had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value; and

2. The direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt as fully as if the warehouseman had contracted directly with him. (1917, c. 37, s. 41; C. S. 4081.)

§ 27-46. Rights acquired by transfer.—A person to whom a receipt has been transferred but not negotiated acquires thereby, as against the transferrer, the title of the goods, subject to the terms of any agreement with the transferrer. If the receipt is nonnegotiable, such person also acquires the right to notify the warehouseman of the transfer to him of such receipt, and thereby to acquire the direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt. Prior to the notification of the warehouseman by the transferrer or transferee of a nonnegotiable receipt, the title of the transferee to the goods and the right to acquire the obligation of the warehouseman may be defeated by the levy of an attachment or execution upon the goods by a creditor of the transferor, or by a notification to the warehouseman by the transferor or a subsequent purchaser from the transferor of a subsequent sale of the goods by the transferor. (1917, c. 37, s. 42; C. S. 4082.)

§ 27-47. Right to compel indorsement.—Where a negotiable receipt is transferred for value by delivery, and the indorsement of the transferor is essential for negotiation, the transferee acquires a right against the transferor to compel him to indorse the receipt, unless a contrary intention appears. The negotiation shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. (1917, c. 37, s. 43; C. S. 4083.)

§ 27-48. Warranties in negotiation and transfer.—A person who for value negotiates or transfers a receipt by indorsement or delivery, including one who assigns for value a claim secured by a receipt, unless a contrary intention appears, warrants—

1. That the receipt is genuine;
2. That he has a legal right to negotiate or transfer it;
3. That he has knowledge of no fact which would impair the validity or worth of the receipt; and
4. That he has a right to transfer the title to the goods and that the goods are merchantable or fit for a particular purpose, whenever such warranties would have been implied if the contract of the parties had been to transfer without a receipt the goods represented thereby. (1917, c. 37, s. 44; C. S. 4084.)

§ 27-49. Indorser not liable for failure of prior parties.—The indorsement of a receipt shall not make the indorser liable for any failure on the part of the warehouseman or previous indorsers of the receipt to fulfill their respective obligations. (1917, c. 37, s. 45; C. S. 4085.)

§ 27-50. No warranty by collection of debt secured by receipt.—A mortgagee, pledgee, or holder for security of a receipt who in good faith demands or receives payment of the debt for which such receipt is security, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt or from any other person, shall not by so doing be deemed to represent or to warrant the genuineness of such receipt or the quantity or quality of the goods therein described. (1917, c. 37, s. 46; C. S. 4086.)

§ 27-51. Rights of bona fide holder not affected by fraud.—The validity of the negotiation of a receipt is not impaired by the fact that such negotiation was a breach of duty on the part of the person making the negotiation, or by the fact that the owner of the receipt was deprived of the possession of the same by loss, theft, fraud, accident, mistake, duress, or conversion, if the person to whom the receipt was negotiated, or a person to whom the receipt was subsequently negotiated, paid value therefor, in good faith without notice of the breach of duty, or loss, theft, fraud, accident, mistake, or duress or conversion. (1917, c. 37, s. 47; 1931, c. 358, s. 3; C. S. 4087.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this section to conform with § 27-44, as amended. See 9 N. C. L. Rev. 404.

It also provided that litigation pending May 4, 1931, should not be affected.

Fraudulent Negotiation by Superintendent.—Warehouse receipts, issued under § 106-435, which, upon being returned endorsed, were negotiated by the superintendent of the warehouse as collateral for a loan to himself, in breach of his duty to cancel them, are directly within the force of this section. Lacy v. Globe Indemnity Co., 189 N. C. 24, 126 S. E. 316.

§ 27-52. Subsequent purchasers protected.—Where a person having sold, mortgaged, or pledged goods which are in a warehouse and for which a negotiable receipt has been issued, or having sold, mortgaged, or pledged the negotiable receipt representing such goods, continues in possession of the negotiable receipt, the subsequent negotiation thereof by that person under any sale or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith, for value and without notice of the previous sale, mortgage, or pledge, shall have the same effect as if the first purchaser of the goods or receipt had expressly authorized the subsequent negotiation. (1917, c. 37, s. 48; C. S. 4088.)

§ 27-53. Right of purchaser superior to seller's lien.—Where a negotiable receipt has been issued for goods, no seller's lien or right of stoppage in transitu shall defeat the rights of any purchaser for value in good faith to whom such receipt has been negotiated, whether such negotiation be prior or subsequent to the notification to the warehouseman who issued such receipt of the seller's claim to a lien or right of stoppage in transitu. Nor shall the warehouseman be obliged to deliver or justified in delivering the goods to an unpaid seller unless the receipt is first surrendered for cancellation. (1917, c. 37, s. 49; C. S. 4089.)

Art. 5. Criminal Offenses.

§ 27-54. Issuing receipt for goods not stored.—A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a receipt knowing that the goods for which such receipt is issued have not been actually received by such warehouseman, or are not under his actual control at the time of issuing such receipt, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. (1917, c. 37, s. 50; C. S. 4090.)

§ 27-55. Issuing receipt with false statement.—A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who fraudulently issues or aids in fraudulently issuing a receipt for goods knowing that it contains any false statement, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. (1917, c. 37, s. 51, C. S. 4091.)

§ 27-56. Issuing fraudulent duplicates.—A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a duplicate or additional negotiable receipt for goods, knowing that a former negotiable receipt for the same goods or any part of them is outstanding and uncanceled, without plainly placing upon the face thereof the word "duplicate," except in the case of a lost or destroyed receipt after proceedings for delivery as heretofore provided in this chapter, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. (1917, c. 37, s. 52; C. S. 4092.)

§ 27-57. Failure to state in receipt the interest of warehouseman.—Where there are deposited with or held by a warehouseman goods of which he is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, such warehouseman, or any of his officers, agents, or servants who, knowing this ownership, issues or aids in issuing a negotiable receipt for such goods which does not state such ownership, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. (1917, c. 37, s. 53; C. S. 4093.)

§ 27-58. Delivering goods without obtaining receipt.—A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who delivers goods out of the possession of such warehouseman, knowing that a negotiable receipt the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of such goods is outstanding and un-canceled, without obtaining the possession of such receipt at or before the time of such delivery, except in the cases heretofore provided for in this chapter for the delivery of goods upon a lost receipt and for the sale of goods to satisfy the warehouseman's lien or because of their perishable or hazardous nature, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. (1917, c. 37, s. 54; C. S. 4094.)

Cross Reference.—As to punishment for unlawful disposition of property stored, see also § 66-40.

§ 27-59. Fraudulent deposit and negotiation.—Any person who deposits goods to which he has not title, or upon which there is a lien or mortgage, and who takes for such goods a negotiable receipt which he afterwards negotiates for value with intent to deceive and without disclosing his want of title or the existence of the lien or mortgage, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. (1917, c. 37, s. 55; C. S. 4095.)
